While this radical change in the recognized functions of government was in progress another movement of equal importance was pressing forward, and that was the gradual emancipation of women from much of the drudgery of the home. When steam came to be utilized for weaving and spinning and when much of the household food came to be prepared in factories millions of women were released from some of their immemorial and traditional duties.

The effect was twofold. Among the poor it drove the women out of the home into the workshops and factories. Among the well to do it gave the women more time to participate in civic affairs and community interests. In both cases it produced a demand for the ballot. The women driven into the wage earning class demanded it as a weapon of self defense. The women released from some portion of their home duties demanded it to secure more power in dealing with those functions of government that had invaded the sphere peculiarly their own—the home and all that affects the home.

Readjust Basis of Franchise.

It is the conjunction, then, of these reciprocal tendencies, the tendency of the government to deal with matters affecting the government, that makes it necessary, both in the interests of justice and the welfare of the state, for us now to readjust the basis for granting the electoral franchise.

Fourth.—We have examined the arguments and statistics presented by Senator Martine and others who are opposed to the adoption of the amendment to prove that women do not want the ballot, that they do not vote when the privilege is granted, that woman suffrage has done no good in states where it has been tried and that it will tend to break up the home, destroy the finer qualities of womanhood and double the ignorant and criminal vote.

In answer to these statements we can only say that in our opinion they are not supported by the facts. The truth would seem to be that the number of women demanding the ballot in the United States today is greater than the number of men who have ever asked for anything in the history of the country and that in states where women have been given the ballot the women vote in quite the same proportion as men. What is more, we find no evidence to prove that it has done harm in any state where it has been tried. On the contrary, we find much conclusive evidence that in many of the equal suffrage states it has resulted in broadening the outlook and vision of the women, in quickening their intelligence, in increasing their self reliance and in raising the whole tone and standard of political life. Furthermore, the evidence is cumulative that legislation dealing with matters of special interest to women is secured more promptly in states where women have the ballot than in states where that privilege is denied them.

Two Slanders Refuted.

The fact that in our churches 75 per cent of the members are women and that in our prisons 75 per cent of the inmates are men would seem to dispose of the argument that it will double the criminal vote, while the fact that in our high schools two-thirds of the pupils are girls is a complete answer to the charge that it will double the ignorant vote.

We do not claim if women are enfranchised in New Jersey that all the beneficent results above mentioned will at once be apparent. The laws of evolution work with irresistible momentum and power, but not in haste. We do believe, however, that woman suffrage is the next great forward reach in the eternal onward march of the human race and that as time goes on the granting of the ballot to women will be justified in the gradual appearance of a higher standard of citizenship and a broader and nobler national life.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Washington.—The silver jubilee of the Daughters of the American Revolution recalls the foundation of that notable body of women. It was just 25 years ago today that seventeen women met here and founded the Daughters. They were led by Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, who protested against the giving of all the honor for the winning of American freedom to the sires of the nation. To see that the women of the colonies, who had raised the crops to feed the army, wove the cloth to clothe them, looked after the homes and the children, moulded their knives and forks into bullets, and kept the country alive, were not forgotten was the aim of Mrs. Lockwood and her co-workers. One of the first women to become a member was Mrs. Harrison, wife of President Harrison. Mrs. Lockwood, the founder, is now in her 84th year, physically active and mentally brilliant. She has served the society in many capacities, and at the last congress was unanimously elected as chaplain-general. The day is being celebrated by the various chapters throughout the country, and an effort is being made to lift the debt from Memorial Continental Hall, the national headquarters here.

Boston.—The arrival today of Earl and Lady Aberdeen brought to America two distinguished visitors. Lady Aberdeen, who has done so much to wipe out tuberculosis in the peasant huts of Ireland, will be the guest of Boston women at several receptions. She will deliver a lecture on Wednesday evening, and prior to that even a luncheon will be tendered her by the Women's City Club. The Earl and Lady Aberdeen will be given a public reception this evening. They will tour the United States and Canada.

Blairstown, N. J.—Mrs. Sarah E. Snover and her husband, Thomas L. Snover, parted thirty-five years ago. Their six children were brought up by the wife, and they are married and happy. Now Mrs. Snover is suing the woman she claims stole her husband from her three and a half decades ago. She is seeking in the courts redress for the years of alleged wrongs, and asks $5,000 damages from Mrs. Harriet Willever, a widow, with whom Snover boards.

This domestic tragedy has attracted much interest throughout this section. The man in the triangle was defeated for the freeholder nomination on the Democratic ticket at the recent primaries. He is sixty-seven years old, his wife is 66, and the "woman in the case" is fifty-eight.

That an automobile is responsible for the present suit is one of the unusual features of the case. The years of privation and hard work failed to embitter Snover's wife sufficiently to begin any retaliatory action. But recently the frequent sight of the woman she calls her rival, seated beside her husband in his new motor car, turned her thoughts to revenge. She forced her husband to contribute to her support, and then gave her attention to the widow. The latter denies she stole the woman's husband, and asserts that Snover had ample reasons for leaving home. When the case comes up for trial this month in the Warren county court, the full story of the domestic tragedy of a generation ago will be unfolded.

New York.—The secession of New York section from the Council of Jewish Women, is headed by Miss Sadie American, who has done such effective work in aid of Jewish girl immigrants in New York. A new name will be selected for the New York organization, which will continue to aid immigrant girls.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Vassar College will be celebrated this week. Noted educators from American and foreign universities are attending, and many of the alumnae will take part.

London.—Few women in England play a more important part in the great affairs of today than Miss Olwen Lloyd George, who is known as the "right-hand man" of her illustrious father, the Minister of Munitions. Lloyd George has a nervous temperament, and his daughter often keeps him in bed while she directs his affairs. She has aided him materially in his public duties, and has preserved his health by taking him out on the golf links, and at times camping in the out-of-doors. This summer has been a trying one for her, for the great question of munitions fell on her father's shoulders, and it has required all his strength and her aid to meet the problems of his office.

GRAIN DEALERS MEET.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 11.—The National Grain Dealers' Association met here today for its annual convention. Standardization of grain, the effect of foreign orders, and the freight rate agitation will be discussed by prominent speakers from the grain belt. The grain dealers will be in session until Wednesday evening.

U. S. OFFERS MORE FARMS.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Over 1,500,000 acres of land in the Bellefourge district of South Dakota are today opened to entry as 320 acre homesteads.

—It's a safe guess that the first real estate transaction made in town today was influenced and brought about through "the classified."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Lollipop And a Pickle Went Picnicking.

The Doctor Felt Her Wrist.

WHEN the children begged for a story daddy took them on his knees and began: "Once upon a time a lollipop and a pickle went on a picnic. Now you can never guess where!"

"In a big deep woods?" cried the children.

After they had guessed three times daddy said: "In a little girl's stomach. Now, her stomach was small, so instead of having a good time they got in each other's way.

"It was very hot weather, and this made them cross, so they soon got into a big quarrel. This quite doubled the little girl up, so that she held on to her poor little stomach and cried: 'Oh, it feels just as if brownies were cracking nuts in my tummy! I want a pill!'

"So her mamma gave her a nice hot water bottle to curl up on. The warmth soothed the lollipop and the pickle, but soon they began to wiggle around and made the little girl cry so hard that her mamma gave her a horrid dose of brown medicine, which curled her up in a ball.

"'I'll teach you to fling that nasty brown stuff all over me!' cried the pickle, brushing the medicine off his beautiful green coat. 'I'll punch your head if you ever try to spoil my fun by doses again!' yelled the lollipop, spitting brown from between his sweet red lips. And so they wrangled till the doctor came and sat down by the little girl's bed.

"She squirmed and moaned while the doctor felt of her wrist when the pain was only in her tummy. Then he put a little glass stick under her tongue, and when the lollipop punched the pickle's eye she accidentally bit off the end. This made the doctor very solemn, for he had to send to the drug store for another, the very drug store where the little girl got her ice cream sodas. So another hour of painful quarrels passed. Finally the doctor sent the wrangling picknickers about their business. So after the little girl had lain still another two hours she was allowed to sit up in a big chair the rest of the day and sup on a glass of watered milk and a cracker."

"Poor child!" cried both kiddies.

"Yes," said daddy, "and the meaning of her sad fate is that one must not eat candy and pickles on a hot day because it always costs daddy $5 for a doctor and the little girl hours of pain, while the lollipop and the pickle spoil all their picnic in a horrid quarrel."

"Is that a truly story, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes, indeed!" daddy answered.

With a good night kiss the children went to bed.

Household Hints

NEW PEANUT BUTTER RECIPES

Peanut Butter Sticks—Make a puff paste or a rich plain paste. Roll out thin and spread generously with peanut butter. Fold and roll again. Repeat until the paste is well tinged with brown. Then roll out thin and cut in narrow strips. Bake a delicate brown.

Filled Celery—Select firm white stalks. Cut in three-inch lengths; after wiping them dry fill the groove with peanut butter. This is especially nice for luncheon.

Fairy Sandwich—Use any flat fancy cookies or cakes. Spread them with peanut butter.

Banana Salad—Cut bananas in halves, then cut once through the middle of each half. Place them lengthwise on leaves of lettuce. Scoop out a small cavity and fill with peanut butter. Sprinkle with chopped English walnuts. Serve with French dressing.

Cucumber Sandwich—Slice cucumber very thin and lay in French dressing one-half hour. Add one teaspoon chopped chives and a little paprika. Spread between entire wheat bread thinly spread with peanut butter.

PEACHES ARE GOOD, FRESH OR PRESERVED

Peach Compote—Put 3 cups milk in a double boiler, add 2-3 cup rice and cook until the rice is soft and has absorbed all the milk, which will take one hour. When creamy add half teaspoon salt and a quarter cup sugar, turn into a glass bowl, put aside until cold. When ready to serve garnish with freshly cut peaches, sprinkle with powdered sugar. Pass cream or peach syrup.

Peach Shortcake—Separate 3 eggs, beat the yolks until very light, add 1 1-2 cups sugar, a pinch of salt and the juice and rind of 1-2 a lemon. Continue beating until the mixture is thick and creamy, add half cup milk and 2 cups flour and 2 level teaspoons baking powder. Beat well. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, and pour into two large round layer tins. Bake in moderate oven twenty minutes. Remove cake from pans when cool, place on a large plate, cover with peaches, top with second layer. Cover with peaches and sugar, serve with whipped cream.

Peach Marmalade — Eighteen peaches, peel and dice one orange, dice and put through fruit chopper one-half lemon, grate rind and use juice. One bowl sugar to one bowl of the above. Cook until thick, then put in jelly glasses.

Peaches and Noodles—Boil one package of noodles in salt water, then drain. Mix a custard of one pint of milk, one cup sugar, two eggs. Turn over the noodles in a buttered dish, press halves of peaches into the mixture. Bake until brown.

Sweet Pickled Peaches—Remove skins from fruit and cut in halves. Stick two whole cloves in each piece of fruit and cook until soft in a syrup made by boiling together for twenty minutes two pounds of brown sugar, one pint vinegar and one ounce stick cinnamon. This amount of syrup will serve to cook one peck of peaches. Seal in glass jars with parowax.

THE TABLE

Spanish Fried Potatoes—Peel new potatoes, cook tender. Mix some fine bread crumbs with grated "parmesan" cheese and chopped parsley. Beat two eggs, with salt and pepper. Dip each potato in beaten egg, roll in the bread crumbs, fry in deep hot lard until brown. Serve hot.

Snow Grapes — Wash and dry bunches of grapes carefully, either in their natural cluster or cut into smaller bunches. Whisk the white of an egg partially, and in this dip the clusters. Then sift over them powdered sugar till they are thickly covered. Lay on platters and set on ice for several hours. This makes a most beautiful decoration for the center of the table and has been a delight when entertaining for the children on up to grandma.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME—

Buying for the home cannot be done wisely and economically unless the "buyer" is a student of the advertisements—no more than a store may be made prosperous without advertising.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. D. A. LEONARD

The Doctor's Wife Endeavors to Cheer Mrs. Sutner, Whose Courage Is Gone.

"Could you lend me a cup of sugar, Mrs. Ellson?" Mrs. Sutner dropped in a limp heap on a chair by the kitchen table and leaned her head on her hand.

"Certainly." Olive Ellson took the cup and went to the pantry to fill it.

"You don't feel well this morning, do you?" she asked sympathetically, placing the sugar on the table.

"Oh, I'm well enough, only I'm so discouraged its like dragging a heavy chain to move."

"A heavy heart is a poor equipment for a day's work, just as a light one buoys you up and makes easy sailing."

The woman reached for her handkerchief. "I haven't been light-hearted for so long I forget how it feels. I'm about ready to toss up the sponge and quit."

"Oh, it's never so bad as that," said Olive hopefully. "The best way to put a brood of troubles to flight is to square your shoulders, look them in the face and rise above them."

"Humph! An easy prescription for one without any. I'm afraid you'd find it a different matter if the brood had settled all over you and filled the land and sky till there was no place to look," said the woman bitterly.

"There's always something to cling to, something to be thankful for. Why, you have your husband and child and home. A woman is never in desperate straits while she has someone to love." The woman was sobbing heavily by this time and Olive drew up a chair and took her limp hand in her own firm, strong ones.

"Perhaps there is something I can do to help. Let me pour in the courage if possible. Everything will come out right if we only have a good supply of that."

"I haven't any, not a bit," sobbed the woman.

"I know of no better way to gain courage than to brace one's self to do one thing at a time and refuse to carry the year's load or even the day's dead at once. Every woman has strength for one hour if she uses all of it for just that sixty minutes. The trouble is, she tries to carry a year's burden with an hour's strength. Isn't that so?" Olive was softly chafing the work-hardened hands between her own.

Mrs. Sutner wiped her eyes and gazed dully at her.

"I'm not sure I have the courage for one hour. I can't pluck up heart to go home and do the baking."

"Oh, yes you can. Isn't little Jack an incentive? He must have something to eat," said Olive cheerfully.

"If it wasn't for Jack my path would lie straight before me," began the woman.

"I don't understand." Olive looked distressed.

"Mr. Sutner and I would separate if it wasn't for the boy. Neither one will give him up."

"You mustn't talk like that. Surely both will be willing to make concessions enough to make a basis for a home, as you both love the boy." The woman was silent.

"Divorce is a terrible thing, almost the worst that can come to a woman." Olive spoke with trembling earnestness.

"I thought you believed in divorce. You married a divorced man."

"I know." Olive hesitated, flushing. "I can't speak of the doctor's affairs, but I am certain, knowing him, that the seven years of his married life were one long struggle to adjust things on a livable basis. Where there's determined effort, even on one side, things can usually be worked out, and with the boy as a bond, affairs are far from hopeless." She smiled encouragingly.

"I wish I could tell you my troubles." The woman looked hopeless and appealing. "But——"

"I am not much older than you. You surely have some experienced friend who could help you, and the only excuse possible for talking of such trouble is a sincere desire to get help. If I thought I could be of service I should be glad to listen."

"Some way, I have an idea that a happy person is more apt to be sensible, to get a healthy view of things. I am morbid. I see things crooked, and I can't tell how they really are.

"I must go back." She rose, drawing her sunbonnet over her eyes to hide the trace of tears. "Jack is alone in the yard."

"If you think I can help you, come over any time." Olive laid a comforting hand on her shoulder.

"Thank you." The woman crossed the porch and was gone.

VOLUNTARY MORNING PRAYERS NOW HELD

Princeton Men Much Pleased With the Substitute for Compulsory Chapel.

Princeton, Oct. 11.—Voluntary morning prayers which was introduced into Princeton University two weeks ago in place of compulsory chapel has won immense favor with the Princeton students. In the first days of its trial the attendance is larger even than in the days of compulsory attendance, which required each student to appear at morning worship only twice every week. To some who have noted the religious tendencies of college students this condition is surprising.

The voluntary attendance at morning prayers was approved by the Princeton trustees last spring very largely as a result of student agitation in its favor. The students claimed there was no advantage in compulsory worship and they claimed it so insistently as to lead the trustees into what seemed at the time a radical move. Its immediate success is indicated by the present attendance.

Says the Daily Princetonian, the student mouthpiece: "It is to be expected that the undergraduates will come to feel it a part of their life in Princeton to attend the morning exercises occasionally, and this hope seems on a fair way to be fulfilled. In times past the man who went to more than the necessary compulsory services was regarded by his friends not only as mentally deficient but as traitor to the cause of freedom. Now that freedom has been won a man's presence more than twice a week can be understood, and with the strength which ever-hallowed custom will soon lend we may hope to see the present excellent attendance maintained and improved upon."

HAMMOND SUES NEPHEW.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—John Coffee Hayes, a nephew of John Hays Hammond, the famous engineer and mine owner, has been ordered by the Superior Court to appear today and make deposition in the suit brought by Hayes' uncle to set aside the defendant's reorganization and his claimed interest in the Tuolumne Water Supply Company, whose properties were sold to the city two years ago. Hayes was formerly confidential agent of his noted uncle, and had been commissioned by Hammond to represent him in certain corporations, including the water company. For his services Hayes claims an additional $25,000. When he reorganized the water company, it is said, he took possession of certain securities which he is holding for his claim.

HOPE IS PROMISED FOR DRUG VICTIMS

Dr. Frank H. Carlisle, An Expert, Describes Treatment Given With Success.

A message of hope to drug users comes from some of the leading physicians of the United States who have been treating the host of drug users who have been cut off from their source of supply by the enforcement of the Harrison law. Many thousands of drug victims have been treated and cured, and thousands of others shrink from what they believe to be a terrible treatment.

It is now claimed by the drug experts that any victim of the habit, no matter how long he has been in its grip, can be surely cured if the case is treated under proper conditions. Cases are exceedingly rare where a victim has been able to cure himself, either by his own efforts or with the help of his immediate family.

The treatment administered to drug victims has been described by Dr. Frank H. Carlisle, of the Norfolk State Hospital, at Pondville, Mass. He says:

"Arriving at the hospital, the morphine victim would be put to bed and a medicine given him at intervals during the next four days, his morphine being reduced daily. The medicine makes him delirious; we want it so, for the delirium takes his mind from the drug.

"Then on the evening of the fourth day he would be given a quieting potion. He would awaken the morning of the fifth day and know that the craving for the drug had left him. Then would follow a period of convalescence, varying from six weeks to as many months, depending on the physical condition of the patient; the length of time he has been using the drug and the necessity of his getting back to work influence the length of this period.

"We have some backsliders, these generally failing to realize that they must give up alcohol as well as the drug. I am sure that we can cure every drug user who is not afflicted with some organic disease. Drug users are treated without publicity, and names are not published under any consideration. The patients are given clean, comfortable rooms and after the first few days really enjoy the treatment."

It is with the morphine users that the doctors find the medical treatment necessary. There is a great difference between the morphine habit and the cocaine habit. Cocaine takes no hold upon the user's system, and a cessation of its use causes no bodily anguish. The only hold it has upon the victim is the mental desire for the effects of the drug.

But the morphine habit is different. When a victim of this drug attempts to drop it, every fibre of his body and his brain is in anguish. Any will power he has is broken down. He becomes a physical and mental wreck. While not impossible, it is very difficult for the victim's family to carry on a treatment. Their sympathies get the better of them; they cannot bear to see the victim suffer, as suffer he must under any treatment possible in the home.

The success of the American medical world in handling this problem during the past six months is a message of hope to thousands of men and women who are still in the clutches of drugs. The bugaboo that they cannot be cured has evaporated, and all that is needed now is the desire to be rid of the drug disease.

UNVEIL STATUE OF SAINT JOSEPH

Impressive Services Held at Mt. St. Mary College Today.

REQUIEM HIGH MASS

Father John Baldwin Pays Tribute to Late Father W. H. Miller in Whose Beloved Memory the Monument Was Given.

With appropriate ceremonial services the Father W. H. Miller Memorial, a statue of St. Joseph, was unveiled on the Mt. St. Mary College campus, this morning, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and co-workers of the beloved priest, whose death occurred a year ago, September 14, after a lingering illness of practically three years. Father John Baldwin, chaplain of Mt. St. Mary College, conducted the solemn high mass of requiem in the chapel, which was preceded by a procession and a recital of the Rosary. The unveiling ceremony began at 10:45, during which a chorus of voices sang, "Veni Creator."

Master John Gannon made the presentation address, and Master Leon Reng responded with the speech of acceptance on behalf of the college. A trio of voices rendered the beautiful hymn of "Ave Maria," after which the memorial was unveiled by Master Francis Blatz, assisted by Master Charles Reynolds and Valentine Radel. During the latter rite the children sang "The Hymn to St. Joseph," and the blessing of the statue was conducted by Father Baldwin. Mrs. Alfred Seidel, contralto soloist of St. Joseph's church, the borough, rendered in excellent voice the hymn "My Redeemer and My Lord."

Following the blessing, Father Baldwin spoke a few words of tribute to the late Father Miller, touching in an eloquent manner on the Christion life of the dead priest, his unfailing work in the parish, of which he was the pastor for twenty-seven years, and the ultimate failing of his physical health in the performance of his duties in a zealous way. The ceremony was brought to a close with the college choir rendering the psalm "De Profundis" and the responding anthem by the chorus, "Te Deum."

The statue, which is a work of craftsmanship, is one hundred yards from the main entrance of the college. It stands on two bases and is seven feet six inches in height. Concrete steps and a concrete walk encircle the bases upon which the statue stands while a direct path leads to the main entrance of the college. On the sub-base the following inscription of the donors is inscribed, "In Memory of William H. Miller; Donors, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller."

The attractive gift to the college grounds is the second of such a nature by the parents of Father Miller, and a third is in the course of construction. The corner-stone of the handsome church at Watchung and Jackson avenues, the borough, was brought from Ireland here, at considerable expense, by his mother, while the memory of the son is being further honored by the erection of a monument over his grave in the Perth Ambcy cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller were present at the ceremonies.

QUICK RUN IS MADE BY AUTO FIRE ENGINE

Firemen Hold Damage on Front Street Building to $100.

A fast run by the automobile apparatus from headquarters and efficient work on the part of the fire department last night prevented serious damage to a building to 1356 West Front street.

The building is owned by Mr. Kapelsohn. It is a new structure not yet completely finished on the interior. The first floor, where the fire started, was occupied by an electrical plant and the second floor by a restaurant.

Oily rags and buckets containing oils used in staining the interior of the building are believed to have been responsible for the fire. Chief Doane is of the opinion that the blaze was due to spontaneous combustion. A member of the fire company, on his way home, first gave the alarm. He saw the blazing interior of the building and pulled box No. 49. Although the auto engine company had more than one mile and one-half to go it had water on before the horse-drawn engine, which was within a mile of the building, and the two companies working together held the damage to $100, most of which was due to smoke.

BLUE AND GRAY TO JOIN HANDS IN 1917

Parade of Veterans May Be Last One, Says Chief Doane.

A reunion of the Blue and the Gray together in 1917, as a fitting climax to the lives of those yet living who fought in the great war between States in the 60s, is the dream of veterans who attended the G. A. R. encampment in Washington this month, according to Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield fire department, who mingled with his comrades in Blue around the Washington campfire.

"The boys realize that they are getting old," said Chief Doane yesterday. "These encampments are the happiest moments in their declining years, but the parades tax their waning strength greatly, and before they answer the final roll call they want to fraternize once more with their brothers who wore the Gray."

Washington has invited both organizations to be its guests in 1917, and there is little doubt but that both will accept, according to the chief. He is also of the opinion that it will be the last big parade of the veterans of either army.

"There were two men in my squad," continued Chief Doane, "at the Washington encampment the other day, who should not have been permitted to enter the parade. They were hardly able to walk after they had marched a short distance, but when I asked them if they wanted to fall out, their old backs stiffened, their eyes brightened with the same fire that made victory possible back in the days of blood, and they told me they were just as able to march as I was. And they stuck. They would have marched until they dropped if the grandstand had been that far away."

GEORGE BALDWIN HAD HIS EAR BITTEN OFF BY HORSE

George Baldwin, a driver for the Wilson Stone Company, had his ear bitten off by one of the horses which he was watering at Samptown yesterday. Baldwin, who lives in North Plainfield, was in charge of a load of crushed stone being delivered from the Watchung quarries to South Plainfield and had stopped at a watering depot to give his team a drink.

As he was holding the pail for one animal to drink out of the other horse reached over and clipped his ear off even with the head. Although the injury is a painful one, it was said today that the victim would recover.

SCHOOL MATTERS ARE CONSIDERED

President Cox, of Board of Education, Talks to Netherwood Residents' Ass'n.

EXPLAINS SITUATION

Tells What is Being Done to Provide Schools for all Sections of City—Association Seeks Better Street Lighting and Fire Protection.

While the attendance was not numerically large at the meeting of the Netherwood Residents' Association last night, the reports of committees and the discussion which followed, showed that interest in the work was by no means lagging. In fact, each member present seemed to take a personal and inspiring pride in the work for improving the eastern section of the city.

The report of the treasurer showed that since the last meeting the receipts amounted to $149.08, while the expenditures totaled $70.85, leaving a balance in the treasury of $78.23.

The railroad committee reported no success so far in their efforts to induce the New Jersey Central to give Netherwood an additional train between 10:30 and 12 o'clock at night. The committee was directed to continue its efforts in this direction, in which they would receive whatever assistance that the members of the Residents' Association could give.

GIVES LECTURE ON CANCER PREVENTION

Dr. Howard C. Taylor in Talk Before Monday Afternoon Club Gives Advice.

The civics department of the Monday Afternoon Club held its first meeting of the season yesterday afternoon, in the parish house of the Congregational church, Mrs. William Griscom, chairman, presiding.

Dr. Howard C. Taylor, of New York, representing the American Society for the Study and Control of Cancer, an organization one of whose objects is to disseminate among the public, knowledge which would tend to prevent the disease, delivered a lecture full of valuable suggestion. He stated that one out of every eight women, over thirty-five years of age dies of cancer. An important cause for this high mortality is the inability of the patient to recognize the early danger signals, or if she does recognize these warnings, her disinclination to seek medical advice concerning them.

Dr. Taylor advised most emphatically against any manipulation and urged that upon the first appearance of any suspicious symptoms a physician at once be consulted and a thorough examination made. If this were done the high mortality would be materially reduced for in its early stage the large majority of the cases of cancer may be considered curable. The disease becomes incurable if intervention is materially delayed. Dr. Taylor stated that it has been proven beyond any reasonable question that cancer is neither hereditary nor contagious.

Miss Katherine Ball, of the Plainfield High School was later introduced by Mrs. Griscom, and gave an interesting talk on household efficiency, especially in the matter of budget making.

REPUBLICANS IN BORO ORGANIZE

Get Workers Ready for Campaign of the Present Year.

SMALLEY HEADS CLUB

Mayor Robert Clark Points to Mistakes of Democrats—New Officers and Committees Named at Enthusaistic Meeting Last Nigth.

At an enthusiastic meeting held in the Eggerding building on Somerset street, last night, Republicans of North Plainfield organized for the coming State campaign. More than thirty of the leading members of the party in the borough attended the meeting and took an active part in the proceedings.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., for four years president of the Republican Club of the borough, refused to permit his name to be presented for another term. W. L. Smalley was unanimously chosen to succeed him and will preside over the organization for the coming year.

Horace Conover was elected to succeed himself as secretary, and Allen Cowperthwait was re-elected as treasurer. All of the retiring officials made reports on the work of the club for the past year, Mr. Cowperthwait reading a statement of finances which showed a balance of $56 left in the treasury from the last campaign fund.

In retiring from the chair Mayor Clark told of the chances for Republican success this year, not only in the borough, but in all elections, even to that for President of the United States. He called attention to many "mistakes" of President Wilson and told of their disastrous effects on the prosperity of the nation.

Five vice presidents were elected, one from each of the districts in the borough. They are: Alex Milne, district No. 1; J. A. Wilson, district No. 2; W. J. Trembath, district No. 3; Robert Clark, Jr., district No. 4; Howard Woolson, district No. 5.

A meeting of the officers, who form the executive committee for the campaign in the borough, will be held one week from last night.

Committees to take charge of the various activities of the league for the year were appointed. These include the committee on membership, entertainment, speakers and others.

W. J. Trembath, representing the Young Men's Republican Club of the borough, urged a union of the junior body with the older organization. He said it would mean an addition of about 20 live members to the senior club, and suggested a joint meeting to be held at Republican headquarters, 78 Somerset street, within a short time. A definite date for this meeting has not been fixed.

Among those who addressed the meeting were: W. L. Smailey, G. O. P. candidate for mayor; Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., Dr. Justin Cooley, John Goodman, Henry DeMott, W. J. Trembath and Col. A. G. Perry.

DISORDERLY CHARGE DENIED BUT HE WAS FINED ANYWAY

Charged with acting disorderly and bothering neighbors on Lake street, George Alexander, a Syrian, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court and sentenced to pay a fine of $20 with the option of spending sixty days in the county jail. He was represented by John P. Owens.

Alexander, who has a police record, denied on the witness stand that he was intoxicated when arrested by Lieut. Maurice Higgins and Patrolman Martin Welsh. The city judge thought differently, however, having come to police court Saturday night after Alexander was arrested in order to oblige the latter's counsel in arranging bail and getting their man out. The court declared that Alexander was too drunk to move out of a cell at that time and refused assistance.

EUCHRE AND DANCE.

Another enthusiastic meeting of the committee of women having charge of the euchre and dance scheduled to be given in Columbus Club on Thursday night, October 28, was held in the West Front street clubhouse, last night, a large turnout of members attending the gathering. Plans were about completed for the affair, which promises to be one of the most successful ever given at the club's auditorium. The next meeting of the committee will be held Wednesday night, October 27.

ALLEGES HE TOOK $73.

Peter Dilts, of Bernards township, today swore out a warrant before the Somerset county authorities for the arrest of Anthony Balunke, whom he alleges entered his house Saturday night and stole $73 in cash from a strong box.

Austro-German Invaders Driven Back From Vantage Points After Fierce Struggle—England Declares Practically all Cotton Contraband.

Paris, Oct. 12.—Mr. Bratiano, prime minister of Roumania, according to a despatch from Rome published here, has intimated to the Italian foreign minister that Roumania is certain to give assistance to the Entente Allies, when her preparations for eventualities are complete. Roumania, however, will choose her own time for entering the war against Austria and Germany.

Matin publishes a despatch from Nish telling of the terrific fighting in progress in Serbia. The heights south of Belgrade, it states, were taken and retaken in a terrific artillery duel lasting three days until the Serbs, seizing an advantage gained excellent positions towards Topschida, repulsing the Germans and Austrians. To the suburbs of Belgrade a French battery participated and British heavy guns inflicted heavy losses, sinking two Austrian monitors on the Danube near Ram. The Serbs took four guns. In the Mlawa region on the Morava they drove the

JUDGE REPRIMANDS PATROLMAN DUNLAP

Tells Officer to Use More Discretion in Making Arrests in the Future.

The arrest of William Stutz, a Fanwood farmer, by Patrolman Joseph Dunlap, on a charge of tieing his horse in front of Teppers' store on West Front street Saturday, aroused City Judge William G. DeMeza when the defendant was arraigned for a hearing in police court this morning. Dunlap said that he had arrested Stutz because the latter refused to untie his horse to make way for a truckman. Stutz cited very plainly to the court that he was ignorant of the new traffic code and described the truckman who had ordered his arrest as a "road hog."

In disposing of the case Judge De Meza warned the police officer: "In the future I want you and all the other patrolmen to use a little discretion in bringing people into court. A reprimand by you would have sufficed in this case and the arrest was entirely uncalled for. Such indiscretion is just what is driving the farmers from patronizing Plainfield trade. They come here and are inconvenienced to the extent of being brought into court for petty and trivial violations of the law. It is all right to arrest a flagrant or persistent offender but when you can easily adjust the differences without making it disagreeable for the parties accused it is up to you to do so."

Dunlap explained that the truckman had ordered Stutz's arrest and that he felt called upon to carry out the request.

"You have no right to act upon another person's requests," said the judge. "If you do not see or hear a crime committed yourself you have no right to lock a man up on another's say-so."

PLANS FOR A DINNER.

Among the speakers secured for the occasion are Charles D. Cleveland, secretary of the Madison Square Garden Poultry Association; Harry Lewis, representing the New Jersey State Experimental Station, and Frederick C Thomas, president of the State association.

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 12.—A search continued throughout the night and early today has failed to locate the body of Lieutenant Walter R. Taliaferro, U. S. Army aviator, who met death yesterday when he fell 2,000 feet into the bay. Lieut. Taliaferro was strapped to the machine which sank in forty feet of water.

MACHINE SHOP DESTROYED.

Asbury Park, Oct. 12.—The three story machine shop, garage and carriage factory of Weeden, Havens & Weeden, at Main street and Summerfield avenue, was destroyed by fire early today. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

BOSTON LEADS QUAKERS IN FIFTH; BOTH TWIRLERS ARE BELOW FORM

Boston, Oct. 12.—George Chalmers, doing mound duty for the Phillies, got himself into a peck of trouble in the third inning of today's contest and it was only due to "horse-shoe" luck that but one run was put across by the Bostons. Jack Barry was responsible for the only counter in the early periods and the Hub town stock was decidedly in the lead. Both twirlers were very unsteady and some good fielding stunts were pulled off at critical moments by the fielders.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed and the crowd was the biggest recorded at any of the series' contests. Included in the Boston rooting section were five hundred Hub city letter carriers who took advantage of the holiday to support their club. At 9 o'clock this morning 10,000 persons were in line waiting for the gates to open.

Past performances made the Red Sox a decided favorite and the lusty-lunged home town rooters kept the air humming with racket of every variety. It was the best baseball day of the series and more enthusiasm was in evidence during batting practice than in any of the first three contests. Carrigan's leaders took the field at 1:30 for early practice and were followed a few minutes later by the Quakers, their hopes of victory by no means dimmed by yesterday's defeat of their idol, Grover Cleveland Alexander. The lineup:

PHILADELPHIA.	BOSTON
Stock, third base.	Hooper, right field.
Bancroft, shortstop.	Scott, shortstop.
Paskert, centre field.	Speaker, centre field.
Niehoff, second base.	Barry, second base.
Burns, catcher.	Cady, catcher.
Chalmers, pitcher.	Shore, pitcher.

Moran sent Chalmers and Rixey out to warm up for the Phillies and Carrigan put Shore in charge of a substitute catcher to get into condition for Boston. As they took their turn at batting practice each of the Boston players was given a big hand by the "Royal Rooters," Tris Speaker coming in for the lion's share. "Dutch" Leonard, who defeated Alexander yesterday, walked directly from the field entrance to the Boston bench, taking no part in the preliminary drill. One continuous round of applause followed Leonard from the time he entered the field until he sat down.

At 1:53 the umpires came on the field and cleared the diamond for play. When it was announced that Shore and Chalmers would be the opposing hurlers another burst of applause floated across the big arena. At 2:03 the game was sent on its way but when Stock opened with a clean single the Boston team's enthusiasm turned to gloom for an instant. It was only instantaneous, however, for he was touched out at the keystone sack trying to stretch the clout into a double.

FIRST INNING.

Philadelphia—Stock singled to left field, but went out trying to stretch it into a two bagger, Lewis making the play to Barry. Bancroft walked on four straight balls. Bancroft stole second. He was safe when Barry dropped Cady's perfect throw. Paskert struck out. Cady dropped the third strike but tagged him out. Cravath struck out.

One hit, no runs, one error.

Boston—Hooper struck out. Scott did the same. Chalmers' spitter was working perfectly. He failed to get it over for Speaker, however, and walked him on four pitched balls. Speaker went out trying to steal second, Burns making a perfect peg to Neihoff.

No hits, no runs, no errors.

SECOND INNING.

Philadelphia—After having a strike called on him Luderus nipped a foul and followed with a single over the keystone sack, the opening clout of the second round drawing forth a burst of applause from the Philly section. Whitted grounded out to Barry and Neihoff foul flied out to Cady, the catcher getting the ball after a long run. Burns was handed four straight balls and a free ticket to first, Luderus going to the mid-station. With two and two on him Chalmers whiffed at the third one and sat down, ending the round.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Boston—Hoblitzel drew three balls and followed it up with three clouts at the empty air, being an easy strike-out victim. Lewis, who at this stage was leading the players with six safeties for the series, proved an easy out, bunting a grounder to Chalmers, who threw him out at the first station. Gardner followed with a high fly to Paskert, who gobbled it up for

DUNELLLEN SUFFRAGISTS WORK AMONG VOTERS

The women who are opposed to the suffrage amendment which will receive the consideration of the voters on November 19, are fighting as hard for its defeat as those of their sex who want the right of suffrage are fighting for its adoption.

As an illustration of this the following, signed by one of the most prominent women of the borough, was received through the mail by numerous voters yesterday:

"Please remember that I am one of many thousands of women in our State who do not want the vote and that I speak for them when I beg you to vote against woman suffrage at the special election on October 19. At a special meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the Presbyterian church, held yesterday afternoon in the Barara room of the church, the women decided not to hold their chicken supper scheduled for Thursday evening, October 29. They will instead give a demonstration pure food supper on November 18.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

David K. Hamblin, of New Market road, who holds a position in the Chase National Bank, New York city, might have been killed Saturday morning, when he was thrown off of the 6:47 train for New York, which he attempted to board after it had started. The only thing that saved Mr. Hamblin was the fact that he was thrown away from the train instead of under. He landed on his shoulder and incidentally broke three dozen eggs which he was carrying.

Mrs. D. S. Bunting, Mrs. Lewis Randolph, Mrs. George Coriell, Jr., and Miss Gertrude Bunting are spending a few days at Trenton as the guests of Mrs. Bunting's sister, Mrs. John Gray. The trip to Trenton was made in Mrs. Randolph's touring car.

Mrs. Wyckoff Voorhees, of Main street, has not been doing very well of late. For the past two weeks she has been confined to her room.

Mrs. George Coriell, Sr., of Main street, who has had the pleurisy, was out for the first Saturday.

Ex-Freeholder and Mrs. Calvin Drake, who are making their home with their son-in-law on the Mackay Estates, Roslyn, L. I., were visitors in the village over the week-end. Among those whom they visited were Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dayton, Mrs. Drake's sister, Mrs. D. Nelson and her brother, Lewis D. Walker. Mr. and Mrs. Drake came to the village from Washington, where they had been attending the reunion of the Grand Army.

Herman Beiler and Clifford Nagle spent the week-end out of the village. On Saturday they visited Jeff Neff, a former teacher of the local school, at Woodbridge, and on Sunday they visited Clifford's uncle, A. C. Ogden, at Kenilworth.

David C. Ward, of Main street, has been suffering from malaria.

William Vance, of Main street, has accepted a position in the shop of the Baldwin Locomotive Works located at Philadelphia.

Wyckoff Voorhees has returned from Staten Island, where he was sent for a week by the Scott Press Works, of Plainfield, to take down and then set up one of their presses for a concern which was moving.

Walter Helman, the genial station agent, spent Sunday at Neshanic.

John Zaremba, the gateman at the Main street crossing, has resumed his duties after an illness of several days.

Miss Elizabeth Mitze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Mitze, has the diphtheria. This is the third case to break out inside of two weeks and the villageites are becoming alarmed.

Mrs. William Cole, of South River, has returned home after spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. William Norman.

'Plains & Fanwood.

Although the season is several days old the number of hunters' licenses taken out by local men from either the township or borough clerks has been very small. It may be that the scarcity of woodcock in this section has something to do with it, but from present indications a borough ordinance will not be needed to bring about Councilman Britton's idea of having no hunting within the limits whatever.

Ernest Wahl, of Park avenue, has taken a position with Newmann Brothers, grocers, of Plainfield.

A small dwelling on Jerusalem road owned by Lewis Parks, colored, was discovered on fire Saturday, but by the time the Westfield fire department could respond to a telephone call the structure was a total loss at a sum estimated to be $1,500. The origin of the fire is not known.

Mrs. Thomas H. Norton, of Martine avenue, is recovering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis performed several days ago at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Robert Thrane, who will give a musical in the Fanwood fire house on Friday night, was 'cello soloist with the Symphony Orchestra of Philadelphia during the past summer and played with success in that city and Pittsburgh. Besides Mrs. Thrane at the piano, Mr. Thrane will be assisted by Nicholas Lancello, flute, of the Philharmonic Society of New York, with which Mr. Thrane is at present playing. Several compositions that are the work of Mr. Lancello will be played Friday night for the first time.

Another week will probably see the completion of the two and a half story dwelling on Russell road by Tony Alberts, the local contractor, for James Mineszek. Owing to the approach of cold weather Mr. Mineszek will likely not start the erection of any more houses on his property in that same vicinity until spring.

Miss Helen Hoar, of Martine avenue, has returned from visiting the Misses Todd, of Bellevale, N. Y.

It is expected that the closing of the outdoor season of the Fanwood Rifle Club will be in the shape of a meet with a club recently organized in Bound Brook. Representatives of that new organization have attended meetings on several occasions, and Stuart Michael, secretary of the local club, has been chosen to get in touch with them relative to a meet. Michaels has done the best work on the range for the club during the summer, his best mark being 92 out of a possible hundred. The others have in all cases shown great improvement over their first attempts.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jones, of Paterson, who were severely shaken up and bruised last Saturday night when their auto turned turtle on South avenue after it had been struck by another machine, have practically recovered from their experience. Mrs. Jones is suffering from the nervous shock.

GOOD SOLUTION TO FARMER PROBLEM

Newburgh (N. Y.) Chamber of Commerce Proposition Feasible for Here.

In connection with the Business Men's Association's activity in cultivating the patronage of the farming community considerable local interest will be attached to the outcome of an experiment to promote similar results by the Chamber of Commerce of Newburgh, N. Y. The plan worked out in New York State has as its chief object the furnishing to farmers and their families free accommodations in the way of public sheds, including the services of a competent attendant, where they may hitch their teams and leave them in perfect safety while they do their trading in the local stores.

The sheds are open daily, except Sundays, from 6 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening. The accommodations are advertised in daily newspapers, and are said to be well patronized and to give promise of being an excellent means of attracting the trade of the farmer folk. The entire expense is taken care of by the Chamber of Commerce.

In general this plan in operation in Newburgh meets the demands of the farmers who have been greatly inconvenienced in Plainfield in the past. The new State traffic laws are practically unknown to many of the farmers and only this morning in the local police court a man who has been coming here to trade farm produce for twenty years, and is highly esteemed and respected, was arraigned on a charge of tying his horse in the business section. Many farmers have become disgusted and rather than be prosecuted have transferred their dealings to a community where the laws are less rigidly enforced. It is not the aim of the Business Men's Association to secure more leniency from the police, but to find a remedy whereby the farmer will be given accommodations when shopping in this city.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

At minstrel practice, held in the auditorium yesterday afternoon, three end men and the interlocutor were chosen. Edward Crone, John Hamman and Charles Ward and Monroe O'Donnell were chosen as end men and Gerald Linke as interlocutor. Under the coaching of Professors Wriston, Biddle and Tyree the show this year promises to be a banner attraction.

The first meeting of the Alpha Literary Club was held yesterday afternoon and at that time a constitution and program committee were appointed. The first meeting of the literary society, the Omega Club, will be held next Monday afternoon.

The red and blue football squad will tackle the Somerville brigade at Parker Field tomorrow. The game was originally scheduled for today, but inasmuch as the Somerville schools do not observe Columbus Day it was necessary for the up-county team to ask that the game be held over until tomorrow.

GRACE CHURCH GIVES LARGELY TO MISSIONS

Since September, 1914, Its Contributions Totaled $2,309.79.

"Grace Church parish has again done generously for the cause of missions, and by their offerings parishioners have shown that they are possessed of an enthusiasm to carry the message of the Cross throughout the world," says "Our Work," the church paper.

"There is a degree of the material in publishing all we have done in dollars and cents, and we hesitate to do so. But our people are anxious to know. From a communication which has just come from George Gordon King we learn that our contribution to General Missions since September, 1914, amounts to $2,309.79, of which amount $809.75 represents our gifts to the Special Emergency Fund.

"The parish is apportioned $1,115, so it is clear that we have given $385.04 more than our apportionment, in addition to the handsome sum sent for the Emergency Fund. The rector has already thanked his parishioners for their co-operation in the work of Christ. The rector addressed personal letters to the members of the congregation asking their interest, and it is to be regretted that by many of those who are abundantly able to respond his letter was ignored. If we could have persuaded everybody that the cause of a crucified Master is worth supporting, our contributions would have been much larger. We are happy, however, in the splendid response of so many of our good people."

FULL TEXT OF THE THREE AMENDMENTS

Question of Suffrage, Improvements and Amendments to Be Voted Upon.

Sample ballots to be used in the election of Tuesday, October 19, are now in the hands of all voters in the city of Plainfield and the borough having been mailed by the city and borough clerks in accordance with a provision of the election law which provides that they must be distributed at least five days before election.

These ballots call attention to the late of the special election, one week from today, and also contain the text of the three amendments that are to be voted on at that time.

Because of the warm fight that is being made over the State on the amendment to the New Jersey constitution, which gives suffrage to women, the other two amendments to be voted for next week have been ignored or forgotten by a majority of the voters. Both are of importance in the State and each one demands careful consideration. The suffrage amendment, which is called amendment No. 1, is familiar to all.

Amendment No. 2 provides that an amendment to the constitution may be submitted at any time that it shall have received a majority of votes in any two successive general assemblies. The constitution now provides that no amendment shall be submitted until five years have passed since the last one was voted on by the people. Its intent in this was to prevent the bringing up of a single amendment year after year and that is cared for in the new one, which prohibits an amendment submitted to the people from being submitted again until five years have passed. The passage of amendment No. 2 will greatly facilitate the passage of an amendment to the constitution should it be found a needed reform.

Amendment No. 3 is for the purpose of giving municipalities the right to share in public improvements that they may create. It permits a county, city, town or borough to buy more land than is actually needed in the laying out, widening, extending or re-locating of parks, streets or other public places, so that when a city or town shall increase the value of property by a public improvement it may buy some of the property to be benefitted by the improvement in advance, and realize on it after the work is done. The passage of this amendment has been recommended by city officials over the entire State.

C. E. RECEPTION.

WANT WATCHUNG AVENUE EXTENDED

State Would Take Over Highway if Opened Through to the "Notch."

The extension of Watchung avenue to the Notch was the chief topic of discussion at the meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society at its meeting last night. The unsatisfactory condition of Somerset street was also discussed at length.

The failure of the efforts to extend Watchung avenue, it was pointed out, was not only a great inconvenience to the people living beyond the present terminus of that highway, but it prevented the developing of that section of the township. It was pointed out that Somerset street beyond the borough limits of North Plainfield was provocative of language inadmissable in polite society.

It was stated that if Watchung avenue could be opened it would then be taken over by the State and made a State road. It was decided to continue the effort to secure the necessary land for the extension.

Among the speakers was the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who outlined the duties of good citizens in their civic relations to the town or community in which they lived; their duty toward the State, and to the nation. He spoke in glowing terms of the efforts for the betterment of North Plainfield township and called to his hearers' attention the great amount of work yet to be done.

Drs. Richard and Charles Moldenke, Hiram O. Hance, Den. Gavin, Fred Ivamy and others spoke along similar lines as those outlined by Dr. Eaton and on the matters under discussion.

LITERARY

CHARLES FROHMAN'S "LUCKY PIECE."

Charles Frohman, the great theatrical manager, carried for many years an English shilling for a "lucky piece." He often told his friends how he came by it, and now his brother Daniel has given the story to the world in "The Life of Charles Frohman," which he has written in collaboration with Isaac F. Marcosson, and which has just begun to appear in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

The coin was acquired in London in 1880, when Charles, only twenty years old, was on his first visit to England. He was then treasurer of the Haverly Mastodon Minstrels, who played a long engagement at Her Majesty's Theatre—those famous American entertainers, say Charles Frohman's biographers, became the vogue in London. Royalty had set the stamp of its approval, and aristocracy flocked. One night, in the momentary absence of the chief usher, Charles Frohman, who was always on the job, escorted a distinguished group of nobility to the box. After bowing them in, a member of the party slipped a shilling into his hand, which Frohman, of course, refused.

"'Take it, you beggar!' said the peer, with some irritation, throwing the shilling at him.

"'Thank you, sir,' responded Frohman, picking it up and slipping it into his pocket. He kept it as a lucky piece for twenty years, often telling the story of how he got it."

GERMANS TAKE SEMENDRIA.

Berlin via wireless)—The German General Staff reported today that Semendria was taken by the German troops under Field Marshal von Mackensen on Monday, thus opening the way for the invasion of Serbia up the valley of the Morava river. The town on the south bank of the Danube, about thirty miles southeast of Belgrade, was strongly fortified.

EXPECT BODY TONIGHT.

Frederick Barker, of this city, is still being held in New York on a charge of homicide, in connection with the sudden death of Mrs. Margaret McCaffrey, of Plainfield, at the Hotel Irvington on Sunday. The victim's body, it is expected, will be brought to Plainfield tonight by Casey & Son, local undertakers.

the last out.

No hits, no runs, no errors.

THIRD INNING.

Philadelphia—Stock, who got a hit in his first trip to the plate, grounded out to Gardner, after having two and two called on him. Bancroft waited out four wide ones for his second free trip of the game. The Philly players appeared to be waiting Shore out and the Red Sox hurler had been forced to average five and six throws to a man up to this time. With Bancroft at first Shore attempted several tosses to nip him but the Philly shortstop clung to within easy striking distance of the sack. Shore then steadied down and put three strikes over on Paskert, retiring him in smooth style. Gabby Cravath lifted a swat into the clouds which was pocketed by Lewis in deep left field.

No hits, no runs, no errors.

Boston—Barry was given three wide ones, which the umpire decided were balls, but Chalmers followed with two strikes and then passed him to the initial corner. Pitcher Chalmers fooled away several minutes trying to get Barry at first but was unsuccessful. Cady bunted an easy one to Chalmers, who fell down trying to squeeze the pellet, while the batter reached first and Barry romped to second. With two on the sacks and none down, Chalmers made a balk and the runners were advanced a base by Umpire Evans. Umpire Rigler, the chief of the staff, however, thought differently about the balk and sent the basemen back to first and second. Shore grounded out to Neihoff. Both runners advanced a base, Barry stationing himself at the difficult corner. Barry took a big lead that worried Chalmers and Hooper hit over the pitcher's box, scoring Barry after Neihoff had made a muddle out of an attempt to field the ball. Cady took third on the same play and Hooper was safe at first, while Neihoff hesitated on the play. Scott recorded the second out with a foul fly to Whitted along the left field chalk line. Both runners held their positions at first and third. Tris Speaker, who has previously worked Chalmers for a pass, waited out three wide one and nipped a bad one for a foul. Speaker was sore because Chalmers appeared to be intentionally pitching bad balls to him. The batter reached at the next wide one and knocked an easy one to Luderus, scoring the third out.

One run, two hits, no errors.

FOURTH INNING.

Philadelphia—Luderus took one strike and then hit a high one which Hooper gathered in right field. Whitted fouled the first one over, took a second strike, watched 3 wide ones float by, and then grounded to Barry, who threw to Hoblitzel for the out. Neihoff had three balls on him and two strikes, when he passed up a puzzler, but the umpire called it a ball and gave him his base. Shore's first offering to Burns was a strike that he let pass, but on the second ball pitched he hit safely to right field, sending Neihoff to second base. With a chance to drive in a run for himself, Chalmers grounded to Scott, who tossed to Gardner, forcing Neihoff at third.

One hit, no runs, no errors.

Boston—Hoblitzel forced Chalmers to work hard by fouling two and passing two bad ones, after which he stepped into a fast one for a single to center field. Lewis, hero of Monday's game and heavy hitter of the series, was given a great ovation by Boston fans when he came to the bat, but the best he could do was a grounder that Chalmers handled, throwing to Neihoff on first for the put-out. Hoblitzel went to second on the play. Gardner flied out to Whitted. Barry had three balls in his favor before Chalmers put over a strike, but two good ones came in succession. He spoiled a third strike by fouling it over the grandstand and then lifted a high one to Packert for an easy out.

One hit, no runs, no errors.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

—Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

—Those accustomed to getting SERVICE from the classified columns would consider it a very foolish thing to do to pay too much rent, either for a store, a house, an apartment or a furnished room.

IS WORLD FLAT? NO! THEN VOTE FOR US!

Suff Workers Have New Argument—"Remember Isabella."

"If you believe the world is round vote for woman suffrage," is the campaign argument of workers for the cause over the State of New Jersey today. Sounds like a bit of that "argument" for which comedians have made woman famous, doesn't it, but when digested it becomes a logical, vivid watchword for the cause.

"Remember Isabella!" is their cry.

For the enlightenment of a few ignorant men who do not remember the lady, they are willing to explain that she made Columbus Day in America possible, for, as Queen of Spain, it was her influence and money that started Columbus on his courageous cruise that resulted in the discovery of this country.

"While you are celebrating Columbus Day, remember Isabella," the workers are telling men, and women too, in Plainfield, and all other parts of New Jersey today, and they claim that it is the best campaign argument they have, excepting the declaration of President Wilson for the cause.

"In 1492 Queen Isabella listened to a great idea," said one of the officers of the local union yesterday. "In the midst of wars and court distractions, she listened to a story from the lips of a humble Genoese, Christopher Columbus. Many there were then who knew no more than to believe the world was flat, as their descendants of today believe in a flat democracy. But Isabella had an open mind. She is described as firm, constant and clever, and again she is spoken of as charming and sympathetic. It may be a shock to some to remember that she wore 'armor' as peacefully as silk or ermine, yet such is proven by history. Towering above her husband in honesty of purpose and open-minded generosity, let us remember gratefully Queen Isabella while we celebrate Columbus Day."

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

According to plans adopted at a meeting last night of the executive committee, having in charge arrangements for the campaign for new members next month, the work will be handled by thirty teams of eleven men each, including a captain. These teams will work in divisions of five teams each, under a chairman and all will be responsible to the general chairman, who is L. B. Albin. The division chairmen, with the captains, will meet Monday night for organization and instruction. Considerable interest in this campaign has already been awakened and some of the campaign workers are impatient to commence the work.

The religious work committee will meet Thursday night to arrange for the big men's meeting to be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Charles Taylor, the "boy evangelist," who is to conduct services in the Park Avenue church will be the speaker at this meeting. An excellent musical program will also be arranged.

The religious work committee will meet on October 25 to perfect plans for a Bible study rally and to outline plans for the Bible study course to be given during the winter. A strong speaker, whose name will be announced later, will be secured for this meeting.

The Association, next Tuesday evening, will entertain the men of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Reformed churches.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Marie Dressler was seen at the U. S. Astor Theatre yesterday in the funniest of all screen comedies, "Tillie's Tomato Surprise." This is her second and by far the better screen comedy. It abounds in action and while Miss Dressler has lost the resiliency of youth she goes about her work like an athletic school girl. The picture will be shown again today, with several other comedies and dramas supplied by the leading film companies of the world.

Charles Chaplin will be seen tomorrow, Thursday and Friday at the Astor in "Shanghaied," his latest comedy by the Essanay Company. "Shanghaied" is a laugh carnival in two parts and presents Mr. Chaplin at his funniest. In addition Wednesday "Brother Officers," with Henry Ainley, hte noted British actor, in the leading role, will be shown.

SCOUT COUNCIL ELECTS OFFICERS

Theodore G. Davis Chosen President at Annual Meeting of Council.

PLANS ARE DISCUSSED

Scout Building Will Be Ready for Inspection on Sunday Afternoon When a Reception Will Be Held From 2 to 5 O'clock.

The 1915-1916 Boy Scout year for Plainfield started out last night with the greatest impetus it has had since the movement began in this city four years ago. Final arrangements were completed for the championship patrol competition being held in Parker Field this afternoon. President William N. Runyon and Secretary George T. Moore were in charge of the meeting.

The commissioner called the attention of members to the fact that the boy scout headquarters building in Terrill road has practically been completed, leaving a balance to be paid of less than $50. It was suggested that dedication exercises be postponed until the building has been entirely paid for. Contributions of insurance for the structure were reported from the Frederick A. Martin Company; a sign from "A Friend," bearing the words "Boy Scout Camp, Plainfield Division"; varnish from C. E. and C. L. Bond, and a large bunting flag, 9 by 12 feet, by Laggren & Green, to grace the sixty foot flag-pole the scouts had cut and trimmed before the camp was subscribed for.

The building, which is on the left hand side of Terrill road about three blocks east of East Seventh street, will be ready for public inspection on Sunday afternoon, when a detail of scouts representing troops of this city and Fanwood in uniform will serve as a reception committee between the hours of 2 and 5.

Officers elected for the ensuing year follow: President, T. G. Davis; first vice president, L. M. Leek; secretary-treasurer, Dr. George T. Moore; chairman of the executive committee, former President William N. Runyon; chairman of the court of honor, Leslie R. Fort, and chairman of the finance committee, Edward Harding, of Fanwood.

These new members were elected: A. Russel Bond, who was a member of the original Boy Scout Council in this city; Frank V. Lawrence and Louis H. Hosner, of Terrill road. The members present at last night's meeting included President William N. Runyon, Secretary Dr. George T. Moore, Paul R. Collier, Dewitt D. Barlow, John Leal, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, D. S. Dunaven, A. Russel Bond, Brockholst K. Miller, Leslie R. Fort, Frederick A. Martin, A. C. Estes, Edward Harding, Frederick M. Genung, William Abbe, First Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl, Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, and Scoutmasters Ernest K. Powlison, H. Douglas Davis, Benjamin Harris and Cedric Ostrom.

Applications for first class scoutship examinations were made by Rufus Searles, assigned to F. M. Genung; Hayward Ericson, assigned to F. M. Genung; Judson Blake, assigned to Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl; Harold Condict, assigned to John Leal. All these scouts are from Troop 8, of which H. Douglas Davis is Scoutmaster.

Commissioners reported Thomas P. Fitch, of Troop 5, advanced to rank of Eagle Scout through E. A. Sprowl; Commissioner Bach reported the appointment of Frederick A. Martin as Scoutmaster of Troop 9, of the First Methodist church, and the appointment and promotion of Alfred T. Seal from the rank of scout to Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 9; the appointment of W. F. Richards as Scoutmaster of Troop 12, in Hope chapel, and the formation of a new troop in Temple Baptist church and the tentative formation of a new troop of Boy Scouts, the first in North Plainfield, in Warren chapel. Councilman Leek reported that Scout Caryl Dunavan, of Troop 9, had passed four additional examinations for merit badges. The Council also fixed upon working rules for the annual award of the Paul R. Collier Individual Efficiency Cup, to be awarded to the scout making the highest score for his patrol in championship competitions, one-half to count for his advancement in scout work during the preceding year.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Miss Marie Eline, the popular "Thanhouser Kid," appeared at Proctor's Theatre, yesterday afternoon, beginning a three days' engagement. She is at the head of her own company in a comedy playlet, "Springtime." Miss Eline also gives a monologue at the close of the sketch and after the performance holds an informal reception in the women's waiting room. Five other high class acts are on the new bill. They include the Wood Brothers, athletes in an exhibition of acrobatic and muscular work; Allie White, the "Girl with the Violin," presenting a refined musical act; Charles Mason and Co. in the farce, "Who's Who;" Tom Mahoney, comedian, and Ray Harrah & Co., five people in all, presenting a comedy skating act. The bill at Proctor's always includes the latest and best moving pictures in addition to the best of vaudeville. Another of those popular "bazaar nights" will be held tomorrow night and the management has a surprise in store for next Saturday afternoon, when it will introduce what is known as the "toy matinee." Watch for details.

Why do so many mothers take Wood Brook milk? Perhaps they have noticed the difference in the doctor's bills, if they are wise economists. But a mother's first thought is the children, and it does not take her long to discover that Wood Brook milk is health insurance for the children.

WILL CONTRIBUTE TO "PETER'S PENCE"

Annual Collection to Be Taken in all Catholic Churches Sunday.

The annual "Peter's Pence" collection in the local Catholic churches will be taken up next Sunday, at the morning services. The date has been set by the Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. O'Connor, head of the Newark Catholic diocese, in a circular letter sent to the various parishes. He makes a special appeal for generosity in face of the existing conditions, referring to the war's curtailment of the receipts to the Vatican's support.

In part the Bishop's letter reads as follows: "It is a strict duty which devolves on all Catholics to contribute to the support of the Holy See. By divine ordinance the successor of St. Peter is the chief pastor of the church. He is the vicar of Christ and the source of authority in all that relates to the spiritual welfare of souls. In virtue of his sublime office he is charged with the administration of the primatial see of Christendom. His duties are world-wide in their scope. To carry on successfully the mission entrusted to him by our Divine Lord, he needs the financial aid and co-operation of all the faithful. He has no resources from which to meet these necessary outlays of money, except those supplied by the generous contributions of his spiritual children. This obligation is binding on every member of the church and cannot be evaded without manifest neglect of an important duty. The precept which requires all Catholics to contribute to the support of their pastors applies with especial force in the case of him who is the shepherd of the entire flock, commanded to feed both the lambs and the sheep of Christ.

"At the present moment the obligation to contribute to the maintenance of the Holy See is rendered more than usually imperative for us by the conditions which prevail in several countries in Europe. Whole nations, noted for their generosity to the holy father, find it almost impossible to meet the local demands on their charitable benevolence. Their resources are taxed to the utmost in relief of the distressed victims of the war. It is, therefore, with far more than ordinary zeal that we should exert ourselves to make the present collection a success."

field Board of Education to erect a new school in the Netherwood section of the city, it was stated that but little progress had been made. This, however, was due not to any inactivity on the part of the committee, but was owing to the fact that it had been shown that the density of the juvenile population was in other parts of Plainfield and the Board of Education had been compelled to locate the buildings where they were pressingly needed. It was stated that Netherwood would receive attention as soon as it was possible for the school authorities to give it.

Archibald Cox, president of the Board of Education, attended the meeting by invitation and explained the school situation in Plainfield. He said that the school problems in this city were probably more difficult of solution, than in almost any city of its size in the State. He said that the rate of increase was about 200 pupils per year, or equal to the necessity for building a twelve room school every two years. From a taxpayer's standpoint this was very undesirable, but the children must be provided with school facilities. It was either a case of overcrowding the schools, erecting new buildings or finding some other solution. This was what the members of the Board of Education were endeavoring to do. In the meantime new buildings were being erected where the greater number of children were located and where they would relieve the pressure on the other schools.

It was decided to ask the Common Council to place a number of additional street lights in the Netherwood section and also to take steps to have several defective sidewalks repaired. The Council is also to be petitioned relative to better fire protection in the eastern section of the city. They are to be asked to place another fire engine there to replace the one recently rejected by the Common Council.

President Henry P. Stephens directed attention to the fact that the annual meeting of the association was to be held next month and that he hoped that all members would co-operate with the nominating committee in securing a good personnel of officers for the ensuing year. He said that he would be pleased to see several aspirants for each office. He then stated that under no circumstances would he become a candidate for re-election as president. He stated that this decision was prompted by the fact that he is no longer a resident of the Netherwood section of the city and believed that the president should be of easy access to the members of the association at all times.

Following the regular business session light refreshments were served and the members spent an hour in social intercourse.

HOW TO EXTEND FOREIGN TRADE

Department of Commerce Has Planned an Extensive Educational Plan.

PRINCIPLES OUTLINED

Dr. E. E. Pratt, Chief of Bureau, Proposes to Furnish American Manufacturers With Valuable Information on Subject.

Under the direction of Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, the Department of Commerce has planned an educational campaign for the purpose of laying before the manufacturers and exporters of the United States practical and concrete information relative to the fundamental principles which are pre-requisite to entering the export business and extending foreign trade.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has learned that there are many manufacturers in the United States who would like to export their commodities to the markets of South and Central America but cannot do so for the reason that they do not know where the specific opportunities are; they do not know prevailing market conditions; they are not familiar with business methods practised in the foreign country; they do not know how to make out the consular invoices; foreign customs regulations and trade mark laws are stumbling blocks; shipping routes are perplexing questions; and sources of credit information are often unknown. It has also been found that there are many manufacturers in the United States who do not know that the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is daily in receipt of the names and addresses of foreign firms which are in the market for American commodities and that the Bureau has established commercial clearing houses in the leading commercial centers of the United States.

It has been previously announced that Dr. Pratt has designed Stanley H. Rose, special agent of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, as export trade adviser. Mr. Rose is about to start on a tour of the United States to confer directly with manufacturers, business men and commercial organizations for the purpose of affording first aid and instructing manufacturers who are unfamiliar with export business, and to advise manufacturers who have had more or less experience in securing foreign trade. Mr. Rose will supply information to enable the novice to conduct a successful selling campaign in foreign countries, and will acquaint the American industrial and commercial public with the facilities of the Department of Commerce for promoting and extending the foreign trade of the United States.

The Department of Commerce wishes to place at the command of every American manufacturer and exporter the great fund of practical information which the Bureau has collected and collated through the medium of commercial attaches, consular officers and commercial agents resident in foreign countries. These officials report the names and addresses of reliable firms which are in the market for American goods. They report on every phase of commercial life and activity as they find it in their respective countries.

Hundreds of letters reach the Bureau each week asking for information about making out invoices for the shipment of goods to South America; about the selection of agents; the method of quoting prices; sources of credit information; methods of packing; shipping routes; foreign customs regulations; trade mark laws and other matters which come up daily in the work of the active exporter. Specific answers to many of these questions are available in the Bureau's publications and records. These will be supplemented by practical suggestions from Mr. Rose during his visits to the different manufacturing centers. He will have with him a traveling library containing the principal publications of value to the beginner in export trade, as well as statistics of imports and exports of the United States and the principal countries of the world.

The educational campaign is proving to be very popular. The Bureau has received many letters from business firms, chambers of commerce, and other commercial organizations throughout the United States, asking that their cities be included in the itinerary of Special Agent Rose. The Bureau will make an effort to have the special agent visit as many cities as possible before the end of the year.

Mr. Rose expects to make his headquarters at the offices of the commercial organizations of the various cities which he visits. The time of his probable arrival may be learned later on application to the secretaries of the respective organizations.

Miss Elsie Libbey, daughter of Prof. and Mrs William Libbey, of Princeton, has been spending several days visiting Mrs. Josiah Browne and family, of Kensington avenue. Miss Libbey is the fiancee of W. Lester Glenney, of this city.

KIVIAT IN "DUTCH."

Abel Kiviat, track captain of the Irish-American A. C., and Harry J. Smith, former two-mile national champion, who holds the same position with the Bronx Church House, are the athletes accused of demanding excessive expense money to compete in a set of games conducted by the Eastern New York State Athletic League at Schenectady on September 18. They have been summoned to appear at a meeting of the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. at the American Express Company Employes' Club, at 67 Madison avenue, on Thursday night to answer charges brought against them by Chairman George Mathews of the committee.

PILOTS HAVE A TIME GETTING PRIZE CASH

Auto Racers Met to Receive Checks Yesterday But Were Disappointed.

Gil Anderson, first winner of the Astor Cup over the Sheepshead Bay Speedway, and Rooney, O'Donnell, P. Anderson, Alley, Limberg, Haibe and Vail, who chased him around the big bowl, unsuccessfully, all met at the uptown office of the Speedway Corporation yesterday afternoon. It had been announced that they would then receive checks for the prizes they had won. The checks were in the possession of the referee at the race, Mr. Schimpf, who understood that he was to meet the drivers and give them their valuable slips of paper today. After waiting an hour and a half Mr. Schimpf was reached by telephone at his home on Long Island, explained and apologized for his non-appearance, and sent word that he would be at the office with the money this morning at 10 o'clock, so the distribution of the prizes was postponed until that time.

All of the drivers were in good trim, even Gil Anderson having recovered from the temporary deafness from which he suffered after the race, as a result of the noises of his machine during the 350 miles run. They were all enthusiastic about the new track, its speed and safety, as well as its management, and complimented Everard Thompson, the manager, in effusive fashion over the perfect arrangements he had made for their comfort and convenience during the contest.

"This little failure to turn up with the cash is the first slip made by the management," commented Gil Alderson, "and the mistake does not seem to be one for which the management is to blame." Then turning to Fred Wagner, he asked him to forward his check to his home address, as he did not think he would take the trouble to come around in the morning.

ANOTHER FOR ALLIES.

Word has come from Australia that Norman E. Brookes, the world famous lawn tennis player, is among a detachment of antipodeans now on their way to join the allies' colors. Brookes said that he simply could not stay contented in the world "down under" while all the other Australian tennis players were on the firing line. "Rod" Heath, Dunlop and others shouldered their firelocks several months ago.

FLYNN STILL ANXIOUS.

Jim Flynn, "fighting fireman of Pueblo," arrived in New York yesterday, ready for a winter's campaign against any of the top-notch heavyweights. Flynn is particularly anxious for another match with Jim Coffey.

Coffee attributed his poor showing at Brighton Beach to the fact that he hurt his hands and Flynn wants to prove that Coffey cannot defeat him.

BOY SCOUT DAY IN PLAINFIELD

Third Annual Patrol Championship Contest Takes Place on Parker Field.

FOLLOWING A PARADE

Famous Troop of Blind Boy Scouts From New York Guests of Honor—Model of Alert Hose Carriage One of the Surprise Exhibits.

This is Boy Scout day in Plainfield. The lads in khaki, three hundred strong, marched through the city streets with banners flying and banners floating to the breeze in celebration of the third annual patrol championship contest which is taking place at Parker Field. As their guests they have the celebrated troop of blind boy scouts from the New York Institution for the Blind brought here through the influence of Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, the president, Walter M. Price, and fifty-five boy scouts from Staten Island with their famous fife and drum corps, a large delegation of boy scouts from East Orange, New Brunswick, Westfield, Elizabeth, Dunellen, Bound Brook and Roselle, and W. A. Perry, national field commissioner of National Boy Scout headquarters. The blind scouts were the special guests of Troop 14, of the First Baptist church.

The parade formed at the headquarters of Troop 14 at 12:30 and moved shortly after 1 o'clock, down West Front street to Park avenue, to North avenue, to Watchung avenue, to East Fifth street, to Richmond, to Watchung, to Hillside avenue, to Randolph road, to Parker Field. In line were many evidences of scout handicraft, including, among other surprises, a model of the famous Alert hose carriage drawn by members of Troop 10, of Trinity Reformed church, William R. Krinzy, scoutmaster; a canoe and carrier built by Colin Millard, of Troop 5; a trek cart barrier built by Troop 8, of the Crescent Avenue church, H. Douglas Davis, scoutmaster; a trek cart built by Champion Troop 5, of the First Presbyterian church, John Richards, scoutmaster, and other novelties.

Arriving at Parker Field the parade passed in review before the judges, who were Walter M. Price, president of the Staten Island Boy Scout Council; George P. Mellick, president of the Plainfield Playground Commission; Mayor Leighton Calkins and Edward Harding. The Plainfield patrols then formed in line and again passed in review before the judges to determine which patrol appeared in the best form and marching order for points in the competition.

The competition is being held to determine whether Troop 5 is to retain the Paul R. Collier championship pennant, to win the Dr. H. D. Corbusier first aid competitive pennant for excellence in field first aid work, the Paul R. Collier individual efficiency cup and the Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen prize for the best demonstration of first aid work to animals. The out of town troops competed for the Schwed Brothers pennant to be awarded to the troop making the best demonstration of scout work.

Special judges for first aid work were Dr. H. D. Corbusier, Dr. N. W. Currie and Dr. R. G. Savoye, of Westfield.

GOLDFISH SHOW IS NOVELTY.

New York, Oct. 12.—The very latest thing in shows is the Goldfish Show, which opened in Brooklyn today, under the auspices of the American Federation of Goldfish Fanciers. There are ribbons and gold medals for the prize fish, and the competition is keen and exciting. Fish lovers from many sections have sent their choicest specimens. To give the addresses a fishy nature, there are speakers on the methods of capturing specimens for aquariums. The Federation seeks to promote the humane handling of goldfish, the study of their diseases, and the elimination of fake fish foods from the market.

Jack Martin Gives Leonard Credit For Boston Victory

By JACK MARTIN
Philadelphia National League Club

Boston's victory yesterday heaped laurels on the head of "Dutch" Leonard. To this youngster is due the credit for the second Hub victory. He was in the game first, last and all the time and kept the Phillies' sluggers at a safe distance from his shoots in the tight places. Besides bringing home the third game bacon Leonard killed as dead as a door nail the general belief that a left-winger could not stand up against the Quaker town outfit. Moran's outfit had plenty of chances to win yesterday's conflict, but the necessary punch was not forthcoming. The Phillies had plenty of chances to win with two such men to bat as Paskert and Cravath when they had tenants on the sacks.

As matters now stand it doesn't look as though the Moran combination would take another contest from Carrigan's crew, the one game advantage at this stage appearing as big as a mountain to all concerned. Lannin's Boston club, however, is not making the progress predicted for it in this series. The wiseacres of baseball could foresee nothing but a clean sweep for the well balanced and peppery Red Sox, but to date the Phillies have proven a club worthy of considerable favor in the race for the crown.

Taken on a whole the Boston club has the better pitching staff. A better outfield also is placed to the credit of the Red Sox. There is little to compare between the infields, man for man, the two rivals are about evenly balanced. The same holds true with the catching staff despite the fact that Boston corps has been tooted sky-high. It was stated that Bancroft was due to "crack" after his heavy work in the National League pennant race but it now looks as though he would be the shining light when the laurels are handed around after the melon cutting has been settled upon. In attack and defense Bancroft is leading the Quakers. Despite the fact that Carrigan now holds the leading card I'm pulling good and strong for my teammates in the Philly club to yank themselves out of the ditch and come to the fore in a final spurt. They are a great bunch of fellows, as well as a worthy crew of ball players. Manager Pat Moran has earned for himself a warm spot in the heart of every man under his wing and he's one of baseball's few clean-cut, good-as-a-gold-dollar leaders. It was his knowledge of the great national pastime that brought the National League pennant to Philadelphia for the first time in thirty-four years and the fans of the Sleeping City can't do too much for him in the way of honors. Here's hoping that he takes the series and caps his season's work with the crown sought for by all managers—the world's championship.

This morning's papers take it for granted that the Quakers are snowed under. From the player's standpoint, however, I can vouch for their stick-to-it-tiveness as I know every player and am aware of their fighting qualities.

Order to Give Greatest Demonstration Ever Held in the State.

Newark will be the rallying point for members of the Junior Order of the United American Mechanics today, tomorrow and Thursday, when the greatest demonstration of the order ever held in the State is promised in conjunction with the annual conventions of the State Council and the New Jersey Funeral Benefit Association. Representatives will be present from practically every city and town in New Jersey and invitations have been sent to members in four other States.

Principal among the features prepared by the demonstration committee will be a parade of members of the order, in which it is estimated 20,000 men will march. There will be floats, uniformed bodies of some of the degrees of the organization and forty bands and fife and drum corps. This will be held Wednesday evening.

The funeral benefit society Tuesday morning and afternoon will hold its convention in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, 432 Plane street, Newark, which will be the headquarters during the demonstration. In the evening a reception will be given the visiting delegates and the officials of the State Council at the hall. The State Council session will open Wednesday morning and the election of officers will be held in the afternoon.

After the parade that evening a number of the subordinate councils in Newark will give separate entertainments. The affair will close with the ending of the State session, either Thursday night or Friday morning.

Temperance
NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by
THE W. C. T. U.

In an address delivered at the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Kansas W. C. T. U., Governor Capper told of the benefits Kansas enjoys as the result of prohibition and predicted the abolition of the liquor traffic by federal law in at least ten years. Referring to the way in which the State is slandered by the liquor interests, he said:

"Kansas, under the enforcement of her prohibitory law, has made such marvelous advancement in every avenue of progress and well-being that the powerfully entrenched liquor interests, alarmed lest all the States, or the nation, follow its examples, have made Kansas the target of their various publicity bureaus. They have covered the entire United States with pamphlets and reports in which statistics are adroitly massed, manufactured and distorted to prove that Kansas actually is damaged by prohibition and that there can be no real prosperity, no actual progress without the saloon. One side of their argument is as convincing as the other, but the plausible and apparently conclusive and authoritative array of their alleged statistics, puzzles many persons who realize at the same time that they cannot be true or entirely true."

Not a drop of liquor, it is reported, was served at the banquet of the National Carriage Makers' Association held recently in Cleveland; yet, despite the absence of John Barleycorn, the affair is said to have been a tremendous success, the best the association has held for years. To the strains of the finest orchestra obtainable and the dulcet tones of grand opera stars the men who have made fortunes out of horse-drawn vehicles sipped their tea, "and by tea, tea is meant," declares an Ohio paper which describes the occasion in the following words:

"Over $1,200 worth of entertainment stunts took the place of the bubbling cup, and the gentlemen who for years have made speeches with their right hand resting on the top of champagne bottles, which left their remaining hand free for gestures, got along finely last night without any rests for their hands."

"Dry times are certainly coming in Michigan," exclaimed a Detroit motorist the other day. "I made a trip recently from Traverse City to Detroit and in following a certain stretch of country having good roads I did not strike one place in which to get a drink until near Detroit. That's going some when you consider it means going pretty well the length of the State."

Kalamazoo, Mich., which has been without saloons since May 1, is not attracting the usual number of tramps. This fact was made known recently at the semi-annual inspection of the jail records. During the four months ending September 20, 1915, less than one-third the usual number of hoboes for this season of the year enjoyed the hospitality of the jail, and the city was thus freed from a large number of undesirables and the lawlessness attendant upon their sojourn within its limits. For the past four months the prison records show only 1,142 tramps as contrasted with 3,500 for the corresponding period of other years.

Charleston, W. Va., has found that prohibition can be made to prohibit and the law in that city has been so well enforced that even in the vice districts, which were open for a time after the prohibition law went into effect, it was impossible to procure liquor. According to the story of a prominent West Virginia business man published in an Ohio paper, a company of ministers in disguise visited the district for four nights, and were unable in a single house to obtain intoxicants. But the district soon realized that without liquor it was deprived of its strongest ally, and the resorts have since been permanently closed.

At an enthusiastic convention of the Nebraska Dry Federation at Lincoln, Nebraska's 1916 prohibition campaign was given an impetus which started it well on its way to victory. Twelve hundred and fifty delegates attended. Hon. Charles W. Bryan, mayor of Lincoln, was the presiding officer. Hon. William J. Bryan, by letter, gave assurance of his help in the campaign. Greetings from the governors of Kansas and Colorado and from the National Farmers' Congress were extended the federation. The cordial spirit manifested promises well for the co-operation of the temperance forces of the State.

ALLISON-MOSES.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Church and society people of this city are attending the wedding at Wytheville, Va., today, of Miss Lillian Guthrie Allison and Frank Armstrong Moses, of Knoxville, Tenn. Miss Allison is a daughter of Rev. Dr. John Lee Allison, former pastor of Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian church, of this city. Dr. Allison left Washington several years ago to accept a call to Johnson City, Tenn., and it is there that the romance of his daughter began.

REV. P. H. BARKER MUST STAND TRIAL

Newark Pastor to Answer Charges Brought by Neosha Presbytery, of Kansas.

Emporia, Kas., Oct. 12.—Rev. Percival H. Barker, formerly of Kansas, now pastor of the Christ Reformed church, of Newark, N. J., will be given a hearing today by the Kansas Synod of the Presbyterian Church, on the charges brought against him here before he went to New Jersey. The Barker case has been agitating the church councils for some time, and the General Assembly last May ordered a retrial of the charges which hang over him here. Dr. Barker has been notified that his case comes up for retrial today, and Rev. Dr. Solomon S. Hilscher, who persecuted the interrupted first trial, will handle the persecution in the church court. Dr. Barker will be defended by former Congressman William S. Bennet.

The trial of the charges against Dr. Barker was interrupted when Barker and his counsel suddenly withdrew from the trial room last winter. The case was then submitted to the General Assembly, which ruled that the minister must stand trial on the formal charges brought against him in the Neosha Presbytery.

During the past two years the Classis of Newark of the Reformed Church in America has had considerable trouble trying to settle the case of Mr. Barker. It even went so far as to drop the Newark church from the Classis, declining to recognize it as long as Mr. Barker remained pastor.

Certain officers in the Newark church, as well as some of the members stood by the pastor throughout his trial and when his case came before the General Synod at New Brunswick. It was afterward decided that Mr. Barker must again stand trial on the charges brought against him by the Neosha Presbytery of Kansas.

The personal property of the estate of Mrs. Sarah Apgar was sold Saturday at her home in Railroad avenue, High Bridge.

After visiting at High Bridge, Michael Devlin has returned to Philadelphia.

Mrs. George Wear, of New Castle, Del., is visiting at High Bridge.

After an illness, Miss Jennie Crater, of High Bridge, resumed yesterday her duties as principal of the Harmony public school.

Miss Stella Conway, of Newark, is visiting at High Bridge.

CHIEF BENSON SPEAKER.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 12.—Admiral Benson, chief of the Bureau of Naval Operation, will be the principal speaker tonight at the Columbus Day banquet here. Archbishop Glennon, of St. Louis, is the other prominent speaker. In view of the widespread discussion of the preparedness of the United States Navy, the words of Admiral Benson will be closely followed. Only songs of American origin will be sung at the observance of Columbus Day, and five hundred silk American flags will be used in the salute to the flag.

WEBB STATUE AT GETTYSBURG.

Gettysburg, Pa., Oct. 12.—New York today added another statue to the Gettysburg battlefield, when the bronze form of General Alexander S. Webb was dedicated. General Webb was the hero of "The Angle," one of the bloodiest sections of the famous battle. Many survivors of his command came from New York to take part in the exercises, accompanied by Governor Whitman and his staff.

HART-DALE.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—A special train this morning carried Philadelphia society people to Rumson, N. J., where at 1 o'clock this afternoon Miss Pauline Hart became the bride of Edward Crathorne Dale. Miss Hart had Mrs. Ernest du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., as her matron of honor. The ceremony took place at the Church of St. George-by-the-River, Rev. Duncan Dale officiating.

UNDERTAKERS IN CONVENTION.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—Leaving behind their sombre blacks, the undertakers have come to the exposition from all sections of the United States, and they opened today the annual convention of the National Association of Funeral Directors. The delegates show that they know how to smile and enjoy themselves.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Needlewomen who suffer from moist hands will find an excellent remedy by rubbing the palms occasionally with a solution of borax in a little alcohol. A sponge saturated with the solution should always be at hand. Squeeze it in the palms occasionally, allowing the moisture to dry without wiping. This is quickly accomplished through evaporation.

Novel Way to Bake Cookies—Go to the tinsmith and have him cut for you a sheet of thick, flat tin just a half inch smaller than your oven. Have him put a ring on it to hang it up by. When your cooky dough is ready, put the tin on the molding board, and roll the cooky dough out right on the tin until it covers it entirely. Then take your cooky cutter and cut out the cookies, as close together as possible. Slide the tin into the oven and bake. When you remove the tin the cooky rounds will easily come out. The few square corners remaining you can easily dispose of to the children while they are warm. This not only saves time, but it makes the cookies uniform, for, as every cook knows, every time the cooky dough is rolled over for an extra cutting more flour has to be added, thus making the consistency of each tin of cookies different.

THE TABLE

Mock Fried Oysters—To one pint of grated corn (or you may use canned corn mashed fine) add a small half cup flour with one teaspoon baking powder, a tablespoon melted butter, salt to taste, one or two eggs (the more the better); mix well, and fry a tablespoonful just as you would fried oysters.

Casserole Beef Roast—Brown or sear nicely a small beef pot roast in iron fry pan, with four slices of FAT salt pork. Place pork and beef in center of casserole and around meat place little new carrots and potatoes left whole, piece of butter and cup of hot water (which must be replenished at times if need be). Cover and cook until meat is well done. Serve casserole dishes on wash days or baking days, when one has a big fire going.

Orange Pudding — One orange sliced thin, one cup sugar, one pint boiling water; boil together five minutes. Dissolve two tablespoons cornstarch with a little cold water, add to orange and let boil up. Serve cold with whipped cream. If cream is not handy, add one sliced banana and sprinkle with long shreds of cocoanut. Delicious, and serves six people.

Cream Custard Pie—Scald one pint milk; let cool, add yolks of three eggs, two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon cornstarch; beat together, add to milk; beat whites same as for frosting, fold in. Make rich crust. Bake twenty minutes.

"My Lady's Toast"—Cut bread diamond shape and very thin; toast golden brown, spread with butter and orange marmalade with chopped walnut meats. Take tiny sticks of orange candy cut as pegs and sharpen at one end; fasten these through four corners of toast sandwich. Serve two sandwiches on tea plate to each guest. Fine also with iced tea.

HOME-MADE FLOOR LAMP

A floor lamp of popular type may be cheaply and easily made at home from a costumer or clothes tree. Remove the top brackets and saw off unnecessary height. Cover a shade frame in silk or cretonne and screw to the flat surface of the sawed upright. Fasten the bulbs on a free hanging cord to the lower brackets now under cover of the shade. Attach to wall or base plug.

With silk covered shade the cost of adapting an old costumer is: Wire frame, 85 cents; two yards silk, $1; one yard lining, 25 cents; cord, etc., 75 cents; total, $2.85.

MISS H. O. MATTISON OPPOSES SUFFRAGE

Assistant Health Officer Gives Reasons Why She is an "Anti."

One more anti-suffrage worker has been found among Plainfield's well-known women. She is Miss Harriet O. Mattison, assistant health officer in the local department, and registrar of vital statistics. Miss Mattison is an ardent advocate of "no votes for women" and she doesn't care who knows it. Such was the sentiment she expressed today in an interview with a Daily Press reporter and she advanced plenty of substantial arguments to back up her belief that universal suffrage would be detrimental to the State and nation.

Among other things she said: "What right has mere man to thrust the burden of voting on the shoulders of womankind? Why not leave the issue to the women and let them decide whether or not they want it? The ballot would be two to one against it. The husbandettes and others who have been button-holed into the suffrage cause will vote for the issue, while the sane-thinking man who is against woman suffrage believes the measure too silly to warrant his consideration and in many cases consequently will not bother his head about casting a ballot. If the amendment is carried in New Jersey it will be because those against it neglect to cast their ballot. The sentiment among intelligent thinkers is overwhelmingly against it and I, for one, will do all that I can to have the satisfaction of seeing the measure defeated.

"In the second place by granting universal suffrage we will be doubling the expense of the electorate without gaining any commensurate return. The men of our country are capable of guiding its affairs and the added expense entailed in pleasing a few women would be mere folly."

They Carried a Canary Bird and Mouse.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How Canary Birds and Mice Help Men.

"THIS is the night for a truly story," said daddy, taking the children on the arm of his chair. "Jack, have you ever thought where the coal that keeps us warm all winter comes from?"

"From the bin in our cellar!" cried Jack proudly.

"Before that?" asked daddy.

Both children guessed, but the nearest they came was a hole in the ground, for neither had ever seen a coal mine.

"Some of our states are very rich in coal fields, which lie under the earth's surface just as meadows stretch over half of Uncle Ben's farm," said daddy. "They go deep down into the ground, and thousands of little boys and girls in the United States hardly ever see their papas, who go down into these mines in big buckets each day and work like heroes digging coal so that thousands of other children may keep warm.

"Sometimes these brave men stop at a station something like a railroad station and go off to one side till they come to a big hole of nothing but blackness, coal, bad air and mysteries. Often they take mules and carts down with them to carry the coal back to the big shaft, which is something like a main street, so that with hundreds of other men working the mine seems like a big, dark town.

"One of the great dangers these brave miners always suffer is bad air. Think how we all live with our windows open night and day and then imagine how impure the air must be so many hundreds of feet below sunshine and winds! The big shaft takes good air down to the miners, but when they have to dig their way into new fields sometimes the gases are so poisonous that they make the men faint. Now, please guess how they first find out if the air in these new fields is fairly safe?"

The children had to give it up.

"They take down into the mine in little cages a canary bird and a mouse, which are very particular about the air they breathe. If the canary and the mouse droop and hang their heads the miners know the air is poisonous and do not start to dig until shafts have helped to clean the air."

"Isn't this very cruel to the animals?" asked Evelyn, who had a tender heart.

"The miners do not keep them in the mine long enough to hurt them. They only help decide whether the mine is safe."

"Canary birds can sing for us, but I never knew mice were any good except to carry off cheese," said Jack, much interested.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. D. A. LEONARD

The Story of a Girl Who Married at Nineteen Without Experience or Preparation.

"Are you busy this afternoon?" There was a disturbed look in Mrs. Sutner's eyes as Olive seated her in the sunny living room.

"Mr. Sutner has gone away with Jack—it's his half holiday. Could you spare time to talk to me? I feel that I must have help if I am to save our lives from utter wreck. I have no one to go to, no one to help me." Her under lip trembled as she spoke, but she bravely held it firm with her teeth in a determined effort to control herself.

"We will talk it all over." Olive drew her chair near her guest. "You may be sure what you tell me is dropped in a well. Together we may find a way out."

"In the first place," began the woman, "I married very young. I was only nineteen; a child. I had read a lot of trash about love and marriage, and I imagined life with John was to be one long dream of bliss." She laughed bitterly.

"Why are girls not prepared in some way for marriage?" she burst forth. "I was a stenographer; had fifteen dollars a week with no board to pay. I spent all that on my clothes."

"If mothers only had more wisdom," said Olive sadly.

"I met John and we were violently in love from the first. He seemed to have plenty of money to spend and it never occurred to me to inquire about his salary. I would have thought that mercenary, and I was marrying 'for love alone.'" The mocking tone distressed Olive.

"Mother did say to me that I ought to learn something about housekeeping before I married, but John said cheerfully, 'Oh, she'll learn.'" She paused and wiped her eyes.

"Poor babes in the woods," she continued sadly. "I can't understand how people can sit and look on calmly and see young folks marry like that. They set sail without chart or compass and of course the first storm utterly riddles the boat and neither one knows what to do.

"I couldn't cook; I couldn't sew; I couldn't save. We were out of money at the end of the first month, and have never had a postage stamp ahead since. Jack is four years old, and the doctor who attended me has never been paid. John says I waste things frightfully, and of course he's right. He has been frantic over the money question all these years and he blames me for everything. He's so cross it's like touching a wet finger to a hot iron to speak to him. Sometimes he even snaps at Jack." She gulped down a sob.

"Last night I said, 'If you'll give me enough to hire Jack taken care of I'll leave you to yourself and earn my own living.'

"'Don't worry about Jack,' he snapped. 'I'll never ask you to take care of him, and don't think I'll ever give him up. So go as soon as it suits you, and the sooner the better.'"

"Don't repeat his speeches made when he was beside himself with nervous irritation. He didn't mean that; he was sorry five minutes after he had said it." Olive's tone was soothing.

"Don't you think it!" flamed the wife. "You have heard of the even-tempered woman who was mad all the time, haven't you? Well, he's like that."

"And you? How about your temper?" asked Olive.

"I hope I know how to show a proper spirit. No one is going to run over me and have me sit tamely by and take it. I give as good as he sends, you may depend on that." Mrs. Sutner tossed her head defiantly.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—Adv.

EDITORS AND SUFFRAGE.

Right or wrong, any movement that has the unqualified support of 391 newspapers in the United States out of 526 that are interested enough to express an opinion, is practically assured of victory.

The Literary Digest has just completed a comprehensive poll of the press of the United States on the question of woman suffrage. Its editors mailed queries to one thousand of the leading newspapers of the country and received 526 replies. The "ayes" are in the majority. Out of the total of 526 replies 391 were affirmative, 97 negative and 38 undecided.

The question at once arises, could a movement that was not for the best interests of all our people find support from so great a number of editors in all parts of the country, each one representing a different constituency in separate and distinct environments? We do not think so. All editors are not qualified to pass judgment for the people upon questions of such moment, but as a class they may be depended upon to support only reforms that lead to better government.

And you may be sure that editors, as a class again, are in the habit of getting what they go after.

GERMAN DIPLOMACY.

German audacity is surpassed only by German diplomacy. The wonderful drives of the Kaiser's armies into France and later into Russian Poland were considered remarkable examples of the former, but they are crowded into insignificance by the effort now being made to hack a passageway through Serbia to Turkey in Europe. In order to make success even a probability it was necessary to secure the aid of Bulgaria, and German diplomats paved the way for the military move. They went even further. They crippled the Allies in this fight by preventing Greece from performing the conditions of its treaty with Serbia, which called for help from Grecian armies should Bulgaria attempt to invade Serb soil. Both feats were miracles of modern diplomacy. If the boasted German military organization does its work as well as the German diplomats have done the dominion of the Kaiser will soon reach to the Dardanelles.

It is a little late to mention the subject, but the Common Council is deserving of the greatest commendation for its action in the matter of the Nott Fire Engine. As has been pointed out exclusively in the Daily Press a number of times, there were so many reasons why the engine should not be received by the city of Plainfield that no other action could have been consistently taken by the Council. Not a little of the credit in the matter goes to the members of the Councilmanic Fire and Buildings Committee. To the patient and painstaking investigation by Chairman Edgar and his associates the people owe more than ordinary thanks. There are few communities where members of the City Council give such faithful services without recompense, as has been the case in this city, and the action in connection with the fire engine fully illustrates the conscientious work that is being done in all things by our city fathers.

Through a decision of the Federal courts the genius of a Plainfielder has received unique praise. So accustomed are the judges nowadays to giving their opinions in cold, legal phraseology, that is indeed a relief to pick up a decision such as that given a few days ago in the matter of the Kenney vacuum cleaner patent and learn that a judge can be a human being and pay tribute to genius where such tribute is due. Mr. Kenney spent many years experimenting before he finally solved the problem, and he was the first person to put on the market anything of the character. In sustaining his patents, and his alone, the Federal court has merely done an act of justice.

It is said that Villa was fighting mad when he heard it had been reported to the A. B. C. conference that he would withdraw from Mexico in order the restore peace in the country.

The A. B. C. mediators have decided to ignore Villa. Having had some experience in ignoring New Jersey mosquitoes we advise quick and concerted action.

If Bryan does go to Europe we hope he returns in peace (if there is an added s its a typographical error).

If the Allies continue making it warm for her as now, Turkey will be just about done by Thanksgiving.

King George having barred treating it's up to the Czar to bar retreating.

The naval advisory board might advise Daniels that a navy is needed.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 19—State referendum election, and third registration day in municipalities of more than 5,000 people.

October 26—Third and final registration day in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

November 2—General Election Day.

The Democrats opened their campaign in Elizabeth last night, with a big ratification meeting at Democratic headquarters, 21 Broad street. The meeting was under the auspices of the Elizabeth Democratic Club and a feature was an address by Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin, who is one of the leading anti-Wittpenn Democrats in the State. Most of the candidates were at the gathering and several of them addressed the meeting.

In Essex county the forces are lining up and a bitter campaign is expected for the control of the county. The Republicans are basing their campaign largely upon the record of the past Legislature and Board of Freeholders, both of which bodies are controlled by the G. O. P.

Rumor has coupled the name of State Comptroller Edward I. Edwards, as well as that of H. Otto Wittpenn, with the gubernational candidacy. The story is that Edwards will run against Wittpenn for the Nugent faction in Essex county. It is evident that one of the issues of the next gubernatorial campaign will be Wittpennism.

Chairman Edward Ehlers, of the Morris County Republican Committee, at a meeting of the committee last week read a statement which he had sent to a New York newspaper on the subject of woman suffrage. His statement was in answer to a question as to how the county would vote at the November election and he expressed the belief that the amendment would be beaten. The vote, he said, would be light, and four-sevenths would be against suffrage for women. President Wilson's announcement, he contended, would have little effect, since Wilson has never been popular in the county. Mr. Ehlers himself declared against suffrage, claiming that it has proven a failure in the States where it had been tried.

October

October is a humdinger of a month.

Hayfeverites lose, in this month, the blooming beezer, and begin to breathe regularly without profanity or sneezes.

Chestnuts are ready for butchering, and the hogs begin to drop from the trees.

The frost is on the punk—O, shaw!

The trees that we saw leaving last spring are still here, but now the leaves are leaving.

Next spring the trees will be releaved again.

As the foliage drops, the little birds' branch-offices are distinctly visible.

Birds are advertised a great deal as dainty things, but they are such confoundedly filthy housekeepers that they can never stand it to occupy the same house two seasons.

The birds do in October what the trees do in the spring.

They go down south to buy a bale, and do not return till the gentleannie season has located with us again.

October's birthstone is the opal, and her distances when the sun is rising over mist always remind you of that festive and hoodoo breed of dornick.

People living in towns where fairs were held are just beginning to get rid of the havoc created by the three-days' visit of the country relatives that the town people had visited for two weeks in August.

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Mr. Pouder's Idea

WE HAVE the American idea and the Iowa idea, and sundry other ideas doing heavy service of various kinds, but we desire to place the seal of our approval, such as it is, upon the Pouder idea.

This Pouder idea is the lusty child of Mr. William R. Pouder of Tennessee. To be more specific, the recorder and treasurer of the city of Johnson City, Tennessee, a place having some 8,500 population according to the census, but 10,000 according to all loyal Johnsoncitonians.

Mr. Pouder mails regularly to consumers the water bills. In the envelope along with the bill he has a great penchant for inserting other matter. Not that he is required to do so, nor hired to do so, but because he feels that he can help people in this way.

What does he insert in the envelopes? Oh, all sorts of public health literature of the kind distributed by big health departments of big cities. Johnson City has nd health board—but Mr. Pouder is doing his share.

For instance, Mr. Pouder placed circular matter of this sort in 2,000 homes last spring. That is a big job, as anyone knows who has ever had to mail a large number of circulars. No doubt, as Mr. Pouder himself deprecates, a lot of the circulars lighted Johnson City fires for the cooking of breakfast next day, but even so, a lot of people must have been curious enough to sort of glance over the circulars—and so the idea must have taken root here and there.

In every village and city, somebody is sending water bills, light bills, tax duns, etc. Let the Pouder idea be utilized. It costs nothing but energy. It bears fruit beyond peradventure of doubt. It opens up an immense field for the economical advancement of public health education.

The Pouder idea will commend itself to health departments and health officers everywhere.

It is so simple and so valuable that every one will wonder why he never thought of it himself.

Johnson City, population 8,502, the home of 10,000 Tennesseeans—and Mr. William R. Pouder, inventor of the Pouder Idea.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ringworm

Please tell me what is the cause of ringworm and what will cure it.

Answer—A parasite, called the trycophyton. The local use of a chemical which destroys parasites—a matter to be advised by your physician according to the character of your ringworm. Old chronic cases are often curable by vaccine treatment. Sometimes X-rays may be necessary.

The First Microbe

If, argues Alma, the common "cold" is not the result of drafts, night air, exposure or change of weather, but due to a germ or germs, as you teach, how does the first individual acquire his coryza?

Answer—Undoubtedly Noah had accommodations for one poor little coryza microbe. At any rate, his sons took pains to throw a cover over him when he lay drunk in his tent after the first harvest, and that suggests they had "colds" even in those parlous times.

THE GRAND CANYON

THE Grand Canyon of the Colorado is a small scratch on the earth's surface made by Nature to show man what an insignificant insect he is. It is 100 miles long, 13 miles wide and 6,000 feet deep. Viewed from Mars, it would look like a wrinkle on the face of Nature. Viewed from its brink, it is so awe-inspiring that even Commercial Travelers look at it in silence, and famous writers claw hopelessly for adequate adjectives.

The Grand Canyon was made by the Colorado River about the time the mother-in-law joke was invented. The Colorado is not a large stream, but it has always been very busy. It has eaten its way through a mile of sandstone and a thousand feet of granite and has produced a chasm filled with weird temples of red, yellow, white and black rock, 5,000 feet high. It is estimated that it has taken to accomplish this enough horse power to light a boulevard between here and the moon. One can always tell a power magnate by the way he weeps when he sees the canyon.

The Colorado Canyon runs through a vast desert and begins without warning. At any point for a hundred miles, it would be possible for the casual wanderer to step off of the United States and to starve to death before he got through falling. This shows the wisdom of Nature. Had she placed the Canyon near New York, 100,000 people a year would fall into it, while in its present position it does not need to be fenced at all. However, owing to its isolated position, the Canyon does not draw nearly as much tourist Patronage as Niagara Falls, Mt. Vesuvius, Uncle Joe Cannon and other natural phenomena. More people see Coney Island in a night than see Colorado Canyon in a year. This is partly what is the matter with New York.

The Canyon is located in Arizona, 65 miles away from the nearest drug store, and is already in the hands of a trust, there being only one railroad to it. It is so vast that thunder storms not only rage in it while the spectator watches them from above, but sometimes they wander off and get lost in the side canyons. Its grandeur is heightened by the fact that not a single sign adorns its walls. In spite of the unparalleled opportunity to announce the virtues of soaps and soups in letters half a mile high, no sign painter with nerve enough to tackle the job has been found. There is only one trail to the water below—the Bright Angel trail, named for the people who have fallen off; and by mounting a burro the tourist can find himself in two hours in a scene of utter desolation which has never been penetrated by the automobile, the book agent, the pianola, the hobble skirt, the tariff question or the senatorial scandal. Many tourists have taken this spot for Paradise and have had to be removed by force.

"It would be possible for the casual wanderer to step off of the United States and starve to death before he got through falling"

The Grand Canyon is the greatest natural curiosity in existence, and it is a comfort to reflect that no matter what man may do to it, or how long he may keep on doing it, the results will only be visible through a strong glass. It is one thing in the world that is too big to be abused.

Views Of The Press

"Jitneur"

A WORD sneaks or shoulders its way into English; if there is a use for it, it stays there. Vain are the protests of the purists, even though the parvenu vocable may look to them abominable, "abhominable," as the conservative philologians of Shakespeare's time seem to have preferred to spell it. Is there a more abominable Latin-Greek mongrel than "sociology"? Yet it shows an unabashed front, worthy of the science of sciences and miscellaneous universal lore or smattering which it connotates. "Automobile," another hybrid, was accepted without much dissent. Nobody cares for the form. Every "good American" longs for the shoes of swiftness which it stands for.

Yet the most patient and tolerant observer of English as she is wrote must writhe and jump into the air when, from her beerful midst, Milwaukee "hurls" at a peaceful nation the immedicable, the unforgiveable word, "jitneur," meaning the driver of a jitney bus. Of the origin and derivation of "jitney," more happily called a "spider" for its winding ways by the French, there was great talk when that car of the people first rumbled into the Eastern ken. "Jitney" sounds strange, mysterious, abracadabraish. There is a wild music to it. But who could foresee that from its perilous loins would issue "jitneur," which The Milwaukee Sentinel rolls as a sweet morsel under the tongue, uses with bravado, defiantly, with an insolent happiness.

Jitney buses are to run in Milwaukee as "bonded carriers," but such a Volscian name as "jitneur" merits stripes as well as bonds.

"Jitneur!" Behind its hideous shape lurk new hideousnesses, "motorbuseur," "wagoneur," it may be "cardriveur." In the name of every age, in the name of every sex, in the name of every dictionary, we denounce and defy this Badger upstart, this wicked invention of Milwaukee.—New York Times.

People's Legal Friend

BY E. R. BRANSON

For Services Rendered

Q. If one does some work for another person, and nothing is said about pay, but the first person is expecting pay, may he compel the other person to compensate him?

A. If the services performed are of such a character that compensation might reasonably be expected, and if the second person accepts the benefits resulting therefrom without objection, there will be a liability on the latter's part to pay for the reasonable value of such services.

The Absent-Minded Beggar

Q. In the year 1911, I worked for a man in the northern part of the State of Minnesota, in a saw-mill which he was running. When I left I received all the money except thirty-four dollars, which he said he would send me, but he has never sent it. I have written to him several times, but have not received an answer. I know, through correspondence with his neighbors, that he has received some of my letters and that he still lives on his farm. Would you please tell me the best way to collect the money?

A. A lawyer or a collecting agency might take care of your claim.

A Road Accident—Who's To Blame

Q. A man was driving on a country road. There was an obstruction in the road and he turned out in order to avoid it, but in so doing his conveyance collided with another vehicle. Would he be liable for an injury resulting from such an occurrence?

A. This depends upon whether he was in the exercise of ordinary care—such care as an ordinarily prudent or careful person would observe under the same or similar circumstances. The driver of a vehicle must observe ordinary care, in avoiding any defective conditions or any obstructions in the highway, and he must do this not only as a matter of protection to himself, but also for the purpose of preventing probable injury to other persons.

To Limit Liability

Q. Does a collection agency have the right to limit its liability? For example, if, in giving a receipt to the holder of a claim, the agency stipulates that the claim is to be "at the risk" of the creditor, would such a condition be valid?

A. This would be valid.

A Chattel Mortgage

Q. Does a chattel mortgage have to be acknowledged?

A. In most of the states, this is not required; in some, it is.

Just a Plain Unvarnished Tale

Q. How should the premises mentioned in a lease be described? Is it necessary to describe them with as much care and precision as in the case of a deed?

A. They should be described in such a way that they may be identified; otherwise, the lease will be void. It is not necessary, however, to describe them in a technical manner or with the same degree of precision required in the case of a deed.

Hogging A Name

Q. Can the name of a city or of a town be monopolized by a business concern, by way of a trade mark or in any other way, so as to keep other persons from using the name of this city or town in selling goods?

A. No.

With Hare And Hounds

Q. Where a man is a member of a partnership and has made money in competition with the firm, could he be required to make an accounting to the other partners? A. Yes.

The Life Line

BY LAURA KIRKMAN

The Unsuspicious Man

He prides himself on his credulity. "I've always trusted people, in every way, and I've never been done yet," he will tell you. No, not yet. But life isn't over yet. Persons fit to be trusted are fit to be tested. They glory in it. Secretly, they despise the man who cares so much about that upon which he is bent that he risks the success of it. Credulity is the flower of innocence. Innocence is beautiful only in the child. Let the man who trusts at random, let his mother know he's out. His philanthropy is misplaced.

The Soft Man

There's one in every community. It is to him the neighbors fly when they lack rake—hose—lawnmower. He's always ready to lend. He it is who heads every subscription list; he doesn't know to refuse. Nor does this inability to refuse money and property encompass his softness; he can't refuse even friendship. The whining, the uninteresting, the questionable, flock to him for companionship. Slowly, he is becoming known as a crony of the shiftless. His stronger-minded neighbor steers clear of him. And no wonder. He's looking too much like a door-mat.

Current Poetry

The Man And The Tide

It isn't the man who goes up with the tide
As it easily floats him along,
But the man against whom it has turned, that deserves
The honor of wreath and song.
The man who still battles against
the tide,
And struggles to reach the goal,
Ah, he is the hero life greets with
Because of his dauntless soul.

The struggler there in the angry deep
That against him is rolling its flood;
Watch how he fights in the current's sweep
With the spirit of joy in his blood!
His battle is terrible all the while,
As the waters keep dashing him down;
But it's better than drifting with song and smile
On the tide that ripples to town.

The many ride on the friendly wave
Of the river of life each day,
But the souls that are bright with the gift called brave
Are the men that are tossed in the spray;
The men that must battle from hour to hour
Against the tides that are strong;
And not the fellows with plenty of power
That drift with the stream along.

Snap Shots

By Jay E. House

The records show that Abner Plimsoll has been married three times. Still, that isn't much of a record for one who has, so to speak, made matrimony his life work.

There are those who believe life can be prolonged by sun baths and uncooked food. But, under the circumstances, what would be the object?

A woman's life is full of trouble. If she has no children to worry over, she is pretty sure to try to grow a fern.

If the baby is reared on the bottle half the women sniff in disdain. If it isn't, the other half sniffs.

If a woman leaves her relatives for her husband the community, in time, forgets it. But the husband never is permitted to do so.

You, no doubt, wonder how a dog gets its reputation for intelligence. We'll tell you. It gets it through its owner.

When a dog kills a sheep upon the theory that mutton is good to eat, the joke is on the dog.

When a man tells you he is thinking it over, that means he has decided not to do it.

The financial condition of the actor is reflected with tolerable accuracy by the number of dogs he keeps.

The average man isn't looking for information. He is looking for an argument.

A New York woman is advertising for a husband she lost in 1899. How long does it take the statute of limitations to run on a lost husband?

GOVERNOR PLANS TOUR OF COUNTIES

Will Campaign in the Interest of Election of State Senators.

The itinerary of Governor Fielder on his tour of the six counties electing State Senators in November has been announced by the executive committee of the Democratic State Committee, as follows:

Thursday, Oct. 14, Cape May county, to campaign in behalf of the re-election of Senator Harry C. Wheaton; Saturday, October 16, Mercer county, in aid of the re-election of Senator Samuel T. Munson; Friday, October 22, Passaic county, to aid the campaign for the re-election of Senator Peter J. McGinnis; Saturday, October 23, Hunterdon county, to speak in behalf of giving Senator George F. Martens another term of three years in the Senate; Thursday, October 28, Middlesex county, to campaign for votes for W. Edwin Florance, the candidate for Senator; Saturday, October 30, Burlington county, to help the campaign of Senate candidate James Mercer Davis.

The speaking tour in each county will be arranged by the County Committee, and while the Governor's visits will be particularly in the interest of the Senatorial candidates, he will also speak for the election of the candidates for the Assembly, as well as the county tickets. In each county the Governor will be escorted by the member of the State Committee in that county.

The Democrats must elect all of the six Senators to retain control of the upper branch of the Legislature. The only Republican Senator whose term expires is Senator White, of Burlington county, and if the Republicans carry this one county they will have their majority of one in the Senate.

This explains the anxiety of the Democratic leaders and the strong campaign they are making in these counties.

BOARD DISCUSSES SCHOOL PROBLEM

Juvenile Population is Increasing Rapidly in Eastern Part of City.

PLANS ARE SUBMITTED

Architect White Says That a Six-Room Building Could Be Erected for $30,000—Bids for Equipping Evergreen Ave. School Received.

While the meeting of the Board of Education last night took on much the nature of a talk-fest, lasting from about 8:30 to 11:50, during which time but little business was actually transacted, the members improved the opportunity to study the school situation throughout the city and to discuss ways and means of solving school problems which each year are becoming more difficult.

Ten bids for supplying equipment for the Evergreen Avenue School were opened and referred to the building committee. There was no discussion of these bids and the committee is expected to report at the next meeting.

In the discussion over the need for more school facilities in the eastern section of the city, it was shown that the juvenile population in that section was increasing more rapidly than in any other part of the city. It was stated that there are now two classes in the Lincoln School without rooms and two more classes are held in the Netherwood Reformed church. It was the concensus of opinion that something must be done to relieve this condition, but whether this relief could best be obtained through transporting the children to other schools, where the conditions are not so congested, or a new building should be erected in the Highland avenue section remained unsettled.

In connection with the new building phase of the situation, Architect White submitted tentative plans, showing that a six-room building could be erected for $23,000, exclusive of the cost of the land or equipment. The estimated total cost of such a building, ready for occupancy, was $30,000. Formal action was deferred until an adjourned meeting to be held next Monday evening.

The appointment of a school dentist to succeed Dr. W. E. Stelle, resigned, was discussed. A number of names were considered but this matter was also allowed to go over until the adjourned meeting.

The attention of the Board was called to the lack of heating facilities in the Netherwood Reformed church, where two classes from the Lincoln School are cared for, and it was decided to reinstall the heating apparatus which was formerly in the church before it was moved to its present location. It was thought that this could be done at a small cost.

MUSIC AT MEETINGS OF TURN VEREIN

Social Hour of Last Night Proved to Be Highly Popular.

A social session, with an interesting and entertaining program of instrumental and vocal music, followed last night's session of the Plainfield Turn Verein, and it was unanimously decided to make this feature a part of the monthly sessions.

But little more than routine business was discussed at the meeting of last night. The building and gymnasium was rented to the North Plainfield school five afternoons and one evening each week until next March for basketball practice and games.

It was decided to give a Thanksgiving entertainment for all members and their friends. This will be held in the hall on Thanksgiving evening and will be an invitation affair.

TWO MEN ATTEMPTED TO ROB HIM, HE ESCAPES

J. P. Costello, who runs a greenhouse on Harrison avenue, reported to the police of the borough of North Plainfield last night that he was the victim of an attempted holdup. He said two white men stopped him on Greenbrook road about 8:15 and attempted to rob him. After a fight he escaped, according to the story told Chief Weiss. Costello did not lose anything. The North Plainfield police are investigating the robbery.

Former State Senator and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, are enjoying a visit to the Panama Exposition.

ARRESTED DESERTER AFTER LONG SEARCH

Max Shapiro, Wanted Here for Non-support, Taken Into Custody by Flynn.

Culminating a search that has been in progress for four months, Captain John J. Flynn this morning arrested Max Shapiro, formerly of 545 West Third street, who is wanted in this city on a complaint filed by Overseer of the Poor Garrett T. Dunham alleging non-support. Mrs. Lena Shapiro, his wife, swore out the charge claiming that he deserted her and three children.

Yesterday afternoon the police obtained information that the accused was in hiding in New Brunswick and the authorities at that place were requested to go to a certain stable where he lived and arrest him. When the Middlesex county police went for him they found that Shapiro had fled. This morning, while walking down Plainfield avenue, Captain Flynn happened upon the man and locked him up.

Mrs. Shapiro has been represented in the case by William Newcorn, and when the man was taken into custody Police Chief Kiely sought the attorney's office. He was informed that Mr. Newcorn was not there but that Mrs. Shapiro had just come in to inform the lawyer that her husband was back in Plainfield and could be arrested, not knowing that Captain Flynn already had the man.

According to Mrs. Shapiro her husband came to the family home on West Third street last night after his long absence and pleaded that he was ill and unable to work. He asked for food and a place to sleep. Shapiro at the time, according to his wife, was taking pills and other medicine and she took him in over night. In police court this morning Shapiro looked to be anything but the sick man he claimed to be. He was held by Judge DeMeza to await trial tomorrow morning.

CHARLES S. LEE TO LEAVE THE LEHIGH

Former Plainfielder to Retire After a Continuous Service of 22 Years.

Announcement was made today of the retirement from active service of Charles S. Lee, formerly a resident of Plainfield, as passenger traffic manager of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, effective October 21st next. Mr. Lee has been in continuous charge of the passenger traffic of this company for twenty-two years. William T. Grier, general traffic manager of the company, in speaking of Mr. Lee, says:

"He has discharged his duties with efficiency and singular faithfulness and by his high character has gained the affection and respect of his fellow officers and employes and the good-will of the public which is so generously manifested toward this company."

With the retirement of Mr. Lee the position of passenger traffic manager will be abolished. Mr. Lee is known to all railroad men and many other people throughout New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. George H. Lee, who on August 1 last became general passenger agent of the company, will have entire charge of the passenger department of this line.

NORTH PLAINFIELD TAX SALE ON OCTOBER 27

NOTABLE TRIBUTE TO FATHER MILLER

Address of Father John Baldwin at Unveiling of Memorial.

ST. MARY'S PROGRAM

Oral Wreaths for Memory of Former Pastor From a Friend Who Knew of His Good Work and Noble Character.

The tribute of Father John Baldwin, chaplain of Mt. St. Mary's College, to the late Father W. H. Miller at the unveiling of the memorial to him in the form of a statue of St. Joseph at Mt. St. Mary's yesterday, was one of the most eloquent addresses of the many Columbus Day program in all the country.

Father Baldwin said in part:

"As Americans, staunch and true, we are proud and joyous in having this opportunity of celebrating in so worthy and fitting a manner this civil holiday—Columbus Day: and here the civic feature of this event enters.

"I need not rehearse for it is familiar to you all, the magnificent tragedy of the life of Columbus—the plot, the discovery of a world, the moral—the vanity of human wishes, a good man struggling against undeserved misfortune and sinking into his grave under the cold ingratitude of those whom he exalted and enriched by his genius, his courage and his immortal enterprise.

ENTHUSIASTIC RALLY HELD BY FORESTERS

Many Visiting Members Present at Big Observance Here Last Night.

Members of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Order of Foresters, turned out in large numbers last night to attend the rally held in the local lodge rooms. Visitors from Court Provident, Westfield; Court South Plainfield, Court Dunellen, Court Watchung and Court Union, Plainfield, were also in attendance and aided in making the event a thoroughly enjoyable one.

Past Chief Ranger James J. McCarthy, of Court Plainfield, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers of the evening with appropriate and well chosen introductory remarks. K. C. Taylor, of Elizabeth, High Chief Ranger of New Jersey, spoke on the many benefits that may be derived through affiliation with the order and discussed the fast increasing membership.

Past High Chief Ranger Arthur C. Wenzel, of Newark, spoke on "What is being done with the money we are paying into the order." He declared that since the readjustment of rates in 1913 the order had paid $7,000,000 in death claims and sick benefits. The assets of the order at present are over $42,000,000 and the accumulated funds are $24,000,000.

High Vice-Chief Ranger W. D. Baurer, of Somerville; Past High Physician Marcus Clawson, and Chief Ranger John J. Praed, of this city, and Chief Ranger J. R. Shafer, of Westfield, also made excellent addresses which were entertaining and instructive.

WEST END WILL URGE A COMMUNITY CENTRE

The question of a community center at Washington School in the West End will be discussed by members of the Public Recreation Committee at a meeting to be held tonight. The meeting will be called to order in the library building at 8 p. m. At a meeting of the West End Civic Association held last week a committee was appointed to take up the community center question, and this body will attend tonight's meeting of the recreation committee for a discussion.

HAMMOND IN THE BORO.

Ogden H. Hammond, Republican candidate for Assemblyman in Somerset county, spent yesterday mixing with the voters in the borough of North Plainfield. He was accompanied by Edward Cooper, former sheriff of the county, and the two were the most popular men in the borough for the day.

HOLY CROSS PRACTICE.

Coach Eddie Stallings, of the Holy Cross football club, has called a practice for tomorrow night to be held on the Watchung avenue field.

ELABORATE PROGRAM IS NOW SHAPING UP

Elks' Bazaar Next Week Will Be a Brilliant Spectacle With Many Features.

Reports presented last night at a meeting of the general committee promoting the Elks' bazaar indicate that the entertainment plans are now nearing completion and the preliminary details are now ready for the finishing touches by the host of workers and when the affair is opened to the public Monday night the guests will be greeted by one of the most brilliant spectacles ever held by a local fraternal order in this city. The meeting of the bazaar committee in the Watchung avenue clubhouse last night was an important one and all present were optimistic over the prospects for a banner event next week.

Carpenters have been busily engaged in erecting booths in the main auditorium for several days and it is expected that the construction work will have progressed far enough to allow the women assistants to begin decorating tomorrow night. The elaborate plans are now beginning to take form and some idea of what the result of the manifold workers' endeavor will be may be gained.

Tomorrow night a general meeting of all committees will be held in the clubhouse. The donations from members and friends of members have been numerous and varied. It now seems as though anything from a toothpick to a submarine will be offered for sale and the schemes devised by the committee to induce sales are novel in the extreme.

One of the bright spots in the auditorium will be a typical country store with all the fixin's. This booth will be draped to represent a genuine village trading center and the articles will be similar to those found in stores located in rural districts a hundred miles from nowhere.

Acceptances have been received from nearly all of the out-of-town lodges who have been invited to participate in the festivities on different nights and the assurances of large delegations have been given. It is expected that the largest number of visiting Elks will be entertained from Somerville, New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Dover, Rahway, Paterson, Irvington and Newark. It is understood that at least two local fraternal organizations are planning to be represented Saturday night, which will be designated as "Fraternal Night."

LUDERUS KNOCKS HOMER IN THE FOURTH, PUTTING PHILLIES AHEAD

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—Luderus knocked a home run over the right field bleachers in the last half of the fourth inning today putting the Philly team in the lead by a score of 3 to 2, and Neihoff counted later giving the Quakers four runs. Hooper also counted for a circuit swat in the third round. Mayer was knocked out of the box by Boston in the third inning.

Twenty thousand baseball fanatics shed their coats for the first time during the world's series this afternoon, the weather being the best during the past six days for baseball. With the scene shifted to the smaller park at Philadelphia the crowd diminished considerably, but the enthusiasm was still there and while Alexander and Foster warmed up a constant din was forthcoming from the stands.

When the Phillies romped on the field, closely followed by the Red Sox, the diamond and outfield were in excellent condition. At 1:56 the umpires came on and began scattering the photographers and players to the sidelines, preparatory to starting the melee. Grover Cleveland Alexander was then presented with a floral horseshoe amid a prolonged din from both squads of rooters.

PHILADELPHIA.	BOSTON
Stock, third base.	Hooper, right field.
Bancroft, shortstop.	Scott, shortstop.
Paskert, centre field.	Speaker, centre field.
Niehoff, second base.	Barry, second base.
Burns, catcher.	Thomas, catcher.
Mayer, pitcher.	Foster, pitcher.

The selection of Mayer and Foster for mound duty this afternoon pleased the fans who were ready to give vent to their feelings as soon as their names were announced. On the first ball pitched Hooper cracked out a scorching single and the Boston rooters went wild.

FIRST INNING.

Boston—Hooper stepped into the first ball pitched by Mayer for a single to center field. Scott also hit the first one, but he made a foozle of an attempt to bunt, and lifted to Luderus for an easy out. There was no advance. Speaker grounded to Luderus down the first base line, and by a quick pick up and throw Hooper was forced at second, Bancroft covering the bag. Hoblitzel took two strikes, and Mayer wasted a couple, hoping to catch Speaker trying to steal. The hitter spoiled the next one, which was good, by fouling it over the stand. Mayer made repeated throws to Luderus, holding Speaker close to the bag, and when he finally tried to steal he was thrown out by Burns, Bancroft making the out.

One hit, no runs, no errors.

Philadelphia—Stock began the Philadelphia attack by letting one of Foster's offerings tag him, getting first in reward. Bancroft passed up the first one, which the umpire said was good, and then fouled the next for a second strike. He singled to left field, sending Stock to second. Paskert laid one down the third base line, and beat the throw to first, filling the bases. Philadelphia rooters rose in frantic dilirium when "Castus" Cravath, home run king of the season, came up. He hit into a double play when he grounded to Foster, who threw Stock out at the plate, after which Thomas threw to first. Bancroft went to third and Paskert to second. Luderus doubled to left field, scoring Bancroft and Paskert, and the fans forgot their contempt for Cravath in their joy. Whitted had three balls in his favor before he hit at one. He ended the inning with a fly to Speaker.

Three hits, two runs, no errors.

SECOND INNING.

Boston—Hoblitzel kicked when Rigler called the first two strikes on him, but he spoiled the next two that looked half-way good by fouling them. He grounded to Luderus and was thrown out to Mayer, who covered first. Lewis had Mayer working hard, but the best he could do was to lay an easy grounder down in front of Bancroft, who threw him out to Luderus. Gardner spoiled the first one offered him by hitting it to deep center for three bases. Barry waited for one that suited him, and hit it to left field for a single which scored Gardner. Thomas also hit safely to center field. Barry taking second base. Foster, who won his own game last Saturday by getting three safeties, brought a chill of fear to Philadelphia rooters when he stepped to the plate swinging a heavy, wicked-looking club, but he flied out to Luderus.

Three hits, one run, no errors.

Philadelphia — Neihoff passively waited while Rigler called strikes on him and then missed the third one. Burns also let Foster fool him on the two first ones. He fouled the next, let two bad ones go by, and then popped to Gardner at third base. Mayer fanned for the third out.

No hits, no runs, no errors.

THIRD INNING.

Boston—Hooper hit the first homo run of the world's series when he slammed one of Mayer's fast ones into deep center field, tying the score. The count on Scott stood two and three when he flied out to Paskert for a difficult out. Mayer was pitching wild. Speaker had two balls on him when he singled to right field. Moran yanked Mayer and sent in Rixey to stop the flood of Boston bingles. Gainer went in to play first and hit for Boston in place of Hoblitzel. Rixey warmed up by throwing to first in attempts to catch Speaker. His first ball was a strike on Gainer, but he followed with two balls. Gainer hit into a double play, ending the inning, when he grounded to Neihoff, who made the out on Speaker unassisted, throwing to Luderus to catch Gainer.

Two hits, one run, no errors.

Philadelphia—Stock grounded to Gardner and was thrown out to Gainer. Bancroft flied out to Hooper in right field. Paskert singled to center field. After two balls had been called on Cravath, Paskert was thrown out trying to steal. Scott covered the bag and tagged the runner.

One hit, no runs, no errors.

FOURTH INNING.

Boston—Lewis flied out to Whitted in deep left. Gardner had three balls and two strikes on him when he took a chance on a close one, and Rigler agreed that it was a ball, letting him walk, over the protest of Rixey and Burns. Rixey continued to get the kinks out of his arm by throwing to first. Barry forced Gardner at second when he grounded to Stock, who tossed to Neihoff. Thomas flied out to Cravath in right.

No hits, no runs, no errors.

Philadelphia — Cravath worked Foster hard and had a count of three and two when he finally struck out. Luderus knocked the second home run of the game when he put one over the right field fence. Whitted pop-flied to Gardner. Neihoff singled to center field. It was his first hit of the series. Burns added to Philadelphia's cup of joy by hitting safely to right field, sending Neihoff to third base. Neihoff came home when Gardner threw wild to the plate. Burns went to second. Rixey went out, Gardner to Gainer.

Two hits, one run, one error.

NAME COMMITTEES FOR BOARD BANQUET

The proposition was submitted to the catered's committee to make a report at the next meeting.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Board of Trade the question of getting the local water company to supply water meters for each home in the borough which it serves was discussed at length. It was pointed out that there is considerable dissatisfaction about town among a vast number of boroughites who claim they pay for water that they do not use.

The method of the Board of Health in not taking any action against an unsanitary place until a written complaint is filed was also discussed and it was decided to meet with the Health Board and endeavor to get it to rescind the rule which proves very embarrassing where neighbors are concerned.

One of the members of the committee complained about a freight train drilling back and forth a half hour Friday morning and keeping the Washington and Prospect avenue crossings blocked for a full half hour. This matter will probably be taken up with the railroad officials who have always granted any reasonable request.

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

The opening of the pioneer American college for women took place fifty years ago at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. There lived in that village on the Hudson a brewer by the name of Matthew Vassar, who had so much money he did not know what to do with it. A far-seeing man, with the vision of a big public benefaction before him, the brewer gave the world Vassar College, the first to be endowed, to have its libraries, its museums and the other factors of a modern college, exclusively for women.

The academic commemoration exercises are being held at Vassar today. President-Emeritus James M. Taylor, Emily James Putnam and Lillian Wold are the speakers. Exhibitions, receptions and concerts mark the big day at Poughkeepsie. The other chief event is the inauguration of the new president, Dr. Henry Noble McCracken, which takes place tomorrow. In addition to the inaugural address, there will be addresses by Dr. George Lyman Kittredge, Professor of English at Harvard; Dr. John H. Finley, president of the University of the State of New York, and Commissioner of Education.

While Vassar is not the oldest woman's college in the United States, it was the first to be endowed and thoroughly equipped. Elizabeth Academy, in Missouri, was chartered as a college in 1819, Mississippi College gave degrees to women in 1832, and the Georgia Female College in 1840. The Ohio Wesleyan Female College was foundd in 1853 and the Wesleyan Female College, of Cincinnati, in 1842.

In the Palace of Education at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, nearly every State in the union is represented by a specialized exhibit. There are no duplications. Each State has concentrated its efforts upon the chief lesson which it had to teach the world. New York shows its system of centralized school control that is unique in America. Primary, grammar and high schools, as well as universities and professional schools, are under the direct management of a State Department of Education.

Massachusetts displays the methods and results of the State-aided vocational schools which it instituted when the discovery was made that one-third of the boys and girls over sixteen years of age were out of school and out of work. In 1911 these schools employed 251 teachers; last year the teaching force was 600.

Wisconsin has specialized in university extension work, carrying education to the people. There the teacher goes to the farmer and on his own acres shows him the better way. Oregon shows how it has lifted the rural school to a new standard. California makes an elaborate display of school architecture and shows many varieties of open-air schools, stadiums and playgrounds. Gary, Ind., shows its methods of making a wider use of the school plant. Utah demonstrates how it teaches the pupil the practical things, and many other States and sections have brought to the exposition unique features that figure in the modern education.

The big State Universities of the west are this fall more than ever before, attracting the college youths. Although every move by the New England colleges during the last three years in the way of changes in entrance requirements was made with a view to lowering the bars for the boy from the western high school to the big eastern university, the proportion of western students is dropping, and Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth and the other big New England institutions will soon be filled almost entirely by natives. The boys from the west still go east, but the number is not increasing and in many cases is decreasing, and most of them are seeking professional training.

It is so much easier for the Illinois, or Michigan, or Wisconsin high school graduate to enter his State university than it is for him to enter the New England universities, that the big western institutions are growing at an enormous rate.

The western educators continue to be in demand in the east. During the past five years not fewer than fifteen college presidents were brought to New England from the west.

TRIBUTE TO FATHER MILLER

the late Father Miller, we are gathered here this morning, to do honor to his memory and to enhance by our presence the memorial character of this eventful occasion.

"It seems eminently proper that while the nation at large greet today the great Columbus as the Christ-bearer to the West, that we are here under the shadow of this massive structure dedicated to Christian learning and culture which Father Miller was so instrumental in bringing to this vicinity and standing within the confines of St. Joseph's parish, where he gave his life's work and crowned it with that splendid temple of worship consecrated to the spreading of Christ's kingdom on earth, that stands as a lasting monument to his fruitful labors. I repeat it is most fitting and appropriate then that we, his chosen friends and people, should in view of all this, hail Father Miller as another Christ-bearer to North Plainfield and the Watchung hills.

"We need not tell you, dear people, of his life, his influence and his work among you. It has become the heritage of these picture lands of New Jersey—how this small and undeveloped field grew vigorously and yielded fruit abundantly under the salutary rays of Christ's gospel dispensed with a master-hand.

"May this spot be sacred to the affection we bear our dear departed friend and defuse the sweet fragrance of his noble life around us. He walked in true humility—he loved in simple obedience—he stood in the way of truth; he was in the fullness of the term, a meek and humble follower of the meek and humble Jesus. He loved the church, he loved God's altar. With the prophet he could cry out: 'How spacious are Thy courts, O Lord. I have loved, O Lord, the beauty of Thy house and the place where Thy glory dwelleth. How lovely are Thy tabernacles, O Lord God of Hosts. How my soul panteth and longeth to come thither.' His wish is now gratified—he is at rest, eternal light shines upon him. Yet in our charity and affection for one we loved in life we shall pray for him in death both in the still twilight of the evening and at the dawning of the day.

"With these same principles enshrined in your hearts and expressed in your outward conduct you will powerfully contribute to well being of your country and carry out ideals of its first discoverer. You will find as he found that your most faithful, steadfast and strongest aids in your onward road to progress, in the attainment of your noblest ends, will be your lively faith and unswerving loyalty to that church which inspired and supported Columbus in his discouragement to conceive and to dare the dazzling exploit which has given to us a country and a home under the Columbia's fair banner:

"Its stripes of red eternal dyed with heart-streams of all lands;
Its white, the snow-capped hills that hide in storm their upraised hands;
Its blue, the ocean waves that beat round
Freedom's circle shore;
Its stars, the print of angels feet that burn forever more."

NEW JERSEY MEN FAVOR SUFFRAGE

Make Remarkable Appeal For Votes For Women.

FORM CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Extension of Woman Suffrage Movement From One Neighboring State to Another In the West Disproves Alarmist and Reactionary Anticipations of Its Workings.

The extension of woman suffrage from one neighboring state to another in the west disproves alarmists and reactionary anticipations of its working, and shows that equal suffrage is in harmony with American institutions. The enfranchisement of more than 3,500,000 women in the western states renders a continued disenfranchisement of the women of the east increasingly anomalous, unjust and undignified. Throughout the west representative men bear witness to the benefits derived from equal suffrage, and we are unable to believe that the women of New Jersey are in any way less capable or less praiseworthy.

GEORGE M. LAMONTE,
Chairman.

A remarkable appeal to the voters to vote "Yes" on the suffrage amendment was issued from Newark today by a newly formed committee of forty, comprising leading men from all parts of the state, and, it is said, from all political parties.

This appeal, which is issued over the signatures of George M. LaMonte as chairman, Colonel George Harvey, Attorney General John W. Wescott, Judge Frederick Adams, U. S. Senator William Hughes, Congressman J. Thompson Baker and others, is remarkable in that it represents the verdict arrived at by these men after a thorough consideration of the arguments pro and con on the suffrage amendment. Their statement was issued after two private meetings and an investigation of certain anti-suffrage statements.

On the committee are, in addition to those mentioned, the Hon. Ernest R. Ackerman of Plainfield, Hon. E. G. C. Bleakeley, counsel of the city of Camden; Judge Robert Carey of Jersey City, Hon. Everett Colby of Orange, Judge James C. Connolly, Seymour Cromwell, John Cotton Dana, Judge Abe J. David, Hon. Cornelius J. Ford Ex-Governor J. Franklin Fort, Hon. William C. Gebhardt, Emerson P. Harris, Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead, Hon. Victor Mravlag, mayor of Elizabeth; Hon. George W. V. Moy, James E. Pope, Mayor Thomas L. Raymond of Newark, Linton Satterthwaite, Hon. William L. Saunders, Oberlin Smith of Bridgeton and David H. Standish.

The statement issued by this committee, of which Champlain L. Riley of Plainfield is secretary and Fillmore Condit of Essex Fells, treasurer, reads as follows:

"As American citizens we believe that popular government is the best means of insuring the welfare and happiness of the citizens of this country. The possession of the power of representation by different classes in the community tends to secure justice for all, and since we agree that women are people, we believe that they are entitled to representation equally with men.

"Women as mothers of the race, women as taxpayers, women as subject to the law, are most closely concerned with all problems of government, questions of peace and war, the cost of living and the care of the rising generation.

"The extension of woman suffrage from one neighboring state to another in the west disproves alarmist and reactionary anticipations of its working and shows that equal suffrage is in harmony with American institutions. The enfranchisement of more than 3,500,000 women in the western states renders the continued disfranchisement of the women of the east increasingly anomalous, unjust and undignified. Throughout the west representative men bear witness to the benefits derived from equal suffrage, and we are unable to believe that the women of New Jersey are in any way less capable or less praiseworthy.

"The evidence from the states in which women have voted goes to prove that with the possession of the ballot women are more fairly treated under the law, the working woman is better protected and social and moral improvement is accelerated.

"We believe that the men of New Jersey are prepared to show their belief in their women as fully as the men of the western states have been, and we appeal to our fellow voters to express this confidence by voting in the affirmative on Oct. 19.

"It is no longer denied that woman suffrage will shortly be established throughout the United States, and as New Jersey men we are anxious that our state should be the first in the east to raise the political status of its women."

Banking Commissioner LaMonte, when seen today, said that the committee was a campaign organization formed by the New Jersey Men's League For Woman Suffrage. The committee, he said, was prepared to make substantial contributions to the closing phases of the campaign, but was not yet prepared to divulge its plans.

LEADING ECONOMIST STRONG ADVOCATE OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

New York.—Henry R. Seager, professor of economics in the University of Columbia and president of the American Association For Labor Legislation, has come out strongly for suffrage.

In a letter to Miss Eva Ward of the New Jersey suffrage press committee he says:

"Women are being forced into industrial life in large and increasing numbers. They face the same hardships and disadvantages that men face. It is unreasonable and unjust to bar them longer from participation in political activities. This is all the more true because the things which government undertakes are increasingly things with which women are even more concerned than men. Education, sanitation, public transportation, are all questions which know no sex line. Those women who wish to vote should be allowed to at once; those who do not wish to should be educated up to the point of desiring to take their share of this as of other portions of the common lot.

"I believe that, entirely aside from any good that women may be able to do the body politic, they need the larger concern for our common interests that full participation in political life carries with it. To argue the matter, as many do, as though women still lived the cloistered, protected life that they were once supposed to is to ignore obvious aspects of the present situation."

NO ESCAPE FOR COMMUTERS.

New Jersey commuters are caught both coming and going by the suffragists. On the Jersey side Jersey women are industriously pursuing Mr. Voter. On the New York side New York women have organized the "New Jersey Next" to catch the men on the New York side as they take the ferry and tube for their New Jersey homes.

The committee is also sending six organizers into the New Jersey field and has a group of volunteer workers, including Mr. Edward S. Van Zile, who speaks at evening meetings, and Mrs. Frabasilis (the Countess Castelevechio) and Mr. Canudo, who speak Italian.

The committee consists of Mrs. Henry Bruere, wife of the New York city chamberlain, chairman; Mrs. Robert Adamson, vice chairman; Mrs. Helen Hoy Greeley, secretary; Miss Jessie Ashley, treasurer, and Mrs. John Dewey, Mrs. Rheta Childe Dorr, Mrs. Emanuel Einstein and Miss Bessie F. G. Brainard. All the money for the work of the committee has been raised in New York. California and Oregon women suffragists, in appreciation of the work done in those states by Mrs. Greeley, have contributed a car for the work of the committee.

FACTS TO SHOW "AREA DOES VOTE"

Powerful Illustration In the United States Senate.

ALSO IN THE CONSTITUTION

Misleading Leaflet Conveys Impression That When Population Is Spread Out Over Large Areas It Loses Its Moral and Political Value—Common Impression Just the Opposite.

The anti-suffragists ask, "Does area vote?" The Rev. Clarence Hall Wilson, writing in the Montclair Times, answers their question in the affirmative:

"There has come into my hand a little leaflet put forth by the Montclair branch, New Jersey Association Opposed to Women Suffrage, entitled 'Area Does Not Vote.' There are some inaccuracies of statement and some fallacies in reasoning in this leaflet which call for correction.

"To begin with, the title is a misstatement. Area does vote. It votes in the United States senate. In the house of representatives population votes; in the senate areas vote. Each state has its two votes in the senate, no matter what its population.

"Area also votes on all amendments to the constitution, as it did in the original acceptance and adoption of the constitution. In order that an amendment shall become a part of the constitution it must be approved by three-fourths of the states without any regard whatever to the population of the states so approving. Upon some supremely important occasions it will be observed that area does vote.

"Now, I will quote a paragraph from the leaflet: 'The combined population of the suffrage states and Alaska is 13,892,416. The population of continental United States, including Alaska, is 91,972,266. This makes the suffrage vote 14.79 per cent—hardly half. Taking the congressional representation, 68 of 436 from the same area, the result is the same, 15 per cent—hardly half. Certainly in no organization does the vote of 15 per cent of its members carry any measure.' This is astounding! President Wilson was elected by a popular vote of 6,298,857, less than half the population of the suffrage states.

"The leaflet conveys the curious impression that when population is spread out over large areas it loses its moral and political value. Now the common impression has been quite the opposite. We have generally supposed that the farmer vote was less corruptible than the vote of the congested city slum. Is there any reason why the 2,000,000 people in California should not know what they are about quite as well as the 2,000,000 people in New Jersey? Does the fact that they occupy more ground constitute such a reason?

"At the end of the leaflet comes an astonishing statement. There are admitted to be some 40,000 members of suffrage organizations in New Jersey. There are in New Jersey 1,250,704 women. This makes our suffrage friends number about 3 per cent of the women of our commonwealth.

"Ye gods and little fishes, what a non sequitur! How many women are there in the anti organizations? It never occurred to me to want to know any such inconsequential thing as that. But will the author of the leaflet accept the enrollment of the anti societies as the total number of women in New Jersey opposed to suffrage? I trow not. Nobody knows how many of the women of New Jersey want the ballot. There is at present no way of finding out. The number of women who want it has nothing whatever to do with the case. Areas do vote, but women don't. We treat the areas with respect in our system of government; we treat the women with contempt. Some of the women seem to like it, but I don't. And, you see, I will have something to say about this matter, for I am a man.

3 WOMEN IN AUTO THAT RUNS AWAY

Narrowly Escape Injury in Accident Near Bound Brook.

A group of New Brunswick women had a narrow escape from death south of Bound Brook last night when the machine in which they were sitting started on a steep hill without a driver at the steering wheel and ran into a deep ditch.

The names of the women was not known at Balmer's garage, in Bound Brook, where a call for help was sent. Two men accompanied them in the automobile. They stopped the car on Malliet's hill, and after putting on the emergency brake, the men left the car for a few minutes. In some manner the brake slipped and the car started to run down the inclined roadway. The three women on the rear seat were helpless, but fortunately the automobile ran into a ditch without turning turtle and no one was injured.

The machine was not badly damaged. It was left at Balmer's garage and was ready for its owners at noon yesterday, but they had not called for it at that time.

A passing machine took the people to their home in Millstone where medical aid was secured.

THE LUNATIC.

Precisely what the trouble was eluded them at first.
His costume was conventional; he seemed to be well-versed
In all topics of the day, and in didactic speech
Announced his views as tho' he were the stonelet of the beach.

In base-ball and hand-ball and in football and croquet
He pointed out just what was what in no uncertain way.
Discussing the hounds he laid great stress on proper togs
With eloquence dilated on the breeds of fancy dogs.

Bicycling and lawn tennis and the roped arena's lore
Came tripping from his tongue until his tongue would wag no more;
But when it came to yachting and to rowing and to polo,
He bobbed up quite serenely and resumed at once his solo.

But as they listened, breathless, for the climax—quick it came!
He'd never heard of Vardon and he quite despised the game!

BRAIN CONGESTION CAUSED HER DEATH

Autopsy Fails to Show Mrs. McCaffrey's Demise Was Due to Poisoning.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret McCaffrey, the local woman who was found dead in the Hotel Irvington, New York city, Sunday morning under suspicious circumstances, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, of 1 Halsey street. The body was brought to this city last night, following its detention in a New York morgue where an autopsy was performed by Coroner Riordan. The doctor's certificate gives as the cause of death, congestion of the brain.

As yet, no verdict has been given out by the New York city authorities, and Frederick Barker, the companion of the dead woman, who registered at the hostelry with her Saturday, is still held on a charge of homicide. In his valise were found a number of packets of chloride of potassium, which he said he had purchased for his son, a pupil in the Plainfield High School, who was interested in experimental work. This has been proven false, however. Barker has a wife and three children living at Yonkers, N. Y., and since his arrival in Plainfield has been making his home at 1333 West Fourth street. Mrs. McCaffrey leaves two children.

GETS SIX MONTHS IN COUNTY JAIL

William Banks, of This City, Pays Severe Penalty for "Joy-Riding."

His liking for "joy-riding" resulted disastrously for William Banks, colored, of this city, in Mt. Holly Monday, and today he is serving a six months' term in the Burlington county jail, imposed upon him by Recorder Herbert. Panks, who is employed as chauffeur by Peter Walsh, a foreman for the local contracting firm of Burke and Bonham, which is building a county road near Medford, was arrested for taking an automobile owned by his employer out without permission.

His joy-ride took him through the town of Medford and he narrowly missed hitting a number of pedestrians by his reckless driving. The police alleged at the trial that Banks was intoxicated.

Banks formerly was a chauffeur driving a taxi at the North avenue depot and has a local police record. On April 4, 1910, he was held in $500 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of driving a machine while intoxicated and on March 29, 1913, he was arrested for driving recklessly and drew a suspended sentence. His last arrest here was on June 7, 1913, when he was held in $500 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of taking out his employer's car without permission.

NOTT AUTO FIRE ENGINE ATTACHED

Robert Woodhouse, Former Agent, Seeks to Recover Alleged Expenses.

Constable Alexander Ayers, representing the Elizabeth District Court, yesterday attached an automobile chemical engine owned by the Nott Fire Engine Company, of Minneapolis, which has been stored for some time in the garage of Robert Woodhouse on East Seventh street. The attachment was made to satisfy claims for salary, expenses and commission which Mr. Woodhouse, who was formerly employed by the Nott Company as its eastern representative, alleges is due him.

The machine in question was brought here last spring when the Common Council was considering the purchase of such a piece of equipment for the West End fire house. Mr. Woodhouse had it in Plainfield for demonstration purposes and intended to keep it here pending the decision of the city council.

SOMERSET HAS NO MONEY FOR CONDUIT

Request of Citizens for Road Repair is Turned Down.

Somerville, Oct. 13.—The Somerset County Board of Freeholders yesterday refused to authorize an expenditure for the building of a conduit on East Culver street, explaining that it did not have sufficient funds to do the work. Mayor William V. Steele, Joseph Barras and L. A. Bellis appeared before the board of behalf of citizens to ask for the improvement.

A delegation of South Somerville, Belle Meade and other citizens who live south of the Raritan river asked that the roadway from Cemetery hill to the John Frazee farm be raised, and the river bridge widened so that the river would not overflow the roadway during storm periods. Engineer Doughty was instructed to prepare plans for this work.

Engineer Doughty reported that a survey had been completed for the overhead road at Neshanic, which is to eliminate a dangerous crossing on the south branch of the C. R. R. of N. J.

A request from Superintendent of Weights and Measures Gallagher that he be permitted to purchase a 300 pound spring was granted.

REV. DEAN O'NEILL IS HONORED GUEST

Gov. Fielder and Senator Martine Pay Tribute to Elizabeth Priest.

Nearly 800 parishioners and friends, including Governor James F. Fielder and other prominent guests from all parts of the State, paid tribute last night to Rev. Dean Francis O'Neill, rector of St. Mary's church, Elizabeth, who completed fifty years of priesthood this week. The testimonial was in the form of a banquet, which was given in the Second New Jersey Infantry, N. G. N. J., armory in Elizabeth.

The speakers, in addition to the Governor, were Rev. Monsignor Isaac P. Whelan, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark; United States Senator James E. Martine, former Senator James Smith, Jr., Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin, former Governor Foster M. Voorhees and Postmaster Patrick J. Ryan. General Dennis F. Collins acted as toastmaster. Men prominent in all walks of life were present, while the diners numbered as many women as men.

In part Senator Martine said: "This is a glorious land which has many opportunities. Here we can practice religion to suit ourselves. We are blessed with liberty. We are blessed with people of all nationalities, we are blessed with a great and glorious President, and much credit is due President Wilson for what he has accomplished and what he is striving to do for this country.

"Some years ago I had the pleasure of meeting Rev. Dean O'Neill at the home of the late John Gilmary Shea, that noble historian. This meeting tonight is not a gathering of Catholics but a session attended by people of all religious beliefs. They come to pay a tribute to Dean O'Neill, the man. The work of the Catholic church has elevated humanity and its splendid efforts along educational lines are only too well known. I sincerely hope and trust, Dean O'Neill, that God will spare you many years more to continue the work you have so faithfully performed during the terms of fifty years as a priest and as a laborer among men."

KANSAS IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

Garden City, Kas., Oct. 13.—The Garden City methods of irrigation will form the keynote of the fourth annual Kansas Irrigation Congress, which opened here today. Garden City was the pioneer in irrigation in this section of the country. In 1880 ditches were constructed from the Arkansas river, but this method was abandoned during the following years of good rainfall. When irrigation again became necessary, it was found that Colorado had most of the available supply of river water. In 1896 centrifugal pumps were installed near this city for the furnishing of irrigation water. Federal and State experts are joining in the discussion of irrigating the western Kansas district. H. B. Walker, State irrigation engineer, is secretary of the congress.

MISSIONARY TELLS OF PERSIA'S PLIGHT

Dr. Shedd Describes the Conditions as the Russians and Turks Overrun the Land.

About one hundred persons gathered in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon and listened to an address on Persia by Rev. Dr. William A. Shedd, of Urumia, who recently returned from the missionary field in that part of Asia, where for the past year or so the Russian and Turkish armies have contended for supremacy in the northern part of Persia, devastating the country and spreading disaster and distress on all sides.

Dr. Shedd stated that it was somewhat unusual for a missionary to leave his field during the troublous times that northern Persia is now experiencing, but he was practically compelled to come to America on account of his children, but he hopes to soon be able to return to his field of duty.

In detail the speaker told of the strenuous times experienced in northern Persia when the Russian armies were withdrawn last year and the entire region was left to the tender mercies of the Kurds and Turkish troops. He told how the Presbyterian mission at Urumia sheltered about 17,000 refugees from the country round about who fled to that institution for protection from the Kurds. He said that the greatest danger was not from without but from disease within. Measles, typhoid, typhus and other diseases common in such crowded places was the most difficult foe to combat.

He declared that there was a great work to be done in this part of Asia and that America was the logical nation to handle the work. This was not due to geographical position, but because that even in this far-off and benighted land, the American flag is recognized as an emblem of integrity, peace and justice. This enables the missionaries from the United States to work with more freedom and success than those from other nations, where the taint of possible selfish political interests and ambitions often hamper the missionaries from those countries in their efforts.

Dr. Shedd told in detail of the sufferings of the inhabitants during the incursions of the Kurds from the mountains and of the earnest efforts of the missionaries to alleviate the conditions. The chief requisite to carrying on the work there successfully was more funds. He said that the mission had gained the confidence of the entire population and could easily borrow, but ready cash was needed rather than credit. Dr. Shedd expects to remain in the United States for a short time and then return to Persia.

TEACH AIR FIGHTING TO U. S. MILITIAMEN

War Department Can Take Small Number in San Diego School.

Military officers in all States of this country who desire training in air fighting may secure a free term in the United States military aviation school at San Diego, Cal., according to an announcement recently made by Secretary Garrison, of the war department.

This is considered by militia officers as an important move in preparing America for defense. Recently the Aero Club of America took up the work of interesting militiamen in aviation so as to have a trained corps of aviators for war service in case they should be needed. The United States has only a small number of aerial fighters, and the squad would be sadly inadequate in case of real war. Sixteen States have become interested in the work and some of them have provided schools for their militiamen, but it is desired by the Aero Club that the training be in uniform and the announcement of Secretary Garrison is a realization of what its members have been working for.

Only a limited sum is available for the training of the militia officers at the San Diego school, and only a small number of machines are in use there, but applications for enrollment can be filed at any time, through heads of the various State organizations, and will be considered in the order in which they are filed. Those admitted to the school are allowed mileage, subsistence, and quarters, but are not paid a salary while training.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Joe Wood's Big Musical Revue, with twenty-three people, mostly girls, will again be seen at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and tonight, concluding a highly successful engagement. This act met with instant approval and the big audiences Monday and yesterday called for encores after every number. The principles of the cast are all good and the impersonations of well known stage people made a big hit. Be sure and visit the theatre at today's matinee or tonight's performances at 7:30 and 9 o'clock, if you want to see the best thing local vaudeville has ever produced.

Master Buddy Pagluccia, the local juvenile song and dance artist, was second in favor on the bill since his first appearance Monday and is making good with every crowd since. This youngster is a comer in the variety field and goes on the Will Fox circuit from this city for a booking of eight weeks. This is one of the last opportunities of seeing him in his home town before taking to the road. The Reva Lawson troop of acrobats and equilibrists are also a strong feature on the bill.

An entire change of program will take place tomorrow afternoon for the last half of the week, bringing six of the best acts booked from the New York agencies. Feature pictures on every program, no expense being spared to give the patrons of the Plainfield Theatre exactly what they want in the way of photo-plays.

TROOP 5 WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Wolf Patrol Awarded High Honors in Boy Scouts' Annual Field Day.

M'KAY GETS TROPHY

Scores Greatest Number of Points for His Patrol—Walter S. Marder Also Wins Cup—Detailed Program With Awards to Scouts.

With 247 uniformed boy scouts in line and more than a thousand spectators filling every available seat on the grandstand and bleachers at Parker Field, yesterday afternoon, the third annual championship scout patrol competition for the Paul R. Collier pennant took place. The award of the judges, Mayor Leighton Calkins, George P. Mellick, president of the Plainfield Playground Commission; Walter W. Price, president of the Boy Scout Council of Staten Island, and Edward Harding, of Fanwood, all unacquainted with troops, patrols or individual scouts, placed the championship pennant again in the hands of Troop 5, of the First Presbyterian church, John Richards scoutmaster, but instead of Engineers Patrol holding it this year, it will be in the keeping of Wolf Patrol, former champions, but now led by Harold McKay.

Other awards were: Harold McKay, for the Paul R. Collier individual efficiency cup, given to the scout making the greatest number of points for his patrol, cup to be the personal property of the winner. Walter S. Marder, of Troop 11, Grace Episcopal church, won the competition cup for making fire without matches won last year by Eagle Scout Charles E. Rice. The winner of the first aid pennant given by Dr. H. D. Corbusier to the patrol making the best demonstration of bandaging and general first aid work for two consecutive years was awarded to Red Cross Patrol, Troop 5, Eagle Scout Fitzgerald leader, by a jury consisting of Dr. N. W. Currie, W. B. Gray, of the Muhlenberg Hospital staff, and Dr. R. G. Savoye, of Westfield. The Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen prize of five dollars worth of scout equipment was won by Harvey Keiderling, of Troop 11, who demonstrated upon a Hide Shetland pony, first aid to animals. The Schwed Brothers prize pennant to the out of town troop making the best demonstration was awarded by a rising vote of the audience to the Blind Boy Scout troop of the New York Institution for the Blind, E. V. Long necker, scoutmaster. These boys rendered musical solos, built pyramids, three men tall, and gave exhibitions of alertness and quick action in scout work. The judges awarded the ten points for the best troop surprise as showing excellence in scout training to Troop 11, which presented a full operating wireless equipment, complete with key, tent and signal tower and areal. The Staten Island scouts gave an exhibition drill that won much applause.

Other surprises offered, all of which received special attention and much applause from the audience was a portable tower forty feet high by Troop 5; a combination trek cart barrier and signal tower by Troop 8; a working model of a hose cart after the pattern of the old Alert hose cart of this city, which, through the courtesy of Chief Doane, of the fire department, and a member of the Boy Scout Council, was connected with the city fire hydrant and actually played water upon an imaginary fire and a drill that won the hearty applause of the entire audience by Troop 14, of the First Baptist church, Ernest K. Powlison, scoutmaster. Troop 5 was represented in this event by two patrols, Wolf, led by Harold McKay, and Red Cross, led by Eagle Scout.

The scoring made by the patrols making the 100 possible points were reported by the judges as follows:

Wolf Patrol, Troop 5, 50; Standard Patrol, Troop 11, 30; Eagle Patrol, 12, 15; Red Cross Patrol, Troop 5, 5. The troop totals were, No. 5, 55; No. 11, 30; No. 12, 15.

The winners of the various events were as follows:

The points awarded to the patrol making the best appearance in line went to Standard, of Troop 11. Wolf Patrol took the points in the barrier climb. Time, 45 seconds. Bob White Patrol, of Troop 9, Caryl Dunavan, leader, was second, time, 50 seconds. Rope casting was won by Wolf Patrol, Troop 5; Standard Patrol, Troop 11, second. Knot tying, Wolf Patrol, Troop 5, first; Bob White Patrol, Troop 9, second. Water boiling, Scout Peterson, Troop 12, of Hope chapel, W. F. Richards, scoutmaster, first; Scout Caryl Dunavan, Troop 9, second. Time, 11 minutes, 52 seconds. Fire without matches, Walter S. Marder, Jr., Troop 11. Time, 1 minute and 42 seconds. Tower and pyramid building, Wolf Patrol, Troop 5. Time, 11 seconds. Semaphore signalling, Wolf Patrol, Troop 5. Fireman's carrying, Scout Peterson, Troop 12. Time, 28 seconds. First aid, Red Cross Patrol, Troop 5. First aid to animals, Harvey Kiederling, Troop 11. Trek cart drill, Wolf Patrol, Troop 5. Time, 32 seconds. Scout pace, Howard Allegar, Wolf Patrol, Troop 5. The final event, a horse and rider race, was declared off on account of darkness.

The appearance of the blind scouts in the day's program was the occasion of great interest. All along the line of march there was repeated applause for the boys who, though sightless, not only led the procession as guests of Troop 14, of the First Baptist church, guided by Scout Benjamin Satterfield, of Champion Troop 5, but rendered marching music and played marching bugle calls accompanied by their fifes and drums. The reception accorded these boys as they led the line of march into Parker Field, to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia," was stirring and the applause was generous.

Another stirring event at the field was the massing of the colors. All the thirty American flags and the sixty-two troop and patrol flags in the line were grouped in a circle in front of the grandstand and as the blind boy scouts played the national hymn, "America," the great audience arose, the men uncovering, and joined in singing the first verse while the colors were dipped, scouts stood at attention and uncovered. The voices of almost two thousand persons floating over the field and re-echoing on the hills to the east of the field was a feature not to be forgotten by those who were there.

There was still another pleasure for the audience not down on the program. It was an address by President Price, of the Staten Island Council, and guest of honor of the Plainfield Boy Scouts. In this address he said:

"What I have seen here today is marvelous. I do not intend to inflict upon you a long address, but I do want to say to these boys and to those of you who have come to be their audience, that you are witnessing here today something of manhood in the making.

"This terrible war that is going on in Europe, fearful as it is, at least shows a great moral lesson; namely how far men will go in extreme efforts. There is nothing else that would prompt these hordes of Russians, those sturdy Germans, those mighty Allies to give up their homes and their families and possibly their lives for an ideal. Here we find a different sort of an ideal. These boys, the showing you what sort of an ideal they want to live up to and by their demonstrations here this afternoon, they ask you, the people of Plainfield, to help them, they're your boys and your neighbor's boys, our own future citizens, to help them help themselves by giving them your generous support.

"These boys by their very training are striving for better manhood in the future and with your help they can become, aye, they want to become, the kind of citizens that you and your children can be proud of.

"We as Americans say that we are proud of our country, but I wonder what it is then, that makes the thoughtless to cast aspersions upon some of our precious institutions and to belittle our national blessings. In this day of many isms it is a very important matter for us not to permit the rising generation to have anything but the greatest possible love for this great country of ours. We want these and the great number of scouts the country over to have an increasing reverence for this country and this work that you have witnessed here today is a part of that which is being done in every town and hamlet in the United States to bring out boys to the pinnacle of national pride and patriotism.

"Just so sure as light follows the darkness, if you give your loyal support to the work being done for the development of your own boys into loyal citizens full of civic pride and national respect you are building up a patriotism in the hearts and minds of these and the hundreds of thousands of other boy scouts, the sort of a citizenry that when we bare our faces to the sky and sing, as we did a short while ago, 'God Bless Our Land,' we can turn our faces heavenward with a clear conscience that we can heartily endorse the words we sing."

The field day and parade program was in charge of this committee: Paul R. Collier, chairman; First Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl, Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, and Scoutmasters John Richards, of Troop 5; Joseph A. Garner, Troop 7; H. Douglas Davis, Troop 8; Frederick A. Martin, Troop 9; William R. Kriney and A. Russell Doeringer, Troop 10; Raymond Manley, Troop 11; W. F. Richards, Troop 12; Frank R. Kellogg, Troop 13; Ernest K. Powlison, Troop 14; Cedric Ostrom, Benjamin Harris and Paul Westergard, Troops 15 and 16, and P. L. Minturn, Troop 17. The official timers were members of this committee and W. G. Wriston, supervisor of athletics of the Plainfield High School, was in charge of the gate receipts.

Dr. George T. Moore, secretary of the scout movement here, announced yesterday that $25 more had been received toward defraying the cost of the summer boy scout camp which will be open for inspection Sunday afternoon between 2 and 5 o'clock. These contributions were from George H. Frost, $20, and Walter H. P. Veysey, $5. The scout building is on Terrill road, south of East Seventh street, and opposite the home of Councilman Louis H. Hosner, of the Boy Scout Council.

DONATIONS WANTED.

CHILDREN AND RAILROADS.

Between February 1st and August 1st of this year forty-five people, the oldest of them nineteen years of age, were killed or injured by trains on the right of way of a single railroad passing through New Jersey.

This alarming statement comes from officials of the road itself, and they mourn the numerous accidents to children even more perhaps than the general public. While in many of the cases railroad employees were not entirely blameless, yet every one of the accidents could have been prevented by a very small amount of precautionary instruction upon the part of those who are responsible for the bringing up of the children.

Keep your children off railroad rights of way. Some of them, perhaps are forced to use grade crossings, to and from school, work or play, but it is significant to note that none of the accidents mentioned above occurred at grade crossings.

As for the children who do not have to cross the railroad tracks, the fascination of the railroad is apt to draw them. Bottled up as they are all day in school, they grasp at the adventurous railway as an antidote for the monotonous hours of school; and as a playground it is astonishing how alluring the railroad is to a small boy. The fascination which makes his father pause and watch some fast train go by, although he has seen it daily for years, seems multiplied a dozen-fold in the younger generation. The railroad yard is to him the ideal playground. It is fine to climb up on the cars, race about over the tracks and hop on and off moving trains. The railroad employe who warns him and orders him away is a "spoil-sport," only to be defied.

The hundreds of boys killed annually because they have made the yard a playground, and the hundreds more who are maimed for life, should bring everybody in authority over children to a realization of what risks they are running. Far more dangerous than the swimming hole or the skating rink is the railroad yard, and this is a lesson every mother and every school teacher should learn.

But even more pathetic than the accidents to the two classes of youthful trespassers noted above, are those which frequently occur to children who gather coal on the railroad. The boys climb on a moving train, kick off the coal and pick it up after the train has passed. The frequent hasty retreat before a trainman, or a slip of the foot in alighting, has too often resulted in the loss of a limb, or even a life—a heavy price to pay for a few lumps of coal.

The railroads are necessary to this and to every community; without them we would be a hundred years behind the times. But no one wants to see a number of maimed and crippled children grow up into inefficient men and women, an awful by-product of that great civilization builder, the railroad.

As the first step towards a campaign to prevent the railroad cripple, we suggest that every school superintendent call his school children together and lecture them upon this subject, and that every mother second his efforts at home.

VOTE FOR THREE.

Remember there are three amendments to be voted for in the election of next week.

We feel that the question of woman suffrage is squarely before the people. Every reason has been given why decent men should vote to give their mothers, wives and daughters the right to representation in government that vitally concerns them. Perhaps there are some who are not yet convinced, who have not decided how to vote. If so they should not permit their indecision on the suffrage question to keep them away from the polls, for two other important questions are to be decided and every vote may be needed.

The second amendment proposes to make it easier to change the constitution, which at present can be done but once in five years. If adopted, it will be possible to submit amendments every year after they have been approved by two successive Legislatures; excepting that "when any amendment has been submitted to the people and by them rejected, no similar amendment shall be submitted again within five years from such rejection."

In demanding a constitutional convention every three or four years politicians in Essex and Hudson counties insist that it is needed because of difficulties in changing the present basic law through amendments submitted only once in each five years. This is but a pretense and the purpose of the political tricksters is to force a state convention made up of delegates selected from counties according to the population which they could easily control. There is no need of a new constitution in New Jersey. If the second amendment to be voted on next Tuesday is passed, any changes that are needed can be made by the people, without the aid of the politicians, and can be made without performing intricate legal contortions.

By the third amendment proposed it is intended to permit municipalities, in laying out parks, streets or public places, and in making improvements that will increase property values, to get some of the benefits of the increased values. At present all of the benefits go to speculators.

Vote for all three amendments.

There can be no doubt but that another presidential election is at hand. Our Republican friends have begun to meet weekly and orate at length on the wickedness of the Democrat who robs the working man of half his dinner pail through political errors.

After everything has been said on the other side remember that when you go to a movie you don't have to listen to a Herculean hero defy the villian in a "lady-like" voice.

Now that a shortage of 38,000,000 bushels has been reported in the potato crop, perhaps the boarding houses will begin to put meat or something else in hash.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Photographs of the different scenes of the recent Grand Army encampment at Washington show the activities of the Boy Scouts. They are seen everywhere rendering aid and service to the veterans who are weakened by age, disease and the wounds of battle. The number of Boy Scout organizations in this country is increasing rapidly. If these red-blooded men of this country's tomorrow can be held up to anything near the ideals set for them in the creed to which they subscribe and the rules of manliness they are asked to follow it ought to mean much to the nation. They should render better and loftier service in the life and government of the country than rendered by the generation now in control of its affairs.—Elizabeth Journal.

His Handicap

My son is not obedient, as I was in my youth.
Perhaps there is a reason—through heredity or such.
His father's not as wise as mine (I'm sticking to the truth),
Which ought to make me kind to him, nor censure him too much.

The old-time youth said "Yes, sir," when a parent spoke to him.
His father was the real thing, although perhaps a rube.
The old-time boy who sassed his dad must face an ordeal grim—
The modern youth of tender years says, "What the heck, you boob?"

But do I fret because my son is chummier with me?
Nay, nary fret! I'd rather have his comradeship and love
Than have him bow the humble head
so long as I could see,
And then make snoots, as is the case with "iron hand in glove."

Guarantees

Some guarantees mean something.
But those are the exception.
Did you ever get a guarantee on a rubber tire casing?
If so, and if your experience was not unique, you found out how much a "scrap of paper" may not be worth.
The average "guarantee of 3,500 miles" on a tire means that the company earnestly assures you, at no personal risk whatever, that that tire will go 3,500 miles if it will.
Interesting, isn't it!
As a piece of humor it is superb.
As a piece of business it is a flimsy flivver, a blawsted bloomer, a bally bunk, etc.
Recently we had a tire nearly as good as a piece of tissue paper.
It ran nearly two thousand miles, and then blew up and out with a long, shrieking cry of pain.
We were told everywhere that the way to get satisfaction was to take it to the agent for that brand of tire, and "get an adjustment."
We fell for this.
The agent looked over our tire; heard the statement as to what distance it had run, and then asked blandly what we wanted him to do.
We told him we had been informed that an adjustment could be had.
"No," he said, "it can't. There is nothing but natural wear there, and we guarantee against nothing except defects in tires."
Could you ever get an agent to admit there had been a defect?
We learned since, from a wiser and wickeder person, what we should have done. We should not have told the truth about it. Had we told him it had gone five hundred miles, he would have made an adjustment.
"Blessed is he that telleth the truth to a tire agent, for verily he shall be stung."

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Come Take A Walk

SOME very modern, unconventional medical person has perfected—you have to use that word perfected in speaking of any new remedy or treatment—a sure cure for senility. Senility is the medical name for old age. Old age is a matter of hardening of the arteries. It seems that hardening of the arteries and the high blood pressure that serves as a signal of its onset is curable if taken in time.

Old age is primarily a state of mind, but we need not go into the psychology of senility here. The point of this present discourse is that there is no need of people rushing into invalidism so soon after forty, as many do. The increasing death rate in those over forty is unnecessary. Arterio-sclerosis and its three modes of expression—heart disease, Bright's disease and apoplexy—may be summed up in one word, intoxication.

There are different kinds of intoxication which wear out the arteries. First, infections of acute or chronic type; second, poisons deliberately or ignorantly taken into the blood, such as alcohol, tobacco, lead and, in rare instances, tea, coffee or cocoa; and last and most important of all, self-made poisons, auto-intoxication, over-eating.

Auto-intoxication does not presuppose that the victim owns an automobile, but it does mean that he lives fast. It is evidence that he consumes more food than his system can metabolize or burn up or utilize. It shows that his appetite is a few sizes too big for his occupation and habit of life. Auto-intoxication, the chief factor of hardened arteries, happens to the person who doesn't get enough open-air exercise.

The sure cure referred to is this: Take two miles of oxygen three times a day.

Walking is ideal exercise for every one. It is a natural activator of metabolism. It increases the oxygenation of the blood, puts the "pep" into you, improves the tone of the heart, enlivens elimination as no drug or bath can do it, burns up toxic waste material, relieves the load on the overburdened ductless glands, takes the growl out of the alimentary canal and is a good cure for liver disorders. Two miles of oxygen is a cheaper and better medicine than Russian oil or German synthetics. It restores the gleam of health to your eye and the grin of confidence to your map. It is a bad thing for the automobile business and the street-car company, but it certainly makes the doctors worry.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

To Stop A Dreaming

Will you please advise me how I can stop a dreaming? I dream six to a dozen dreams every night. I often wake in an almost exhausted state. I am a school teacher.

Answer—Read the sermon above. Join a gym class or take physical culture at home. Buy Dr. Anna Galbraith's "Physical Training and Personal Hygiene for Women" (W. B. Saunders Company, Philadelphia, Pa.), and follow out the system of training outlined in the book.

Aphasia—The Mystery

Is it possible, inquires a story writer, for one stricken with aphasia to forget his own name, his language, and everything that would serve to identify him?

Answer—All but the language, yes, and it occurs often enough. Amnesia is the name for it. We doubt if the language would be forgotten—that is, if speech remained.

THE SLEEPING CAR

THE sleeping car is one of the greatest of American inventions. It enables the corporations to work us while we sleep.

The sleeping car is filled with beautiful plush seats which are made more uncomfortable at night by being turned into berths. There are ordinarily twenty berths and each berth will hold one and three-fifths persons and a peck of cinders. The berths are divided into upper and lower berths respectively. The lower berths were much more popular because of their proximity to the floor until the Interstate Commerce Commission lowered the rates on the uppers, after which it was discovered that the long, hard climb to the upper berth is very beneficial and assists in producing sleep.

To utilize a sleeping car you must pay about $2 a night. Seventy-five cents of this is for the use of the car, the blankets and the pillows, and the rest is for the use of the beautiful wood carving and inlaying with which the car is decorated. If you have rented a lower berth, you will find on the inside a small hammock large enough to hold a No. 4 shoe on an A last. Into this you may place your clothes, your overcoat, your hat and your valise, reserving your pocket handkerchief for additional bed covering. If you rent an upper berth, you must ascend by means of a ladder. Climbing to the top of this, you take hold of the curtain rail with one hand and the outer ring of Saturn by the other and draw yourself up until you can clasp one leg about the berth chain next to the wall. You then retreat gradually into the berth sideways, after which the porter takes away your shoes in order to have evidence against you in the morning when he calls for his tip.

Rules of etiquette require passengers to dress in the berths of a sleeping car instead of in the aisles. As a result of this, American contortionists now lead the world.

"Rules of etiquette require passengers to dress in the berths"

Women often travel in sleeping cars but the company doesn't encourage the practice. It has made the women's toilet room so small that only one woman at a time can occupy it, and if two women are in a car one of them has to get up at three o'clock in order to give both a chance to dress before breakfast.

Sleeping cars are now so numerous that the company finds great difficulty in finding names for them. It has exhausted the names of countries, cities and operas, but if it will now start in on the names which passengers have called sleeping cars, it will be amply provided for all time to come.

Views Of The Press

Competition Will Follow

MR. ROBERT GRIMSHAW, consulting engineer and lecturer of the New York University, has said that the American manufacturer is not going to have it all his own way after the European War is over, as some seem to think, but that competition of a most formidable nature will follow quickly after the war as a double necessity—as a means of supplying work for the idle and supplying articles to meet demand. In view of this certain fact Mr. Grimshaw says the American manufacturer will do well to begin figuring upon ways to reduce the cost of production. Mr. Grimshaw is an American citizen, but is familiar with conditions in Germany, having recently returned from that country.

The gentleman says that when the war is over there will be over two million men turned loose in the country and that they will be without employment. They will see factories in which they formerly worked closed and gone out of business. They will find women and children doing work in other factories that it has heretofore been deemed impossible for women and children to perform. So the men will be driven to seek employment at, say 50 cents a day—and for long hours even at that rate. The American manufacturers must compete with this cheap labor.

Mr. Grimshaw says further that many German factories are now making commodities for which there is at present no market; that the goods are being stored, and will be thrown upon the market as soon as the war is ended, and transportation facilities are provided. This enormous amount of manufactured commodities will have to be sold for whatever it will bring, and again the American manufacturer will feel the competition. So the employers in this country, who are expecting to find a tremendous trade as soon as the struggle is over, may be disappointed unless they are prepared to meet this sort of competition.

But the gentleman doesn't consider the task hopeless. In fact, he believes it to be possible for the American manufacturer to overcome all odds. He believes the American laboring man so much superior to the laboring people of other countries, he believes the American manufacturer so much more capable of reducing the cost of output than the German, that he hopes to see a tremendous volume of foreign commerce flowing out of this country after the war. All that will be necessary, he says, is for manufacturers in this country to get busy and knit up the ragged ends where waste has been occurring.—Paducah, Ky., News Democrat.

Expectation

What you Expect, you usually get. What you Expect from your friend your friend usually gives you. What you Expect from the Work which you perform you usually get. Your attitude on every question is largely controlled by your Expectations.

Expect no less than the Best and you will get no less than the Best.

If you start every day Expecting to make that day the best you have ever lived and the work that you do in that day better work than you have performed before, you may rest assured that that day and that work are going to garland you with honor. And after all, the disappointed are not those who did not wholly get what they expect, but those who did not Expect what they desired to get.

Expect no less than the Best and you will get no less than the Best.

Every man Expects something from every other man. We must all be in accord to some extent. Lord Nelson, before the great battle of Trafalgar, exclaimed that England expected every man to do his duty and every man in believing that England expected just that thing—did his duty and thus was won that famous battle. If you believe that every other man expects something from you and you render service of some sort wherever it is possible, in turn you have a right to expect service to be rendered back to you.

Expect no less than the Best and you will get no less than the Best.

The Place To Die

How little recks it where men die
When once the moment's past
In which the dim and glazing eye
Has looked on earth its last;
Whether beneath the sculptured urn
The coffined form shall rest,
Or in its nakedness return
Back to its mother's breast.

The soldier falls 'mid corses piled
Upon the battle plain,
Where reinless war steeds gallop wild
Above the gory slain.
But though his corse be grim to see
Hoof-trampled on the sod,
What recks it when the spirit, free
Has soared aloft to God?

The coward's dying eye may close
Upon his downy bed,
And softest hands his limbs compose,
Or garments o'er him spread:
But ye who shun the bloody fray
Where fall the mangled brave,
Go strip his coffin lid away
And see him in his grave!

'Twere sweet, indeed, to close our eyes
With those we cherish near,
And, wafted upward by their sighs
Soar to some sphere;
But whether on the scaffold high,
Or in the battle's van,
The fittest place where man can die
Is where he dies for man!

CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE TO MEET

Organization Will Complete Details for Opening Game Tonight.

President Paul R. Collier, of the City Basketball League, has called an important meeting of the executive committee to be held in the Daily Press editorial rooms tonight at 8 o'clock. It will be absolutely necessary for every combine to have a representative on hand as the final schedule will be drawn up and officially agreed upon for the season's championship race.

There is at present one vacancy in the league and indications point to this gap being filled in by the St. Joseph's outfit, of North Plainfield. The election of the vice-president, secretary and treasurer will also take place tonight.

DEER HUNTERS ARE WARNED OF DANGERS

State Game Warden Urges Precautions Against Fires as Season Opens.

Trenton, Oct. 13.—With the opening of the gunning season for deer today comes a warning and appeal from State Fire Warden C. P. Wilber to gunners and others using the woods of the State to work for the prevention of forest fires. Mr. Wilber has instructed all forest fire wardens to be especially vigilant in watching for blaze while the deer hunters are in quest of their game. The season this year is limited to the three last Wednesdays in October and the first Wednesday in November, today being the first of these days.

Owing to recent rains and the condition of the foliage, the State fire warden says the danger of conflagrations is not so great as often is the case, but a few days of sunshine can easily dry the leaves and make fires easily possible.

In addition to the gunners Mr. Wilber also makes a request to the general public in the following words: "An appeal is also made to everyone who goes into the woods at this time of the year to be especially careful about starting fires. The woods to which they resort rarely belong to them and if damage is done someone else must suffer. The use of the woods by hunters, by automobilists, by campers, is a privilege not a right, and in the name of the Department of Conservation and Development a strong appeal is made to guard such property in every way that is possible."

SPORTING NOTES

The postponed bout at Milwaukee between Joe Rivers and Johnny Dundee is set for tonight.

Tris Speaker is reputed to draw down $18,000 a year, while Glover Alexander, the king-pin of the Phillies, is said to get one quarter as much, $4,500.

The Cincinnati Board of Education has placed baseball umpiring among its night school courses of instruction. It was at night school that most of the umps got their training, say some of the big league managers.

The star horse event of the week is the Fort Thomas Handicap, six furlongs, for two years old, which will be run at Latonia on Saturday. Kentucky has a monopoly on the racing game during October.

Maurice E. McLaughlin ranks himself as third in the season's tennis stars for this year, putting Johnston and Williams ahead of himself.

TEAMS WILL TOUR.

The National Commission at its meeting in Boston at noon yesterday decided to allow the Red Sox and Phillies to go on a tour to the Pacific coast immediately after the close of the present series. Games will be played at Chicago, Omaha, Denver and other Western cities. It is planned for the clubs to play in San Francisco the last Saturday in October.

LOCAL WARRIORS TAKEN IN TOW

Holy Cross Outfit Tastes Defeat in Opening Game of 1915 Season.

FINAL SCORE 10 TO 0

But Locals Did Not Go Under Without a Fight—Plainfielders Looked Good in Initial Encounter With a Formidable Foe Yesterday.

Holy Cross opened its 1915 football season with a 10 to 0 defeat administered by the Cupids, a strong Brooklyn outfit, on Cricket Field yesterday afternoon, a touchdown at the end of the first half and a drop kick in the fourth quarter turning the trick. The game was featured by rough tactics from start to finish, the visitors taking the leading role in this art. Holy Cross players suffered considerably in the melee and at many different intervals time had to be taken out to apply first aid.

As a team the Holy Cross eleven showed up well and the fact that it was able to hold the formidable visiting club to ten points reflects with credit on the status of the combine. Evidences of careful coaching it has received at the hands of Eddie Stallings showed up in all four quarters and with a little smoothing off the team should be able to cope with the best in the State.

Many old faces returned to the field of play, as well as several new ones, notable among which was Bartel. At left halfback the new player showed to good advantage and was the brightest spot in the home team's offense. Cliff Smith, as usual, was a tower of strength on the defense and Jack Wilson did some good work carrying the ball.

The lineup:

W. M. ALLING AND A. J. WATSON VICTORS

Win Four-ball Championship at the Plainfield Country Club.

W. M. Alling and A. J. Watson won the four-ball championship of the Plainfield Country Club yesterday afternoon, defeating J. Whitney Baker and R. S. Rowland, 5 and 3, in the final round. In the morning the champions defeated Stuart H. Patterson and H. R. Stockton, 6 and 5, while J. Whitney Baker and R. S. Rowland defeated Leighton Calkins and Charles A. Reed, 5 and 4.

Another interesting event of the day was a four-ball, 36 holes, medal play handicap competition, which was won by W. H. Williams and E. J. Patterson with a net score of 135. These scores were posted:

W. H. Williams and E. J. Patterson, 185, 50-135; F. W. Wallace and H. L. DeForest, 194, 56-138; A. J. Watson and W. M. Alling, 159, 20-139; A. M. Tweedy and H. J. Cochran, 183, 44-139; L. G. Carman and L. S. Church, 162, 22-140; C. W. King and C. M. Church, 191, 50-141; J. E. Erickson and J. R. Shoemaker, 166, 24-142; G. M. Holstein and J. A. Lane, 181, 38-143; Murray Rushmore and J. P. Martin, 182, 38-144; E. A. Lyon and R. H. Cox, 184, 40-144; E. B. Shoemaker and W. T. Kaufman, 176, 32-144; O. H. Fleming and H. H. Craig, 165, 20-145; L. B. Alling and J. R. Evans, 186, 40-146; D. O. Rogers and H. G. Lapsley, 172, 22-150; W. L. Righter and W. B. Tyler, 198, 44-154.

There was also play for the Golf Committee cup. The leading scores were as follows:

H. H. Craig, 88, 12-76; D. W. Taylor, 96, 20-76; Morris J. Dumont, 91, 14-77; J. R. Shoemaker, 87, 9-78; J. Whitney Baker, 84, 6-78.

In the sweepstakes event these scores were posted:

E. A. Lyon, 94, 23-71; C. M. Church, 97, 24-73; A. J. Watson, 85, 8-77; Henry J. Cochran, 103, 25-78; J. R. Shoemaker, 87, 9-78.

There was a dance at the clubhouse in the evening, the affair being enjoyed by a large number of the members.

JERSEY SPORTSMEN OPEN DEER SEASON

Season Begins Today and Will Continue for Three Wednesdays.

That a host of nearly 100,000 sportsmen in New Jersey, now preparing for the opening of the fall hunting seasons, would constitute a force to be reckoned with by any alien enemy, should the nation suddenly find itself in need of a quickly recruited army of defense, is the assertion of President Ernest Napier, of the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners, in commenting on a timely topic of national interest.

Today marks the opening of the deer-hunting season and the three following Wednesdays—October 20, and 27, and November 3—it will be lawful for licensed gunners to kill either bucks or does over one year old. There are but few deer hunters in this vicinity, as this game is very scarce. When the rabbit season rolls around, Plainfield will send a large army of gunners into the fields in search of bunnies.

"Hunting has been the lure that has kept this great force of peaceful men in a state of preparedness for outdoor service," says President Napier. "While they lack actual military training, these sportsmen, or the great majority of them at least, are injured by their hunting trips to the rigors of outdoor life; they know how to take care of themselves in the open; they can shoot straight and quick, and they form a powerful unit from which military experts could quickly manufacture and throw into the field for effective service a big army of defense. They cannot take the place of a regular army, but they would offer a modern substitute for the 'Minute Men' of Revolutionary days, and because of the wide range of their employments, the technical knowledge they would bring to the government would constitute a more valuable service even than that performed by this historic branch of General Washington's army.

"Our great army of American sportsmen, rugged, alert, skilled marksmen and representative of our most intelligent type of citizenry, are the nearest approach in America to the much-discussed Swiss reserves. Sport, in lieu of federal authority, has kept hundreds of thousands of American hunters fit for defensive military work."

President Napier further points to the fact that the modern sportsman prides himself upon the care of his body while on his hunting trips. He is self-educated to the essentials of good health when "roughing it" in the woods. In a camp of raw recruits he would not only lower the records of illness by keeping himself physically fit, but he could do more than a doctor in teaching his comrades at arms the science of keeping well in camp. Still more important is the fact, as shown by State records, that among the registered sportsmen are hundreds of engineers, mechanics, doctors, linemen, telegraph operators and men of a dozen other professions whose services are essential in the field work of a modern army. They would know how to think, work or fight in the open and how to take care of themselves while doing it.

The State, of course, has no more hold upon them in a crisis than upon any other class of citizens but undoubtedly they would be among the quickest to hear and the first to respond to a call for patriotic service.

WHEN JIM FLYNN JUST SAVED $300.

"The funniest wallop I ever got was from a fellow named Ed Cooley," says Jim Flynn, who was recently stopped by Jim Coffey.

"Say, he hit me a punch that broke my nose and bent it off way to one side. I was an awful looking spectacle. I went to a doctor.

"'It will cost you $300 to have that nose straightened,' said the doctor man. Whew, but that was a lot of money in those days! It was more than I had, so I arranged with a club to let me have another fight with this Cooley.

"I wanted to get enough money to pay the doctor to straighten my nose; but, believe me or not, that guy Cooley hit me another wallop on the other side of my face and knocked that old nose of mine straight again."

EVERS TIPS OFF HEINIE ZIMMERMAN.

When Johnny Evers was struck on the chest by Umpire Quigley in a game the Cubs played recently in Boston and was chased to the clubhouse he sat down after taking a shower and thought it over. On coming out of the dressing room he ran into Heinie Zimmerman, who also had been banished, but by Bob Emslie.

"What's the matter, Heinie?" asked Evers.

"There's something wrong somewhere when they chase you and me out of the same game," replied the Cub player.

"Don't let Ban Johnson hear you or you'll get into trouble," answered Evers. "I was accused of saying the games weren't on the square."

BROTHER VS. BROTHER.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13.—A peculiar coincidence will take place when brother will be pitted against brother, in the Michigan-Marietta football game on Ferry Field this afternoon. Louis Reinmann is the veteran left tackle on Yost's eleven, while his brother Edward is now playing his second year as right tackle for Marietta. To relieve the embarrassment of the brothers, Yost will probably switch his star linesman to the other side of center.

Boston Is Getting More Than Its Share of Breaks

By JACK MARTIN
Philadelphia National League Club

Bill Carrigan's Boston Red Sox copped the decision in the fourth game of the world's series with Pat Moran's Philadelphia Nationals by superior work in the field. It was not the pitching of Shore or the downfall of George Chalmers that turned the trick, for the Hub fielders gave their box artist faultless support from the first round to the last, and to this fact must be laid the credit for the victory. With the "breaks" of the game yesterday going to the Quakers the decision would have been reversed. If the Philly hitting streak is contiued this afternoon and if Moran's men get a fair share of the "breaks" the team now on the losing end will undoubtedly creep up another notch.

One peculiar feature of yesterday's contest rests in the fact that Bancroft, the Philly shortstop, did not have a single chance to score an assist or a putout. This is truly remarkable in view of the fact that the short fielder as a rule is one of the leading lights and one of the hardest workers even in the less important ball contests.

The Philly players are still full of hope and will not give up the ship until the last putout is recorded.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

New Way of Keeping Fruit—Use crocks, stone butter jars or any other convenient dishes. Prepare and cook fruit precisely as for canning in glass jars; fill dishes with fruit while hot and immediately cover with cotton batting, securely tied on. All putrefaction is caused by the invisible creatures in the air. Cooking the fruit expels all these, and they cannot pass through the cotton batting. The fruit thus protected will keep an indefinite period.

Home-made Tomato Soup—Make now and keep for winter use. Wash a peck of fresh ripe tomatoes, cut in quarters and put in preserving kettle. Add one teaspoon peppercorns, one bay leaf, sixteen whole cloves, two onions, three tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon salt. Cook twenty minutes and strain. Bring to boiling point, skim and put into sterilized glass jars.—This will be found most convenient in winter for making sauces for meats and fish. For soup dilute with water as desired.

Sweet Crabapple Pickle—Wipe three pounds crabapples, remove stems and steam until soft. In a muslin bag tie 1½ teaspoons cloves, 1½ teaspoons allspice berries, 1½ teaspoons black pepper, 1½ teaspoons ginger. Put in preserving kettle, add two cups vinegar, one cup sugar, and apples. Bring gradually to boiling point and simmer twenty minutes.

Tomato and Celery Relish—Wipe, peel and chop fifteen ripe tomatoes. Cut off roots and leaves of six bunches celery, separate stalks, wash and chop. Wipe and chop one red pepper. Mix two cups sugar, two tablespoons salt, one teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon allspice, one teaspoon cinnamon and one teaspoon celery seed; add 1½ cups vinegar. Put in preserving kettle with vegetables, bring to boiling point and let simmer 1½ hours. Fill jars to overflowing and adjust covers.

Highley—One peck green tomatoes, one dozen green peppers; chop fine and scald (not boil) in one cup salt and water. When cold strain and scald in weak vinegar. Let stand until strength of vinegar is exhausted—perhaps a day or two—then strain and add strong, cold vinegar and one tablespoon each of the following: cloves, cassa, allspice, black pepper, one-half pint mustard seed, two pounds sugar, one cabbage and two celery heads chopped fine and added last. Put spices in a bag and spread over top of jar.

Grape-Orange Honey — Remove skins from one small basket of blue grapes, boil fifteen minutes and strain. Add three oranges, one of them peeled, ground through food chopper. Add three pounds sugar to grapes and oranges and cook until it thickens, then add half pound of English walnuts and one-fourth pound hazelnuts chopped fine. Pour in glasses.

Put a bowl of lime in the cellar where jellies are kept; it will prevent mold from forming on the top of fruit.

Tomato Soup (an original idea)—In making tomato preserve or marmalade, by dipping off the juice of the tomatoes as it rises, before adding sugar or flavoring, it takes less time to cook thick and also less sugar. Pour the juice through fine strainer, add salt, boil and seal while hot, for soup and sauces.

Canned Spanish Tomatoes — Can tomatoes, onions and peppers together. Salt to taste, boil fifteen minutes, put in one-quart jars. In winter open quart can and fry contents.

Canning Tomatoes—So many people find that their canned tomatoes won't keep. When starting to can tomatoes, first put your jars on the stove in cold water; also the jar lids; let them boil. When ready to fill jars, throw your jar rings in the boiling water and seal jars. Tomatoes will keep for years.

Chilisauce—Eight quarts chopped ripe tomatoes, two cups chopped green peppers, two cups chopped onions, three cups sugar, one cup salt, 1½ quarts cider vinegar, three teaspoons ground cloves, three teaspoons ground cinnamon, two teaspoons ginger, two teaspoons nutmeg; boil slowly three hours. When buying peppers obtain the large ones, as they are best for chilisauce.

Saco Pickles—Wipe small fresh green cucumbers, place in stone jars and pour over them following mixture: Stir together one cup salt, one cup sugar and seven-eighths cup mustard; add slowly, while stirring constantly, one quart vinegar. When smooth add three quarts vinegar. Have brine cover cucumbers and lay a heavy china plate directly on them in order to keep them from contact with the air. Cover jars and set in cool place.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUB SHOW INCREASE

More Than 110,077 Children From 33 States Interested in Agriculture.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—There has been an increase of more than 43,000 in the membership of various boys' and girls' agricultural clubs conducted by the State Agricultural Colleges and the Department of Agriculture in the northern and western States. At the close of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, there were 11,077 members in the various club projects in the 33 States covered by this work. At the close of the present fiscal year, June 30, 1915, the membership was 151,194, exclusive of the enrollment in the mother-daughter canning clubs.

This work is being carried on cooperatively in 26 of the 33 States in the northern, central and western territory by the Department of Agriculture and the extension departments of the State colleges of agriculture. In practically every State short courses for boys and girls and special demonstration schools have been held at the colleges and in the field. During the past year 1,557 club members attended the mid-winter courses at the colleges, 968 of these having their expenses paid by local contributions as a recognition of their achievements in club work. Of the 38 club members who, as champions in their States, districts or counties for 1914, have become recognized as National All-Star Club members, 31 are now attending high schools, agricultural or other colleges, 3 of the remaining 7 have already graduated from high school, and 1 will go to an agricultural college this fall.

Experience has shown that the work in the boys' and girls' clubs can be carried on with even greater success without the aid of large cash prizes and awards. The net profits from the work itself have been found to be the best possible incentive. The members have their attention directed to problems of farm and home management, crop rotation, soil building, etc., and in practically every State in which the work is being carried on a large number of club members are now working out three and four-year rotations of crops. The profits which they derive from club work they are spending on getting an education, or for purchase of pure bred stock and labor-saving machinery. Many are even buying land and thus acquiring an invaluable sense of dignity and independence.

In the canning work, 938 public demonstrations were held during the year, with a total attendance of 118,367. These demonstrations were held primarily for the club members, but parents were always invited and, as a matter of fact, more than half of those present were grown men and women. One of the great advantages of this club work, indeed, is the fact that it serves to stimulate the parents as well as the children.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Within the week New Jersey women will know whether they are at length to be real citizens of their State or merely as heretofore "associate members," whose privilege it is to pay their taxes, but who may not be allowed to vote or hold office. The indications are greatly in favor of New Jersey women being granted full citizenship with all the rights, privileges and responsibilities that such citizenship entails.

When ex-President Taft admonishes us that the ballot is no "natural right" but one "given or withheld at the discretion of the State," he speaks a truth that is pompously impressive until one begins to ask, "But what is the State?" It is the voters who give or withhold the ballot; hence the voters must be this State of whose powers we are so solemnly reminded. But with us the voters are men; therefore the State must be interpreted to mean men and men only. It follows by this logic that women are not in anywise a part of "the State" because the State, meaning the voters, that is to say, the men, have so decreed. Analyzed in this way somehow the impressiveness of that high-sounding phrase "given or withheld at the discretion of the State" fails to inspire awe. There was once a Louis who said with a great air: "The State ——. It is d——." When several million Louis say, "We are the State," it is not likely to curtail the final sum total of liberty and equality. The men of New Jersey, because they are at present "the State," are too progressive and too fair-minded to shut out the women of New Jersey from being actively and equally with themselves parts of this State.

President Wilson has announced that he intends to come back here next Tuesday and vote for the amendment enfranchising New Jersey women. Secretary of War Garrison and Joseph P. Tumulty, President Wilson's secretary, will do the same. The example of the President of the United States, the son of whom New Jersey is most proud, is one that lesser citizens will be eager to measure up to. Led by the foremost citizen of this Republic we women of New Jersey confidently expect you, the men of New Jersey, to make us real citizens on Tuesday next.

This month that bids fair to be the birth-month of citizenship for New Jersey women, is at this writing witnessing the celebration of the fiftieth birthday of Vassar College. This is the college that at its opening was pronounced against as the sure agency for the destruction of all womanly instincts—her health, her charm and her home were sure to be lost if woman aspired to "the higher education."

Today please ponder the following extracts from the speeches of two prominent women suffragists taking part in Vassar's semi-centennial:

(From Julia Clifford Lathrop, '80, chief of the children's bureau, United States Department of Labor.)

"The rearing of children and the care of the household, the most important calling in the world, needs serious, patient research. I hope that Vassar will, in our life-time, have a graduate school for that calling."

"I see in those countries and States where political equality has been established demonstrations of self-realization and almost always the development of those inclinations that are traditional.

* * * * * * *

"Into the realm of Federal control human needs have been brought as contrasted with material and academic and diplomatic functions of the government. 'A Federal Bureau for Children, its chief a woman, one of your own. What new and mannish venture does she embark on? She rouses the nation—or tries to rouse it—to the neglect of the baby. She takes the baby out of the obscure, so often neglected and hidden crib into the full light of publicity. Suffer not this little one to be lost sight of. It is a child of the nation!'

"This Bureau is a telling illustration of my theme. The former purely sentimental portrayal of the child is replaced by irrefutable mortality data, and these are shown to be related to high rent rates and low wage scales, twin home destroyers. That is one of the things that women do when they function in public life. They exercise their intelligence for the preservation of the things that are important to them and have always been and always will be.

"Upon the educated woman devolves the task of readapting the social interests of her sex to a changed physical and spiritual environment. She should, as a member in good standing of the great society, be the co-ordinator of human values. The task of organizing human happiness needs the active co-operation of man and woman; it cannot be relegated to one-half the world, and active co-operation for such noble ends cannot be secured unless men and women really work together. The women have been experiencing the growth of a new consciousness, an integral element in the evolution of self-government, and as a result many women believe that they can best represent the human interests in government, at least that they can best represent themselves in those measures that immediately concern them and for which tradition and experience have fitted them."

GRACE SAVAGE SELDEN.

CHARLES FROHMAN'S "LUCKY PIECE."

Charles Frohman, the great theatrical manager, carried for many years an English shilling for a "lucky piece." He often told his friends how he came by it, and now his brother Daniel has given the story to the world in "The Life of Charles Frohman," which he has written in collaboration with Isaac F. Marcosson, and which has just begun to appear in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

The coin was acquired in London in 1880, when Charles, only twenty years old, was on his first visit to England. He was then treasurer of the Haverly Mastodon Minstrels, who played a long engagement at Her Majesty's Theatre—those famous American entertainers, say Charles Frohman's biographers, became the vogue in London. Royalty had set the stamp of its approval, and aristocracy flocked. One night, in the momentary absence of the chief usher, Charles Frohman, who was always on the job, escorted a distinguished group of nobility to the box. After bowing them in, a member of the party slipped a shilling into his hand, which Frohman, of course, refused.

"'Take it, you beggar!' said the peer, with some irritation, throwing the shilling at him.

"'Thank you, sir,' responded Frohman, picking it up and slipping it into his pocket. He kept it as a lucky piece for twenty years, often telling the story of how he got it."

WINTER AFTERNOON FROCK.

No. 9082.

The approach of the cold weather not only makes the high collar most popular but increasingly appropriate and sensible. The high collar has a dignity about it that is pleasing, yet it lacks that rigidity and stiffness so patent in styles of the past. A mode which would make a most becoming afternoon frock is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9082, which consists of a waist with the back extending over the shoulder forming a shallow yoke effect while the deep front yoke has a standing collar with applied tucked sections which are extremely novel. The full-length sleeves are finished with a band and circular cuffs. The three-piece gathered skirt is perforated for trimming sections and is lengthened by a bias hem. Cuts in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure, size 36 requiring 4¼ yards 42-inch material with 2⅞ yards 42-inch chiffon.

Patterns can be purchased at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

WILL STUDY EFFICIENCY AND PROFITABLENESS OF FARMERS

The New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station has just completed a farm management survey of Monmouth and Sussex counties. The object of this work is to study the efficiency and profitableness of different farms and different types of farming. The records of over 1,700 farms have been secured. Through a comparison of this large number of records some very valuable information can be gained. The work covers a study not only of the successful farms but those run at a loss as well. The failures of farming are given altogether too little attention in the educational work of today. Because of this neglect many people are led into the error of believing that the possession of a farm insures an ample livelihood. The results of this survey will show the reasons for the failures as well as for the successes in farming.

DEMANDS GRANTED.

Roselle, Oct. 13.—The strike for an eight-hour day and an increase of two cents an hour in pay, at the Watson-Stillman plant, which has been in force since September 12, was broken yesterday, when the company granted the demands.

He Used It to Tell the Time of Day.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Bibbley Wah Dropped The Crystal.

"IT'S Bibbley Wah night!" cried the children.

Daddy took them both on his lap and began: "Part of her uncle's wonderful farm was Ivy mountain, the highest land in the state. When the air was still and clear you could look from its top away across the state and see the shining rim of the Atlantic ocean.

"Once a month, when the kiddies visited the farm, their uncle used to hitch old Ned in the yellow buckboard and drive up to the tiptop, where an old wooden tower stood. The tower was about 200 feet high, and every summer a queer old man lived in it and rented fieldglasses to visitors.

"Near the tower were blueberry bushes, and sometimes the kiddies used to bring along sugar to put on the berries Bobbie and Jim picked."

"Didn't Bibbley Wah pick any?" asked Jack.

"Yes, but she ate as she picked!" said daddy.

"One beautiful day, after the youngsters had filled their hungry stomachs with berries, sandwiches and sweet chocolate, Uncle Ben invited them to climb the tower and look through the queer old keeper's glasses. It was a great treat, for the glasses brought far things so close that they seemed near enough to touch. Among other things that the old man kept on top of the tower was a wonderful crystal ball that he used to measure sun movements and time of day. It was about as big as a huge orange, very fine glass, and when the sun shone on it it gave out the colors of a rainbow."

"Red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet!" cried Jack.

"Now, Bibbley Wah loved bright colors and took a great fancy to the crystal. It stood on the edge of the tower rail, set at a very careful angle for measuring. She could hardly keep her hands off it. While the boys were listening to a tale the old man told she put one finger on the lovely crystal, it lost balance, wabbled and plunged over the rail. Bibbley Wah screamed, but too late. The glistening, lovely ball went crashing down, down 200 feet, struck on a shed roof and bounded off into the blueberry bushes, where Bobbie and the old man found it."

"Was it broke?" asked Evelyn, much interested.

"It was nicked—a little piece knocked out of its perfect roundness. The old man wept bitter tears, but Uncle Ben gave him $5, which made him say that the crystal was unhurt still for measurements. So Bibbley Wah got out of her trouble happily, as usual," finished daddy, giving the kiddies a big hug and a good night kiss.

"She's a big mischief, isn't she, daddy?" said Evelyn knowingly.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS DIA LEONARD

A Little Careful Planning Can Accomplish Wonders in Home Management

"Now we have found a place to start from," said Olive Ellson earnestly. "My dear Mrs. Sutner, do you love your husband enough to keep quiet when he is unreasonable; to return a soft answer to his harsh speeches?"

"Men don't respect women who will take all sorts of abuse tamely," blazed Mrs. Sutner.

"You have tried fanning flames of passion and adding fuel to the fire of temper; has it worked for peace?" asked Olive gravely.

"No," she answered sullenly.

"Are you willing to try another course as an experiment?" asked her friend.

"I came to you for help," said the woman after a long silence, "and just as far as I am able I will do what you tell me."

"Now, that's the right spirit. That and infinite patience will go far to undo the past. It's a long road to travel back to peace; however, I think it can be done."

"I'll do anything."

"Now, first, you say most if not all of your trouble is about money and lack of management. You must begin by reducing everything to a system. Set aside a certain amount for your table, just what you think you can afford and never run over that amount."

"Oh, I never have any money to handle except when I beg for it," interrupted the woman in a hard voice.

"Can't you talk the matter over quietly with your husband?" asked Olive after a pause.

"You don't know what you are suggesting. You might as well talk of quietly and soothingly setting off a firecracker."

Olive reflected a minute. "I think it will be absolutely necessary to reach some sort of a working agreement."

"If I could figure out with your help what I should spend on the table and keep expenses down to that it might be he would notice that the bills were smaller and speak about it, or I might get the nerve to open the subject if I'd succeeded in keeping expenses down."

"Good scheme!" applauded Olive.

"Now I'll get my cook books and a tablet and we'll make some menus that are cheap." Olive rose to put the idea into practice.

"If you can find anything cheap these times you are a wonder. Things cost so much more than they did when we were first married, and John's salary is just the same. It's not because he isn't good at his work, either, for he has earned quite a few dollars straightening out sets of account books evenings."

When Olive returned with books, paper and pencil, the women worked until they had prepared menus for a week, figuring out the cost of material and keeping everything inside the limit set for furnishing the table.

"Why, I never heard of doing this way. I always waited till time to get a meal, then looked to see what I had in the house, and if there was nothing, went over to the store and picked out what looked good or was the least trouble to get. How did you learn to do things in this business-like fashion?" She looked admiringly at Olive.

"My mother is Scotch and thrifty. She has kept house in this way ever since she was married. It's second nature to me that I know how to make ends meet."

"You'll be a good ally when it comes to making one dollar do the work of five." Mrs. Sutner actually smiled.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Something new, something new and something sure to please old and young is always to be found in the vaudeville bill at Proctor's Theatre, and the new change which comes tomorrow for the last half of the week combines all three. The program will be headed by a musical farce entitled "The Boarding School Girls," in which there are seven people, with Miss Tommy Allen as the particular star. The act is handsomely costumed and has a dozen excellent song and dance numbers. There will be five other specially selected acts, these being:

Arnold and Florenz, novelty entertainers in "The Man With the Bottle;" James J. McDonald, comedy entertainer; Harriet Marlotte & Co., in a comedy sketch entitled, "The Laff-in;" Hayden and Hayden, the singing and dancing sisters, and Claude and Marion Cleveland with their argument still unsettled.

In addition to the vaudeville for the last half of the week, the Proctor bill will be rounded out with the following feature photo-plays: Thursday, "Tides That Meet," one of the Essanay very latest releases featuring Bryant Washburn; Friday, the current episode of the absorbing serial, "Neal of the Navy," a picture that has set the whole town talking. Saturday, "The Way Back," a picture from the Edison studios featuring Miriam Nesbitt. The Pathe semi-weekly is shown every day, each pictorial being held three days.

The big bazaar held last week proved such a success that another of the same kind will be conducted tonight. It is well to keep in mind that every patron, young or old, receives a substantial gift. If you were not present last Wednesday night, you have a big surprise in store. Remember also that the management is arranging for a "toy" matinee next Saturday afternoon, the details of which will be announced later in the week.

CAR STRIKES TROLLEY

Judge Way, Husband of Dead Woman, Was Also Seriously Injured and Recovery is Doubtful—Couple Well Known Here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jones, of 981 Central avenue, left Plainfield yesterday for Sewickley, Pa., to attend the funeral of Mr. Jones' sister, Mrs. William A. Way, wife of Judge William A. Way, who with her husband was injured in an automobile accident near Pittsburgh, Tuesday night, and which resulted in the death of the former shortly afterwards. The condition of Mr. Way, who is at present the judge of the county court of that place, was reported as critical at the Presbyterian Hospital, of that place. "Condition critical, but resting comfortably, and still has a chance for recovery," was the report received from the institution.

Judge and Mrs. Way were returning to their home in Edgeworth from Warrendale in an automobile, when their machine collided with a street car at Robinson station, near Warrendale. Both were hurled from their buggie, and knocked unconscious. They were rushed to the Presbyterian Hospital, where Mrs. Way died at 11:50 o'clock without regaining consciousness. Judge Way is suffering from fractures of both legs, internal injuries and lacerations of the head. The responsibility for the accident has not yet been determined. Judge Way was driving his auto, but either did not hear or see the approaching car, as the motorman said, he drove directly into the path of the trolley. Judge Way is somewhat deaf and probably did not hear the motorman's whistle. At the crossing, too, a large barn cuts off the view up track and this was partly responsible for the accident.

The couple were motoring to the Delinquent Boys' Home at Thorn Hill, over which Judge Way has special supervision. They had left their home only a short while before the accident and fortunately did not take their children with them.

Mrs. Way was born in Pittsburgh, a daughter of the late John Bright and Catherine McGrain Jones. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church, of Sewickley, and leaves her husband, one son, two daughters and her brother, Mr. Jones, of this city. Mrs. Mary Fuller, of Edgeworth, a sister, also survives.

Both Judge and Mrs. Way have a large circle of friends in this city, where they have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jones on frequent occasions, and the news of the accident came as a shock to all who knew them.

LOCAL CAVALRYMEN PLAN FOR A "HIKE"

Troop D Will March to the "Deserted Village" and Camp Over Night.

The Plainfield members of Troop D, N. G. N. J. cavalry, have arranged for a practice march and camping trip which will extend from Saturday afternoon to Sunday afternoon. The troopers will leave their headquarters at 775 Kensington avenue Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and march to the "Deserted Village" back of Scotch Plains, where a camp will be established until the next afternoon.

It is the purpose of the members to engage in regular drills for practice purposes, and a regular army camp will be established in the mountains. A number of friends of the troopers are planning to visit the camp either Saturday night or Sunday for the purpose of seeing them in actual service.

APPEAL FOR DONATIONS.

As the winter season approaches and the thirty-seven children in the Children's Home must be supplied with comfortable clothing, the management feels justified in asking that householders with children will bear them in mind. Dresses for girls from 4 to 10 years and boys' suits and hats for the same ages are particularly desired. Donations of these articles or clothing will be most acceptable. The Board also takes this opportunity to thank its many friends who have so generously contributed to the Home fruit and vegetables this summer.

PARENTS GATHER IN WASHINGTON SCHOOL

Inspect Class Rooms and Listen to Addresses by Principal and Others.

About forty members of the Parent-Teacher Association gathered yesterday afternoon in the Washington School for the monthly meeting. The class-room reception was held at 3:30, when the visitors, nearly all of whom were mothers of pupils attending the school, visited the class-rooms and saw some of the practical work which is being done in the schools.

The principal, F. W. Cook, made a short address in which he emphasized the benefits to be derived from the parents getting acquainted with the teachers of their children and vice versa, together with the immense amount of good that is to be accomplished through a thorough understanding and co-operation between parents and teachers.

Mrs. William Sandford told of the good which the mothers could obtain from these meetings and how in many ways they helped in the school work.

Miss Millicent E. Humpston, formerly principal of the Washington School, expressed her gratitude for the great help and assistance rendered to her while she was principal by the parents through this association and told how she appreciated all the favors shown her.

Principal F. W. Cook was elected first vice president of the association, this office having been vacant since the retirement of Miss Humpston a year ago.

IT COST PARRETTI $50 TO WATCH A SCOREBOARD

Domenico Parretti's interest in Tuesday's ball game between the Philadelphia and Boston clubs cost him $50. Speculators didn't get the coin and Parretti didn't pick a loser. Of these two points he is certain. According to the owner of the $50 he was watching a scoreboard in the midst of a street crowd and did not miss the half-hundred note until he reached for his hip pocket several hours later.

While he can't just resign himself to the belief that his pocket was picked by some nimble-fingered gent in the baseball throng, for Parretti is partial to baseball fans, he is sure he lost the $50 and today is advertising in the hope that some honest person innocently picked the wallet from a resting place in the road.

MAY RUIN CHILD BY USING SYSTEM

Prof. Aungst Tells Teachers to Consider Human Element.

NO FIXED SET OF RULES

Children Differ From One Another Far More Than Grownups, He Says, and Each One Must Be Handled Differently.

That a child has individuality which must be reckoned with in its education was impressed on the corps of North Plainfield school teachers yesterday afternoon in their regular meeting by D. Fred Aungst, the supervising principal of the Somerset High School, in a most interesting address. Mr. Aungst evidenced not only progressiveness but progress in his instructions to the teachers.

In outlining a general plan to be followed by the teachers in their daily work, he emprasized the fact that no stereotyped set of rules could be laid out for the instruction of children because their human element was the most potent factor to be considered in their training. In his introduction Mr. Aungst said:

"This public school teaching corps is located in North Plainfield because there are 1,300 children in the town who are to receive education. We are here for this reason and no other. At the outset then the child is the real center of all our professional activities."

"The first postulate then that confronts us is the world of the child. It consists of his parents, brothers, sisters, cousins, playmates, neighbors; of his grandparents, uncles,

DOG WAKES MASTER WHEN HOUSE BURNS

L. B. Mulford and Ira Vail Have Narrow Escape.

The barking of a dog awakened L. B. Mulford, of 117 Johnston avenue from sleep at six minutes to midnight last night and he opened his eyes in a smoke that was so thick as to almost blind him.

Before attempting to learn the extent of the fire, Mr. Mulford felt his way to the second floor, where Ira Vail was sleeping. He aroused his friend and they managed to get downstairs by ways of the smoke-filled stairway. Mr. Mulford jumped from a window and ran two and one-half blocks to fire alarm box 18, where he turned in an alarm.

Within a few minutes engine company No. 2 was on the scene. Hose company No. 2 and No. 4 made a quick run to the box, but could not locate the fire, and after deciding it was a false alarm, had started home when they saw lights on Johnston avenue.

The fire was quickly extinguished after the department arrived. It was principally smoke coming from burning rags that had been used in polishing woodwork about the house. Chief Doan estimated the damage at $200, mostly from water.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE TO SEW FOR POOR FAMILIES

Considerable interest and enthusiasm was evidenced at the regular monthly meeting of Brightside Circle of the King's Daughters, held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. W. Jones, 16 Mountain avenue. There was a large attendance of members and the various reports showed that the organization is in a flourishing condition. The finances were in an excellent shape, while the interest shown by the members was far above the average.

It was decided to change the time of meeting during the winter months from 4 p. m. to 3 p. m. The object of the change is to give the women an additional hour in which to sew for poor families. Sewing was a feature which was added at this meeting. One of the features of the program was a reading by Mrs. F. W. Jones.

ACTIVITIES REVIEWED

The first fall meeting of the Public Recreation Committee, held in the Public Library last night, was an unusually enthusiastic one much business being discussed and reports submitted. Henry C. White, chairman of the committee, occupied the chair.

The question of a community center at the Washington School, in the west end section of the city, was brought before the committee, by a delegation from the West End Civic Association. The latter were represented by T. C. Vail, chairman; George H. Fisher, J. T. Carroll, John J. Praed, Joseph Edgar, T. S. Powers and R. S. Lewis. AGED GERMAN GETS LOST IN DUNELLEN

Wanders About for Day and Night—Finds Home Today.

Lost in Dunellen!

It may sound like a facetious attempt to burlesque some of the highly imaginary titles with which modern melo-dramas of the Harry Blaney type are docorated, but to Alan Schnad, aged 87, and feeble from the weight of his years, the experience was one in which there was no note of comedy.

In addition to being old, Mr. Schnad is a stranger in that he does not even speak the English language. He has been away from the home of his son-in-law, Frank Wunderlick, who lives at the foot of the Watchung mountain, near Dunellen, but three times since he came to live there years ago, and it is a safe prophecy that the old German will spend the remainder of his alloted years under the friendly roof of his people.

He started to Dunellen for the mail early yesterday morning. By night he had not returned and Mr. Wunderlick began to grow anxious. He organized searching parties and they hunted through the mountains until far into the night, using lanterns and building signal fires. Their search was not rewarded and the tired party of rescuers returned to their homes early this morning with no message to cheer the family that had begun to mourn Schnad as dead.

This morning he came home. He rode up to the house in the wagon of Augustus Anger, a German, who could understand the old man's story. Mr. Schnad said that when he started on his return trip home he had taken the wrong road and had wandered about all afternoon and far into the night trying to get on the right one. He stopped almost everyone he met and asked for information but they could not understand him because he was talking German. Finally a family by the name of Wolfe took him in and cared for him during the night, although they could not understand his appeal to them for aid in finding his home. They took him to the Anger home this morning, and Mr. Anger drove thim to the home of his son-in-law at once.

LARGE AUDIENCE ENJOYS SHAKESPEAREAN RECITAL

Charles Richmond, of New York, delighted the faculty, students and a few invited guests at Mt. St. Mary College yesterday afternoon, with his perfect rendition of scenes from Shakespeare's "Macbeth," "Julius Caesar," and "As You Like It," perhaps appearing best in "Julius Caesar." Mr. Richmond portrayed the several characters with a skill that compelled admiration and frequent rounds of applause.

HORSE GIVEN MORE CARE THAN FAMILY

Max Shapiro Undecided Wether or not to Support Wife Until Threatened.

Despite the fact that he claimed to be capable of earning not more than $1 a week, which he said he used for the support of himself and horse, Max Shapiro, of 545 West Third street, when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning on a charge of non-support and wife desertion, was instructed to contribute $5 each week to the family treasury under penalty of indefinite imprisonment in the county jail. Three months ago Shapiro left the family home on West Third street for parts unknown and since that time the local poor department has contributed in the main to the support of a wife and three children which he left uncared for.

Shapiro in court admitted to Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who prosecuted the case for the city, that he had been living in New Brunswick and he gave the court to understand that he cared considerably more for himself and horse than he did for his wife and family. He was arrested yesterday morning by Captain John J. Flynn when in Plainfield on a visit.

Shapiro exhibited considerable doubt concerning his ability to gather together $5 a week but when threatened with a jail sentence by the court he decided it was better to get out and, as the court expressed it, "work the laziness out of his bones." Shapiro in court appeared physically fit despite his claim that he was sickly.

HIGH CLASS TALENT FOR ELKS' BIG FAIR

The general committee in charge of the Elks' bazaar, to be held in the Watchung avenue clubhouse next week, will meet tonight to put the finishing touches on the booths that will complete the preliminary details for what promises to set a precedent in the social history of fraternal organizations in Plainfield. Many novelties are being prepared and the amusement arranged for is of high order and promises much.

It was learned today that members of Hoboken Lodge, No. 74, B. P. O. E., are anticipating their visit to Plainfield next week. Exalted Ruler Mullins and Secretary William Bindewald, of Hoboken Lodge, are in charge of the arrangements for a special delegation.

The entertainment committee has announced that in addition to the other entertainment to be furnished, the following soloists will sing:

Monday evening, Frank Hennigs will render the following, "When I Leave the World Behind," "Along the Rocky Road to Dublin." Tuesday evening Dave Dryer and Felix Young will sing, "Is There Still Room For Me?" "'Neath the Old Apple Tree," "In the Gold Fields of Nevada," and "Take Me to the Midnight Cakewalk Ball." Wednesday evening the famous "Billy" Redmond, formerly with Primrose & Dockstader's minstrels, will sing several songs to be selected. Thursday evening William Pierce will render, "America, I Love You," "Where the Hudson River Flows," and "I'm a Lonesome Melody." On Friday night "Billy" Redmond will sing the following songs, "If It Takes a Thousand Years," "She's the Daughter of Mother Machree," "A Little Bit of Heaven," and "The Little Grey Mother."

The local Elks are to be congratulated upon being able to bring such an array of talent to Plainfield. Much credit for being able to secure these soloists is due Benjamin LaVere, who is a member of the local Elks lodge and who was able, through his long acquaintance with "Billy" Redmond, to make arrangements for these singers through Mr. Redmond's efforts. On Saturday evening the guests will be entertained by members of the local lodge. The Plainfield Elks have a number of members with established reputations as singers.

If Turkey had remained neutral her territory would not have suffered, declared the foreign secretary. The Allies would have done all in their power to help Bulgaria. It was an essential preliminary, however, that Bulgaria sided with the Entente powers. The interests of Sebia and Greece are identical in the long run they must stand or fall together. The Allies desire to help Serbia and the co-operation of Russian troops is promised soon.

MAY RUIN CHILD BY SYSTEM

aunts and other relatives; of his pets and toys; of his home and his world as far as he has explored it; of day, night, summer, winter, trees, flowers, birds, brooks, mountains, hills, woods; automobiles, trolley cars, trains, taxis; of the street, the gutter, the back alley and the gang; of books, pictures, especially motion pictures; of stores and their unexplored wonders; of the Sunday-school and church; and finally, it consists of the echoes of his soul, in which experiences, the hopes, and the fears of his ancestors come reverberating through racial corridors of a rapidly, recapitulating past. These reverberating voices tell him that he is somebody capable of doing something. In one age he is a robber-chief leading an imaginary band upon a helpless village. At another time he impersonates the Father of his Country leading his victorious legion against an imaginary or impersonated foe. Occasionally some adult—a teacher, a story-telling man, a fisherman, an adventurer, finds his way into the child's life, and reaches his heart.

"The little child lives through more sensations in a day than the youth in a week or the adult in a year. Yet the differences between child and adult are so many and so great that neither comprehends nor understand the other. The child fears, loves, even reveres the grown-up. Yet that grown-up too frequently despises the little one, who feels it the very moment it is manifested. If he does not despise the child, he compassionates it, talks down to it, lords over it, but seldom reaches it.

"Children differ from one another far more than do the socialized adults around them. As children they have not as yet been forced through the same grooves, and squeezed over the same pattern, that brings forth the same inane product which cannot think clearly and independently, worship God intelligently, and do the thousand and one things that a democratic citizenry could do, should do, and ought to do. These children who differ so from one another dimly perceive the adults round about them as remote gods or demons, whom they feel, mark you, whom they feel rather than comprehend. We teachers are one portion of their adult-wrold whom they dimly perceive as remote gods or demons, and they feel concerning us, but do not comprehend. What little thinking the child does is very simple, but you can mark it down as more fundamental than ours, and what feeling he has about us is intense and true, exact as he sees it, be it just or unjust to us.

"These widely differentiated units called children we must organize into classes and schools. In the beginning we try to educate all together, the dull, the mediocre, the clever, and the brilliant; the abnormal, the subnormal, the normal, and the supernormal; the perfect, the typical, the atypical or defective, and almost the monstrous. This we do until we can get it underneath the epidermis of communities and boards of education that 'Education is not regimentation, but integration and differentiation by consciously produced evolution.' Another way of saying this is that education is not a meal of ham and eggs for breakfast, sauerkraut and pork for dinner, and mush and milk for supper, day in and day out for each and all, both great and small. Rather it is a menu-card for mental dyspeptics, mental neurotics, mental athletes and wealkings, who can integrate and differentiate toward a consciously produced evolution. Therefore we begin to discriminate, to separate, to segregate, and finally to educate. In making this discrimination, separation and segregation we encounter the fond parent who claims that his child is as good, as smart, as bright, and quick to learn as any other child in the schools. We also encounter the staid school teacher and principal who throw up both hands in holy horror and fairly shriek, 'But that will destroy our system' until you vaguely wonder if they mean their nervous system. When you ask them what they mean by the 'system' they talk wisely about the morale of the schools, the fine organization of the schools, the wonderfully articulated machinery of the schools, until you have a splendid mental picture of a mental creation that can neither be seen, nor touched, nor tasted, nor smelt, nor heard, and that it is heartless, soulless, and merciless; then it dawns upon your slowly awakening consciousness that living beings who can love, and think and feel, and suffer, are fed into that heartless, soulless, merciless 'system' like so many corncobs in a grist-mill. Woe unto the superintendent who smashes traditions and promotes the super-normal child ahead of his grade! His office is at once the stamping-ground of irate parents and teachers. Teachers, young and old, tried and true, rally round the flag of 'the dear old system' in which case the wise and fearless superintendent quietly puts a can of lyddite in the basement, and 'blows the system' to Davy Jones' locker."

PARENT-TEACHER ASS'N HOLD ACQUAINTANCE SOCIAL

The Bryant school yesterday afternoon was the scene of a very pleasant gathering when the mothers of pupils attending that school attended what the teachers termed an "acquaintance meeting." The object of the meeting was to enable the mothers to meet the teachers and see the children in their classes and in a general way to familiarize themselves with school work.

Following an interesting address on school work by Mrs. William Sandford, refreshments were served and the remainder of the occasion was devoted to social intercourse, which will prove profitable to both parents and teachers and is expected to prove beneficial to the work in the schools.

A similar meeting will be held next Wednesday afternoon in the Lincoln School, commencing at 2:45.

"GREAT PITROFF" TO GIVE REMARKABLE EXHIBITION

With the upper part of his body tightly encased in a strait jacket, his feet held captive by the rope which will hold him suspended in the air from the roof of the Frost Building, the "Great Pitroff," who is appearing at The Plainfield Theatre, will escape his bonds tonight at 7 o'clock in full view of the crowd that will gather to see him.

He recently performed the feat while suspended from the Woolworth building, in New York city, several thousand spectators watching him wiggle like a snake, apparently helpless; loosen the first buckle of the strait jacket and then another until at last his arms free but his hands and fingers still held captive, he pulled the entire affair over his head and swung from in the air among the applause of the great crowds.

WORK TO BE EXTENDED

strange coincidence the initial meeting of the society last year recorded an attendance of forty-five members also. Rehearsals of the "Messiah" will be commenced at once.

Probably the most interest manifested at the meeting was when announcement was made of the fact that a sight reading class would be opened within the near future. S. Frederick Smith, who directed the activities of the Choral Society last year will have charge of the class, which will be limited to forty members. The fees attached to the membership will be nominal, barely enough to cover the expenses incurred.

Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, chairman of the extension committee, reported that the activities of that committee have started and indications are very favorable for the winter's work. W. H. P. Veysey, of the music committee, reported that Wendell C. Glover's orchestra is furnishing the music for the municipal dances at the Washington School and meeting with general satisfaction. E. A. Stevenson gave a short history of the growth of the public dances. Re-opened three weeks ago for the winter term, the first night registered seventy-five young people present, the second Saturday, 155, and the third Saturday 160 enjoyed the dance. George B. Zimmer alternated with Mr. Stevenson in supervising the sessions.

Miss Lillian Lamson, supervisor of the recreation work in the city, gave a very concise report of the work of the Thespian Society and the Dramatic Club. The former is making arrangements to give a minstrel show within the near future while the latter is actively rehearsing "Brown of Harvard." She was especially enthusiastic about the work of the P. E. G. S., a newly organized girls' club in the High School, and gave an outline of the work planned by the young women. She also called attention to the music classes which have gained considerable prominence since being added to the recreation activities. The Misses Hazel Lockwood and Mabel Maxson were the teachers in this new department. She called attention to the fact that Plainfield was the first city in which such a feature was added to the recreation work and looked forward to the time when the innovation will grow to such a scale that a special building will be required to accommodate the activity, inasmuch as hundreds of young boys and girls, who have the leaning toward music find it inconvenient to follow their wishes because of lack of means. This feature, with a nominal fee, allows them to receive instructions from capable instructresses.

Reports were also given by Mr. Veysey for the Dunbar Club, Mrs. Joseph Smith, of the Grammar School activities, and G. B. Zimmer for the gymnasium classes.

Two new members were taken in the committee at the meeting last night. They were Carol E. Runyon and Edward B. Cox.

The following standing committees were appointed:

Finance Committee—A. B. Jones, chairman; Champlain L. Riley, William S. Tyler, William M. Sandford.

Extension Committee—Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, chairman; Mrs. A. B. Jones, Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. H. Crofut White, Mrs. Walter H. P. Veysey.

TIER PROPERTY WILL BE SOLD ON NOVEMBER 27

Appearing before Chancellor Walker yesterday, Sheriff George Otto, of Elizabeth, was exonerated of a contempt charge brought against him by George W. V. Moy, of this city, counsel for Mrs. Augusta Marshall, who holds a $9,000 mortgage on the estate of Mrs. Gertrude Tier.

The Tier property, valued at about $40,000, has been subject to sheriff's sale for some time, but on each occasion when it was placed on sale Sheriff Otto announced an adjournment, explaining that he wished to give the widow an opportunity to dispose of it. Mrs. Tier claimed that she had several likely customers in view and the sheriff believed that she could sell it herself and gain more satisfactory results than if he sold it for the county. Chancellor Walker issued an order fixing October 27 as the date for the sale of the property.

Washington, Oct. 14.—General Carranza today was requested by the United States to protect the property of the American Smelting and Refining Company, which is operating mines in Mexico in the Chihauhau and Santa Eualia districts. General Villa is reported to have threatened to seize the properties and operate them, although the State Department has not as yet received official notification to this effect. NEW ERA DAWNING FOR JERSEY TRADE

J. Spencer Smith Talks to Newark Business Men.

J. Spencer Smith, president of the Board of Commerce and Navigation of New Jersey, at a meeting of the Board of Trade of Newark, held last night to discuss the free lighterage problem in the port of New York and the injustice worked upon New Jersey shippers, said:

"There is no need for me to dwell upon the importance of having a different railroad rate for New Jersey from that which New York and Long Island have to pay, as you gentlemen are alive to the handicap to our industries produced by the great inequalities that now exist.

"It is not always given to the pioneers who blaze the trail to reap the benefits accruing from their work, but it does look as though in this particular instance you gentlemen are going to have the pleasure of seeing one of the movements in the inauguration and starting of which you had so much to do, become an accomplished fact.

"The New Jersey Harbor Commission, which was taken over on the first of July by the present Board of Commerce and Navigation, early realized the importance of the discrimination against the Jersey portion of New York harbor. Much of its labors were along the lines of paving the way towards undertaking the action which now seems likely to be taken within the very near future.

"Had New Jersey been alive to its own welfare and long ago demanded the rights to which by its natural location it is entitled and should exercise, Brooklyn and Manhattan would not now be enjoying what is practically a monopoly of the transportation facilities of the great port of New York, and with it the bulk of the commerce centering in the metropolitan district, instead of the vast expanse of waste lands in our State bordering on the tidewater, and traversed by all the transcontinental railroads would be a great bee-hive of industry and manufacture.

"There can be no question that a new day and a new era is dawning for New Jersey and it is the work that you men here, in the Newark Board of Trade and similar commercial organizations throughout the State, are doing which will maintain in New Jersey as one of the great industrial States of the Union."

MISSION WORK IN THE "HERMIT KINGDOM"

Dr. A. Irving Ludlow Addresses Large Audience at Crescent Avenue Church.

"Missionary Work in Seoul" was the subject of an address by Dr. A. Irving Ludlow in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last night. Dr. Ludlow, who has spent a number of years in Corea, the "Hermit Kingdom," or, as the Japanese have renamed it Chosan, the "Land of the morning calm," where he couples the practice of medicine and surgery with religious teaching, gave an interesting outline of Corean history, the condition of that land before its occupation by the Japanese and its rapid progress since the Mikado's people brought in a flood of civilization. He says that while many of the Japanese laws are restrictive, but few of them are oppressive, while all have many features of great good to a country in the state of transition, which now prevails in Corea. The Japanese authorities are not only firm in government, but, as a rule, they are fair and just, responsive to courtesy and respectful to the foreigner.

Previous to the advent of Japanese rule everything in use was of a primitive nature, while in the country districts everything in life differed but little from the conditions of 2,000 years before. The people were the same simple-minded people as dwelt in the land when it was conquered by the Manchus. Since the Japanese came and conquered all is changed. Seoul, the capital, is now a modern city, with electric lights, trolley cars and all modern improvements, while the primitive implements of agriculture have been replaced by improved machinery. Means of transportation also have been greatly improved.

Since the advent of the missionary Christianity has made great progress and has gained a firm foothold in Corea. Previous to Japanese rule there were a number of great revivals, during which thousands espoused the Christian faith, but under Japanese rule there have been no great national revivals, but there is a steady, healthful growth, which is proving of more real lasting benefit than the revivals with all their great accessions of members, many of whom were Christians only in name, without any of the essence of the religion.

The cause of education has received a great impetus under the Japanese and while some of the educational laws may interfere to a certain extent with the work of some of the missionaries, in a general way Dr. Ludlow believes that they are good.

If those in charge of Christian churches will but use tact and follow policies which are sane he feels certain that there need be no fear of any laws which the Japanese may lay down.

He says that great strides are being made by the missionary schools and one of the new Japanese laws which have a direct bearing on these schools is one which requires every teacher to be able to read, write and speak the Japanese language.

In the medical school every physician or surgeon must be able to pass a searching examination before the medical board ere he can practice either branch of the medical profession.

Dr. Ludlow is in the United States in the interest of the volunteer student work, trying to enlist aid and support in advancing medical science and Christianity in the hermit land. He is the guest of Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, during his stay in Plainfield. Dr. Ludlow was one of the boys in Dr. Zelie's church in Cleveland, Ohio, a number of years ago.

WANT STATEMENT OF THEIR ATTITUDE

Civil Service Reform Association Quiz Principal Candidates.

The executive committee of the New Jersey Civil Service Reform Association has asked all principal candidates for the New Jersey Legislature for a statement of their attitude toward the merit system in State and municipal services.

The letter, sent out by the secretary, J. Frank Cornelius, states that the members of the association believe in the maintenance of the merit system and hope for its extension. The association is opposed to any further creation of privileged classes in the civil service on the ground that it is unjustifiable and detrimental to good administration. For this reason it is opposed to granting any further preference to veterans of the Spanish War, the Philippine Insurrection and the Boxer Rebellion.

"We would not," says the letter, "deny any proper recognition to those who fought in the wars of the country and do not oppose legislation providing for the relief and support of veterans, such as pension legislation but we hold that this recognition should take some other form than preference in the civil service which makes for a privileged class and discriminates against other classes of employes equally competent to serve the State."

The questions asked of the candidates, and replies to which will be made public, are:

"1. Are you in favor of the merit principle and if elected will you uphold the present civil service law?

"2. Will you favor legislation intended to strengthen the provisions of the civil service law and oppose any attempt to weaken it?

"3. Will you, if elected, oppose any attempt to insert in the law any provision which would increase the privileged classes?"

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press.

Dear sir—It has been said by some men having read the suffrage poster "Vote yes on October 19th" that they were not going to be told how to vote. Others say "I would not let my wife go to vote with the crowd, she would meet at the polls, besides her place is at home." In the first case, it seems to me that the poster is not to demand of men, but a reminder that they are, perhaps thoughtlessly, withholding from women something that belongs to them, and that this is a polite and special way of calling the attention of honest and fair-minded men to the fact that the time has arrived when they should obtain for the female part of the people that which they claim.

In the second case, men seem only to consider their own position and desires and act as if the women of the family were property. These men will some day understand that submission and obedience are two different things. When a woman promises to obey, she chooses that which is right regardless of result.

Home is no more the place for women at the proper time to be out than it is right for men to be always away from home at the proper time to be at home. Mutual interest should unselfishly regulate as occasion requires.

Men in America won their right to vote by militarism. Women at that time were not, as a rule, competent to serve in public and the men gallantly took business affairs upon themselves. Conditions have changed and now the women ask for their share of responsibility and that the men will concede it. It does not mean that women wish to usurp the rights or responsibilities of men, but to establish their own. Who gave men the right to vote If there are men and women who do not care to exercise the right to vote they may do as they please but they have no right to prevent others. The right to the franchise should be established for all—rich and poor, high and low, black and white. When one has been enfranchised there are obligations which must be met before the vote may be cast. The voter must register, etc. Now perhaps there could be added to the present obligations a few test questions as to morality, patriotism and intelligence, which must be met satisfactorily by each man and woman before he or she can register. This will necessitate a proper qualification before he or she can have the honor of voting. Thus no one need be disenfranchised, and no one would miss the votes of those who do not care to take the trouble or are otherwise unfit and unwilling to reach the standard required. Conclusion that is from principle and not based upon personality, or prejudice, or custom, will be from that which is true in itself and can be trusted with results.

I am writing this from a sense of duty and if you care to give it place in your paper I will be pleased to have you do so.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Adv.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney troubles, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

"HUB" STINE WILL PLAY AGAINST YALE TEAM NEXT

Herbert Stine, of Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, will play left tackle against the Yale University football eleven Saturday afternoon, when that team lines up against Springfield Training School. Stine has been a member of the Springfield squad for three years; but up to this fall played left guard.

To date the Springfield eleven has engaged in two victorious contests and expect to make a good showing against the Eli squad. On October 30, Stine will play with Springfield against Rutgers College on the Federal League grounds in Harrison. A number of his friends from this city expect to make up a party to attend the game at that time.

MAKE GOOD PROGRESS IN BOROUGH TOURNEY

N. P. H. S. Racquet Weilders Exhibit Class in Annual Title Event.

The opening round of the singles championship of North Plainfield High School was completed yesterday afternoon. The following will meet in the second round today: Dunning vs. Scarborough and Chandler vs. Sill. Force drew a bye so he has advanced to the semi-finals after winning his first match.

All the matches were won in convincing style, the ultimate winner usually taking the offensive. Chandler did not encounter the opposition which he expected in his match with Clay. The loser was apparently off his usual stride, as he was considered a possible winner, and exhibited an inferior brand of tennis, which his opponent took advantage of and ran out two straight sets, 6-2, 6-2.

Le Roy Force found little opportunity to exert himself in order to defeat Lee McGee, 6-0, 6-2.

Sidney Dunning came through victorious in his match with Warren Townley, winning in straight sets, 6-3, 9-7. The results follow: Sill defeated Kenworthy, 7-5, 6-4; Chandler defeated Clay, 6-2, 6-2; Force defeated McGee, 6-0, 6-2; Scarborough defeated Fisher, 6-4, 6-4; Dunning defeated Townley, 6-3, 9-7.

MILITARY PROGRAM WILL FEATURE SHOW

National Event Will Keep Abreast of Times With New Departure.

Keeping step with the spirit of the times the National Horse Show Association will this year give unusual prominence to military features at the annual Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, beginning on Saturday, November 6. The War Department and the National Guard are cooperating to make the exhibition a notable one in this respect, and both regular army officers and members of the militia organization of New York and other Eastern States will compete for the prizes. There are many of these this year, one of the new ones being the Beresford Challenge Cup offered by Lord Decies, of the British Army, who won the first international military competition for officers' chargers at the Garden in 1909.

Only officers of the United States Army or the National Guard, mounted on horses owned by themselves or by the government can enter for this trophy, which must be won twice by the same officer before it becomes his property.

The military features of the coming show will be entirely American, even to the judges, prominent officers of the regular army having been invited to award the prizes. Entries for the show will close today.

C. R. MALTBY CO. WILL NOT RETIRE

Old Established Concern to Continue in Business With Headquarters in N. Y.

The C. R. Maltby Company, which sold its grocery business at Corning, N. Y., to Heyniger, Pitt & Co., of that place, as reported yesterday, will not retire from business. It will continue as before its tea and coffee business, established in 1862, in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, the headquarters being at 138 Front street, New York city. W. S. Maltby, of this city, is the president of the company.

The concern simply disposed of its grocery stock to Heyniger, Pitt & Co., which has been in business at Corning for many years. As stated the deal was one of the largest ever recorded at Corning. Mr. Heyniger, who was born and formerly lived in Plainfield, was at one time connected with the C. R. Maltby Company, later withdrawing and associating himself with C. F. Pitt and Marvin Olcott.

LOCAL GOLFER ENTERED.

Invitations were sent out by Frederick A. Potts, chairman of the green committee of the Lakewood Country Club, yesterday, to golfers of the country asking them to participate in a men's invitation golf tournament to be played on the Country Club links on November 4, 5 and 6. Mrs. Potts, who is listing the women players who will be here for the women's tournament on October 28, 29 and 30, has received an acceptance from Mrs. Stockton, of this city.

A CALL TO THE MEN.

In 1776 Imperial Europe mocked, laughed to scorn the puny unpreparedness of the self-governing individual. But the puny unprepared individual made good. And so will the wives, sweethearts, mothers and helpmates of free men make good. Give us a chance!

This question must be decided by you wherever you may be, in kitchen, nursery and laundry, in workshop, factory and foundry, at the desk or in the sanctum. It is vital to all of us men and women alike.

It is but a few days till the test is on. "Will you make the great ideal of American Womanhood come true?" as an exchange puts it. With a strong pull—and a pull together—to make our glorious America a real Democracy—the greatest union ever seen on the face of the earth. You can do it by voting Yes to the Woman Suffrage Amendment at the Polls, October 19.

QUESTION OF "BRAINS."

"If women have not brains enough to vote, we don't see how they have brains enough to be trusted with a child," says the Boston Evening Record. Which means that if your mother was to be trusted with your education, and if your wife is to be trusted with that of your son, why aren't they good enough to govern themselves.

NOT A NEW IDEA.

A Socialist couple wed in Pittsburg this week with the understanding that they stay married only so long as their love endured, and they call it a new thought. Old as the hills. That's the way we wanted to bet on Philadelphia, so long as they were winning, but we couldn't find the men we were looking for.

WE WONDER!

If old Christopher should see us all now, we wonder if he would brag about it.

In addition to the traffic policeman at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street during the rush hours in the morning, a man should be placed at Park avenue and Fifth street. There are scores, if not hundreds, of children who pass that corner daily on the way to school, just at the time when many automobiles and wagons are hurrying along the street, so that their occupants can catch the trains between 7:55 and 8:36. That there has not been an accident there already is remarkable, and the matter is one for police correction.

The Bell Telephone System in the United States reports from January 1 to August 31, 1915, gross earnings of $156,750,425, against $149,669,237 in the same period in 1914. Net earnings are $42,794,542, compared with $38,903,954 last year, and the surplus after dividends have been paid amounts to $8,944,877, against $6,078,820.—News Item.

And of course they will still contend that the rates now being charged in this section of the country are not too high.

There was no less interest in the world's series this year than has been the case in the past. Smaller crowds of men watched the bulletin boards for the simple reason that many more men are working in this city than was the case in 1913 and 1914. The number of inquiries over the telephone at the Press office was greater than in the past.

The loud, screeching horns on the automobile fire apparatus are a necessity when on the way to a fire. But what excuse there is, especially at night, for keeping them in operation when returning from an alarm, we fail to see. The way the racket is kept up is entirely unnecessary.

According to the Democratic State platform, which Governor Fielder is said to have helped draft, there is now a milion dollars in the treasury. But it is all on paper. That old gag has been worked too many times. If it is there it is because of economy measures passed by a Republican Legislature.

The vaudeville war in town is at least of benefit to the theatregoing public. Seldom are such bills seen in a town this size as has been the case during the past few weeks.

Now that Boston has routed Philadelphia's attack, the Kaiser may find his way back on front pages.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 19—State referendum election, and third registration day in municipalities of more than 5,000 people.

October 26—Third and final registration day in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

November 2—General Election Day.

County Clerk John J. McGovern, as chairman of the Democratic County Committee of Hudson, has issued a call to members of the committee to meet tomorrow night for the purpose of ratifying the entire Democratic ticket chosen at the recent primaries. Both Wittpenn and anti-Wittpenn men are expected to be present and voice their approval of the candidates, who also have been invited to attend. Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn and Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead have been invited to address the meeting, but the latter leaves today to spend a few days in the Adirondacks.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Essex County Democratic Committee, Monday night, James R. Nugent addressed the members, urging them to keep on the job day and night in the interest of organization. Mr. Nugent declared that the chances for a complete city and county victory in Newark and Essex were very bright. He said that the Republicans were going into the contest with their forces divided, whereas the Democrats were united. The county fight, Mr. Nugent opined, would be easy, but he urged special effort for the city ticket. Former Sheriff John F. Monahan was unanimously re-elected chairman of the executive committee.

ALLIANCE SERVICES.

Services of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be held at the German Reformed church, the borough, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and in the evening at 7:30 o'clock, the subject for the afternoon being "Daniel's Seventy Weeks." There will also be a meeting Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

WILL HOLD SOCIAL.

The Daughters of Liberty will conduct a social in their local headquarters Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Rev. Dr. Edward Lincoln Smith, of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, will preach at the Congregational church at the Sunday morning service.

Letter From The Czar

Dear Offaginsky—Ain't I having a heck of a time? My cabinet has resigned and I had to go to the front instead of staying at home to attend a session of the cabinet-makers' union, thereby getting away behind with my workovitch.

I don't see that I need a cabinet very much, anyway. I'm getting sorto discouraged. I thought that if I led the German (this is no dance stuff, so don't pull a wheezeovitch out of "leading the German")—I thought that if I led the German army away off into the hills somewhere and lost it, those allies on the western line could do as they pleased, and come right into Berlin. But they seem only to have improved the opportunity to make their trenches deeper and get ready for the winter.

Some of these times I'm going to turn the army around and start it the other way. I ever I should lose my sense of direction and meet the enemy face to face instead of back to face, who knows but that we might annoy them like everything?

Yours for the sprinting industry,

Parents

Parents are a great responsibility to their children.

Many a child would have an entirely unhampered career if it were not for the annoyance caused by having a full set of parents on its hands.

The greatest difficulty children have with their parents is to get them to conduct the household affairs to suit the children.

I have known children to labor in marvelous patience—with the exception of an occasional outburst—with the stubbornest of parents, for years and years, yet attain no noticeable results.

The great trouble in the matter of children's discipline over parents is the fact that the parents are so old and so set in their ways by the time the children get at them, that the task confronting the conscientious child who takes pride in its parents is really appalling.

Nobody not possessing the confident enthusiasm of youth, whose bright lexicon shows a deplorable lack of that word "fail," would even tackle the job, let alone work at it.

Personally, we never quite gave up trying to make something out of our parents. They were nice folks, but never did quite as we would have chosen for them.

Sometimes we would beat our father sorely—pounding the palm of his large, strong hand with the seat of our trousers, until we were really sick of the job.

But we would find our hope rising again after a few days—phoenixing pertly from the ashes and we would try again.

Children who wish to avoid heavy responsibility ought to try to get along without parents.

Scarlet Fever

SCARLATINA, scarlet rash and scarlet fever are different names for the same disease—and the disease is always contagious, no matter what label we apply to it. Not from the skin, but from the secretions. And as long as there is any sort of discharge, as from a running ear, for instance, the child may spread the scarlet fever contagion, be it days or weeks after the rash has disappeared.

Nursing babies are almost immune. Adults are often susceptible.

The disease is somewhat less fatal than measles, but not so fatal as whooping cough.

The specific germ is still unidentified—but it is believed to be a form of streptococcus, one of the most virulent germs in surgical cases.

The first symptoms appear in from twenty-four hours to a week after exposure, usually two or three days.

The onset is rather sudden—chill or, in young children, a convulsion being common. Vomiting is suspicious. Fever appears, accompanied with a sore throat, but no cough as in measles. The face looks flushed. The tongue is furred and, after a day or two, shows peculiar red papillae, the "strawberry tongue."

After a few days (two or three) the rash appears in the form of a general blush or flush with very fine, evenly spread red points—first on neck and chest. The rash looks less blotchy, less measly than measles. It lasts seven or eight days, and is followed by peeling of the skin. This peeling or desquamation serves to identify the disease in the medical eye weeks after the rash has gone.

There is usually a follicular tonsillitis with the rash. In measles instead of sore throat the child has coryza (head "cold") and cough.

Streptococcus complications, such as endocarditis (acute valvular inflammation of the heart), and acute joint inflammation, and acute middle ear inflammation (gathering in the inner ear) are apt to occur.

The kidneys, injured by the toxins or poisons of the scarlet fever streptococcus, are apt to become inflamed—either acute or chronic nephritis (Bright's disease).

Because of these complications the physician must watch the patient throughout, long after the fever and rash have disappeared.

The time has passed when a scarlet fever patient was kept penned up in an over-heated room. Nowadays fresh air is allowed in plenty, but the child is kept comfortably dressed at all times. Kidneys, like other organs, do better work on fresh air. Certainly the middle ear infection is less liable to occur when the child receives plenty of cool air.

THE GAS METER

THE Gas Meter is to mechanism what Baron Munchausen is to literature. It is inaccuracy protected by a patent. It is also the nearest approach to perpetual motion yet discovered. Leave a gas meter absolutely alone in a deserted house for months at a time and it will work quietly but faithfully without stopping even for meals.

The gas meter is used by gas companies to prove that the consumer has been burning his lights all night and has been sending up balloons from the roof. It is a small box with face and hands like a clock. Here the resemblance stops, however. You cannot turn the meter back and it does not run down. It does you no good to neglect the gas meter. It keeps on going anyway. The man who will patent an attachment which will enable a man to stop his gas meter by forgetting to wind it will earn the gratitude of all mankind.

The gas meter brings light to the home, lightness to the pocket-book and aviation to the temper. Like the Bible, it is always causing trouble by being read from different standpoints. The only difference between a theological conference and the office of a gas company on the first of the month is the fact that the language used in the conference is used backward in the gas office. A man may be able to read Greek, Latin and Sanskrit at sight, but he will find for all that that he can't read as much gas out of his meter by several hundred feet as the man in overalls who gets into the house through the sill-cock on unknown occasions and reads the dials in the dark. Only men of romantic and imaginative dispositions are successes in the meter reading business.

Meters are very strongly made and it is almost impossible to bias their judgment even with an axe. The confidence of a gas company in its meters is one of the most touching examples of perfect faith in the world. If a gas meter reports the use of 11,000 feet of gas while the family has been in Europe, the president of the gas company will not only accept its statement without question, but he will endeavor to place it in the home of some other family which is going to Europe. More than one gas magnate has had serious doubts about the truthfulness of George Washington, but he never doubts a meter until it fails to register anything. Then it is brought in to be repaired.

"The gas meter brings light to the home, lightness to the pocket-book and aviation to the temper"

Gas meters have much influence on American families. They have made more people go to bed early than all the teachers of all the ages. They have broken up more courtships than any other one thing. They also exercise a discriminating influence over literature. It takes a good story indeed to hold a man's attention late at night while in the cellar below the gas meter is steadily clicking its way towards a record-breaking gas bill.

Views Of The Press

France

IT IS easy and often misleading to personify a nation, to speak of it as if it were a man. But a nation is not a man, it is made up of many men, all different, and in one generation the men are not all mere copies of those in another.

The folly of generalization must strike those who a few years ago were talking of light-headed, unstable, superficial France. It must strike them as they see the grim, taciturn, unshakable nation that goes so imperturbably and almost silently about its work, "such work as few ever had laid on head and heart and hand." They must see it as they note the transference to the French of the characteristics that in their generalizations they called Teutonic. They see a nation going to war with no parade, with no noise, with no vainglory or boasting, but with a set and indomitable purpose and a silent unanimity. There is loyalty in all the warring nations, but nowhere does a nation move as one man, nowhere does a single purpose animate every soul, nowhere does each act seem the act not of a nation but of a single colossal individual, as in France.

Its heroism is not the heroism of individuals, but the heroism of a nation, and that nation fills the heart of every man in it to the exclusion of everything else. Its remorseless reconstruction of itself, its cold and steady decapitation of every weak or stupid leader, its subordination of all the things in life to one aim, and the steady and fateful way it has gone about the achievement of that aim, are not the acts of a volatile and irresponsible people.

The losses of France have been more frightful than those of other countries, but no groan escapes her. And this spirit animates not her governors alone, but the unknown men and women who are France, down to the least. She is unrecognizable by her portraits. They were painted by men who had 1870 in mind, and 1870 is dead; 1870, boastful, degenerate, vain, and careless. Or they had 1793 in mind; determined enough, but passionate, headlong, empirical, and visionary; and 1793 is dead. Long after 1870, they looked back at the story of the nineteenth century, with its frequent revolutions and its kaleidoscope of fads, and predicted the failure of the Third Republic, because an incurably restless, frivolous man, easily tired of every new fad he has taken up, will surely tire of the next one; it is his character. But a nation is not a man, and the headlong visionaries of 1793 and the dilettante cynics of 1870, who lived in a time when faith and works were dead, have passed away. The Third Republic has lasted nearly half a century, and grown stronger year by year; and under it there has grown up a great new people, for a new people can grow up in an old land. The drunken France of the nineteenth century is gone for good, and there rises where it lived and died

BY E. R. BRANSON

An Agent's Claim

Q. Some difference of opinion has arisen as to whether a certain person is the agent of another. Would one be justified in relying on the supposed agent's statements to the effect that he is an agent?

A. Not altogether. His mere statements to this effect will not be sufficient. The fact of the agency may be established by showing that the person for whom he is supposed to be acting has in fact conferred such authority upon him. Or it may be established by showing that the principal so conducted himself as to lead an ordinarily prudent person, when dealing with the agent, to believe that the agency existed. Further, if the principal approved or ratified the agent's acts, after performance, the principal will be held liable.

A Job Put Off

Q. I made an agreement with a certain person. He was to perform some work and I was to pay him a stipulated price. The agreement was that the work was to be done within three months. Six months have now elapsed and he has failed to carry out his part of the undertaking. Do I have to wait on him any longer, or is he liable now, under his contract?

A. He is liable now under his contract.

A Light Obligation

Q. If two persons form a partnership and nothing is said as to how long it is to continue, when may it be dissolved?

A. Under such circumstances, it may be dissolved at any time at the pleasure of either partner.

A Calendar Year

Q. I hold a man's contract, by which he promises to pay a certain sum of money in one year. Does this mean a calendar year?

A. Yes, unless some other meaning is given to the word "year" by the terms of the contract or the understanding of the parties.

Private 'Phone Line

Q. Does an individual have the right to own and operate a telephone line, or is such right given to corporations exclusively?

A. An individual has such right.

A Note Undated

Q. I hold a promissory note which has no date. Can the note be collected?

A. Yes. It will be necessary, in such case, to show the date on which the note was delivered. It will be operative as a note from such time.

A Street Car Accident—Whose Fault?

Q. If a street car is operated at a high rate of speed, and some one on the street is injured, will not such fact make the company liable?

A. Liability will not grow out of such fact alone. If the car is operated at an excessive rate of speed, and such fact is the proximate cause of the injury—that is, if it can be shown that the injury would not have ensued if the car had been operated at an ordinary rate—there will be a liability.

The Life Line

BY LAURA KIRKMAN

The Delicate Person

We stumble across him in the street car, reading the war news. We see from his intense expression that he has followed every step of it—is snapping up the latest bits of news with avidity. "What do you make of it?" we ask frankly. "I can't quite get onto things over there." But the delicate man can't make it out, either. His face adopts the puzzled expression on our face. Again, we meet him, and mispronounce a word. "How do you say that, anyway?" we throw out frankly, remembering that we once heard him pronounce it. But again he professes ignorance. Steadily, from choice, he is building up for himself a reputation as an ignoramus. We wonder that he doesn't spend his life collecting cigar stumps.

The Person Who Toys At Work

We all know him. That's his business—making himself known to us. He spends three-fourths of the day that way. "What I'm going to do," is the song he sings. Some of us like him, but we don't respect him. Our liking for him is based on the irresistible charm of his audacity. We are arrested by his flourishes, just as we stand agape at a sudden, unexpected blare of trumpets. That's it: we haven't regard for him; we have only attention for him. He's satisfied with skimmed milk when there's cream on his table.

Current Poetry

Himself

The houseful that we were then, you could count us by the dozens,
The wonder was that sometimes the old walls wouldn't burst:
Herself (the Lord be good to her), the aunts and rafts of cousins,
The young folk and the children—but Himself came first.

Master of the House he was, and well for them that knew it:
His cheeks like winter apples and his head like snow:
Eyes as blue as water when the sun of March shines through it,
And steppin' like a soldier with his stick held so.

Faith, but he could tell a tale would serve a man for wages,
Sing a song would put the joy of dancin' in two sticks;
But saints between themselves and harm that saw him in his rages,
Blazin' and oratin' over chess and politics.

Master of the House he was, and that beyond all saytin',
Eh, the times I've heard him exhortin' from his chair
The like of any Bishop, yet snappin' off his prayin'
To put the curse on Phelan's dog for howlin' in the prayer.

The times I've seen him walkin' out like Solomon in glory,
Salutin' with great elegance the gentry he might meet;
An eye for every pretty girl, an ear for every story,
And takin' as his just deserts the middle of the street.

Master of the House—with much to love and be forgiven,
Yet, thinkin' of Himself to-day—Himself—I see him go
With the old light step of his, across the Courts of Heaven,
His hat a little sideways and his stick held so.

P. H. S. ROMPS OVER SOMERVILLE BOYS

Rolled up a Score of 71 to 0 in Unexciting Game Yesterday.

Once upon a time the Somerville High School had a football team that was worthy of the name but the line-up the up-State school presented at Parker Field yesterday, when it succumbed to P. H. S. by the overwhelming score of 71 to 0, was but a wreck of its former self. Never during the afternoon's gruesome work did the visitors threaten to make things hot for the locals and only once did they show any promise of scoring. The Red and Blue warriors, particularly Roy Apgar, Herb Peacock, Bill Daniels and Bernard Miller, were the most brilliant stars in an unusually bright constellation.

From the moment Referee Roy Phillips set the ball in motion, Coach Patch's boys rushed at the "Golden" boys and were up and doing ever after. During the first half the locals carried the pigskin for all sorts of gains and in only one instance for a loss. Daniels earned a touchback at the expense of Roy Faulks, who fumbled the ball and who lost his foothold in doing so, Daniels carrying both Faulks and the ball back over the line. Also during the first half Peacock, Apgar, Daniels and Miller jogged the ball around for touchdowns bowling over what little opposition they encountered. And right here it must be said that the Somerville team consisted of but two men, Aaron Johnson, the colored quarterback, and Hawley, both of whom were stars both in the tackling and rushing lines. The real merit of Johnson's work was most prominently brought to the fore when Bill Daniels, in the last half, after having "playfully" upset four Somerville men, rushed diligently for the touchdown territory only to find that a man of his own race and one of equal ability was there ahead of him. The result of the clash was a momentary reverse for the locals and a discolored eye for Johnson, who gamely stuck to his post.

To describe the one-sided argument would be to repeat the same statements over and over. The visitors were never aggressive enough to upset a bowl of soup and had about as much "pep" as a carload of soldiers "fresh" from the trenches. Hawley was always there when a tackle was in the way. In this respect Van Arsdale also shone. But the rest of the line was about as hard as an egg and offered very little resistance to the locals whenever a concentrated rush was undertaken. On more than one occasion Bill Daniels and Roy Apgar made successful thirty-yard runs, piling up the Somerville eleven in all manner of heaps.

At the end of the third quarter Coach Patch decided that enough damage had been done and in order that Somerville might be given a show and that the local regulars might enjoy to the fullest extent a well-earned rest. The Somerville coach evidently thought that some of his boys had been mauled enough and he, too, ordered a few of them removed.

One of the most amusing situations ever recorded in the annals of local gridiron comedy came to pass when Yellas, a Somerville "infant," was sent in to take the place of Faulks, who was injured during one of the annihilating rushes of the locals. Yellas strutted on the field as proud as a peacock, although very much smaller than that bird in stature. He was assigned a place as opponent for Leonard Lewis, and Leonard had his hands full. When Yellas began his operations the P. H. S. "yelling" symphony orchestra, led by Carlton Dunham, gave three cheers for "youth." The local subs, particularly Sidney Butler and Don Hylan, showed to decided advantage, Butler registering tackle after tackle. Jim Noonan, his leg strained, played only in the last quarter.

The local gridiron heroes stack up against the Westfield clan at the latter place Saturday. The Gilmartin contingent is reported as being very strong and the Red and Blue lads are saving up their surplus energy.

The lineup:

FAMOUS OUTFIELD OF BOSTON RED SOX

The above trio were potent factors in bringing the world's baseball classic to the Boston Americans and have been a sensational fielding outfit throughout the season. With eight hits for an average of .444, Duffy Lewis, the first man in the group, led the hitters of both teams. His many telling licks made him the individual star of the series and he also pulled off some sensational fielding stunts in left field.

Tris Speaker, the middle man in the group, ranked third in the hitting line, but his swats were all timely and numbered five.

Harry Hooper, the bottom man, needs no introduction. His two home runs were the feature of the last game and his second four-sack clout brought the championship to the Beantown outfit.

$50,000 FOR POLO FIELD.

Work on the construction of the largest and finest polo field in the country was started this morning on the grounds of the Meadow Brook Country Club, the scene of last year's international polo match, at Westbury, L. I. This new playing field will be 450 by 900 feet and will represent an outlay of over $50,000 when completed. To make this field possible the club recently purchased eighteen acres of land, adjoining the present field, at a cost of $20,000.

BRAVES BREAKING UP.

Boston, Oct. 14.—The breaking up of the Braves in preparation for the rebuilding of the team next season began yesterday when the business manager, Walter E. Hapgood, announced that Herbia Moran, outfielder, and Bert Whaling, catcher, had been released to the Venice, Cal., Club. In return the Braves receive Willhoit, an outfielder with a high batting average. The New York Americans obtained Willhoit by draft, but released claim.

FANS TOOK ADVANTAGE OF DAILY PRESS SERVICE.

Nearly 1,000 baseball fanatics thronged the street in front of the Daily Press office yesterday afternoon, to get the returns from the final game of the World's Series match between Boston and Philadelphia. The crowd was no larger than that of previous afternoons, the first-hand information furnished by the Press sporting department having attracted the biggest gathering of "scoreboard fans" in Union county during each game of the big series.

Not a single hitch was encountered in receiving and giving out the returns, every play being described exactly as it occurred a few seconds after the actual happening in Boston or Philadelphia. V. W. Nash, Jr., and John T. Caulfield furnished the fans with the megaphoned returns, while Jack Martin operated the Press scoreboard as his teammates were going down to defeat in Quakertown. Frank O. Dunning, Jr., kept the Daily Press box score, and in each one of the five games his records agreed with the official tally in all of the main points. The Daily Press box score was placed in the hands of newsboys from four to six minutes after each contest, "beating" metropolitan baseball extras, which were not as complete, by nearly two hours and also getting the "jump" on all other Union county and State extras.

"A HARD FIGHT"—CARRIGAN.

"Bill" Carrigan, manager of the Boston Red Sox, carried his honors lightly and modestly off the field.

"It was a hard fought series, and the best team won," he said. "I never saw a series so interesting and so hotly contested. The Phils deserve a lot of credit. They put up a stiff battle every minute. They gave us a fight all the way through.

"Of course, we were favored by some luck. We had several breaks in the games, but the results are self-evident. The best team won. We outplayed the Phillies.

"All my men did splendid work. They worked like Trojans for me. As for me, I am elated. We encountered masterful pitching from the Phil staff. I wish the Phils all kinds of luck and hope that they will cop the pennant in their league next season."

"BEST TEAM WON"—MORAN.

Manager Moran, of the Phillies, had this to say after the game:

"When you are beaten four times in a row there isn't anything to alibi. Any team that wins four consecutive games in a world series must be given credit. We played our best. We gave all we had. We didn't have any excuse to offer. Our team was the best in the National League and the Sox was the best American League club. And as they beat us they naturally should be regarded as the best ball club in the country."

CHANCE FOR AMATEURS IN MEMORIAL TOURNEY

The prizes offered by the Amateur Athletic Union—a free trip to San Francisco to the winner and a 14-k gold watch to the second man in each of the eight classes—are attracting all of the best amateur boxers in the east for the James E. Sullivan Memorial Boxing Tournament at the Crescent A. C. and New York A. C. gymnasiums on October 29 and 30. Applications for entry blanks were received yesterday from boxers in Boston, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Troy and New Haven, and it is expected that many of these out-of-town boys will spring surprises on the local boxers who have been in the limelight so long.

The first actual entry received was from John Joseph Stigliabotti, who entered in the 158-lb. class. He is eighteen years old, six feet three in his stocking feet and weighs 165 lbs. at the present time, but feels sure he can make 158 lbs. by the night of the tournament. In this class he will probably meet J. Gaddi, the New York State champion; Kaufman, the National champion; Shons, of Pittsburgh, the Middle Atlantic champion, and Brown, of Boston, the New England champion. Entries will close on October 26th with Frederick W. Rubien, 21 Warren street, New York city.

"PEGS," WITH STAR OUTFIT, PLAN TO OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON ON NOV. 3

Spectators of the practice basketball games of the P. E. G. S. which have been held in the Plainfield High School gymnasium, for the last three Wednesday nights, are a unit in declaring that even the second representative quintet of that organization would be a hard opponent to defeat. The club boasts of the cream of local feminine basketball stars, graduates from the Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools, as well as former performers on independent teams. Every girl on the team is well-known to local fans, and when the initial game of the season is offered on Wednesday night, November 3, it is safe to predict that a large turnout of rooters will be on hand to cheer their favorites.

Last night a new face was seen in the lineup, Miss Jessie Stewart, former captain of the Plainfield High School five and an all-round athlete, having given in her application as a member of the society. Miss Stewart is an alumnus of the Plainfield High School. She was a star forward during her school days, and witnesses of her "come back" last night, say that she has lost none of her old form. Miss Stewart will occupy the berth of forward on the local quintet. Among the other members who are out for positions as forwards are the Misses Helen and Ida Hummel, Ida Brookes, Christien Vestergard and Lillian Spencer.

Miss Clara Smith, president of the society, superintended the coaching at the practice last night and feels highly enthusiastic about the progress of the members. The young women out for position of center and side center are the Misses Theresa McCullough, Mildred McAuliffe, Mary Flynn, Vera Flynn, Lucy Johnson and Jennie Bremble.

The guard positions are unusually well filled, a strong array of material being available for this important position, the following trying out: Misses Clara Smith, Elsie Debele, Florence Waglow, Sadie Brancati, Bessie Morris, Ellen Doughty and Clementine Bremble.

P. C. C. TENNIS TEAM WINS EVERY GAME

Defeats New Brunswick Players in Singles and Doubles on Local Courts.

The women's tennis team of the Plainfield Country Club defeated a team from the New Brunswick Club, on the former's courts yesterday afternoon, the local players winning every match. The play developed several very interesting matches. Afterward the visiting players were entertained at tea at the clubhouse. There will probably be a return match soon. Yesterday's results follow:

Singles—Mrs. Howard Craig defeated Miss Deshler, 9-7, 62; Mrs. R. S. Rowland defeated Mrs. Schenck, 6-3, 6-4; Miss Edith Beers defeated Miss Prentiss, 6-0, 6-1; Mrs. W. B. Tyler defeated Miss Runyon, 6-0, 6-2.

Doubles — Mrs. Howard Craig and Miss Edith Beers defeated Miss Deshler and Mrs. Schenck, 6-2, 6-1; Mrs. W. B. Tyler and Mrs. R. S. Rowland defeated Miss Runyon and Miss Rolston, 6-3, 6-2.

MRS. WEAVER AFTER CUP.

Mrs. S. F. Weaver, formerly of this city; Miss Elizabeth H. Moore and Miss Marie Wagner, all well-known in women's tennis circles, and who have all held a share in national indoor or outdoor titles, were the only survivors at the end of the second day's play in the Bedford Park Tennis Club's invitation tourney yesterday. Mrs. Weaver and Miss Moore are semi-finalists and Miss Wagner has reached the final.

COYLE AND LEE MAY GET INTO SATURDAY'S MATCH

A stiff workout is in store for the Holy Cross football players when they report to Coach Eddie Stallings on the Watchung avenue practise field at 7:30 tonight. It is hoped that Billy Coyle and Frank Lee will be in trim for Saturday's game against the Colonial A. C., of Brooklyn, and both of these stars will be on hand for drill tonight. Coyle has been suffering from blood poisoning.

Jerry Manning, one of the backfield mainstays, who was compelled by blood poisoning to retire early in Tuesday's game, is rounding into shape again and it is expected that he will be one of the big ground gainers Saturday. The Colonials rank about on a par with the Cupids, who defeated the locals Tuesday, and Stallings anticipates a hard struggle for his men.

WELCOME FOR TOURISTS.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 14.—The commissioners of the Dixie Highway, who are touring the great roadway from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, will arrive in Atlanta tonight, and will be royally welcomed by city and State officials, and by the motor associations of the State. Some 300 cars form the cavalcade which will reach Atlanta from Chattanooga late this afternoon. Tomorrow morning the motorists will continue their tour. The long trip will end at Miami a week from tonight. The motorists made their start from Chicago on Saturday, October 9.

OFFICERS FOR NEW CITY BASKETBALL CIRCUIT ARE UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED

Election of officers for the new City Basketball League at the meeting in the Daily Press editorial rooms last night, resulted in the following being named unanimously: Vice president, William V. Sullivan (Columbus Club); secretary, John T. Caulfield (Columbus Club); treasurer, William Taylor (Y. M. C. A.). Paul R. Collier, who was recently elected president of the organization, attended the meeting and considerable work was accomplished. It was decided to move the opening date of the season ahead to the second week in November and the lists of registered players will be turned in at a meeting to be held Friday night, October 22.

Each team will be provided with jerseys or suits of a distinctive color before the opening of the season, and William Taylor and Jack Ricketts were appointed by President Collier to confer with the management of the St. Joseph's church team relative to having it take out a franchise.

The question of officials was settled by naming Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood, and James J. MacNamee, of this city, to do the refereeing. It is the intention of the league to use but two officials inasmuch as there will be but two games on any one night.

"Trade-marked" articles—things sold by NAME or DISTINGUISHING and IDENTIFYING BRAND—must be kept at the highest standard of quality. The VALUE must never vary. For a maker to "cheapen" such an article would be to throw away the prestige he had fought so hard, and advertised so effectinvely, to gain.

Household Hints

VASELINE ON SHOES

Use vaseline as a dressing for patent leather shoes and they will not crack so easily. Put the vaseline on before the shoes are worn and about once each week—no other dressing will be needed. If the shoes are warmed slightly before putting them on they will last much longer.

SOUTHERN DISH

Kentucky Scalloped Potatoes — Slice potatoes and lay in the water half an hour. Place a layer of potatoes in a well buttered baking dish, sprinkle with pepper, salt and pieces of butter; repeat the process until there is a sufficient quantity. Pour over this enough milk to cover and bake an hour and a half or until the potatoes are thoroughly cooked. If onions are liked with the potatoes, alternate layers may be used.

BREAKFAST TRAY

The plan of serving individual breakfast trays to guests in their rooms is increasing in popularity, and for this nothing is more satisfactory than the set made of enameled ware. The tray, covered with a lace trimmed or embroidered cloth, has its covered plate and cereal dish, its little sugar bowl and pitcher of hot milk, its pot of coffee or tea holding only two cups, all in a quaintly pretty design and indestructible in their daintiness.

CANNING AND PRESERVING

To Dry Sweet Corn—Take young tender ears, scrape from cob. Place about one quart of corn in saucepan, heat very hot until all milk of corn has been heated thoroughly, stirring constantly; then spread on plates and dry in oven with moderate heat. Stir occasionally. When corn is dry enough, so as not to stick together, place it in a pan on back of range and let it stand for several hours before putting in pail.

Catsup Recipe — Take one-half bushel ripe tomatoes. Scald, peel and cut them into pieces. Put on to boil and stir constantly so as to avoid burning. When boiled up put through colander. Put on to boil again, take off scum which forms, then add following ingredients.

One heaping teaspoon salt, one heaping tablespoon ground cinnamon, one heaping teaspoon allspice, one heaping teaspoon cloves, one level teaspoon red pepper, 1½ cups sugar, one cup white vinegar or cider vinegar, three medium-sized onions chopped fine. Boil this until real thick. Put into pint fruit jars and seal tight.

The average number of pint jars from one-half bushel nice ripe tomatoes is nine, and the cost about thirty-five cents for the finished product.

Indian Relish—One peck green tomatoes, one-half cup salt; chop and let drain over night. In morning add following items (chopped): One medium-size head cabbage, six medium-size onions, three red peppers, two green peppers, one medium bunch celery, five cups sugar, two tablespoons whole celery seed, two tablespoons mustard seed, two tablespoons cloves tied in bag. Boil in three quarts vinegar for one-half hour or until onions are soft.

Cabbage and Sweet Corn Relish—One dozen ears corn; pour boiling water over corn and let stand covered twenty minutes, then cut corn off the cob. One large cabbage cut fine, two or three red peppers (small ones) chopped fine, one teaspoon celery seed, one tablespoon salt, three pints vinegar, 2½ cups brown sugar, one small box dry mustard. Mix well and boil twenty minutes. Should be covered with vinegar. Put in sealed bottles.

To seal catsup and grape juice bottles without corks, take three-inch square piece of strong white cloth; heat sealing wax and while hot apply to center of cloth. Put it immediately on top of bottle, press down firmly to make airtight. Tie down corners of cloth with twine. Then dip neck of bottle in hot sealing wax to give outer coating. To break seal, remove cold by breaking wax with a quick twist of the hand or dip in hot water. No corks or corkscrew is necessary.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Montreal.—Lady Drummond, one of the most famous of Canadian women, is now a grandmother. A son has been born to the widow of Capt. Guy Drummond, the only son of Lady Drummond. The gallant captain was killed at the front, but his posthumous child will carry forth the great name of Drummond, so dear to Canadian women. Lady Drummond has received the news at the London hospital, where she is engaged in Red Cross work. The grief over the loss of her only son is assuaged by the news that was sent last week by his widow. Lady Drummond organized charity bureaus in Montreal, and was the first president of the Montreal Council of Women. She was for many years prominent in the movement for woman suffrage, and lent her aid ungrudgingly to every movement for the betterment of her sex. Her son fell at St. Julien while rallying the fleeing Turcos who were falling back in confusion before the deadly gases from the German front.

San Francisco.—That many girls in Europe have told her they would much prefer being a plural mate of a man who could give them a pleasant home, where they could live a useful life, to being old maids, is the statement of Miss Emma Lucy Gates, granddaughter of Brigham Young, the pioneer Mormon leader. Miss Gates advocates polygamy as the means of repopulating Europe, and she states from her personal observation in Europe that the women of the warring nations are today ready to accept polygamous marriages.

"I was twelve years in Berlin," she says, "and I have heard numbers of German women say they thought it far better to have a home and family on a polygamous basis than the system of monogamy which in Europe tacitly permits several affinities.

"I have known many families in Utah where there are several wives and I have known many unmarried girls in Europe, where matrimony is the only career, and I am convinced that the woman who is one of the many wives is happier than the permanent spinster."

Pittsburgh, Pa.—To the long and patient efforts of Dr. Johanna T. Baltrusaitis, of Pittsburgh, the Lithuanian language which was forbidden the conquered people of her native land by a Russian edict in 1865, has been revived in America. Dr. Baltrusaitis is the first child born of Lithuanian parents in America. She is a full-fledged doctor, a member of many local organizations of women, and her husband publishes a newspaper. It was at her home in Plymouth, Pa., that the movement in America to revive the Lithuanian language was started, and now there are about 30 Lithuanian publications in the country. She writes for her fellow-countrywomen in the native language, lectures among them, and is doing a great work in teaching them American ideals.

New York.—The high cost of titles is growing in England. With the assessment of a 33 1-3 per cent. income tax, many American girls are hard hit by an added burden that was never dreamed of when they made their foreign alliances. Here are a few of the American women who are most heavily assessed, and the estimated annual tax they will pay:

Mrs. William B. Leeds, formerly of Boston	$300,000
Mrs. David Beatty, daughter of Marshal Field	200,000
Duchess of Roxburgh, nee May Goelet, of New York.	170,000
Lady Granard, formerly Beatrice Mills, of New York	100,000
Lady Waldstein, formerly Mrs. Seligman, of New York	60,000
Duchess of Manchester, Cincinnati girl	60,000
Lady Cecil Bingham, formerly Mrs. Alice Chauncey	40,000
Lady Newborough, formerly Grace Carr, of Louisville.	40,000
Mrs. John Jacob Astor, formerly Ava Willing	30,000
Duchess of Marlborough, Consuelo Vanderbilt	25,000

It is estimated that many thousands of American residents in England will be affected by the new income tax. Mrs. "Billy" Leeds, who built a palace near London, is the hardest hit. She has been doing hospital work and has already contributed handsomely to the relief work. It is said that she is not complaining of the big income assessment, but declares she would double it if necessary.

SMART WINTER COAT FOR SCHOOL BOY.

No. 8476.

The weather prophets have predicted one of the severest winters we have experienced for many years. The little lads—who generally are wont to scorn the protecting warmth of an overcoat—will need to be provided with good warm double-breasted coats with which to face the icy blasts in going to and from school. An excellent model that mothers will find easy to make and smart in appearance, is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8476. It has full length sleeves with turn-back cuffs, small round collar permitting the coat to button high, and up-to-date patch pockets. The pattern cuts in sizes 2 to 14 years, size 10 requiring 3½ yards of 36-inch material, and ⅛ yard 18 inch silk for the collar.

Patterns can be obtained at the store of A. E. Force and Company.

LITTLE POLLY'S POEM.

XXXII.

Temper.

I have a little temper
That lives inside of me
And long as it remains there
It's good as it can be.

I do not know exactly
Just where it makes its nest,
But it is only happy
When it has gone to rest.

And it would make me naughty
If it got out of place
And came out like a fire
And showed upon my face.

But I will watch my temper
And keep it in control
And then I will be certain
To save my little soul.

TEACH REVERENCE.

"What children need to be taught today is reverence and a respect for authority," said Superintendent Maxwell, of New York, in an address given in Philadelphia before the Association of College and Preparatory Schools.

Just where have mothers erred that such a statement can be made? In trying to be companions to our children, in trying to keep their confidence, have we forgotten the Fourth Commandment which from the child's point of view means honor for authority, while later in life authority means God

Reverence cannot be taught by knowledge of sex hygiene. The medical students have such knowledge but it has not made them reverent nor moral as a class. We have no real knowledge of death; but we have succeeded in teaching reverence for it. The awe of life is akin to the awe of death. Why smile knowingly at any thought which leads to the one? In teaching nature-study which leads to the coming of life, is the same reverent tone used as in teaching of death? Do we teach that life comes from God or that it just comes?

FROM A TEACHER'S MEDITATION.

"I will try to remember that children are trained more by what they do themselves than by what is done for them. I realize that the temptation of the teacher is to do too many things for children, and that a strong temptation, sometimes almost irresistible, is to talk too much. I recall that Dr. Hinsdale once said that talking is not teaching. "If it were, the village gossip," said he, "would be the best teacher." I am sure that children should express themselves more in recitations; that some of the time could profitably be used in teaching children how to study and in making a child at home with a book. I need to remind myself that children learn to think by thinking, to read by reading, to speak good English by speaking good English, to make gardens by making gardens, to sew by sewing, to be polite by being polite, to swim by swimming, to stand erect by being erect, and to be obedient by obedience.

A MOTHER'S LIVING.

More important than the mothers' diet, although that is very important, is her manner of living. Worry, anxiety, loss of sleep, household cares, great fatigue and social dissipation often affect the quality and the quantity of the milk and sometimes compel the mother to take the baby off the breast and put it on a bottle. Uncontrolled emotions, fright, grief or passion often cause sickness of the child and at other times they cause a complete disappearance of the milk. A common cause of sickness of breast-fed children is too frequent nursing. It requires two hours for the baby to digest mother's milk and a longer time, if it is fed on cow's milk. This means that a newborn babe should not be nursed oftener than once in two hours. Too frequent nursing will make the baby vomit and sometimes will bring on a severe diarrhoea, a baby that is nursed too frequently is almost sure to be restless and peevish both night and day.

MID-WEST CONFERENCE.

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 14.—A conference on military preparedness will be held here today and tomorrow, and public officials will take prominent part. The Middle West will not be behind the coast States in arousing public interest in the importance of preparedness. A feature of the conference is an inspection of the government arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., to determine the possibilities of increased manufacture of war munitions there. Secretary Garrison has been invited, also many congressmen from this section.

SUFFRAGISTS PLAN AN AUTO PARADE

Tour of County, From Elizabeth to Somerville, Announced for Saturday.

The suffrage organizations of the towns along the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey from Elizabeth to Somerville are going to join forces on Saturday and hold an automobile parade as a fitting close to their campaign for the vote.

The parade will form on Magnolia street, near North Broad street, Elizabeth, at 2 o'clock, and start promptly at 2:30. It will go through the principal streets of Elizabeth, and while in that city will have an escort of mounted police and be preceded by the official automobile of the Elizabeth police department. Leaving Elizabeth the paraders will proceed along the Rahway road as far as the Wheatsheaf Hotel, turning there and going to Roselle.

From Roselle the route will be along Westfield avenue through the towns of Cranford, Garwood and Westfield, thence on South avenue through Fanwood, Netherwood and Plainfield, thence on East Front street to Dunellen, then along the Bound Brook road through Lincoln and Bound Brook, following West Union avenue from there to Somerville. The parade will circle around through the principal streets of each town, and give every inhabitant an opportunity to see the decorated cars.

The organizations which are cooperating to make this parade the largest suffrage demonstration ever held in this part of the State are the Equal Suffrage Leagues of Elizabeth, Cranford, Plainfield, Dunellen and Newmarket, Bound Brook and Somerville, and the Women's Political Union of Roselle and the Equal Franchise League of Westfield.

The committee in charge especially asks that all paraders will go to Elizabeth and cover the whole line of the parade instead of falling into line at their own towns. Elizabeth is the biggest place of all to be reached, and the suffragists wish to have all their automobiles in line there.

At the close of the parade mass meetings will be held in many of the towns. United States Senator Clapp, of Minnesota, will be the speaker in Somerville; Miss Lou Rogers, the well-known New York cartoonist, in Plainfield, and Owen R. Lovejoy, secretary of the Child Labor Commission, and Mrs. Francis E. Brewer, of New York, in Elizabeth.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Six all star acts formed the new bill which opened the last half of the week at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon. It only requires a visit to the Second street playhouse to convince the most skeptical that Manager Shannon is producing the goods. The entertainment which has been presented the public during the past days has placed the Plainfield Theatre's vaudeville on a sound footing and assurances are given that the high standard set will be maintained.

Feature pictures are on every program at the Second street playhouse no expense being spared to secure the latest releases from the best agencies. The Pathe weekly is one of the extra attractions, while there are always plenty of comedies to furnish laughs and travel films to instruct as well as to entertain. Remember that popular prices prevail at both matinee and night performances.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Although only three episodes have been shown so far, patrons of Proctor's Theatre are a unit in saying that "Neal of the Navy," which is being shown at the West Front street theatre, is the most thrilling and at the same time instructive serial moving picture that has yet been seen in Plainfield. It not only unwinds an absorbing love story, replete with heroism and blood tingling action but reveals some of the inner workings of the United States naval force. Just at this time when the whole world is interested and watching land and water military manoeuvres anything pertaining to the big sea fighters is apropos. In "Neal of the Navy" there are scores of scenes on battleships never before shown on the canvas and to those that have not witnessed the first installments, no time should be lost in taking up the story. The fourth episode of the absorbing serial will be shown at Proctor's Theatre tomorrow afternoon and night.

The new change of program takes place at the theatre this afternoon, six of the best acts from the United Booking office making up the variety program. There are also feature pictures at every performance, among them the Pathe semi-weekly, which is shown every day. The second bazaar was conducted at the theatre last night and like its predecessor a week ago, gave satisfaction to all the patrons, everyone attending received a gift with the compliments of the management. On Saturday afternoon next, a "toy" matinee will be conducted for the children, an opportunity being assured every juvenile to be pleasantly surprised.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Bibbley Wah Snuffed the Cook's Candle.

Knocked the Candle Out of Anne's Hand.

"I WONDER if any one would like to hear a Bibbley Wah story?" asked daddy.

Jack and Evelyn clapped their hands.

"Uncle Ben had a wonderful cook. Her name was Anne, and she always wore one black slipper and one red one. She was gentle and kind in spite of her queerness, and she made the best gingersnaps that three kiddies ever had to eat.

"When Anne read her newspaper, which she never opened till it was a week old, she liked better to sit by a tallow candle than an electric lamp."

"What is a tallow candle, daddy?" Evelyn wanted to know.

"Anne made them by dipping a long, soft string into hot wax and fats. All her spare time she would sit all bent over dipping, dipping till her string grew fat and round. Oh, she was very skillful at it! Then nights when her work was done she would sit with her candle held close to her paper, and as the wax burned away she would stick her finger and thumb in her mouth and snuff off the black wick without ever burning her fingers. Remember, children, that back in colonial times everybody had to read by candle light. Lamps were too expensive.

"Anne was very fond of Bibbley Wah and used to make her delightful gingerbread men. One night when Bibbley Wah was visiting Anne in the kitchen she stole up behind Anne's armchair and in fun snuffed the candle. But she was not as skillful as Anne. Her little fingers were too small, the flame burned her, she jumped and knocked the candle right out of Anne's hand. It fell across Bibbley Wah's little gown, set it on fire and blazed up till Bibbley Wah looked like a bonfire."

"Oh, poor Bibbley Wah!" cried the children.

"She was so frightened that instead of standing still she ran down the hall, so that the breeze from a window made her fire bigger. Anne was almost frightened to pieces. But instead of screaming she did just the right thing—she grabbed Bibbley Wah and wrapped her in a big rug, so that the flames were smothered. Then Uncle Ben came and unwound Bibbley Wah, and all that night her mother sat with her poor little burned hands in medicine which kept away scars. So the faithful Anne saved Bibbley Wah's life, and Uncle Ben banished candles from the kitchen ever afterward," daddy finished.

"What did Anne read by then?" asked Jack.

"By a lamp. But she never liked it and always thought it unsafe. So she used daylight to read by instead of dipping candles," daddy added.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Why Is It Sometimes Easier for an Office Girl to Sympathize With a Man Than for His Wife?

"You're nervous this morning, Mr. Sutner," observed Julia Asgood, the stenographer who worked in the office with him. "Were you out last night?"

He glanced into the good-natured face and replied cheerfully:

"No, I was in; that's why I'm nervous. I worked on a set of books — outside work," he explained, as she arched her eyebrows. "Got to fight the wolf from the door some way," he added.

She smiled apprehendingly.

"I sometimes think I'll be driven to robbing the cash drawer," he continued.

"Better not commit yourself beforehand," she chaffed. "I might be summoned as a witness to establish your character."

"All fooling aside, Julia, what would you testify if called?"

"All solid from ground floor to belfry." She smiled into his face in friendly fashion.

"Thanks!" He reached out a grateful hand to her. "I'm glad I've got one friend."

"What about your wife, or aren't wives supposed to be friends?" she added archly.

"Well," he hesitated, "it takes a good man to be appreciated in his own family, you know. Those nearest have a foreshortened vision; can't get perspective enough to perceive his greatness." He puffed out his cheeks and chest like a pouter pigeon. Julia laughed.

"Women who are shut up at home can't understand a man's worries as well as one who is right in them; that's natural."

John Sutner sighed and the two worked together in silence for some time. When she returned from a trip to the front office she paused as she passed his desk.

"That's a pretty waist you have on," he remarked, looking critically at her.

"Think so? I made it myself out of an old silk skirt I colored." She peacocked before a glass door.

"You don't mean it!" he exclaimed.

"I'm on to all the ways of stopping leaks in pocketbooks, you may be sure," she added, toying with his paper weight.

"I wish my wife knew how to sew or manage in any way. I tell you, a man would hesitate before marrying on a small salary if he knew the ropes a little better."

"Some women think all men are for is to take care of them and save them from troubling about money matters," said Julia, eyeing him sharply.

"I believe you," he ejaculated earnestly.

As he relapsed into silence, Julia passed on to her own desk, full of a profound pity for her office mate, and John Sutner had a vague sense of comfort and sympathy when he looked over to the red-brown head bent over the typewriter.

That afternoon when he complained of a headache, she offered her menthol and wet her handkerchief in smelling salts for his forehead. He was holding it to his temple when the head bookkeeper entered. John slipped the handkerchief into his coat pocket to make the odor less apparent, and, as it was near closing time, forgot all about it. He left the office with a friendly nod to Julia and went toward the shabby home with a distinct sinking of spirits.

"There's Jack, anyway," he thought.

"I've got him, but I'm getting deeper in debt every day. The house is shabbier, Molly more irritable and less competent. What's to become of us all?"

He gave himself a mental shake to stiffen his resolution to do his part in the difficult situation, and entered the house.

SELECT SEED BEANS IN POD AT ONCE

Department of Agriculture Gives Excellent Advice on How to Avoid Losses.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Bean growers who would avoid a repetition next year of the heavy losses from disease suffered this season are advised by the Department of Agriculture to give their personal attention to the immediate selection of a stock of seed beans free from disease infection. They should select the seed beans in the pod and not after threshing.

They should simply pick the pods that are free from all spots, save and thresh separately. The planting of infected seed is primarily responsible for the troubles experienced. Weather conditions greatly influence the subsequent development of disease, but clean seed on clean land will go far toward giving a clean crop even in a season like the present, which has been exceptionally favorable to the development of disease and unfavorable to the growth of the bean crop.

Two bean diseases are commonly prevalent, anthracnose and basterial blight. Both attack and spot the pods, penetrate them and enter the beans, remaining dormant over winter under the seed coats, where they cannot be reached by disinfectants.

When the beans are planted these diseases attack the young seedlings, causing a root rot, and blighting of stem and leaves, and if the weather is cool and wet, they spread again to the pods. Bacterial blight is conveyed by wind and other means to a greater extent than anthracnose and is less easily controlled, but clean seed and crop rotation will give best results. Old bean ground should not be replanted next year.

As far as possible each farmer should save his own seed. Beans have been so generally affected by disease that the farmer should not rely on ordinary so-called northern-grown seed or elevator stock for planting. If he has to buy seed he should make certain that it has been selected from disease-free pods. Examine all threshed seed carefully and if it shows suspicious spots or other evidence of disease it should not be used. Home selection also will tend to build up a strain adapted to the locality and better than seed brought from a distance.

URGE WILSON TO MAKE HOME IN NEW JERSEY

Trenton, Oct. 14.—It became known yesterday that a delegation from New Jersey will wait upon President Wilson at the White House at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to urge him to make his summer home in this State next year. The delegation will be headed by Congressman Thomas J. Scully, of the Third district, and they will request the President to make his home in the vicinity of Deal or Allenhurst next summer. It is understood that the delegation will offer him one of the fine residences in that vicinity.

Next summer the Presidential campaign will be in full swing and as President Wilson will undoubtedly be renominated by the Democrats, the delegation will urge upon him the fitness of making his summer residence in his home State.

If the President shall accept and come to New Jersey for the summer, there will be unusual interest in the matter because he will have been wedded to Mrs. Norman Galt and will bring her to this State as his bride.

LITERARY

When E. Alexander Powell met a French sergeant in the trenches, and they discovered that both were from New York State, the Frenchman celebrated a sort of Old Home Week by firing the machine gun at the German trenches. Mr. Powell tells the story in the November Scribner.

"The sergeant in charge of the machine gun, taking advantage of a lull in the rifle-fire which had crackled and roared along the trenches since dawn, was sprawled on his back in the gun-pit reading a magazine. What attracted my attention was its being an American magazine.

"'Where did you learn to read English?' I asked him curiously.

"'In America,' said he.

"'What part?' said I.

"'Schenectady,' he answered. 'Was with the General Electric until the war began.'

"'I'm from up-State myself,' I remarked. 'My people live in Syracuse.'

"'The hell you say!' he exclaimed, scrambling to his feet and grasping my hand cordially. 'I took you for an Englishman. From Syracuse, eh? Why, that makes us sort of neighbors, doesn't it? We ought to have a drink on it. I suppose the Bosches have plenty of beer over there,' waving his hand in the direction of the German trenches, of which I could catch a glimpse through a porthole, 'but we haven't anything here but water. I've got an idea, though! Back in the States, when they have those Old Home Week reunions, they always fire the town cannon or an anvil. So what's the matter with celebrating this reunion by letting the Bosches have a few rounds from the machine gun?'"

REV. DR. C. M. ANDERSON TO SPEAK IN WESTFIELD

Westfield, Oct. 14.—H. D. Egbert, chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the Union Sunday-school service to be held in connection with Temperance Sunday, in the Presbyterian church at 3:30 p. m., has announced that six schools will occupy reserved sections on the main floor of the church. These sections will be designated by appropriate placards bearing the names of the various schools. The grown-ups will be asked to sit in the balcony. The Presbyterian church choir will have charge of the music, which will be especially appropriate.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of Plainfield, a former pastor of the First Methodist church here, will speak and the schools will give a salute to the American flag and the Christian flag.

WOMEN FORM CLASS FOR THE STUDY OF POETRY

A class for the study of poetry was organized yesterday afternoon under the leadership of the Rev. John Baltzly, pastor of All Soul's Unitarian church. Mr. Baltzly gave an introductory talk on the general subject and on the poetry of Browning in particular. A number of poems of the famous poet were also read.

The class will meet every Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. C. Leonard, 329 Franklin place. Membership in the organization is open to anyone who can give earnest study to the subjects taken up.

NEW UNIFORMS FOR LOCAL COPS

Some Dissatisfaction Among Patrolmen Because of Heavy Expense.

WILL INCREASE FORCE

Police Board Favors New Appointments—Warning Against Sneak Thieves—Regulation Style of Uniform for all Department Members.

In response to a recommendation made by Chief of Police Kiely, the Councilmanic Police Board, at a meeting Wednesday night, decided to appoint several new policemen, the exact number not having been determined as yet. A number of vacancies have occurred in the department during the past year, and not all of them have been filled. It will be necessary to advertise for candidates and to hold examinations in the near future, and the dates of these tests will be made known later. In order to qualify for appointment prospective candidates will have to pass efficiency tests, including mental, physical and moral examinations, and the men passing with the highest records will be selected by the Police Board.

At Wednesday night's session the Board also decided to change the present style of uniform being worn by patrolmen and to establish a regulation custom. At the present time a number of different styles are being worn by the men, and during the past year members of the Police Board have been known to voice their dissatisfaction over this practice.

Rumors of the proposed changes had reached the ears of a majority of the "coppers" this morning, and considerable protest was manifested on every hand. The expense entailed by each patrolman will amount to approximately $100, which is more than a month's pay for any one man. It will be necessary for the patrolmen to discard their old clothes, some of which were recently purchased, and which are in the best of condition, and to buy a new winter suit and overcoat. The feeling is strong against the proposed change, and while the men admit that they should wear uniforms of a regulation style they also feel that they should not be burdened with this great expense at the present time. Most of the patrolmen are married and have families, and, it is believed, can ill afford a month's pay on a new regalia. Others have recently been appointed to the force and have not finished paying for new uniforms, which will now have to be discarded if the new ruling is enforced.

It is the general belief that several months' grace should be allowed the patrolmen to meet the new uniform rule, but it is apparent that the Board intends to make the regulation binding at once.

Chief Kiely also suggested to the Board that a warning be issued to householders to take special precautions against the possibility of visits from sneak thieves at this particular time of the year. All windows and doors should be kept securely locked and the department advises householders to leave lights burning in their homes when they go out for the evening.

With the installation of the newly elected officers of the State Council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, last night, in the auditorium of the Newark clubhouse, 432 Plane street, Newark, the forty-seventh annual State convention of the order came to a close after a busy two-day session.

Balloting for officers took up the greater part of the morning session, and so close was the fight between William B. La Rue, of Bound Brook, and Frank K. Muta, of Bridgeton, for the State treasurership, it was necessary to take a ballot at the opening of the afternoon session and as a result the much-coveted position was won by Mr. La Rue.

The newly-elected officers, who were installed as the closing feature of the convention, are: Theodore Buttenbaum, Union Hill, State councilor; Rev. Samuel A. Harker, Clayton State vice councilor; William B. La Rue, Bound Brook, State treasurer; William M. Apgar, Boonton, State conductor; Edward C. Johnson, Plainfield, State warden; Wilson J. Smith, East Orange, State council inside sentinel, and Henry C. Ball, Hackensack, members of the auditing committee for five years.

Past State Councilors L. L. Hand and John Tichenor conducted the installation, at the request of State Secretary William H. Miers, who as senior past State councilor, could have had the honor.

Former Governor Edward Casper Stokes, a member of Fidelity Council, No. 8, appeared at the afternoon session and was immediately escorted to the platform and during the afternoon delivered a stirring speech, which was applauded heartily.

The next convention was voted to be held in Atlantic City, by an overwhelming majority, over Newark, Asbury Park and Wildwood.

DEATH OF PIONEER DRY GOODS MERCHANT

E. E. Dorman Succumbs to Long Illness at Home of Daughter in This City.

Eben E. Dorman, aged 85, one of the best known residents of this city, having lived here since 1873, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Frank Raymond, 954 Kensington avenue. He had been ill for the past two years, and recently had failed rapidly. His death was due to complications.

Mr. Dorman was born at Enfield, Conn., and for a few years was engaged in the dry goods business in Hartford, Conn., prior to going to New York, where for many years he was a member of the firm of the Gilbert Manufacturing Company, makers of dress goods. His late brother, Orlando P. Dorman, who died four years ago, was president of the company. Mr. Dorman retired about twelve years ago, and the concern since then was merged with another similar one in the city.

Although he frequently attended the Park Avenue Baptist church, this city, Mr. Dorman was one of the oldest members of Calvary Baptist church, New York, which it was his custom to attend at times. He possessed a strong Christian character and enjoyed a wide acquaintance. There survives a daughter, Mrs. J. Frank Raymond and two sons, E. Sidney Dorman, of Newark, and Eugene F. Dorman, of this city.

The funeral will be held at the late home, 954 Kensington avenue, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

ATTENDS VASSAR'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Miss Emelyn Hartridge One of the Alumnae Speakers at Gathering.

Miss Hartridge returned yesterday afternoon from the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary at Vassar, where she has been the guest of the college in a double capacity, as principal of the Hartridge School and as one of the alumnae speakers. Another of the eleven alumnae who made addresses was Miss Katharine B. Davis who has spoken in Plainfield for the Monday Afternoon Club. Miss Davis and Miss Boody, dean of Radcliffe, were two of the three speakers in North, or Jewett Hall. Miss Hartridge spoke, with Dr. Burton, of Smith, in Strong Hall. A number of the Hartridge School girls were active in the student exhibitions. Miss Agnes Rogers, of Hagerstown, a prominent member of the Students' committee of the fiftieth anniversary planned several of the scenes in the exquisite pageant of Athena, in which she played a charming part. She also was the author of a dance beautifully rendered by Miss Janet Lane, in the athletic exhibition, in which Miss Anne Swann and Miss Margaret Stanley-Brown also took part.

Miss Swann acted in the pageant in which Miss Janet Lane danced. Miss Margaret Miller was a courtier and Miss Margaret Stanley-Brown a student. Miss Ruth Stanley-Brown was one of the characters in the play "Milestones," presented by the alumnae, and Miss Bessie Jewett was in one of the dances. Miss Rogers and Miss Swann, as officers of student associations, were among the thirty-five undergraduates who were allowed to form a part of the academic procession and to be present at the inauguration exercises Wednesday morning. Other Hartridge School girls at Vassar for the anniversary either as alumnae or students, were Miss Julia Fieberger, of West Point, Miss Marjory Woods, of Sewickley, Miss Carita Doggett, of Jacksonville and the Misses Augusta Burke, Anna Moore, Ellen Hovey, Elizabeth Poucher and Pauline Sandford, of Plainfield.

A committee of five members of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., is busily engaged in arranging for the "Come Back Week" to be held by all tribes of the order throughout the State. The object of this occasion is to secure the reinstatement of all former members of the order who may have been dropped from the rolls for non-payment of dues. It was intended to have this event take place the first week in November, but it has been found necessary to postpone it until November 17. The Great Council of the State will be represented at this meeting by Great Prophet Charles T. Grace, of South Amboy.

"INDOOR SPORTS" WERE POPULAR

Some Startling Revelations Made at Hearing in Elizabeth Yesterday.

CLERKS DRINK WINE

Smoking Cigarettes and Sponge Throwing Contest Also a Pleasing Diversion—Decision is Reserved by Court.

That all work and no play makes Ruth a dull girl is said to have been the motto during the past year in the office of Union County Registrar Frank H. Smith, in the courthouse in Elizabeth, for certain feminine employes and their overseer, Ozial A. Howe, who is about fifty years of age. Sponge throwing contests, cigarette smoking, wine drinking and similar "indoor sports" were common diversions among the office corps and their supervisor, according to testimony given yesterday afternoon before Civil Service Commissioner Alex R. Fordyce, in the courthouse. The revelations were brought out in a hearing demanded by Miss Ruth McElroy, who was suspended from service in May of this year on the grounds that she was insubordinate.

Among other things Miss McElroy testified that Howe came into the office under the influence of liquor on at least one occasion. Miss Anna Stanton, Miss Marion Johnson and Miss Mary Farrell, who worked with Miss McElroy and who are still employed in Registrar Smith's office were called to the stand and all three admitted that on several occasions sponge throwing contests were "enjoyed" and as a rule, they alleged Howe was the instigator of the "battles." According to Miss Stanton Miss McElroy smoked cigarettes and drank wine on at least three occasions. It was charged that Miss McElroy purchased the wine and that another girl bought the cigarettes. Miss McElroy admitted having drank wine in the office.

Both Miss Johnson and Miss Stanton admitted that Miss McElroy was not alone in this "diversion," but no names were mentioned as to who her companions were. Harold Depew, who represented Miss McElroy, told the commissioner that from all accounts "fooling" and wine drinking were regular occurrences in the registrar's office, and under the circumstances his client was illegally dismissed from her position to which she was appointed in April, 1914.

County Registrar Smith, who lives in Plainfield, was called, and while he admitted that he had heard of such conduct being carried on in his office, claimed to have never seen it. He said that he had warned the girls that "it would have to stop." It was claimed that Howe was familiar with all phases of the "fooling." In fact, he admitted that disorder was the rule in the office. There was a large crowd present at the three-hour hearing and the commissioner reserved decision.

WILSON WILL SPEND SUMMER IN JERSEY

Accepts Offer of McCall Mansion Near Long Branch.

Washington, Oct. 15.—President Wilson today accepted an invitation tendered him by a delegation of Jerseyites, headed by Congressman Scully to make his summer White House next year near Long Branch, in the McCall mansion, known as Shadow Lawn, at Hollywood.

THE MISSES MITCHELL REMEMBERED IN WILL

The Misses Hazel, Ethel and Loretta Mitchell, of Watchung avenue, will each receive $2,000 through the will of their grandmother, Mrs Rebecca Ely, who lived at 59 Duncan avenue, Jersey City, and who died on September 28 last. The will was admitted to probate in Jersey City yesterday.

An apartment house in Jersey City is left to three daughters, Tillie, Minnie and Theodosia Thompson Ely and a grandson, Ernest De Hart, of Ridgefield, receives $3,000. The balance of the estate goes to the daughters of the decedent.

G. F. STACKPOLE DIES.

New York, Oct. 15.—George F. Stackpole, the veteran lawyer of Riverhead, L. I., who was taken to Bellevue Hospital suffering from anthrax, died at 3:40 a. m. today from heart failure.

WATCHERS NAMED BY COUNTY BOARD

Law Provides Officials of Either Sex for Each Election District.

For the purpose of appointing watchers in the various polling districts for the special election, October 19, the County Board of Elections convened in the courthouse yesterday. The law provides that the Board must sit for that purpose five days prior to the election.

As it has no regular office of its own, the Board met in the office of Custodian Hulskamper in the basement of the building. Chairman Fred Zior and Secretary George J. Stewart were on hand promptly at 8 o'clock ready to begin business, and the other members, Frank J. Pfaff and Andrew McCardell, arrived later.

Under the law, the leading society or organization supporting the suffrage amendment and the leading society opposed to it, have the right to submit the name of one watcher of either sex for each election district. These are entitled to the same privileges as watchers at the general election. The Board issues certificates and furnishes badges to the appointees.

The anti-suffrage organization announced some time ago that it would not submit the names of women for such appointment, because it would not even give that much countenance to the participation of women in an election, but had determined to leave the watching to the male adherents of the antis.

MAD DOG SCARE IN THE BOROUGH

Frenzied Canine Causes Great Excitement Before Shot by Chief Marshal Weiss.

A dog, believed to be mad, created excitement in North Plainfield early this morning until shot and killed by Chief Marshal Weiss.

It is not believed that any persons were bitten by the dog, although other animals were seen fighting with it and several were bitten. The animal's head has been sent to Trenton for an examination, and if it is shown that it had rabies, the other dogs infected will be caught and put into quarantine.

The animal is said to have belonged to a Mrs. Jackson, on Watchung avenue. Early in the morning a boy called at police headquarters and reported that Mrs. Jackson had a dog that was acting queer, and asked that it be removed. Chief Weiss sent word that he would kill it if it was dangerous, but that he could not remove it. Before he received an answer W. A. Coddington reported the presence of a mad dog in his neighborhood. He said the dog appeared to be blind, and was running into fences, houses and other things. It was snapping at everything that came within reach, and two or three dogs were bitten.

When Chief Weiss reached the Coddington home he found the dog a short distance away. The animal ran toward him when he approached, and he shot it.

When the occurrence was reported to Mayor Clark he told Health Officer Ollif to cut off the dog's head and send it to Trenton for an examination. This was done, and officials of the borough will know in a few days whether they were dealing with a mad dog or one that simply "threw a fit."

MANY YOUNG PEOPLE ATTEND BARN DANCE

The barn dance given in Debele's Hall, last nigh, by the Young People's Society, of St. Joseph's church, the borough, proved a success, a large number attending the affair. The hall was attractively decorated for the event, autumnal foliage, cornstalks and other decorations being used in the scheme. Dancing was enjoyed until an early hour this morning. A feature of the dance was a grand march in which all those present participated. Prizes were awarded to the young man and young woman having the most unique costume. Refreshments were served.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The meeting of the committee in charge of the barn dance and Hallowe'en party are requested to meet in T. A. B. Hall, tonight, promptly at 7:30 to make final arrangements for same. All members are requested to be present at the meeting of the fair committee.

BOOTHS DECORATED FOR ELKS' BAZAAR

All is Now in Readiness for Doors to Open on Brilliant Spectacle.

Enthusiasm was evidenced at the meeting of the Plainfield Elks' bazaar committee held in the clubhouse last night. All is now in readiness for the big event which will open next Monday and continue for a week. A large percentage of the members were in attendance, this being particularly true of the women who are working on committees.

Executive Chairman Walter S. Marder in welcoming the workers stated that without a doubt the general committee had now reached the point where it could assure everyone that the coming bazaar was going to be the biggest thing of its kind ever held in this part of the State. Neat purple badges with the word "Committee" and the emblem of the order were distributed to the members of the committee and under the direction of the chairman of each committee the members immediately began their work.

The carpenters have about finished their work in erecting the booths and everything will be in readiness for the opening next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Many more donations were reported last night and each booth will be loaded down with attractive goods and novelties.

It has been learned by the executive committee that some people have gained the impression that the bazaar is being held only for Elks and that those not members would not be welcome. The committee wishes to correct any such impression as the bazaar is a public affair and everybody will be welcome.

It was learned yesterday that Elizabeth Lodge has appointed a "booster" committee to arrange for Elizabeth night on next Thursday and that the county-seaters will bring a large crowd.

DIDN'T TAKE LONG TO SATISFY BILLS

But Constable York Played a Mean Trick on Luckless Mike Higgins.

Michael Higgins is this afternoon nursing some ruffled feelings and exhausting his supply of threats at the expense of Ysbrand DeDood, proprietor of the Keller Cleaning Company on Park avenue, and DeDood is under arrest on charges made by Higgins. This morning Higgins was a party to a plot in which DeDood was forced to liquidate some $2,300 to meet bills presented to him by no less a personage than Constable George Loke.

Higgins, who has long claimed that "Dame Fortune" deserted him when he was a toddling infant, was selected by the constable as a suitable companion to accompany him to the Park avenue establishment while he levied an attachment on the contents. York presented a roll of unpaid bills said to be "big enough to trip a rabbit" to De Dood and assumed charge of the establishment in default of payment. All who know York also are aware of the fact that he is a very busy man and the constable just couldn't see his way clear to remaining behind the ladies' dress counter all day. Higgins was therefore honored with the temporary title of proprietor and proceeded to hand over fancy articles of wearing apparel to customers who happened in to reclaim their belongings. For a full half hour the new "proprietor" was boss of all that went on in 125 Park avenue and had not DeDood been nearly a foot taller he might have been there yet.

After York had paid his respects and presented the wad of bills to DeDood, the latter went out, and when he returned a half hour later he ordered Higgins out of the place. It has since developed that DeDood in the meantime had paid the bills and therefore Higgins had no legal right in the place. But he was there to carry out the constable's commands and he bravely told DeDood, who is of herculean stature, that he was there to stay. Whereupon DeDood consulted over the telephone with his attorney, Martin B. Stutsman, and the latter advised his client to call a policeman. DeDood replied that this would take too much time and Stutsman suggested that he "throw him out." This sounded better to DeDood and he grabbed the luckless Higgins and threw him unceremoniously into Park avenue. Higgins then swore out the warrant for DeDood's arrest. The case will be tried in the city police court tomorrow morning.

Hard Fighting in France.

Paris, Oct. 15.—The French official war statement says:

"In the Artois district a violent bombardment in which both sides engaged, continued during the night before Loos and to the northeast of Souchez. In Champagne our batteries responded energetically to a concentrated fire from the enemy's artillery upon our positions to the east of Auberive. On the Lorraine front our checking fire and our curtains of fire arrested a violent fire from the artillery, the infantry and machine guns of the Germans before Letricourt. We furthermore directed effective fire on the enemy's works to the north of Reillon. In the Vosges there was a very violent conflict with engines of trench warfare in the environs of La Chapelotte, northeast of Badon Villers and on the summit of Linge and of Baren Kopf. A violent cannonade occurred at Hartmannsweilerkopf and in the surrounding region."

Prompt action on the part of Sylvester Rinehart last evening, undoubtedly saved Mrs. Grace Gangloff, of Greenbrook road, from serious injury. Mrs. Gangloff had gone to the station with her horse and carriage for her son, William, who works in the city. Her son usually comes home on the train due here at 6.08, but he did not make that train last evening. While sitting in the carriage, waiting for the next train, an automobile came around the railroad park. Its glaring headlights flashed into the eyes of Mrs. Gangloff's horse, scaring it badly.

The animal reared on its hind legs and then turned abruptly around. The carriage was on two wheels and in danger of capsizing when Sylvester, who happened to be standing nearby, sprang to the rescue.

The fair will continue tonight and wind up tomorrow night with several special features.

Although they have not held mass meetings nor made a canvass, the local women in favor of suffrage have been busy for several weeks in an endeavor to find how the local vote will stand at the special election on October 19. At the last meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Episcopal church it was decided to hold the annual sale in the Fanwood firehouse on December 14.

Owing to the fact that the firehouse will be used on Tuesday as a polling place for the special election, it is possible that the monthly meeting the Fanwood Fire Company will either be postponed or held later in the evening.

Somerville

Philip Becker, of Flagtown, was arrested on Wednesday by Detective George D. Totten, charged with having stolen $28 from the cash drawer of the Central Garage. Becker was indicted by the Grand Jury for chicken stealing. Michael Torangelo is bondsman, under the indictment surrendered him shortly after furnishing his bond. Totten saw Becker in town Wednesday and being familiar with his record, started an investigation which resulted in Becker's arrest and later a confession to the robbery. Becker in the past four years, it is said, has robbed Sack's grocery store, Adir's flour mills at Raritan and the office of W. H. H. Wyckoff Company, of this place. The authorities have been lenient with him but this last offense will probably cause him to be sent to Trenton. His family are destitute.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Charlie Chaplin will be the featured attraction again today at the U. S. Astor Theatre, dividing headline honors with Edgar Selwyn, who will be seen in the sterling dramatic subject, "The Arab," in the stage production of which he also was starred.

"Shanghaied" has broken all records at the Astor for film fun. Never before has a subject so richly humorous been seen at a local theatre. Chaplin's droll antics on shipboard in the storm was the climax of film humor. His horn-pipe when the blow is at its height and his very evident discomfort when salt pork is held to his mouth by a fellow tar also furnish no end of laughter.

Most of the scenes of the film are set on the ocean wave, which makes the action rapid and doubly enjoyable. There is a dynamite explosion when the two "villians" meet death. Lovers of film comedy of the most uproarious type must see Chaplin at the U. S. Astor.

"The Arab" will appeal to discriminating devotees of serious film just as much as Chaplin will to lovers of screen comedy. It is a tensely dramatic subject in which Mr. Selwyn accomplishes the biggest hit of his career.

The Fur Seal in Many Ways Resembles an Undersea Boat.

ITS HABITS IN THE WATER.

Although It Can Swim Only When Submerged and Must Rise to the Surface Every Few Minutes, It Is a Marvel of Speed.

We have come to regard the soaring albatross or the condor as the prototype of the aeroplane. When we look for a natural model for the submarine we find it well made in the body of the fur seal and fully suggested by its method of progression in the sea, for it travels there only when wholly submerged.

Unlike, however, the "unterseebote," the fur seal is not fitted for swimming on the surface; it only rises there to survey, to breathe and to sleep. It never attempts to swim with head above water on any course, no matter how short. It rises when undisturbed or not alarmed, looks about with head and neck well stretched up above the surface of the sea, fills its lungs with air (literally compressed), turns its head down and with its powerful anterior flippers drives itself below the surface to the depth of five or ten feet, then ahead on that level. Thus submerged the body of the seal glides through the water as swiftly as a swallow in the air—it is a vanishing streak to our eyes.

How long it remains thus submerged when traveling no one has any definite knowledge, but the best consensus of opinion gives it a rise at intervals of every three or four minutes to breathe—that is, a pause of less than two or three seconds, with barely more than its nose and eyes above the surface, for exhalation and renewed inhalation—when down goes the trim body to speed ahead again.

When our submarines were first brought out a trip of more than 300 miles from base was the utmost limit of their cruising. Today they have been so perfected that they can cruise safely more than 3,000 miles from that base. Therefore in this connection it is interesting to know that the fur seal makes a submarine journey in the north Pacific ocean of more than 5,000 miles from its base on the Pribilof islands, in Bering sea, and then returns.

An animal which can not only make such an extended journey, but can steer its course over an uncharted waste from point to point, month by month, with positive regularity and in perfect time, must be a fine type of swimming machine, and it is.

There is to be observed a close resemblance between the cigar shaped submarine boat and the body form of the fur seal. As we view them laterally, this resemblance is complete. They are both driven ahead by feathering screws, and they are both kept on the level of their submerged course at a given distance below the surface by rudders.

Then we observe that the periscope, to which the submarine craft owes all of its efficiency, is duplicated exactly by the seal's nose and eyes and which are all that it ever lifts above the surface when startled and in flight of passage.

Again we note that the fur seal as a submarine has a great advantage over the human boat—it has eyes that can look ahead and around, under water—how far we do not know, but it is reasonable to assume that the seal's eye can see as far under water as the eye of a camera can, which we have the evidence of in good records.

Then, too, it also has an acute sense of hearing under sea, for we know that the whirring of a propeller's screw will drive all the seals away for miles around a steamer. We know that because some of the early pelagic sealing vessels were fitted with small auxiliary screws, and these, when put into use, had to be removed.

With reference to the powers of destruction, of course our fur seal boat has no torpedo tubes, but it can and does "shoot its mouth off" at fish with a deadly certainty.

In this connection it is interesting to note that seals do not catch fish by pursuit of them—not at all. They shoot down from above upon the backs or up from below to strike at the bellies of their finny prey.

How fast these phocine submarines can speed up under the stimulus of excitement or fear no one knows. But it is well known when a vessel is coming down before a gale of wind from the islands, logging fourteen to sixteen knots, that a bevy of fur seals will often follow the ship for hours and repeatedly swim by it, swim around it and then renew the chase and circling of it.—Henry W. Elliott in New York Times.

Why He Missed Her.

"So you're little Willie Woodby?" said the new minister after Sunday school. "I called to see your mother yesterday, but unfortunately, she was not at home."

"Oh, yes, she was," replied the boy, "but I guess she took you for the installment man. You look somethin' like him."—Philadelphia Press.

STRIKERS MAY GO BACK.

New York, Oct. 15.—A despatch from Schenectady says that it is believed that the strikers of the General Electric Company will accept an offer by the company of a 9½ hour day and a 5 per cent. increase in wages. They had demanded an eight-hour day.

LANSING SEES WILSON.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Secretary of State Lansing spent forty minutes in conference with President Wilson today. He declined to state the subject matter discussed. It is believed to have been the British note which will shortly be sent to London.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 19—State referendum election, and third registration day in municipalities of more than 5,000 people.

October 26—Third and final registration day in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

November 2—General Election Day.

"The pulpit should not be lowered to the status of a public forum, as it is today in many instances, where every subject is brought up for discussion. The pulpit should be kept beyond the pettyness of politics and other secular subjects, so that it may accomplish the great religious uplift for which it was originally the most potent, influential factor." This statement was made by Bishop Lines, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Newark before the archdeaconry of Jersey City at St. John's church in Hoboken, Tuesday.

The campaign in Middlesex was formally launched Wednesday night, with meetings at Woodbridge and Roosevelt.

Former Governor Stokes is booked as one of the speakers at a meeting to be held in New Brunswick, Friday evening of next week.

Former Senator Hillery and Senator Charles A. Rathbun will be counted upon to bear the brunt of the speaking campaign in Morristown.

Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, Spaulding Frazer and Bemjamin F. Jones are among the speakers announced for the Essex campaign. The Assembly candidates, and probably outside speakers, will likely augment this list.

Senators Edge and Read have promised to make a tour of Burlington county in the interest of Harold B. Wells, the Republican candidate for Senator, and the Assembly nominee. Senator Gaunt and Dr. McDaniels are booked to address meetings to be arranged in Warren county for Thursday and Friday of next week.

The Republican State Committee proposes to hold twelve separate meetings in Hunterdon county, a Democratic stronghold, on the Monday evening preceding Election Day. Republican managers have been holding out hopes that Hunterdon may be added to the Republican column this year and the whirlwind finish of the Hunterdon campaign has that end in view. Among the spellbinders who have been chosen to address these meetings are former Governor Edward C. Stokes, former Judge Robert A. Carey, Senator Walter E. Edge, Senator William T. Read, Pierre P. Garven, President Frank McDaniels of Pennington Seminary; Frederick A. Pope, of Somerville; former Senators Joseph F. Frelinghuysen and Thomas J. Hillery, former Representatives Ira W. Wood and William J. Crossley, of Trenton. Other speakers will be added.

United States Senator Moses E. Clapp, of Minnesota, in an address at the Central School, Orange, Tuesday night, showed how victory at the special election next Tuesday would contribute much toward changing the attitude of the people in the East toward suffrage. When the women of New Jersey secure the right to vote, he predicted the people of neighboring States will be bound to appreciate the benefits of woman suffrage.

The funeral of Dr. William Miller Baird, formerly of Warren county, who went South some time ago, following his ostracism among old friends as the result of a fierce political row in 1887, was held Tuesday from St. James' Episcopal church, in Delaware, Warren county. Dr. Baird's political troubles started when, after serving in the Assembly in 1886, he was chosen Speaker in 1887. There was a fight over a slate made by the Democratic leaders, and Dr. Baird, with three other Democrats, bolted the party caucus. Soon afterward the four bolters effected a coalition with the Republicans, and Dr. Baird was elected Speaker. For this members of the party ostracised him. The physician followed up his joining with the Republicans by working with them to defeat former Governor Leon Abbett, candidate for United States Senator. Rufus Blodgett, of Monmouth county, was chosen. After the Legislature adjourned in 1887 Dr. Baird returned to Warren county and felt the displeasure of his former associates so strongly that he went to New York and then to the South.

THE TONKA BEAN.

From It We Get the Perfume Known as New Mown Hay.

Grass, freshly cut or otherwise, has had nothing to do with the production of the perfume labeled "New Mown Hay." The source of the essence is really the tonka bean, found in the tropical countries of South America, chiefly in the valleys of the Orinoco, Caura and Cuchivero rivers in Venezuela and certain sections of Colombia and Brazil.

The tonka bean tree in some cases reaches a height of sixty feet. It has pinnate leaves and large panicles of flowers, which are succeeded by a pod containing a single seed. The odor, which is remarkably strong, resembles that of sweet clover new mown hay and is due to the presence of cumarin, a crystallizable, volatile, neutral substance which is soluble in alcohol or ether and somewhat so in boiling water, from which it crystallizes on cooling. The beans are often frosted with crystals of this substance, giving them the appearance of being sugar coated. The collectors in Venezuela and Colombia usually set out for the forests in February, when the fruit begins to ripen. They go up the rivers in canoes or skiffs by the hundreds, stopping wherever the trees are plentiful, and when the fruit begins to fall the pods are gathered and taken to some open space where sunshine is plentiful and there carefully crushed and the beans extracted and then spread out to dry. When thoroughly dried they are loaded into the boats and transported to Ciudad Bolivar or some other convenient port, where they are sold to the exporting merchants. Here they go through the process of crystallization by being steeped in strong rum or alcohol for about twenty-four hours and then again dried.

They lend their fragrance to high grade tobacco, fine toilet soaps, to "brilliantine" and other hair dressings and dyes, to cosmetics, to flavoring extracts used in confections and to many other things that gratify the sense of smell.—Argonaut.

FINANCIAL SENSE.

Take Care of What You Earn and Then Invest It Wisely.

The greatest financial genius I ever knew and the richest man I ever knew personally once said to me:

"There is no greater financial genius possible than taking care of what you earn, and there is no better or surer way of taking care of your surplus than to invest it in sound securities paying 5 or 6 per cent. And such securities are easy to find any day of any year. So any man may be a financial genius if he will exercise the simplest common sense."

I protested that it would be said of such a man that he was narrow and selfish.

"Nonsense," the financial genius replied. "I have money invested in railroads, in packing houses and in manufacturing enterprises. Could money be invested more usefully? Yet it is as safe as government bonds and pays a better rate of interest. I invest my own money, but a man without financial experience may secure safe investments without difficulty. If a man has a bank account his banker will find safe investments for him. Bankers are men of financial experience, and 99 per cent of them are intelligent and honorable. There is no excuse for a busy man losing his savings. Many women, when they come into possession of money, lose it because they invest it in schemes bankers would not trust, or else the women loan their money to men who could not borrow money at a bank. Everything in life is simple and easy if we would only accept experience and be careful of big and sentimental notions. Financial sense is knowing that certain men will promise to do certain things and fail. Therefore when you invest your savings get security. And it is no more trouble to get good security than it is to get bad if you are guided by common sense and experience."—American Magazine.

Fat Crystals.

If small quantities of butter, lard and beef fat be separately boiled and slowly cooled for, say, twenty-four hours, the resulting crystals will show very marked differences under the microscope. The normal butter crystal is large and globular. It polarizes brilliantly and shows a well marked St. Andrew's cross. That of lard shows a stellar form, while that of beef fat has a foliated appearance. In course of time, as the butter loses its freshness, the globular crystal degenerates and gradually merges into peculiar rosette-like forms.

Instinct of the Mudfish.

The remarkable instinct which causes the mudfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature, intended solely, it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

Strictly Business.

"I always read one of Thackeray's novels two or three times."

"I don't want mine read that way," said the compiler of best sellers. "By the time you finish one of my novels I have another ready at a dollar fifty."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MAD RIOT OF COLORS.

Grotesque Native Fashions on the West Coast of Africa.

A somewhat amusing description of the arrival of a ship on the African coast near Sierra Leone is given by Mrs. Horace Tremlett in her book "With the Tin Gods." She says the ship was met by a multitude of primitive native canoes manned by naked savages, but evidences of civilization were not lacking in the later arrivals.

"They were followed in a more leisurely and decorous fashion by boats, also containing colored people, but clothed and apparently in their right mind, and these climbed up the companionway and swarmed in dozens all over the decks and into the saloons, taking possession of the ship. No one appeared to resent their behavior, and they crowded into the drawing room, lolling about on the settees and chairs. Some of them thumped out hymns and cakewalks with merciless enthusiasm on the piano, while the others whistled or sang the tune in various and divergent keys. They had evidently come on board to enjoy themselves, and every black face was decorated with an expansive and genial grin of pleasure.

"The men were dressed in decent ready made suits of dark tweed or cloth and, though adorned with a good deal of jewelry in the way of watch chains, pins and rings, were quite presentable. But their womenfolk were the most ludicrous caricature of civilization it is possible to imagine. Many of them wore silk and satin dresses, frilled, gathered and draped about their bulky figures. Red and yellow appeared to be the most popular colors, although purple and green were a close second, and I remember a very striking costume of emerald green velvet with bright pink satin facings and frills of deep coffee colored lace that surely must have been the envy of all beholders. Huge hats of grotesque shapes were perched indifferently on their black woolly heads. Magenta feathers strove with scarlet poppies, and vivid blue roses wrestled with yellow ribbons on a mauve hat.

"Bangles and chains composed of everything from colored glass to fine gold jingled and rattled as they moved about and glistened equally with their coal black eyes and gleaming white teeth. They chattered and gibbered like a troop of monkeys, and pandemonium reigned on board for several hours. It transpired that they were the native aristocracy of Sar' Leone, merchants and traders with their ladies, who made a point of boarding the mail boat whenever possible, generally to bid farewell to one of their number who is traveling down the coast. They look upon it as a legitimate excuse for a spree, and as a large proportion of the ship's cargo depends upon their good will they are encouraged to make the most of the occasion."

Loan and Lend.

Many errors are committed in the name of usage. That's why, today, the dictionaries permit one to use "loan" as a verb instead of "lend."

The highest philological authorities, among whom is Richard Grant White, say that "loan" is absolutely the noun form of the word.

"Lend me a dollar" is correct. Further, when the man has lent you the dollar you have obtained the loan and presumably will repay it. We negotiate for loans and obtain them if the person is willing to lend them to us. One cannot loan a loan any more than one can lend a lend. If we insist in using loan as a verb the word "lend" is so much excess matter in the lexicon.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Historical Misnomers.

History is full of misnomers. Our fathers began to call Lincoln Old Abe when he was only fifty-one years of age. He died at fifty-six and so never was old.

The most famous regiment that has participated in any American war was Morgan's Virginia Riflemen of the Revolution. But 192 of those troops were from Pennsylvania and only 163 from Virginia and 65 from Maryland.

The pet name for Napoleon was the Little Corporal, but he never was a corporal. He entered the French army as a lieutenant.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Curious Funeral Ceremony.

It is said that when Alaric, the conqueror of Rome, died "a river was turned aside to make place in its bed for his grace, and when he was buried the water was again let into its former channel and the prisoners who had helped to bury him were killed so that no one might find out where the conqueror of Rome was buried." The river turned was the Busento and the place near Cosento, Italy.

Perfectly Natural.

"Why does that young man reach in his pocket and draw out a package of papers as soon as he begins to talk to any one?"

"That's a mere matter of habit. You see, he is a life insurance agent."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

In the Modern Flat.

Prospective Tenant (dubiously)—Well, I'd take the place—it has modern improvements, and so forth, as you say—but I don't like that ugly crack in the wall over there. Janitor (hastily)—Crack, sir? Why, that's the private hall.—Puck.

TAUGHT BY THE KING.

A Lesson Given by Frederick William III. to His Steward.

King Frederick William III. of Prussia was a man of few words. Whatever he had to say was always brief and to the point, as the following anecdote from a foreign journal shows:

The king, who was accustomed to interest himself in all the details of court management, ordered his steward to take special pains to see that all the carriages were amply supplied with food and drink whenever they left for a journey of a day or so, but it sometimes happened that the steward dispatched the drivers without any food, giving them a coin, perhaps, to buy what they wanted. That usually meant that the driver went hungry, as he did not have much opportunity to leave his horses and dine at a restaurant.

At length the king became aware of his steward's failure to carry out his orders and awaited the next opportunity to bring the fact to his attention. He had not long to wait. That night the king stopped his coachman as he entered the courtyard and upon inquiry found that the man had had nothing to eat since breakfast. He held out a dollar in his hand that the steward had given him to buy food with. Without a word the king took the dollar.

He went into the castle and summoned the steward. That worthy appeared immediately and made a profound bow, but as he raised himself up he was surprised to feel a coin placed against his mouth.

"Eat it!" ordered the king.

"But, your majesty, I"—

"Eat it!" the king again roared.

"Why, your majesty, I can't eat it!"

"Oh, you can't? But you expected the coachman to! Well, in the future just remember that—that people eat food, not money. Do you understand?"

The steward understood. In the future the king's coachmen were amply supplied with provisions whenever they went upon a journey.

MAPS ON GLOBES.

The Spheres, Made of Brown Paper, Are Wonderfully Strong.

Few people could say of what substance globe maps are made and would be astonished to hear that brown paper is the chief material used. A matrix of wood is covered with strips of brown paper which have been well smeared with paste. The paper is laid on the matrix until it is about a sixteenth of an inch thick and the globe looks like a round football. When this paper covering is dry it is cut midway between what will be the two poles, removed from the matrix, and after an axis has been fixed in it the two hemispheres are glued together. Then this sphere of brown paper is coated with a composition plaster, the ingredients of which are a trade secret, and again left to dry.

After being tested to see that it is an exact sphere the meridians are marked on the globe to guide the girls who finish the work. The globe is then fixed in a clamp, which holds its axis, and a girl takes the engraved gores, cut ready for use, and pastes them on without overlapping. If the globe is exact the gores should fit so exactly that you cannot see where they are in the completed globe.

When the gores have dried on the globe is colored by a hand process, which is also done by girls, and then polished. The globe is now ready to be mounted on its stand and to have its meridian fitted. Formerly, says the World's Work, when the industry was most flourishing, the metal and wood work connected with the fittings formed separate industries, but today the globe maker does the whole work on his own premises.

It might be mentioned that globes thus made are so strong that a man could stand on one and not break it. Indeed, you cannot break one without using great violence.

Tennyson and Barnum.

Tennyson was extremely eager at one time to visit America, and touching this point a story is related to the effect that Barnum offered him an enormous sum to make the trip, though probably not as one of the attractions of the "greatest show on earth." "All you have to do," said Barnum, "is to stand on a platform and have your hands well shaken." The poet, however, declined the offer.

How Bamboos Bloom.

Bamboo plants are said to have the peculiarity of blooming at exactly the same time, whether in Europe or Africa, the difference in climate and surroundings seeming to make no change in the plants bursting into flower. They blossom rarely, but as they die immediately afterward this cannot be deplored. The plant is said to be exquisitely graceful and is easily cultivated.

That Sinking Feeling.

Sometimes a simple phrase will tell more than a volume of description. In such a phrase a solder describes his sensations on going under fire for the first time. "It was," he says, "as if some one had given me a smack below the chest with the flat of a heavy spade."

His Title.

"If it were customary in this country to confer titles upon men who go in for literature, what would I be?" asked a conceited journalist of his senior.

"Baron of Ideas," was the terse reply.

If we could learn to forget by forgiving many a heartache would cease today.

LEGEND OF THE ROBIN.

Indian Story of How the Brave Bird Got Its Red Breast.

When white men first came far across the sea to this country they found many birds such as they had never seen before. But they found one which they liked best of all. It had a pretty red breast, and they called it robin, for its red breast made them think of a bird back in the old home which they loved most of all.

The Indians had a story about how the robin got its red breast. They said it happened a long time ago, when there was only one fire in all the cold far north.

A hunter and his son kept the fire burning day and night until the father fell ill, and the son had to watch the fire all alone. The great white bear was waiting for a chance to put the fire out so he could have all the north to himself. He saw the boy fall asleep; then he jumped on the fire with his wet feet and put it out.

But a gray robin saw him, and when he was gone she pecked about in the ashes till she found a tiny live coal. She fanned it with her wings until it blazed out and turned her breast red. Then she flew away to every hut in the cold north. Wherever she touched the ground a fire sprang up, and soon there were plenty of fires to keep the people warm. After that the robin's breast was always red instead of gray. —Exchange.

LESSON OF THE LETTERS.

A Warning the Thoughtful Old Lady Gave the Heedless Young One.

They were two women, one young, radiant; the other gently, beautifully old.

"But, auntie, it's such fun."

The older rose.

"Wait."

In a moment she had returned. Two faded, yellow letters lay upon the young girl's lap.

"Read them."

Wonderingly the girl obeyed. The first read:

"Dearest—I leave you to John. It is plain you care for him. I love you. Just now it seems that life without you is impossible. But I can no longer doubt. If you cared there would be no doubt. John is my friend. I would rather see you his than any other's, since you cannot be mine. God bless you. WILL."

The other:

"Beloved—I am leaving you to the better man. For me there can never be another love. But it is best—it is the right thing—and I am—yes, I am glad that it is Will you love instead of me. You cannot be anything but happy with him. With me—but that is a dream I must learn to forget. As ever and ever, JOHN."

How the Roman Empire Grew.

Rome was founded 750 B. C., the kings were expelled 509 B. C., and it was not until 290 B. C., 460 years after the founding of the city, that the Romans conquered their immediate neighbors, the Samnites, Latins, etc. It was not until 266 B. C., following the defeat of Pyrrhus, that Rome was supreme in Italy, from the southern boundary of Cisalpine Gaul to the Sicilian strait. For 350 years, from the foundation of the city, the Romans could stand on the hills of their city and almost look across their entire territory, as it stretched away only some twenty miles on either hand. After the consolidation of their power in Italy, however, it took them but 150 years to conquer the world.

Cast and Wrought Iron.

In a paper recently read before the Society of Chemical Industry the statement was made that the strength of cast iron was affected by the addition of wrought iron in the following proportions: With 100 parts of cast iron ten parts of wrought iron increase the strength 2 per cent; twenty parts of wrought iron increase the strength 32 per cent; thirty parts of wrought iron increase the strength 60 per cent; forty parts of wrought iron increase the strength only 33 per cent. The maximum result is therefore produced with 30 per cent wrought scrap.—Indianapolis News.

The Harm of Damp Houses.

It is dangerous to health and even to life in a damp, moldy house or one built over a moldy cellar. Many years ago the London Lancet in an article on diphtheria traced the disease in certain cases to the presence of certain molds and fungoid growths which seemed to be breathed into the throat. Remember, one of the best disinfectants is lime. Moldy cloths, such as shoes and other articles that are unfit for use, should be destroyed at once.

Well Informed.

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER

A Water Game For Camp.

Two rafts with crews of two each, lined up at one end of a 100 foot course, writes a correspondent of Scouting. They were allowed a twenty-five foot start, when they entered the "war zone," after which they could be attacked by "submarines" (which were logs not less than ten inches in diameter, ten feet long, bluntly pointed at one end, propelled by two scouts each). The submarine crews were not allowed to attack with the rear end of their logs, nor were they permitted to place their hands on the rafts. The raft crews could ward off attacks with their poles on submarines only, not touching the submarine crews with their hands or poles. If the raft crews succeeded in reaching the lower end of the "war zone" without being forced off their raft they won. If they were forced off their raft the submarines won. If the submarines could not force the raft crews into the water and the raft crews could not reach the goal in a given time it was a draw. The submarines were disqualified if they entered the neutral zone (twenty-five feet from starting line).

Smoke Without Fire.

Two clay pipes are shown empty; then the bowls are placed together, and the performer, puffing on one of the pipes, produces clouds of smoke, says Popular Mechanics. To perform this trick dip a small piece of cotton in muriatic acid and smear it over the inside of one of the pipes. The other pipe is treated in the same manner, using liquid ammonia on the cloth. They are then ready for use as mentioned.

Smoke may be blown into a covered glass by rinsing the inside with the acid and smearing the bottom of a saucer with the ammonia, then placing the saucer on top of the glass and covering both with a handkerchief. Stand about three feet from the table and blow the smoke from a cigar or cigarette at the handkerchief, stating that the glass will thus be filled with the smoke. The handkerchief is then taken off, and on lifting the saucer a cloud of smoke will arise.

The Birds' Secret.

The bulletin of the department of agriculture on bird migration brings up an unsolved problem. The chimney swift is one of the best known birds of the eastern states and the most abundant. With troops of fledglings, catching their prey as they go and lodging by night in tall chimneys, the swifts drift slowly south, along with other birds, until they become a great host upon the northern shore of the gulf of Mexico. Then they disappear. It was once believed that they dropped into the water and hibernated in the mud, but that solution is wide of the mark, of course. They are, however, as completely obliterated as if it were the case. In the last week of March a joyful twittering overhead announces that the swifts have returned to the gulf coast, but the secret of their home for their five months' absence has never been discovered.

Game of Newspaper.

One player who acts as editor takes as many sheets of paper as there are players and writes at the head of it a title of a section of the newspaper. Thus on one he will write "War Correspondence," on another "Business Reports," on another "Our Fashion Page," on another "Weather Report," and so on. Each player is given a piece of the paper, and for a given time he writes on the subject allotted to him, more or less in the manner of the daily press. At the end the result is read aloud by the editor. The one having the best department wins.

The heading may refer to domestic matters, such as nursery news, kitchen gossip, fashions for men, garden news, village chatter, and so on; or, instead of a newspaper, a popular magazine may be got up, with illustrations.

Scouts Act as Park Guards.

In Centralia, Wash., the boy scouts have formed a patrol for the purpose of protecting park property and keeping litter off the grounds. One park, nearly four blocks in extent, is in the care of the boys. They have no police powers, but have the backing of the police force. This action on the part of the Centralia scouts was taken to prevent people from leaving refuse on the grounds, and it is the duty of the boys to request picknickers to place waste paper, fruit peelings, etc., in the proper receptacles and to prevent the young toughs who frequent the park from damaging trees and benches. In addition to their regular patrol duties the boys conduct a "cleanup" day occasionally and put the ground in order. —Scouting.

Tree of Many Fruits.

There is a man living in Langhorne, Pa., who amuses himself by grafting all sorts of plants upon other plants. He has invented the "table d'hote" tree, formerly a peach tree that did its full duty in bearing peaches, but that now bears apples, plums and cherries as well, besides supporting grafts of cedar, rose, hemlock, blackberry and lilac. With what curiosity the peach tree's relatives must look upon it!

Bargain Day.

It is bargain day in the attic,
And the doors will open at eight;
There'll be nothing left on the counters
For the shopper who comes too late.

There is much that you need—so hurry!
You must come when the sale begins,
For no goods are sent on approval
When the payment is made in pins.

SOLDIERS AND CANES.

English Military Men Must Not Go Out Walking Empty Handed.

It is one of the regulations of the British army that every soldier when walking out must carry in his hand a stick in order to preserve a soldierly appearance and prevent anything like slouching in his gait.

This rule applies to all ranks, and should any one seek to evade it he would find his progress barred by the sentry at the barrack gate or entrance to camp.

Privates generally carry light canes or "swagger sticks," noncommissioned officers fairly stout sticks, and officers invariably go in for the more expensive kind. It is a question that has often been asked, Who first suggested the idea? But nobody seems to know.

From the earliest times drill sergeants and drum majors have carried sticks, and the fashion may have come from that fact. Soldiers as a rule buy their own sticks, but in one or two regiments a recruit is presented with one when he gets his uniform. If this gets lost, however, he has to buy the next and subsequent ones.

There is a story told of a soldier one day who couldn't find his cane and, knowing he would be challenged if he didn't have something in his hand, quietly picked up a poker and passed through the gate all right with it in his fist.—Dundee Advertiser.

HE DWELT IN PEACE.

Revolutions In Haiti Didn't Bother the Old Darky Settler.

During one of the revolutions in Haiti a party of Americans made a riding tour of the mountains. One morning a member of the party suddenly drew rein and pointed to a lone ridge where an old tattered stars and stripes fluttered on a bamboo pole.

"We must pay our respects," some one said.

After some search they found a path that zigzagged up to the wild place. They followed it and at last discovered an aged negro sitting before his wattled hut smoking his pipe, while he kept an eye on the flag.

"What's the flag for?" some one asked.

"Pertection," said the old man quietly. "I heah dey done begin anudder resolution, so I put it up. Yes, suh. I come hear twenty-two yeahs ago, an' has dat flag wid me. I'm George, cook on a steamer outer Savannah.

"Like de place? Yas, sah. Plant yam an' coffee an' cassava. Résolutions don't trouble dis nigger. Ebery time dey resolute yander up goes de flag, an' dat's all dere's to it."—Washington Star.

Antiquity of the Organ.

The organ is the most magnificent and comprehensive of all musical instruments. While the pipes of Pan, aside from that mythical personage, indicate a very ancient use of pipes as a means of producing musical sounds, the "water organ of the ancients" furnishes to the student of organ history the first tangible clew regarding the remote evolution of the instrument. In the second century the magripha, an organ of ten pipes with a crude keyboard, is said to have existed, but accounts of this instrument are involved in much obscurity. It is averred that an organ, the gift of Constantine, was in the possession of King Pepin of France in 757, but Aldheim, a monk, makes mention of an organ with "gilt pipes" as far back as the year 700.

Bulls In Parliament.

Lord Londonderry once threw the house of lords into roars of laughter during the debate on the second reading of the Irish land bill by gravely declaring that "this is the reason why you have failed to settle the Irish land question in the future as you have done in the past."

In the course of the same speech he concluded a period with: "This is the keystone of the bill. Are you going to kill it?"

Better still was a sentence which he uttered in 1897 when speaking once more on the Irish land question—"That, your lordship will see," referring to a quotation he had just made, "indorses up to the hilt what I have said."—London Tatler.

Burns as a Tax Collector.

In the olden days candles were taxed articles, and it was the duty of Robert Burns as an excise officer to see that the tax was not evaded. He generally looked the other way, however, as when passing through the kitchen one night at William Lorimer's of Kennishall, where the gudewife was busy making candles, he merely remarked, "Faith, madam, ye're thrang the nicht," and passed into the parlor.—St. James' Gazette.

No Cause For Him to Complain.

"See here!" remarked the guest to the new waiter. "There doesn't seem to be any soup on this menu card."

"Oh, no, sir!" replied the waiter nervously. "I didn't spill it at this table. It was the one on the other side of the room."

Of Good Repute.

"But what is his reputation? That is the principal thing."

"Well, papa, he is reputed to spend fifty thousand a year. That's good enough for me."—Judge.

Sometimes.

"My face is my fortune."

"Yes, but an investment of that kind sometimes has very bad features about it."—Baltimore American.

Never educate a child to be a gentleman or a lady alone, but to be a man, a woman.—Herbert Spencer.

SAENGERBUND HALL FOR BORO ATHLETES

Basketball Call Issued and Big Turnout is Expected.

Basketball will be ushered into the borough this afternoon, when Ronald Conroy, captain of the North Plainfield High School forces, issues the initial call for candidates. Saengerbund Hall will again be the scene of conflict for the boroughites this season. Arrangements were completed with the Saengerbund Society to lease the hall from October 15 to March 1, from 3 o'clock until 6.

A general survey of the basketball talent now present in the borough institution gives opportunity for much optimism on the part of those concerned in the athletics of this school. The borough boys will have four regulars in the line-up, with only one position vacant. Although there will not be many candidates reporting for this position, those who are expected are considered to be good material from which a good pivot man can be selected.

Renald Conroy, captain and left forward, will once more appear in that position. The borough leader is an experienced hand at the indoor sport, having been a member of the team for the past two years. Warren Townley will again act as his team-mate in the other forward position. This combination has worked together the past two years, so both players should know the style of game which the other is accustomed to playing, this being a great advantage in perfecting teamwork.

The guard positions will be ably filled by Oscar Dilts and Appleton Van Mater. Both of these men are good defensive players, while their short passing will help materially in building up this style of the game which the borough team intends to play.

The promising candidates for the center position are: Harold Lunger, Sidney Dunning and Senwood Marsch. All of these men have played the game before and have showed promise. Lunger was a member of the team the latter part of last season, and has therefore had more experience than his rivals.

The squad will consist of eight men this year, giving opportunity for three more men. Manager John Dawe appears to be the logical man for a forward position, while Harry Kirch will probably be in the guard position.

P. H. S. HAS DESIGNS ON COUNTY LAURELS

Expects to Dispose of Westfield as an Initial Step Tomorrow Afternoon.

Dame Fortune or some other misguided individual has whispered in the ears of some few football critics anchored in this vicinity that the P. H. S. gridiron artists are going to be mangled horribly when they visit Westfield tomorrow. Just why this opinion continues to roam is a theory which the Red and Blue players are anxious to explode.

At the present time the P. H. S. boys, refreshed by their 71 to 0 win over Somerville, are going at a rapid pace, and are prepared to brook no opposition. On the other hand, the Westfield clan, while known to be the proud possessor of an unusually heavy line, is woefully weak when it comes to breaking up passes.

However, it must be admitted that, although defeated by Rahway, the Westfield warriors more than held their own during the last stages of the game. Had P. H. S. already encountered any of the teams Westfield has met a more valuable comparison between the two teams could safely be made. As the situation now stands, either team is likely to make "mincemeat" of the other.

The line-up for tomorrow's game:

W. H. S.	P. H. S.
Welde	Fitch left end
K. Davis	Miller left tackle
Martin	Pennock left guard
R. Cairns	Kline center
McMillan	Davidson right end
Marenghi	Somloch right tackle
Sortor	Geary right guard
Gilmartin	Peacock quarterback
Clark	Apgar
left halfback
McAllister	Daniels
right halfback
A. Cairns,	Noonan
fullback

The game will be played at Recreation Park, where the old Westfield and Plainfield baseball teams staged many an interesting diamond tilt.

BOUND BROOK BOY IN RUTGERS GAME

Last Home Contest for Big Scarlet Eleven Tomorrow Afternoon.

"Toady" Bracher, the diminutive half-back from Rahway, who is the smallest man on the Rutgers football squad, will start the game against Muhlenberg tomorrow afternoon. This is the last home game of the season for the big Scarlet eleven, and a record crowd is expected to attend. Muhlenberg is the strongest team Rutgers has met this year, with the exception of Princeton, and the game will be by no means a walk-over. "Red" Fleming, the former Washington and Jefferson star, is a member of the visiting team, and should make things interesting for the Rutgers defense. By protesting his eligibility Rutgers could keep the big half-back out of the game, but the players have decided to permit him to participate. Without Fleming, Muhlenberg held Lafayette to a 14 to 7 score, and with the addition of their star should make the contest worth while.

Ralph Seiler, the former Battin player, is giving "Tex" Austin, one-time Rahway star, a hard fight for the position at left end. So far the Rahway boy has had a slight advantage, but Seiler is sure to work in a part of the game.

Talman, Bracher, Elliott and Scarr will probably start for Rutgers in the backfield. Wittpenn is bothered by a twisted knee and may be kept out. Rendall and Nash are slated for tackles, while White and Mason, the latter a Bound Brook boy, will hold down the guard positions. Miller, who has been out of the game for a week or so, will start at center.

BIG DEER SLAUGHTER IN GLOUCESTER COUNTY

Franklinville, Oct. 15.—Hunting parties returning from the woods Wednesday night bring stories of a big slaughter of deer in the lower end of Gloucester county and in the wilds of Atlantic and Cumberland counties. With hundreds of gunners out for the first day's sport of the open deer season there was an absence of any serious accidents in this immediate region, according to reports received late Wednesday night. Many parties went to the deer woods in automobiles and came back Wednesday night, while others have established camps along the best runs.

Parties passed through here yesterday with nine deer. One of the luckiest out was from Pittman, and they brought down three fine deer near Mizpah.

VETERANS ENGAGED FOR LOCAL WARRIORS

Holy Cross Players Will Have Their Work Cut Out for Them Tomorrow.

When Holy Cross lines up against the Colonial A. C., of Brooklyn, on the Cricket Field gridiron tomorrow afternoon it is expected that Billy Coyle and Frank Lee, two veteran performers, will be back in harness, and that the line-up will be considerably stronger than that which was splashed with kalsomine by the Brooklyn Cupids last Tuesday. The Colonials are about on a par with their fellow Brooklynites in football calibre, and it is a safe conclusion that the locals will have their work cut out for them in holding down the visiting delegation tomorrow afternoon.

The roster of the Holy Cross football outfit this year is an unusually formidable one, and Manager "Doc" Doyle is planning to give local followers of the game a thoroughly enjoyable fall schedule, but unless the contests are attended by larger numbers than turned out Tueusday, it is likely that he will be forced to alter his plans. Some of the best clubs in the State have been booked, and the Plainfield outfit is well qualified to make a good showing against the best that come.

EACH BOSTONIAN GOT $3,825 FOR HIS LABOR

Not Bad at All for Five Days' Work on the Ball Diamond.

Boston, Oct. 15.—With checks in their pockets for $3,825.80 as their individual shares of the proceeds of the world series games, several members of the champion Red Sox team left for their homes last night. Other players are to join automobile or hunting parties, while Hoblitzel and Cady are arranging to become members of a special playing team, under the management of Frank Bancroft, secretary of the Cincinnati club.

Twenty-two players shared equally in the money split, McNally, one of the eligibles, who was with the team only a short time, receiving a smaller sum than the others. Before the division was made the players took out McNally's share and also $500 each for the secretary and the trainer of the club and certain gifts for other club attaches. They are to make testimonial gifts to the manager, William Carrigan, and the president, J. J. Lannin, later.

PROPOSED COAST TRIP DECLARED OFF

Ball Players Not Satisfied With Arrangements That Are Made.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 15.—The proposed trip to the Pacific coast of the world's champion Red Sox and the Philadelphia National League pennant winners, was declared off yesterday by Robert B. McRoy, representing the National Baseball Commission. Inability to come to an agreement on a financial arrangement is the cause for the abandonment of the trip.

Yesterday, at a meeting of the Philadelphia players, Mr. McRoy telephoned President Lannin, of the Boston Americans, and was informed that the world's champions decided not to make the trip unless they were given a guarantee and expenses. As the National Commission representative could not give this he called the trip off, to the great disappointment of the Philadelphia players.

The Philadelphia players' share of the world's series money was divided into twenty-four parts and each of the twenty-three men eligible to participate in the series was given a check for $2,492.23.

The twenty-fourth share was divided into three parts, one of which went to Pitcher Oescher, who rejoined the Phillies in September, and the other two parts were divided among Mike Dee, the trainer, and several others.

SOME SPICY SPORT CHATS

Baseball Will Lose Great Manager When Clarke Retires.

WILL WAGNER GET JOB?

"Old Honus" Likely to Succeed Fred as Leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Lawn Tennis Now a Strenuous Game. Connie Mack Will Be Heard From Next Year—Other Notes.

When Fred Clarke counted ten on his own baseball career by resigning from the Pittsburgh Pirates recently, to take effect at the close of the present season, it marked the passing of one more of the old school of baseball fighters.

It was "cleats first" with Frederico, the devil get the baseman who didn't know how to fend off the spikes. A hard mouthed, tobacco chewing, rough riding scrapper, his tactics kept his team in the first division hunt for fifteen years, with the exception of last season, when he seemed to lose his punch on the bench.

Clarke astonished the world, and the players especially, last year by his philosophic manner of taking defeat, a system absolutely foreign to his nature. His changed attitude presaged his waning interest and his prospective retirement.

Nevertheless but for the late injury to Carey and the short absence from the game of his greatest pitcher, Mamaux, he might still be in the pennant race this season, despite his reformed methods.

He retires with one of the best records ever achieved by a major league manager, having won four pennants. Nearer to his own heart is the thought that he has won enough money for himself to retire to his ranch in comfort with the knowledge that the wolf will never howl at his door.

Who will succeed him? We would like to say Hans Wagner, but the hope can't be encouraged. Hans is a great player, and some say he has been doing much of the advising in connection with the club as it is. Hans is the logical leader of the team, but he has said he did not want the job.

It isn't so very long ago, not much over two decades, since boys and men refrained from telling in public places that they were great tennis players. The sport had a little niche along with croquet, roque and lawn bowls as a nice girly-girly game, good for flirting purposes and to show off your swell new "blazer."

Even ma and pa held up their end pretty well in the doubles in those days, when the athlete was very strong for the lob and the lemonade, the last usually kept near by.

But today—well, only sound hearts and steel sinews can get away with this 1915 high tension sport.

Not that it takes any burly stuff to succeed at this game. William M. Johnston, the national champion, weighed exactly 116 pounds when he finished trimming Maurice McLoughlin, the California Comet, out of his title.

While Mack's team looks like a bush league organization, the leader of the Athletics undoubtedly in time will come back with another winning club. He is the best developer of young baseball talent of all the managers in the big leagues.

It is not going to take Connie Mack long to build up a winning team of youngsters. The elongated leader of the Athletics is reported to be making rapid progress and already has several players who give promise of filling the holes left by the going of Collins, Baker and Barry. Mack will have a real ball team next spring. Malone, who is playing second now, is said to have improved considerably since he made his first appearance at the bag.

There is one play in baseball which has not been tried for many years. It is the fake passed ball worked by catchers in the old days, when there was a man on third. It was the plan to carefully tuck the ball away in the big glove, then swing around as if it had got away from him. Many a coacher fell for the trick and sent the runner home, only to be touched out when he reached there or caught between the bases and run down.

It would seem that the American league clubs permitted a mighty good ball player to slip out of the circuit when they allowed waivers on Doc Johnston, who is playing wonderful ball for the Pittsburgh Pirates. Johnston is playing the best ball of his career for the Pittsburgh team, and he is filling the position better than any other man the Pirates have had since the days when Bransfield was in his prime. There are several American league clubs which would be benefited by the acquisition of Johnston.

GREAT ATHLETES LOSE BIG CHANCE

Postponement of Olympics Causes Gloom In America.

DREW IN WINNING FORM.

Negro Champion Sprinter Better Now Than Ever—Loomis, Crack Chicago Jumper, Will Never Get Opportunity to Show Up Foreigners.

But for the great war that is raging in Europe we would now be hard at the task of getting a line on Uncle Sam's strength for the Olympic games of 1916, scheduled to be held in Berlin. And what a wonderful collection of track and field men America could send abroad if it was possible to hold the Olympics next year! When the 1912 team was mustered on the steamship Finland it was said that there never would be as great a team as that one got together again, but if called upon to go after the world's title in 1916 Uncle Sam could show an aggregation just as strong as if not stronger than the Stockholm team.

One of the most distressing features of the abandonment of the 1916 Olympics from the American point of view is the number of wonderful performers in this country who have never won Olympic honors and will never get the chance unless the meet is held in 1916.

Howard Drew Misses Out.

Howard P. Drew, the great colored sprinter, is one. Hard luck cost Drew his title at Stockholm, but nothing could prevent him from winning the 100 meter Olympic championship if it was run next year. It is not reasonable to expect Drew to hold his form until 1920, so his chance for an Olympic title is gone.

Dave Caldwell is another who will lose a world's title because of the big war in Europe. At Stockholm Caldwell was practically a novice, yet he ran into fourth position at the 800 meter championship after one of the greatest stretch sprints ever witnessed. He is getting better all the time, and it's dollars to doughnuts that he would land the 800 meter championship if it was run next year.

Ted Meredith, of course, has had his taste of Olympic victory, but there are Val Wilkie of Yale and Lester Cowman of Rolla and W. M. Wilcox of Harvard, great sprinters, who proved recently that they are capable of running faster than did Charley Reidpath when he won the Olympic championship from Honus Braum of Germany. Wilcox, Cowman and Wilkie would run the legs off any quarter miler Europe could have produced next year, but they'll never get the chance, and, besides Wilkie and Wilcox, Uncle Sam has not less than twenty other quarter milers who can sneak home under the coveted fifty second mark.

Loomis Also In List.

Joe Loomis, the phenomenal athlete representing the Chicago A. A., who won three national championships in side of two hours at Baltimore last fall, will never get a crack at Olympic competition because the crowned heads of Europe started the big muss a year ago. Loomis can sprint, hurdle and high jump in Olympic form any old time at all, but what's the use?

In the broad jump America has a dozen men who will beat twenty-three feet any time they start on a good day. Only recently Phil Stiles of Wisconsin university did 24 feet 1½ inches, and Don Dawson, a Pacific coast jumper, has done 23 feet 1 inch or better five times in the last two years. Wesley Oler of Yale cleared 23 feet 11 inches and Gooch of the University of Virginia bettered 23 feet.

It's the same right through the track and field program. The American colleges and athletic clubs are just teeming with great athletic performers fully developed and also with Meyers, Lippincott, Richards, Byrd and other second string men who made good for the United States in the Stockholm stadium three years ago.

INITIAL ON OUIMET'S SWEATER FOOLED GIRLS.

Herbert L. Jillson of Pinehurst, N. C., is guilty of perpetrating this one: When Francis Ouimet, amateur golf champion, was at Pinehurst he wore a sweater on which was the letter "W." for Woodland, his home club.

One day he passed two pretty girls. "What's the letter on his sweater for?" asked one of them. "Why, for We-met, of course," replied the other.

RABBIT BEAT THIELMAN.

Hare Makes Part of Circuit Ahead of Former Big Leaguer.

Though he was the first man up, two runners crossed the home plate one day recently when Jack Thielman, formerly a player in the National and American leagues and also in the American association and now a mainstay of the St. Cloud team, lined out a long hit to center field in the game with Long Prairie at St. Cloud, Minn.

The ball that was driven clear to the fence hit a rabbit that was browsing in the long grass. Startled, the hare started for the diamond, touched second base, sped along the base line a few jumps ahead of Thielman, rounded third base on account of the fans on the side line and dashed across the home plate, with the Seattle player hard on his heels.

"If we'd had another base to go," said Thielman, "I would have had to tell the rabbit to get out of the way and let some one run that could run."

HERE IS SOME PITCHER.

Breymeier, Eighteen, Twirls Thirty-four Innings In One Afternoon.

Walter Breymeier, eighteen years old, pitcher for the Proctor Recreation Centers, a semiprofessional team in Peoria, Ill., recently pitched thirty-four innings in a double header against Keifer's Colts, another semiprofessional team. The first game was called at the end of the eleventh inning with the score 0 to 0, while he won the afternoon game for his team, 4 to 5, with a single in the twenty-third inning.

It took three hours and thirty minutes to complete the second game.

NEW THROWING RECORD.

Miss Ruth McCabe Leads Girls In Hurling Ball 209 Feet 5 Inches.

What was said to be a new world baseball throwing record for a girl was made recently in Tacoma, Wash., by Miss Ruth McCabe when she threw a ball 209 feet 5 inches.

Miss Dorothy Smith of Vassar college is said to have established the best previous record in 1911 with a throw of 204 feet. Miss McCabe is a fourth year student in high school in Tacoma.

REV. DR. EATON ON "SUFFRAGE"

He Says the Question Has Nothing Whatever to Do With Sex.

EXERCISE OF JUDGMENT

Local Suffragists Complete Plans for Rally and Mass Meeting Tomorrow Night in Columbus Auditorium—List of Speakers.

All arrangements have been completed for the big suffrage rally and mass meeting to be held in Plainfield Saturday evening. The meeting will be held at Columbus Hall at 8 p. m.

Miss Lou Rogers, cartoonist for Puck and Judge, is to be the principal speaker. Miss Rogers is one of the most entertaining speakers on the long list of orators for the cause, and as the women workers put it, they "saved the best for the last."

She announces that she will give a "cartoon talk," and her admirers say that the expression is appropriate. A cartoon contains only the essentials of a picture, they explain, and her address will accentuate the fundamental arguments for woman suffrage, with a personal touch of humor and logic. Miss Rogers will bring her crayon and paper and will illustrate her remarks throughout the lecture. She held a crowd of thousands the other night in New York for more than two hours, and still they were not willing to leave.

Mayor Calkins has consented to be one of the Plainfield business and professional men who will make five-minute talks, in which telling why they are to vote yes on the suffrage amendment. Similar talks will be made by six or seven others.

In addition to the list of men who will occupy the platform printed yesterday, the following have consented to lend their presence to the cause: Councilman Thomas F. Hylan, A. R. Parkhurst, Jr., James J. McCann, Rev. Edward S. Ralston, Rev. Mr. Gillespie and E. V. Cox.

The Union county suffrage parade will be held tomorrow, and local suffrage workers and enthusiasts are to take part in that. Monday will be given to personal work among the voters.

Charles A. Eaton, one of those who was invited to address the suffrage rally Saturday evening, cannot be present, but he sent the following letter to the committee, explaining that it expressed his sentiment on the question and contained what he wanted to say:

"The question of suffrage for women has nothing whatever to do with sex; voting is not a sex function. In a democracy voting is the exercise by responsible people of their judgment with reference to public affairs and the discharge of moral obligations to the general good. This woman can do as well as man.

"The woman question has very little to do with the matter of sex. Vast and fundamental changes in our economic life have taken away from large numbers of both men and women their normal employment. The only outlet for their energies is in public service. By that I mean public housekeeping, which is the essence of city politics and all the questions of social welfare, as government, philanthropy, education, sanitation and the work of the church. I hold that we ought to do everything in our power to enlist in this most important line of work everyone who can add a part. For this reason I am strong for giving votes to women as well as men, and of putting everyone who has the leisure to work for the common good."

HAS VOICE OF THE PURE LYRIC QUALITY

Mme. Rappold, Who is to Sing Here November 1, Has Had Remarkable Career.

Mme. Marie Rappold, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House, who is to be one of the artists of the Musical Club's concert on November 1, will be well known to opera-goers in New York this winter. This distinguished American singer has been engaged for forty presentations during twenty-five weeks of the opera season, and will appear during that time with the king of tenors, Caruso.

Those who have been familiar with the Metropolitan productions will remember that Mme. Rappold made a very emphatic success at her debut in Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba," when the public, her fellow artists, and even the New York critics, considered the most deadly of their species in America, joined in giving her a royal welcome. Since that promising beginning she has been highly appreciated in such leading parts as Aida, Elsa, Elizabeth, Juliette, etc. It will be seen that such versatility indicates a voice qualified for the lyric as well as for the dramatic soprano. Indeed, W. J. Henderson, the New York Sun's critic, whose dictum is perhaps the most respected in musical circles, wrote last January: "Her voice is of the pure lyric quality required for a sympathetic interpretation of the music allotted to Verdi's unhappy heroine." And of another presentation of Aida in Philadelphia the Record wrote: "Her's is a lovely, sympathetic voice. Her duo with Caruso was a gem of song, and she sustained the tone with fine art and great beauty of effect."

Plainfield is, indeed, fortunate to hear this great singer, whose successes in large cities here and abroad have been manifold. Mme. Rappold has been decorated by the King of Roumania, and has held many tempting offers from Berlin and Vienna, but even before the present tragic times in Europe, this young American liked best to sing "in her ain countrie."

Mme. Rappold.

NEW USE FOR MOVIES.

Princeton, Oct. 15.—The football practice had the additional feature of moving pictures being taken in the rain yesterday. Coach Rush had the camera men snap several of the 'varsity plans during a part of the scrimmage. Only the ordinary sort of plays were used, but Rush hopes to build up team work as well as individual play by the use of the films.

How to Keep Our City Moving

We must keep moving. A city booms only so long as its manufacturers and merchants keep moving. The wheels of every line of endeavor must be kept turning if the city is going to develop, and what is of deeper concern than the wheels of Plainfield kept turning?

Should every one who has the interest of Plainfield close at heart buy goods from our merchants, the benefits all around can easily be seen. Thousands of dollars that would otherwise go out of the city will be kept circulating here and contribute a big share towards making a bigger and busier Plainfield.

A dollar spent at home will keep that dollar at home and all will share in the profits.

STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CAMPAIGN

New Jersey Civic Body Acquainting Business Men With Its Objects.

The New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce which has been conducting a State-wide educational campaign, acquainting the business men of the State with the purposes and objectives of the organization, will culminate its educational endeavor by a State-wide membership day to be held on October 20th.

The purposes of the State Chamber, as pointed out by the president, George A. Viehmann, of New Brunswick, are: "To promote legislation thoroughly considerate of the business interests of the State and country and to analyze and investigate such legislation as is being proposed so that it may properly conform and meet with the needs of the country for enactments that are constructive and advance the general interest of all classes;

"To correctly and fully inform the public mind;

"To give it a clear understanding of what is necessary for successful commercial and industrial expansion;

"To encourage healthy regulation of legitimate business, and to urge honest business practices;

"To bring about an appreciation for the need of prosperous commercial and industrial institutions, thereby giving the employed continuous employment."

The plans of the State Chamber indicate a sincere desire on the part of its trustees to give to New Jersey a means whereby legislation may be carefully investigated and its relation to the best interests of the public carefully weighed and considered before its enactment, thus guarding against unfortunate and ill-advised legislation which it is alleged has more or less vitally and detrimentally affected the interests of the public in the past.

The State Chamber aspires and is ambitious for a non-political and non-sectional body which will impartially and without prejudice consider the many phases of all questions brought before it, executing its policies and activities with justness and fairness and to the best interests of all concerned.

The State Chamber publishes a legislative index, which is furnished to members of the body and is considered by its users as being of great value in that it places the business man in close touch with all proposed legislation. It gives a summary of each bill and amendment proposed, following them daily in committee and on the floor throughout the legislative session. The membership day proposed by the trustees contemplates the inviting of over three thousand business and professional men to participate in the work of the organization.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor's new bill for the last half of the week, which opened yesterday, brought six of the seasons most pleasing vaudeville acts. The program is headed by a "Girlie" musical act of seven people, entitled "The Boarding School Girls," and featuring Miss Tommy Allen. It is entirely different from the average tabloid musical comedy, and is filled with wholesome fun and catchy song numbers. Claude and Marion Cleveland ran a close second in pleasing the audiences with their lines of patter and songs, Miss Cleveland keeping the audience in a riot of laughter. She has an original line of comedy and a remarkable singing voice. The Hayden Sisters, singers and dancers, worked hard and earned every bit of the generous applause accorded them. The program is rounded out by Harriett Marlotte & Co., presenting the comedy sketch, "The Lallon;" James J. MacDonald, comedy entertainer, and Arnold and Florence, novelty entertainers. The new Pathe semi-weekly news picture was presented for the first time yesterday and included a portion of the first World's series baseball games at Philadelphia last week. Several of the most interesting parts of the great contest are shown with remarkable vividness and with great pleasure to the numerous baseball fans. It will be retained for the remainder of the week. Today's picture feature is the continuation of the serial film, "Neal of the Navy,' while tomorrow's offering is "The Way Back," an Edison production, featuring Marian Nesbitt. Every child attending the matinee tomorrow afternoon will have a surprise awaiting him, as the management has arranged for a "toy" presentation. The idea is a new one at Proctor's Theatre, but is one that will increase the popularity of the playhouse. Bring the children and let them enjoy this generosity that has been arranged especially for their pleasure.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Tomato Preserve—Take enough nice ripe tomatoes to make ten pounds after they have been peeled, and as much of the pulp taken out as can be. Put in pan or kettle and cover with five pounds granulated sugar. In the morning put on to cook and cook till tomatoes are transparent. Just a few minutes before taking off the fire add two lemons sliced thin.

Tomato Jam—Take peck of tomatoes and let cook till skins are all off, cut in small pieces, then strain through colander. Take five good-sized lemons, remove seeds, squeeze juice out, then cut lemons in small pieces, leaving rind in (gives it a better taste); then measure juice and take one cup less of sugar than of juice. Cook till thick. Put at once in glasses.

Novel Way to Can Peaches—Select ripe fruit, cover with boiling water, let stand a few minutes and the skins will slip off easily. Cut in halves, remove stone and pack tightly in thoroughly sterilized jar. Make a thick syrup of sugar and water and pour hot into the jars of peaches. Seal and place in a pail of hot water until cool. Peaches not only keep well in this way, but retain their delicious fresh flavor.

Cold Relish—One peck ripe tomatoes cut small, two cups chopped onions, two cups chopped parsley, two chopped peppers, two cups salt. Mix and let stand over night. Next morning add four cups sugar, one cup white mustard seed, two tablespoons pepper, two tablespoons allspice ground, four tablespoons cinnamon, two quarts vinegar. Put in jars and seal. This is fine and needs no cooking.

Canned Tomatoes—Select tomatoes (not too ripe), wash. Have ready a kettle of boiling water, add to it ten or twelve tomatoes, let them remain over the fire until the skins begin to burst, then remove them with a silver fork and place in colander so they drain well (if you allow them to remain in the water too long they will lose their flavor). Add more tomatoes to the boiling water until you have one-half bushel scalded, which will fill eight quart jars. After removing skins, put them in a large preserving kettle and, before boiling, skim off one quart of the water. Put over fire, being careful not to let them scorch. When they reach the boiling point, let boil one hour. This may seem a long time to many, but here lies the success. Do not forget to skim off all scum that arises, for it is that which forms the acid which causes tomatoes to spoil so easily. After boiling one hour, put them in sterilized jars, and be sure that the covers are in good condition; place same in hot water on back of stove; before using put the rubbers in a pan of cold water (insures airtight jars of fruit). This may seem like a lengthy recipe, but it is very simple and above all it is good. We often hear complaints from ladies who claim they cannot keep tomatoes for winter. Why? Simply because they don't boil long enough.

"Peach Germantown"—To a peck of peaches take five pounds sugar and a pint of vinegar cider. If peaches are juicy, no water; if dry, just enough water to melt sugar. Do not pare fruit, but wash very clean in hot water to remove the fuzz, leaving in a few stones to flavor. Put over a brisk fire, stirring constantly to prevent burning, and boil from thirty to forty-five minutes. This quantity makes about 1½ gallons of the finished product. This can be put away in crocks and kept nicely.

Fruit Butter Hint—To avoid the long, tiresome stirring of fruit butter, set the pan in the oven of the range with a slow fire. It will cook evenly without burning or splashing walls or floors.

ENOUGH SAID

NEW JERSEY'S MONTANA GIRL SAYS FARMERS VOTE YES.

Florence Leach Has Rounded Up the State.

Rounding up the grangers' vote, "the Montana Girl," Miss Florence Leach, field secretary of the New Jersey State Association For Woman Suffrage, who has just completed a tour of twenty-one counties of New Jersey, has injected much western virility into the campaign. Miss Leach, a rancher's daughter, was largely instrumental in winning the vote of her own state. She rounded them up in Montana by traveling long distances for days on horseback from one outlying ranch or settlement to another.

"Through such difficulties and with such efforts to reach the voters as it required there, one felt that she just must win her point," said Miss Leech, who in her charming, quiet way generally did. The distances are not so great in New Jersey, and so the farmers and grangers are very much easier to reach, but much more numerous, of course. I believe they will decide the election this year in our favor. I find them much the same at heart as the ranchers in Montana: Men who earn their living from the land feel much closer companionship with their women than men in other pursuits. The work of the farmer and his wife brings them together. It was the farmer who carried suffrage in the west, and I believe it will be their pride to feel that it is they who will largely win it all over the country.

"Suffrage has come earlier in the west because the west is a new place. The men and women have built it up together. The men think of the women more as comrades and coworkers than they do here. It seems quite natural to the western man to give the women the same duties and privileges that he himself has. It is because the east is older and more artificial and complicated that the men have got away from this simple right feeling about women. But, nevertheless, suffrage will win in New Jersey, for people are really much the same everywhere, and, as it is, there are so many more people in favor of it than against that it will come inevitably."

LEADING ITALIAN PLEADS FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Judge Freschi Says the Homemakers Need Vote.

John J. Freschi, Crystal Lake, N. J. who is city magistrate in New York, says that he will vote for woman suffrage because women have a right to be represented and that at present they are unrepresented and misrepresented.

"I am in favor of the political as well as the social equality of the women of our race.

"As a woman directs the smallest big government in the world—the home—the cornerstone of our civilization itself, so she should have equal claim to and share in shaping and controlling the destinies of the bigger and corelated governments among men The doctrine that no one shall be governed without the consent of the governed has its force even here.

"The spirit of 1776 still lives. Why should any class have to live and be governed and taxed without just representation? Is it any wonder that there lurks in the heart of some of the women of civilized nations a spirit akin to rebellion?"

Chairman of Minimum Wage Commission of Oregon Says Predictions of Antis False.

Father Edwin V. O'Hara, who is not only a Catholic priest, but also the chairman of the industrial commission of the state of Oregon, is a suffragist. In a recent letter he states that "none of the evil so freely predicted when women were enfranchised has followed in the wake of woman suffrage in Oregon."

Dr. O'Hara has given years of his best service to the struggle for a minimum wage and the protection of women in industry. He fathered the creation of the industrial welfare commission, said by labor legislation authorities to be the model commission of the country in its powers for safeguarding women.

President Wilson Will Vote "Yes" Oct. 19

"I intend to vote for woman suffrage in New Jersey because I believe that the time has come to extend that privilege and responsibility to the women of the state.

"I think that New Jersey will be greatly benefited by the change."

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Grasshopper and the Katydid Misunderstood Each Other

"Katydidn't, Katydidn't!" she screamed.

"ONCE upon a time," daddy began, "there was a very fine gentleman grasshopper who fell in love with a katydid. He wore a beautiful coat of green velvet, and he was so athletic that when Carlo dashed across the meadow grass he could jump as many as eight feet. This is a very long jump for a little person."

"Who was the katydid?" asked Evelyn.

"She was a charming, slender creature who, unlike her lover that roved the grasses, lived in trees. She wore beautiful green garments; only instead of green velvet coats like Mr. Grasshopper's her gown was pale green and so thin about the wings that damp nights she used to get a horrid sore throat that ruined her speaking voice."

"What did she say?" asked the children.

"'Katydid! Katydid!' Then she was quite apt to cry out 'Katydidn't! Katydidn't!' so that nobody ever felt sure of her.

"Living as he did on the ground and low plants, Mr. Grasshopper found it very difficult to make love to a fickle lady whose home was in trees. The poor lovesick fellow would call up to her: 'The fireflies have a beautiful ball tonight, my love. I pray you come down and dance by the light of the moon with me.' And the fickle lady would call back: 'Katydid! Katydid!' 'But once more, my love,' he would beg of her; 'again! You went once'— 'Katydidn't! Katydidn't!' she would contradict him till the poor fellow would go off alone and sulk.

"The contradictory katydid would sadly wonder all the night long why her lover had gone away without her, for nobody ever knows how they seem to other people, and Katy could not see how horrid she had been to Mr. Grasshopper."

"Didn't she like him?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes; but she always said the wrong thing.

"At last he decided to take his fate in his hands. His heart full of love, he went one beautiful June night and called up her home tree: 'I love you, Katy. Can it be that you love me no more?' 'Katydid! Katydid!' she called back. 'Did!' he cried, heartbroken. 'I want you to love me now! You said you would love me always!' 'Katydidn't! Katydidn't!' she screamed. This sad fate was too much for poor Mr. Grasshopper. He went off and hid in a big burdock till his heart healed, and then he married a plain little brown grasshopper, who always stayed on the ground and darned his socks, while the beautiful, fickle lady katydid passed a lonely life, unloved and unwed."

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. DAN LEONARD

Mrs. Sutner Tries to Make Things Go Better at Home, but John Is Unappreciative.

"What you got here?" Mr. Sutner poked his fork into the dish in front of him, a frown on his face.

"It's a new dish I learned to make because I was told it was cheap," replied his wife.

"It has one good feature then." He helped himself sparingly to the contents of the tureen and sampled it with the air of an analytical chemist.

"How is it?" Mrs. Sutner was eagerly watching his face.

"Oh, it's as good as anything you make, and if it's cheaper, why let's have it again. Where is the butter?"

"We are out of butter, but this gravy is so good I thought we could get along without for one meal. I would be willing to go without a good many things to help straighten out our financial tangle."

Mr. Sutner put down his fork and stared at his wife.

"Isn't that a new development?"

"Don't nip it in the bud if it is, John." Her face flushed angrily, but she shut her lips tight and said not another word.

Her husband finished his dinner in silence, rose from the table, kissed his four-year-old boy goodby, and was gone.

"Well, he ate a good dinner, and that is the test of cooking, anyway." She rose, putting her hand to her head. "I must lie down as soon as I can clear the table. My head is splitting.

"Come, Jack, dear; we will go and have a nice nap together." She darkened the room and slipped off their shoes. The wriggling little body finally became still, and she slipped away from the heat and work into dreamland.

When she awoke she looked into a pair of laughing blue eyes, bending over her. She clasped the child in a tight embrace, exclaiming:

"Mother is so glad she's got you, dear heart."

Jack gave her a bear hug and then scurried off the bed.

Mrs. Sutner put on his shoes and sent him out to play: then looked around the disordered kitchen.

"Now I'm rested, I'll begin on this mountain of dishes and have the house clean when John comes home. I've been so careless about it since I have felt so discouraged. There are two hours before supper time."

When her husband entered the house he noticed that everything was clean. His wife had on a freshly ironed dress, but he gave no sign of approval. He picked up the boy and played with him till called to supper.

Mrs. Sutner tried to start a conversation on several subjects, but was discouraged by his laconic answers and finally relapsed into silence.

When he rose from the table he said: "Get Jack to bed as soon as you can. I've got to have it still here. There's a set of books to be straightened."

"Jack slept till four this afternoon. I'm afraid he won't be sleepy early," began his wife.

"Asleep or awake, he's got to be still. I can't work in confusion. I'm too nervous, and we certainly need the little windfalls these extra jobs bring in."

Molly cleared the table and brought Jack's playthings into the kitchen to keep him quiet while she washed the dishes. Then she undressed him and lay down beside him to tell him stories to keep him quiet till he fell asleep.

PRINCESS PANELS TRIM AND SMART.

No. 9083.

Semi-princess dresses are becoming to young girls. Princess gowns and Empire waists have enjoyed an unprecedented vogue; small wonder, then that a combination such as illustrated above in Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9083 should prove so popular. This garment makes up strikingly in striped materials. The frock has a panel front and back held in at each side by a half belt. The small turn-over collar completes the neck. Skirt in six gores, pattern cutting in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, size 18 requiring 5¾ yards 36-inch material.

Patterns can be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Co.

"Trade-marked" articles—things sold by NAME or DISTINGUISHING and IDENTIFYING BRAND—must be kept at the highest standard of quality. The VALUE must never vary. For a maker to "cheapen" such an article would be to throw away the prestige he had fought so hard, and advertised so effectinvely, to gain.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

"Hit-the-Trail Holliday."

George M. Cohan's latest play, "Hit-the-Trail Holliday," at the Astor Theatre, is one of the best comedies that this genius of the theatre has offered his myriad admirers for a long time. "Hit-the-Trail Holliday" is a wonderful study of American life and is characteristic of the clear vision of its author. To many critics, the part played by Fred Niblo suggests Billy Sunday, but this is not so, as Holliday works by business methods rather than exhortation. Mr. Niblo's triumph in the new farce is shared by a clever cast that includes: Joseph Allen, Grant Stuart, Clifford Dempsey, P. B. Pratt, Edgar Halstead, John D. O'Hara, Katherine La Salle, Lorena Atwood, Laura Bennett and several other clever actors.

"The House of Glass."

One of the big plays of the year is the Max Marcin drama, "The House of Glass," now current at the Candle. Theatre, where it has registered a smashing success. "The House of Glass" is a worthy successor to "Old Trial," that other Cohan and Harris hit that filled the same theatre last season. Much of the success that is being scored for "The House of Glass" is due to the remarkable cast that visualizes its several characters and in this connection especial mention should be made of Miss Marie Ivan's work as the persecuted wife—a role in which this actress is doing the best work of her brilliant career.

"Young America."

One of the most charming comedies that have come to New York this or any other season is "Young America." From beginning to end it is the sweetest, most natural and altogether wholesome play imaginable and it is sure to have a long run at the Gaiety Theatre, where it is now current. "Young America" is a story of simple folk who lead rather dull lives, but as presented by an excellent cast it has a heart-pull that is mighty and sure as sympathy itself.

"Town Topics."

"Ned Wayburn's Town Topics" continues to pack the spacious Century Theatre at every performance and as new features are being constantly added, the interest in this remarkable musical show never wanes. A new scene shows the launching of a dreadnaught at the Brooklyn Navy Yard with the attendant cheering crowd. The huge march number, "In Time of Peace Prepare for War," employs over one hundred girls and young men. Adelaide and Hughes give the beautiful pantomimic dance drama called "The Cat and the Canary," in which Adelaide impersonates the canary and John J. Hughes the cat. Miss Trixie Friganza and Bert Leslie have comedy scenes. The baseball scene between the men and women Giants is one of the big hits of the show, and has drawn hundreds of baseball fans.

At The Strand.

At the Strand Theatre next week James Forbes' drama, "The Chorus Lady," will be the main attraction. Cleo Ridgeley appears as Patricia O'Brien in the leading role. Her headstrong, stage-struck younger sister, Nora, is played by Marjorie Daw, the clever little fourteen-year-old protege of Geraldine Farrar. Wallace Reid is seen as "Danny" Mallory, the detective who is sincerely in love with "The Chorus Lady." The Topical Review for next week is said to contain a most interesting lot of foreign and American news pictures, and also a newly arrived lot of European war pictures. A new comedy, which is said to be extremely funny and having the additional value of perfect construction, will also be shown as will some beautiful and interesting travel pictures and educational studies. The musical program is an attractive one. The orchestra will render a concert overture and also play specially composed and adapted incidental music to the subjects shown on the screen. The soloists are: Grace Hoffman, soprano; Alfred De Manby, baritone; Lucille Orrell, 'cellist. Carl Edouarde will conduct with his usual artistic finish and mastery.

"The New York Idea."

The season of Grace George and her company at the Playhouse is prospering highly with "The New York Idea," which is regarded by many as the most brilliant of American comedies. It delighted a Plainfield audience prior to going to New York. The piece certainly affords numerous opportunities for Miss George's varied gifts to shine at their very best, and of these opportunities the actress avails herself with certainty and effectiveness. The company, too, has been assembled with a keen eye to its capabilities, and the members work together for the general result with a unanimity which is both rare and welcome upon the present day stage. This organization contains Mary Nash, Norah Lamison, Eugenie Woodward, Josephine Lovett, Anita Wood, Ernest Lawford, Conway Tearle, Lumsden Hare, Albert Reed, John Cromwell and a number of other players of uncommon merit. "The New York Idea" is staged sumptuously and in good taste, and the gowns are commended as "the last word" in feminine raiment.

A COMMON DUTY.

Leaders in the war being waged on tuberculosis in the North Atlantic States are to meet at Albany the first of next month to plan their campaign for another year. Their work will be that of experts, of generals, and every man, woman and child in the district is a member of the army on which they must rely if a victory is to be gained over the common fee.

Plainfield has nobly cared for its unfortunate victims of the great white plague, but the duty that now confronts its citizens is not one of charity toward a few stricken ones, but one of prevention—of self perservation.

The contraction of disease is man's greatest folly, and this is especially true of tuberculosis. With proper precautionary care upon the part of every individual the dreaded malady would be stamped out as soon as those now afflicted have found the one great cure. But until each person realizes his or her responsibility in the crusade, the heroic efforts of crusaders will go for naught. Aside from a selfish interest in his own health every man owes it to his brother that he prevent infection.

The startling statement that for every death from tuberculosis ten other persons are infected has been made by one of the greatest authorities on the disease, and the criminal folly of it all is shown in his equally positive declaration that ninety per cent. of the cases are due to carelessness.

The stream of infection flows through the highways and byways of our cities. Infection passes from man to man, from husband to wife, from parent to child and from stranger to stranger. The man once infected is handicapped in the economic struggle. He is readily tired and seeks an easier occupation, which pays less. There is less money and less food, and therefore less resistance to the growing disease. The infected woman is less able to look after her home and her children, and so conditions in which the disease thrive are created by it. Soon a family in which only one was infected at first is dragged to the slums by the fast spreading germs. There its members find over-crowded, unsanitary conditions, the closed window, the cheapest food in the dearest market—all influences that fan the disease. There is but one end. The family is wiped out.

The study of tuberculosis is not a pretty one, but is is a duty that each and every person owes to himself and to humanity, and Plainfield people should take an interest in the conference of next month so that they will be able to act intelligently in ridding the world of the plague.

NO LONGER SHEEP.

A public educator has declared that children are human—that they are not to be treated as sheep, but sorted according to their talents—to their separate minds—before they are to be educated. He threatens to "put a can of lyddite in the basement of the old-fashioned school building and blow the stereotyped system of teaching into Davy Jones' locker," and he dares tell teachers under him that their pupils are to be treated as living beings who can love, and think, feel, and even suffer, and defies them to feed child minds into a "heartless, soulless, merciless system, like so many corncobs into a grist mill."

Therman who does all this is Prof. D. Fred Aungst, supervising principal of the Somerset School in North Plainfield.

We hold our breath for fear that Prof. Aungst will vanish before our eyes—blown away by the bellow or outraged protest from commissioners, teachers and even parents. Such honest, simple thinking cannot endure in this sordid age of high-pressure emciency. Our children must be trained to fit into the square holes we are plugging, to take our places when we finally rot and become worm-eaten. It is heresy, and will be quickly killed by our learned school commissioners.

May God bless you, Prof. Aungst, and comfort you when you have been driven back into the beaten path of bigoted custom!

NO PLACE FOR DEER.

One hunter dead as a result of being mistaken for a deer is the record thus far in New Jersey, after the first day of the open season for 1915. The law provides that deer can be shot on the four Wednesdays in October, and on those days we usually hear of the accidental shooting of a few human beings. But in addition to the killing the danger from forest fires during this season has become greater than ever before. Only the most vigilant work on the part of the fire wardens will prevent the destruction of much timber in Warren, Sussex and some of the counties in South Jersey. It is said that the deer hunters, in addition to being careless in the use of matches are in some cases deliberately starting fires in the woods in order to drive out the game.

It is ridiculous to try to increase the deer in New Jersey. A state so thickly settled as this should be kept free of the animals, except in private preserves. Then there would be less accidental killings of our citizens, and forest fire danger would be reduced to a minimum. The open season should be extended until the animals are a thing of the past in the State.

When Hooper hit a home run in Tuesday's game at Philadelphia, winning the world's series for Boston, he cost his employer just $75,000. That much had already been paid in for tickets to the sixth game in Boston and it had to be returned. Hooper will be rewarded with an increase in salary for next season, and yet some cheap sports who lost a $3 hat on the series are hollering that the game is crooked. Of course it's a free country, but what are asylums for?

If anyone has an idea that the newspaper man's path is strewn with roses, we'd like to have them visit our sanctum this week and see the efforts necessary to keep the suffs separated from the anti's. If for no other reason, we hope that the vote is given, so that we will not have to look forward to another five years like the last couple have been.

It is with much pleasure that we announce that the contributing editor for tomorrow will be Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church. His subject will be "Admit One."

Maybe President Wilson's idea in announcing his engagement so close to election time was to test the oft-told phrase, "All the world loves a lover."

Luke McLuke says tangoing is a waste of time. Not to those of our acquaintance who are foolish over it.

Off Agin, On Agin

STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

The Bureau Drawer

I've just "cleaned out" the refuse from an ancient bureau drawer,
And left more rubbish in it than was in the thing before—
At least it seems more crowded than it was when I began;
This cleaning-out performance is no business for a man.

I found a lot of papers that I didn't know I had;
A letter from my mother when I was a callow lad.
The contents weren't important, as we count such things to-day,
But something stopped my motions
when I'd throw the thing away.

A photograph that spoke to me in language that we two
Of all the human beings on this bulky planet knew;
And other things—I worked at it a quarter of a day,
And 'mid the trash I couldn't find a thing to throw away.

And so I gently closed the thing and went to work again
At things of more importance to my busy world of men.
So when my partner asked me if
I'd cleaned the bureau drawer,
I nodded "Yes," nor told her it was fuller than before.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

A Member Rises To Testify

DEAR DOCTOR, writes a traveling salesman, I picked up the paper one day about three months ago and noticed your spiel for the first time—I generally just scan. One thing you said struck me right where I live, and I want to tell you my experience.

A year ago I had a bad time of it with insomnia. Got all wrought up over my work and hard times and all, so I couldn't sleep. Lost considerable weight and became very nervous. Fell down on my sales and in fact was going to the bad.

Then, smart aleck, you know, I went over the head of the local doctor—thought I'd be foxy and go right to the expert. I consulted a well-known nerve specialist. He gave me some special test or other, and soaked me twenty-five bones. It was negative. Then he said I had neurasthenia. Ordered me to go to a sanitarium. I beat it for home, because I had no money for sanitarium treatment.

I fussed around from one thing to another, including a fling at osteopathy and a bit of Christian Science. Now all the time I kept getting worse if anything. I was a sorry specimen. Then I picked up the paper one day and lamped your little boost for the family doctor. I went right down to Doc M——

He gave me a crackerjack examination. He certainly did—he went through me from top to bottom. Guess what he told me! Lead poisoning! Yes, sir, chronic lead poisoning—blue line on the gums, neuritis in both arms, anaemia and what-you-call-it—striped blood corpuscles, or something of the kind. Doc put me on salts and some other medicine, and in a month I was feeling right in form.

Now, how did I get it? Doc M——doesn't know, but he suspects a kind of a queer thing: For years I've been applying a powder to my nose—flake white—my wife gets it for me. I daub it on several times a day, to cover my red proboscis, so they wont think I'm hitting the can. Well, Doc says he believes the stuff contains lead, and that it caused my trouble. I'm using plain talcum now, you bet. But let me thank you and your cocky little Health Talks for saving my life! Go to it, you're a public benefactor! You steered me right. Hereafter the family doctor for mine.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Acknowledgment

"Doc" is eminently correct in his suspicion. Flake white contains lead and has caused more than one case of obscure lead poisoning. Striped red corpuscles are characteristic of lead poisoning.

How To Find Out About Tapeworm

In what way would one discover the presence of tapeworm?

Answer—By finding segments in the alvine evacuations. The segments may be single or in long strings, like flat beads on a string, yellowish-white, some one-quarter to one-half inch wide, and one-half to one inch long. Or by having a laboratory examination of the stools, to find the tapeworm eggs under the microscope.

Germ-Proofing A Razor

How could a razor be made germ-proof?

Answer—By boiling; or by steam sterilization; or by letting it stand half an hour in a five per cent. solution of carbolic acid. This must be done each time before it is used.

COMIC OPERA

COMIC Opera is a small joke entirely surrounded by costumes. If necessary, the joke may be omitted and more costumes added.

Next to the moving-picture show the comic opera is the chief boon of the deaf man. It is constructed by a stage manager with an eye for beauty, and a press agent with an eye for truth—a weather eye. The stage manager hires the chorus, costumes them — negatively — and teaches them how to dance, play football, walk on their hands, scratch their ears with their toes, ride in automobiles, and turn their mash notes over to the press agent. The life of the chorus girl is a very hard one, and most of them are compelled to retire on their incomes at an early age.

The chorus in the comic opera is assisted by a comedian or prima donna whose business it is to furnish a name for the headlines in the playbills. The chorus attends to the headlines in the newspapers. The comedian is so called because of the costume which he wears. A good comedian will often wear a costume with as many as fifty distinct laughs in it. The clown's costume was once popular, but has been abandoned as too conventional in late years.

The scenery is also an important part of comic opera. A very comic opera will sometimes carry ten carloads of scenery. The scenery is very popular because it does not sing or dance and seldom insists on being encored.

There is also music in a comic opera. Originally, new music was written for each new opera, but nowadays our natural resources are conserved and the same music is used in all of them. This year's operas use last year's tunes backwards. Next year's operas will cut the melodies in two and shuffle them. Music is now used chiefly to drown the conversation of the chorus and to keep the audience from hearing the words of the songs.

Most comic operas have also what is called a book. This consists of the conversation used by the principals. It is written after the opera is completed in order not to interfere with the specialties. It was done by the property man until his duties became too important. It is now done by the call boy.

"There is also music in a comic opera"

We approach the subject of the joke in the comic opera. There are six original comic opera jokes, all of which are still in use. They are the informal king joke, the stern father joke, the other man's wife joke, the German accent joke, the gloomy dungeon joke and the slangy-boy-with-the-pancake-hat joke. Comic operas are also afflicted with puns, a disease which was introduced by Gilbert and Sullivan. The joke in the comic opera is introduced to keep the audience from laughing at the tenor in the love scene.

Comic operas are useful because they keep our millionaire's sons so busy that they have no time to learn to organize new trusts.

Views Of The Press

Opportunities For Young Men

THERE is a trend nowadays toward the belief that opportunities for young men are fewer than they used to be. Whether one accepts this conclusion or not probably depends on his viewpoint. If he is a young man at the bottom looking up he is likely to think it is correct; if he is an older man at the top looking down, he is likely to think it is not correct. The one is looking for an opportunity that will fit him; the other is looking for a man to fit an opportunity. Theodore Newton Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, celebrated his seventieth birthday a short while ago. He is still, as he says, "in the harness" and in touch, consequently, with big affairs of the world. And it is his opinion that the chances of young men "were never so big as they are now." Said he:

"The young man who is willing to work and has ability and a good education is the one who is going ahead. There was a time when, because a person was the son of an old friend or had influence, he would be given a good position and boosted along. That day is past. Too much is involved in big business to have its affairs retarded because of a friendship. It has been discovered that one cannot run a business under the present high pressure by favoritism or nepotism. I don't mean that young men with friends are not given chances, but I say they have to make good or get out. Opportunities? Why, sir, the world is still full of them."

In the field of electrical development alone, Mr. Vail sees opportunities in almost unlimited numbers. "In electrical science," he told an interviewer, "we have not yet begun to find out the capabilities for development. The opportunities are still wonderful. I believe that electricity is going to be adapted more and more to our daily service. All we have done is but a beginning." Other men who have won success in other lines of business speak in the same way. "My need," said an official of a great corporation recently, "is men. I can fill thousand dollar jobs a dozen times over, but the big job goes begging. I want half a dozen ten thousand dollar men."

Mr. Vail, it will be noted, does not say that there are opportunities for every young man. In his opinion, the man who is going ahead is the man who is willing to work, who has ability and who is educated. These, evidently, are the three essential qualifications, for others speak of them also. And, strangely enough, education is the one of three most generally met with; the other two are less common. The rarest is the willingness to work. Nothing takes its place and, as Mr. Vail suggests and as the leaders in the world of business, science, in the professions and even in art, all agree, there is no success—and no opportunity—without it.—Boise, Idaho, Capital News.

People's Legal Friend

The Law's Foresight

Q. Why is a debt outlawed after a certain length of time? Isn't it still a debt?

A. Statutes known as the Statutes of Limitations are in force in the different states providing that a claim or demand must be presented or prosecuted within a specified period of time. The purpose of such statutes is to discourage the presentation of old or stale demands. A reasonable length of time is always afforded the claimant and if he fails to exercise his right within such time, as defined by the statutes, his demand will be barred. If no such limitations and restrictions were imposed by law, litigation would be almost interminable and titles to property could not be said at any time to be secure.

Bankruptcy

Q. If a partnership is adjudged bankrupt, does this dissolve the firm?

A. Yes.

When Sunday Is The Rent Day

Q. If the day when rent is due should happen to be Sunday, is one compelled to pay on that day?

A. No. He has the whole of the following day.

He Is Liable

Q. Where a man is leading horses in a public highway is he liable if injuries to a passerby should result?

A. Yes, if his negligence is the proximate cause of the injuries.

Driving On A Country Road

Q. Suppose two persons are traveling upon a country road in different conveyances, but both are going in the same direction. Is the one who is following obliged to remain in the rear?

A. No. He may go in front of the other, provided he can pass the other vehicle with safety.

Directors In A Corporation

Q. Where a corporation is organized, is it necessary for the articles of incorporation to mention the number of directors?

A. In some states this is required.

It's Nice To Know You "Can"

Q. What person or persons may receive money or personal property under a will?

A. In general, anyone. Sometimes, however, there is a special or peculiar disability.

Pencil vs. Ink

Q. May a promissory note be signed or indorsed by using a pencil, instead of pen and ink?

A. Yes, but the practice is far from commendable. If one has ordinary prudence, he will not do so.

The Letter Of The Agreement

Q. I am renting a house under a verbal agreement, having occupied the house for two months. It was understood between my landlord and myself that I could remove fixtures placed on the premises by me. As I am soon to vacate the premises, I want to know whether it will be necessary for me to say anything to the landlord about the matter or whether I have the right to remove such fixtures.

A. If your agreement gave you the right, then you certainly have the right. Care should be taken, however, in removing the fixtures, not to damage the landlord's property.

Heroism

Heroism punctuates a Character, distinguishes it — nameplates it. Heroism is risking in order that Character may get supreme credit. Heroism is natural Courage always ready—it cannot be manufactured for the occasion. Believe fully in yourself—it's the cornerstone of Heroism.

Heroism is not a quality belonging exclusively to the great emergencies and to large battles; it is a thing as sure and as full of value and as necessary, wedged into the seeming commonplace hours of every day, as though great events transpired to bring it into the open. Against dire poverty as against great abundance of wealth, must be mustered Heroism to cope with each situation.

No one can teach Heroism—it must be experienced.

When people single you out and, in unjust criticism or comment, place you where you do not really stand, or where common judgment is against you, your move then becomes one of Heroism. For the Crowd can't see inside, and Heroism naturally springs inside a man. Its moves are all moves of impulse, unexplained and unaccounted for, excepting within your own individual independence.

Heroism is doing what you consider right and just without figuring out in advance just how other people are going to look at the results.

Current Poetry

We Gettem Here, Too

Over the 'phone where the desk man sits,
Torturing copy night and day,
Now and again a question flits,
Chasing the desk man's gloom away.
Facts and figures are infant's play
To the sage who answered this gorgeous pair:
"What does the average walrus weigh?"
"What was the color of Bonaparte's hair?"

Solomon Rex would lose his wits
Retailing wisdom in this way:
Socrates' mind would fall in bits
After the 'phone had had its say.
Yet from September 'round to May
The desk man carols an answer fair
To "What does an average walrus weigh?"
And "What was the color of Bonaparte's hair?"

"How many souls in Czernowitz?"
"How do you get to Baffin's Bay?"
"What is the price of boxing mitts?"
"Who was it wrote 'The One-Hoss Shay'?"
Question by question, grave and gay,
Covering the earth and sea and air:
"What does the average walrus weigh?"
"What was the color of Bonaparte's hair?"

Envoi

Oracle man of a later day,
Answer me now these questions rare:
What DOES the average walrus weigh?
What WAS the color of Bonaparte's hair?

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

John T. Sproull, president of the Coal and Iron National Bank of New York, has been secured as the chief speaker at the Bible study rally to be held on October 25. Mr. Sproull is a forceful speaker and is deeply interested in Y. M. C. A. work.

Secretary Estes wishes to emphasize the necessity for all who have not already done so to return the post cards relating to the membership campaign to the secretary without delay. The failure of a number to return these cards is retarding arrangements for the campaign and is delaying necessary preparations which should be made at once.

Members of the Y. M. C. A. expect to have an unusually interesting service at the men's meeting Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Charles Taylor, the "boy evangelist," will conduct the services. There will also be a special musical program.

Charles Taylor was born in England and lived there until last spring, when he moved to California with his father. While but fifteen years of age, he has been engaged in evangelical work for a number of years with considerable success. He is an accomplished singer, and will have a part in the musical program at the meeting as well as conducting the services. He will also be at the Park Avenue Baptist church for several weeks, where he will conduct a series of evangelical meetings.

A force of powerful speakers has been recruited from other States, and the Buckeye States will be combed by the "dries" as never before. Blue, Tax Commissioner of West Virginia; former Congressman Fred Landis, of Indiana; Major Dan Morgan Smith, of Chicago; Rev. Sam Small, formerly of Georgia; Congressman Richmond P. Hobson, of Alabama; John G. Woolley, of Wisconsin; Judge Seaborn Wright, of Georgia; T. Alexander Cairns, of New Jersey; G. W. Morrow, of Michigan, and probably Governor Hatfield, of West Virginia. In addition to this powerful list is William Jennings Bryan, who will speak for several days in the State.

DR. TIPPLE TO LECTURE ON "ITALY IN WORLD WAR"

Dr. B. M. Tipple, who is announced to lecture in the First Methodist Episcopal Church on Tuesday, October 19, on "Italy in the World War," has had unusual opportunities for observation. He is a native of New York State, who has lived for many years in Rome, where he is president of the American College for Boys. This is the institution which sprang into prominence a few years ago when the Pope refused to receive Colonel Roosevelt because he would not promise to keep away from this Protestant school. For his services to education King Victor Emmanuel II. recently made Dr. Tipple a Knight of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

Dr. Tipple was a close observer of the political demonstrations in Rome which preceded the declaration of war, and was in the throng which D'Annunzio addressed at the critical time. After the war broke out he visited the cities of Northern Italy and was permitted to accompany the armies almost to the firing line. He has a remarkable collection of stereopticon slides, including views in Milan and Venice, showing the precautions which have been taken to preserve priceless works of art from damage from aerial bombs.

TALKS ON WAR DEFENSE.

Boston, Oct. 15.—Hudson Maxim, the inventor, will be the speaker at the Chamber of Commerce dinner tonight, and he will give an expert's estimate of our present state of preparedness for national defense. He will tell of the modern resources of war as developed by chemistry and mechanics, and will indicate with the precision of the scientist just how helpless and hopeless would be the defending nation unless it had its resources prepared and organized.

A Galley o' Fun

A CONVENIENCE.

If those sixteenth century ruf would only come into fashion agai what a blessing it would be to th waiters in the Bowery restaurants!

A BALLAD OF OLD DAYS.

Not mine to praise this modern art
That reeks of glue and paint ur dried,
The offspring of a shrieking mart
Hallowed by gilt and naught beside
Give me the tender hints that hide
In some old canvas mellowings
Age-draped as in her veil the bride—
I sing the grace of faded things.

This lace that hid a marquise's heart
This fan an abbe versified,
One knew the quick blood's thrill an start,
One bears a Venus azure-eyed;
For this strange gaud a princes sighed,
(A jeweled Love despoiled of wings)
This snuff-box was a despot's pride—
I sing the grace of faded things!

Veneer and tinsel play their part
These graceless days, and few de ride;
Our eyes 'mid brazen colors smart—
For gold, not love, our brush ti plied;
Time passes with a giant stride;—
Not mine these garish gifts h brings—
Midst gold he flung aside I bide—
I sing the grace of faded things!

L'Envoi.

To you, who, ere the world was wide
Served Beauty before queens an kings;
To you, who wrought and wove an died,
I sing the grace of faded things!

SNOWSHOEING BY MAIL.

Purchase a strong pair of Indian made, moosehide-laced snowshoe from a Connecticut dealer.

The best place to practice on snow shoes is at the country club, not in the barroom. The ideal course is be ween the sideboard and the bowlin alleys.

With the shoes firmly buckled o you need not be afraid, as your fee will always stay on the surface of th snow regardless of the rest of you anatomy.

The common snowshoe gait shoul be a cross between a trot and a schot tische.

If you break a shoe two miles awa from home the crawl swimming stroke will be found a great help.

SPOKE FOR ITSELF.

"Am jes' puts ebry cent he make on his back."

"Wal, dat money ob his'n talks pur y loud!"

BIRDS.

Of daughters this man has a bevy,
And the annual tribute they levy
Appalling is, quite!
Birds! Their heads being light,
And their bills correspondingly heavy

CLEVER.

Madge—Why did you ever pick out such homely and unknown girls fo bridesmaids?

Tessie—The newspapers, my dear ve got more photographs than all those six girls put together.

HER WAY.

Mrs. Woggs—So you keep your hus and home evenings? I suppose you put his slippers where he can find em?

Mrs. Boggs—No; I put his over shoes where he can't.

Suburban—What a vacant expres on that fellow Jones has!

Criticus—Vacant! Why don't he use it?

PREDICTS DEFEAT FOR AMENDMENT

Mrs. Sherman B. Joost Feels Confident That Suffragists Will Lose Out.

GIVES HER REASONS

Says That When Fate of Nations Are Hanging in the Balance it is No Time for Political Experiment.

Although the suffragists are claiming that the proposed amendment to the State Constitution will be carried by a majority of 25,000 on Tuesday, Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, president of the Plainfield branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Suffrage, will not admit it. She is optimistic as to the result, and in an interview today declared that the amendment would be overwhelmingly defeated. Mrs. Joost said:

"First of all we want the voters to realize that our women represent the highest type of womanhood, who have sacrificed their natural inclinations, and, without ceasing their charitable and civic activity, are conducting a well-organized and vigorous campaign to protect themselves and others from the consequences of the suffragists misguided zeal.

"We feel that with the fate of nations hanging in the balance this is no time for a political experiment of the magnitude of woman suffrage. We view with apprehension the open alliance of the Socialist party with the advocates of 'Votes for Women' believing Socialism in its present form a menace to State and nation.

"Furthermore, we believe that the results of woman suffrage in those States in which it has been tried have shown the futility of the arguments advanced by the suffragists for its adoption. Colorado, for instance, where the women have been voting for 22 years, has the highest per capita tax in the Union and the poorest protection to life and property, having had to call in Federal troops to put down armed anarchy twice in ten years, something that has never happened to a male suffrage State.

"Biologically speaking, the heavy and dangerous work of the world is not for women. Power and responsibility should go together. The fact that it is man who must enforce the laws, support State policies and defend our homes is another reason why man alone should have the power to make laws and determine the policies of State. Responsibility for results sobers judgment and conduces to wise action. Moreover, we believe that there should be a division of labor between man and woman as plainly indicated by their functional differences. Votes for women is the only movement among women that meets with organized opposition from women and we are firmly convinced that the vast majority are opposed.

"Here in Plainfield our organization comprises over 1,400 women of voting age, over 70 per cent. of whom are wage-earners, who believe that woman armed with the ballot will not be able to protect herself as well as she is now protected by the loyalty of man. Incidentally, the laws for the protection of women and children are best and most numerous in the male suffrage States, and we know that we can accomplish more in the way of beneficial legislation working independent of party politics.

"As to the results of the coming election we feel most optimistic. The State Federation of Labor has refused to endorse suffrage for the first time in twenty-six years. The sentiment of the farmers is strongly opposed as evidenced in the Granges. A poll of the twenty-one counties of the State show thirteen opposed and eight uncertain. A vigorous campaign is being conducted in the latter and we expect good results.

"We regret that this question must be decided at a special election, but we trust that interest has been sufficiently aroused to insure a large and decisive vote, and that the men will stand by the women and vote 'No' on October 19."

ALBERT LAROCK RECEIVES NEWS OF MOTHER'S DEATH

Albert LaRock, of West Sixth street, was called to Providence, R. I., this morning by the sudden death of his mother, Mrs. Lucinda LaRock, which occurred last night. No information concerning the cause of death was furnished in the meagre message but the local survivor is of the opinion that it followed an attack of heart trouble, an ailment from which she had long been a sufferer.

Mrs. LaRock is survived by the following other children: Louise, in Providence; Mrs. Ira Briggs, in Providence; Mrs. Ruth Delck, of Minnesota; Mrs. Angus Monroe, of Canada, and Mrs. Sophia Howes, of Tacoma, Wash. She was about seventy four years old.

CLARK WILL CASE HEARING ADJOURNED

Attorneys on Both Sides Consent to Have Matter go Over to Oct. 21.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 16.—At the request of the attorneys on both sides, the fight begun in the surrogate's court by Rose Noethiger to recover $43,544.25 from the executors of the estate left by Heman Thomas Clark, deceased brother of Walter and Charles Clark, of Plainfield, from the $137,738.06 estate left by the decedent, was today adjourned until Thursday, October 21, by order of Surrogate Herbert T. Ketcham.

Nettie A. Kert and Margaret C. Lavin, both of Portchester, N. Y., and Walter Clark, sisters and brother of the testator, are the executors whom the petitioner alleges are wrongfully withholding from her that sum of money left to her under the will of the decedent, who was her friend. She, the executors and two others, at the time of the filing of the will for probate, were accused by the testator's son and daughter, both of whom were cut off each with only $100, with having secured the execution of the document by fraud and undue influence. The objections, charging these allegations, were later withdrawn, following some settlement out of court among the entire eight.

An important announcement comes from Proctor's Theatre today, stating that a change of policy will take effect at the West Front street playhouse, beginning next Monday afternoon. Always alive to the interests of the Plainfield amusement seeking public and seeking to cater to them, the management will inaugurate a continuous entertainment of feature photo-plays and high class vaudeville. A special effort will be made at all times to cater to the women and children and by combining the big feature photo-plays from the best film manufacturers in America with a polite and refined vaudeville bill, the management feel that they are filling the requirements of all the theatregoers of the community by offering photo-play features and vaudeville on the one program with a continuous policy that will enable the patrons to attend at any time, remain as long as they please and yet see the entire performance. Special importance is given to the prices which have been so arranged that the entertainment is within the reach of all purses. The matinees are 5, 10, 15 cents, women admitted to the best seats at 10 cents. The matinee prices will prevail to and including 6:30 p. m. The evening prices are 10, 15, 25 cents and go in effect from 6:30 to 11 p. m. Those who occupy their seats before 6:30 p. m. have the benefit of the bargain matinee prices.

The new continuous policy will begin Monday with a gala photo-play and vaudeville entertainment which will include the famous "Trilby," starring Wilton Lackaye and Clara Kimball Young in five acts. This tremendous photo-play masterpiece was presented for a long run at the Shubert's 44th Street Theatre, New York city, recently, and Lee Shubert went on record in a statement to the effect that it was one of the greatest screen plays he had ever witnessed and this statement was made because there is such a large field for splendor in a photoplay for elaborate settings than in the play in itself.

One scene alone displays the interior of a gorgeous opera house, showing the hypnotized Trilby singing the famous "Ben Bolt" before an audience of thousands of persons, in evening dress and all the tricks of filmdom were used to make this wonderful picture scene the signal triumph that it did, when presented in New York city, and incidentally it will be seen for the first time in Plainfield when shown at Proctor's Theatre, the first half of next week. This is only one of the splendid features announced for "Anniversary Week" and in addition to a big array of vaudeville talent, including "The Earl and the Girl," a whole show in itself, and other vaudeville acts of note, there will also be shown a special surprise feature photo-play that will complete the program of clean and delightful entertainment.

One of the special photo-play features for the last half of the week will be the first run in Plainfield of Mrs. Fiske in "Vanity Fair," as Becky, a gorgeous spectacular feature that should be sufficient to attract in itself. The management, however, will surround it with a delightful vaudeville show.

DEDOOD HEARING PUT OVER UNTIL MONDAY

Martin Stutsman, Counsel for the Accused, Asks for More Time.

Because his counsel needed more time to inquire into the "peculiar" allegations specified in the complaint, Ysbrand DeDood was held in bonds of $25 for a hearing Monday morning when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning to answer to charges preferred against him by Michael Higgins, a plumber, who claims that he was maltreated by DeDood at 125 Park avenue yesterday afternoon. Higgins was left in the Keller Cleaning Company's store, of which DeDood is proprietor, by Constable George York, after the latter had taken possession of the place in default of the payment of $2,300 in bills which he had secured.

DeDood, after absenting himself from the place for sometime, returned and ordered Higgins to "clear out," declaring that he had satisfied his accounts and the constable had no further authority. This Higgins refused to do and DeDood is said to have picked him up bodily and hurled him through the door into Park avenue.

In telling the police of the incident this morning Higgins said that he went flying through twenty feet of space and that his body forced the front doors of the store open in its flight.

Martin Stutsman represented DeDood in court and after hearing the complaint pleaded not guilty and waived examination. He was instructed by the court, however, that he could not waive examination on a State complaint and he then asked for the adjournment stating that "he wished to investigate the peculiar circumstances cited in the complaint. This statement brought forth another rebuke from the court, Judge DeMeza declaring: "Mr. Stutsman, there is nothing peculiar about this complaint. It was made out by the court and the charges are specifically stated."

FIRST BAPTIST C. E. HOLDS RECEPTION

Presents Attractive Program and Shows the Work Being Accomplished.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Baptist church, a social and reception was given in the Sunday-school rooms last night, the object being to acquaint the members of the church what the society is doing and has done. The rooms were attractively decorated with autumn leaves.

Miss Alice Drake acted as chairman of the entertainment committee and provided an interesting program. Among the numbers were recitations by Mrs. John Carver and her son, songs by Miss Helen Roseberry and piano selections by Miss Alice Drake.

The pastor, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, made an address, taking for his topic, "Go On." His remarks were very instructive to church workers and full of encouragement to the members of the Endeavor Society.

The president, Heber M. Cubberley, presented the purposes and work of the society, with the result that considerable interest was awakened and it is thought that his remarks will result in a material increase in membership. A bouquet of flowers was presented to O. B. Leonard, the church clerk, who has in every possible way sought to aid and assist the young people in their work. A large delegation of members from Warren chapel attended.

The various reports showed that this organization is in a flourishing condition, fully fifty new members having been added during the past few months. At the completion of the program, the refreshment committee, headed by Miss Flora Krausse, served refreshments. A social hour followed.

FLAG POLE ERECTED

Everything is Now in Readiness for the Winter Work to Be Carried on Under the Auspices of the Boy Scout Council.

Plans are complete for the informal reception of the public at the new Boy Scout summer headquarters in Terrill road tomorrow, between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. At that time the boy scouts of champion Troop 5 will be present in uniform with their newly won championship pennant and will be hosts of the occasion, assisted by uniformed scouts from other troops.

A sixty-foot flag pole has been raised through the courtesy of the Public Service Railway Company, from which the American flag presented by Laggren & Greene will float with the various troop and patrol flags from all the troops in the city in full dress from the cross-arm of the pole. The two resident members of the Plainfield Boy Scout Council from Fanwood, Edward Harding and Louis H. Hosner, will welcome the visitors. The entire public is invited and especially those who have contributed toward the erection of the building in any way. There is provision at hand for parking autos. The camp is easily reached by pedestrians alighting from the Netherwood trolley at its terminus in South avenue, walking east to Terrill road and south five blocks.

Dr. George T. Moore, secretary of the Scout Council, has announced that $299 toward the total cost of the new building has been paid in, recent contributions making this amount having been received from Mrs. N. W. Currie, Dr. Henry R. Maxson, John Leal and Ray R. Pratt. This lacks one dollar of meeting the amount fixed for the building, but funds are still needed for furnishing it with chairs, reading table, lights, stove and other accessories. A rug capable of withstanding considerable wear and some pictures of patriotic character would help in making the new building attractive. A friend of the movement has subscribed to some of the popular magazines for the boys.

The work of constructing the building from plans drawn gratuitously by Edward V. French, the architect, and blue printed by Arthur E Smith without charge, has been directed by Alexander Milne and E. T. Harrison, his superintendent, with this committee: First Deputy Commissioner, A. V. Searing, Jr., Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl, Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, Councilman Alexander Milne, Frederick A. Martin, Brockholst Miller, Secretary Dr. George T. Moore, President William N. Runyon and Scoutmaster Cedric H. Ostrom. In case of rain the reception will be postponed until the next clear Sunday afternoon.

HARRY SANDERSON TO TAKE NEEDED REST

Popular Local Theatre Manager Announces His Retirement Today.

After being connected with Proctor's Theatre in this city as part owner and manager for seven years, Harry S. Sanderson today announces his retirement, which will take effect tonight. Mr. Proctor will assume sole management and has already announced a new policy to be adopted for the winter months.

For some time past Mr. Sanderson has been endeavoring to make some satisfactory arrangements by which he would be relieved of the burdensome responsibilities of his position. He has long felt the need of a complete rest and will retire for an indefinite period.

During his connection with the local playhouse Mr. Sanderson has won the confidence of Plainfield theatregoers by his personal efforts to give Plainfielders the best that money can buy in the variety of amusement that the Proctor house provided. His introduction of vaudeville into this city was a welcome one and his policies have done much to permanently establish the amusement here.

In addition to vaudeville Mr. Proctor intends to have high class feature plays now running in Broadway playhouses, the first of which will be presented next week. This will feature the sensational "Trilby" with Wilton Lackaye and Clara Kimball Young and will be followed by Mrs. Firke in "Vanity Fair." This a production of the Triangle Film.

THE TRIUMPH OF TEMPERANCE

NOAH WEBSTER says that "Temperance means restrained or moderate indulgence."

So carelessly has this word been applied by some of our fellow men that we have almost been stampeded into believing that temperance means total abstinence and a firm belief in the doctrine of PROHIBITION.

Temperance, according to Webster, must mean moderate indulgence in everything—Work or Play, Eating or Drinking.

Successful men succeed because they practise temperance.

If you would find happiness, practise temperance—Work moderately, Play moderately, Eat moderately, Drink moderately.

Leading physicians have long recognized the food value of pure wholesome Beer, and heartily recommend its moderate use as a medium of bodily nourishment and alimentary gratification.

RUPPERT'S Knickerbocker

The Beer That Satisfies

is absolutely pure and when used in moderation is the ideal beverage of the temperate and the logical food drink of temperance. It is the product of hygienic brewing, careful filtering, proper aging, sanitary bottling and thorough pasteurization, making it a beverage that is unsurpassed by any Beer made anywhere.

LETTER CARRIERS TO CONVENE HERE

Newark Yields Claims to Convention When United Support is Assured.

At a meeting in Newark Saturday night it was definitely arranged that the 1916 annual session of the New Jersey Letter Carriers' Association will be held in Plainfield on May 30. The choice of meeting lay between Plainfield and Newark, but when the Newark representatives learned that the Plainfield delegation had the united support of the civic organizations as well as the public, it was decided that Plainfield was the place to meet.

It is expected that the convention will bring several thousand people to this city on that occasion.

"RALLY AND NICKEL DAY" AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The services at the Congregational church and Sunday-school tomorrow will be of special interest. Rev. Alfred J. Sadler, of Stamford, N. Y., will preach at the morning service beginning at 10:30 o'clock. At 11:50 following the morning worship the Sunday-school will observe "Rally and Nickel-Day." Reports will be made of the nickels distributed last spring, and how the profits have been made. A good address by a well-known Sunday-school worker may be expected. There will also be good music.

A store prospers in "well doing"—through the service that it renders to YOU. There is no other rule that governs.

If values and prices ruled about alike in all stores at all times, there would not be any such thing as store competition. And, as finding desirable values would require no especial knowledge or insight, store advertising would be superfluous.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 19—State referendum election, and third registration day in municipalities of more than 5,000 people.

October 26—Third and final registration day in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

November 2—General Election Day.

That element of the Democratic party which would like to provide President Wilson with a new running mate may call on Ohio, with its forty-eight electoral votes, to provide a favorite son, and with a proper display of confidence, the Ohioans may point to James M. Cox, late Governor, as the man who will make votes for the national ticket. Whether Cox knows it or not, he is being talked about for the Vice-Presidential nomination along with J. Ham Lewis, by those who are dissatisfied with Mr. Marshall. Mr. Marshall is not yet disposed of, however. The President, while opposed to starting any controversy at this time, has gone so far as to officially deny reports that he opposed Mr. Marshall. Secretary Tumulty says explicitly that the White House has had no knowledge of the movement to oust Marshall.

Every candidate for State or National office at the coming election will be asked to give his stand on proposed legislation affecting immigration, public schools and fraternal order insurance by members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. This was decided upon at the forty-seventh annual convention of the New Jersey State Council in resolutions adopted by the delegates.

George L. Record has issued a statement urging voters to adopt the constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote, at the special election next Tuesday. The leader of the Progressive Republicans in Hudson county also favors the adoption of the other two amendments, calling for a more frequent opportunity to amend the State Constitution, and allowing a city to purchase more land than is actually needed for an improvement in condemnation proceedings.

A note of warning against possible over-confidence was sounded by Chairman Herbert W. Taylor, of the Essex County Republican Committee, at the meeting of the executive committee members Thursday afternoon. Mr. Taylor told the members that the sentiment of a Republican victory was in the air, and that no doubt the party would be victorious. At the same time Mr. Taylor said the members should not forget the Democrats had pointed out that the eyes of the State, and, to a measure, of the Nation, were centered on Essex county. Every effort, he pointed out would be made by the Democrats to carry the Assembly ticket.

Members of the Hudson Republican Club have perfected arrangements for the dollar dinner which will be held at Grand View Hall Jersey City, next Monday night Former Governor Stokes, Austen Colgate and Speaker of the House Godfrey will speak.

ACROSS THE PACIFIC.

Influence of the "Great Circle" on the Journey to Manila.

If you wanted to go from the Panama canal to Yokohama which of these two would be the shorter route? First, across the ocean to Hawaii and from there to Yokohama, or, second, up along the coast to San Francisco and then directly across the Pacific to Asia?

Nearly everybody would answer in favor of the Hawaiian route. But the navigators tell us the journey is 266 miles shorter by way of San Francisco. The "great circle" does it. Its influence on distance sends ships from San Francisco to Manila by way of the Aleutian islands. Actually our vessels would go much farther north than they do but for the discouragement of the United States hydrographic bureau at Washington, which advises a central route, more than 200 miles longer than the great circle, in order to escape the fogs and ice of the far north.

The Hawaiian Islands are frequently described as "the crossroads of the Pacific." Their people are naturally looking forward to wonderful commercial development. They will doubtless enjoy substantial progress as a commercial center because many conditions in ocean currents and in prevailing winds and in fuel costs favor Honolulu as a way station route. But it is well to remember that these islands were planted a little too near the equator to be a crossroads of the north Pacific.—Boston Herald.

Wonderful Names.

The seventeenth century juryman had one disadvantage to contend with from which his successor is happily free. He was frequently burdened with an intolerable name. James Broome in his "Travels Over England, Scotland and Wales," a work published in 1700, gives a copy of "a Jury Return made at Rye, Sussex, in the late Rebellious, Troublesome Times." Here are the names: "Stand fast on high Stringer of Crowhurst, Earth Adams of Warbleton, Killsin Pimple of Witham, Graceful Harding of Lewes, Weep not Billing of the same, Be Faithful Joiner of Brilling, Fly Debate Roberts of the same, Fight the good Fight of Faith White of Emes, Return Spelman of Watling, Meek Brewer of Oakham, More Fruit Fowler of East Hodley, Hope for Bending of the same."—London Chronicle.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

WHAT MOST WOMEN DO NOT WANT.

(By Mrs. A. J. George.)

The reflection cast upon women by the small minority of their sex who, in their demand for the ballot as a key that is to unlock for them a "higher and nobled sphere," insist on comparing the condition of women without the ballot with that of the Southern negro before emancipation, is one with which Anti-Suffragists need not concern themselves except to call attention to it as an indication of the absurd lengths to which Suffragist reasoning leads.

If we thought the matter worth while, we might ask our suffrage friends to explain why it is that women, while free to go and come, live and breathe and have their being where they will, seem to have an instinctive aversion to living in the "emancipated" States of the West, but continue to congregate in the tyrant-ruled States of the East, where they are the "slaves and chattels of men."

Why is it that there are 53,000 more women of voting age than men of voting age in benighted Massachusetts, while in the "grand old State of Wyoming," where women have been "emancipated" for forty-six years, the sex is still conspicuous by its absence?

It is clear, however, that the negro argument is advanced by the Suffragists, not primarily to show the degradation of women under male government, but to establish if they can an analogy between the protest against negro emancipation and the protest against the enfranchisement of women. "The South," we are told, "believed that the majority of slaves did not want to be free," while the North believed they were entitled to freedom whether they wanted it or not, and so in furtherance of this belief forced emancipation upon the negro and upon the South.

Therefore—this is the essence of the Suffragist argument—it is the duty of men to enfranchise women even though all but a small minority of them protest against it.

The utter absurdity of this reasoning is, of course, apparent upon its face. In the case of the negro, the protest against emancipation came, not from the negro, but from his enslaver. In the case of the women, the protest against enfranchisement comes from the great mass of women themselves. To say that the negroes protested against emancipation in the sense that women are protesting against enfranchisement is an insult to women. In the first place, the negro slaves were not free to express themselves as they pleased; and in the second place, they were not sufficiently enlightened to think about the matter at all in the rational way in which anti-suffrage women think about the ballot.

This protest of women against the ballot is the strongest proof that the whole suffrage movement is fictitious and based upon a fallacy. Women are not so lacking in intelligence as to be unable to see the difference between freedom and slavery, and when the great majority of them see in the ballot, not a key to better things but a key that is to lock upon them the fetters of repugnant duties, and responsibilities they cannot meet, it must be accepted as a fact of vital significance in any rational consideration of the question of woman suffrage.

Can any reasonable man or woman deny that there is some impelling reason for the fact that woman suffrage is the only woman's movement that has ever been opposed by women organized for that purpose? It is also the only suffrage movement ever opposed by those it was supposed to benefit. They tell us that various classes of men were given the ballot before a majority of them demanded it. But did anyone ever hear of an organization of men formed for the purpose of fighting a movement to give the ballot to their class?

The great majority of women who have thought deeply enough about the question of enfranchising their sex see in it a menace to women and a menace to society, while the great majority of those who have not thought about it deeply are naturally opposed to it. Here is a danger-signal that men should not and will not ignore. If the majority of women demanded the ballot men would not withhold it from them, even though they might have misgivings as to its expediency. But when only a very small fraction of women demand the ballot, while the great majority do not want it, the granting of the demand would be an act of rankest injustice.

One of the great troubles with the Suffragists is that they set themselves up as the representatives of their sex, when as a matter of fact they represent only a very inconsiderable part of their sex. It isn't what women want, but what a few women want and the great mass of women don't want about which they are talking all the time. Until they can convince men that they speak for the majority of women, they have no right to demand the ballot.

There are even greater words than Liberty, Equality and Rights. Lacordaire, during the revolution in France, dared to say to his countrymen: "You have written upon the monuments of your city the words Liberty, Fraternity, Equality. Above Liberty write Duty, above Fraternity write Humility, above Equality write Service, above the immemorial creed of your Rights inscribe the divine creed of your Duties."

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Permit me space to bring to the notice of your readers who will on October 19 register their wishes on woman suffrage in New Jersey a few points with which they cannot all be familiar, but which should be of interest to them, before voting on so important a subject. Much of what I desire to emphasize is addressed to the members of the W. C. T. U. and all others who are ardent suffragists, because they believe that "Votes for Women' spells "Prohibition." Miss Anna Howard Shaw and other leading suffragists have stated that there was no connection between these two issues, and that the National Woman's Suffrage Association has never declared for Prohibition, and could not do so, because woman will vote as men do, as individuals, each according to her personal convictions. Miss Alice Carpenter, when questioned on this point at a meeting in Trenton, replied quite truthfully that "there was a wane of temperance sweeping over the country that really had no connection with any political party." Despite such facts and assertions by suffrage leaders, certain suffragists and members of the W. C. T. U. claim that it is due to the women's votes that some of the States where they vote have "gone dry," in spite of the fact that there are now sixteen man suffrage States also "dry." There is another vital issue with which it is impossible for suffragists to disclaim connection, since there is in existence photographic proof of the alliance between suffrage and Socialism. At the hearings before the legislative committee on January 25, 1915, a suffrage speaker mistakenly tried to prove that women's votes were always for Prohibition. The anti speaker who followed her introduced evidence in the form of government statistics proving to the contrary.

A quotation was also read from the Woman's Voice, official organ of the Montana W. C. T. U., for October 1914, stating: "Our W. C. T. U. had no division in the suffrage parade during fair week," further stating that after their arrangements were completed, banners, floats, etc., ready, their chairman was informed that "it was considered better not to have the W. C. T. U. in the parade as a body." Dr. Shaw was in the parade in question, and rising, replied to the anti speakers who told of the incident, that the action was taken "because it was against the policy of the Woman's National Suffrage Association to allow any organization or body of people to participate in a suffrage parade, whose first and chief object was other than 'Votes for Women.'" In refutation of this statement of the president of the Woman's National Suffrage Association, the anti speaker handed to each member of the legislative committee a copy of two photographs of suffrage parades. In the first of these, which took place in Washington, D. C., March 3, 1913, is shown a large body of men and women marching under Socialist banners, one of which bore the inscription "1,000,000 Socialists Work and Vote for Woman Suffrage," while in the second, of a parade also in Washington, May 9, 1914, the banner read "1,000,000 Socialists in the U. S. for Woman Suffrage."

It was no doubt expediency which prompted Miss Shaw to make the statement quoted above, as there were present at the hearing many members of the W. C. T. U. who would presumably wish a satisfactory explanation of the barring of their banners from a suffrage parade. Is it possible however, to look for the promised elevated and improved use of the ballot in the hands of women, when the leaders in the fight for it, make such inaccurate statements? When it was stated by the anti speaker that "if she was correctly informed Dr. Shaw was in both of these parades," Miss Shaw made no denial, so that she surely was aware of the presence of the Socialistic banners in them, and furthermore she must indorse Socialism, as she stated in a speech at Harrisburg, Pa., March 18, 1913—two weeks after the first took place—"we welcome every Socialistic vote."

Suffragists have been compelled to abandon—one by one—the arguments used by them to prove the unecessity for women's votes: "Equal Pay," "Child Labor," "White Slavery," "Social Uplift,' etc., etc., and to return to the old rudimentary cry of "Women's Rights," or "Votes for Women."

Statistics have been brought forward in the case of each of the above issues to prove that they were all being ably handled in man suffrage States, and that the ballot in the hands of women had done nothing to improve conditions in suffrage States. Lack of space alone prohibits quoting such statistics.

At a speech at Atlantic City in December last, Miss Shaw is reported to have stated—and she has not made any denial of the statement—"I would be for suffrage for my sex if every woman voted wrong. Women have an inalienable right to vote."

The United States Cyclepedia of Law states: "The right of suffrage may be regulated, modified or withdrawn by the Authority which conferred it. It is not a natural right of which a person cannot be deprived, but a privilege which may be granted or denied by the people or by the department of government to which they have delegated power in the matter, as the general policy may require."

Suffragists have never been willing—when it was suggested in other States—that the issue of "Votes for Women" should be submitted to a referendum of women—it is apparently the ony one on which they feel that men alone are competent to vote—and therefore the decision rests with the men, and the anti-suffragists of New Jersey ask them to ponder well before thrusting on the women of their State the duties and responsibilities of political life. To remember that the vast majority of them are not represented by the minority which is clamoring for the ballot. That to women belong certain duties and responsibilities which cannot be assumed by men, and to decide, each voter for himself, if it will be justice to compel them to assume others for which they are not and never can be as fitted as men.

MATERIAL PRICES MOVING UPWARD

Higher Prices Quoted for Linseed Oil, Common Brick and Structural Steel.

LOW MILL SUPPLIES

Prospective Building Movement Promises to Rival That of the Latter Part of 1912 When There Was a Marked Gain.

New York, Oct. 16.—Higher prices of linseed oil, a firmness in the current prices on Hudson common brick, a sharp stiffening of the 1.569c quotation for structural steel at tidewater and a further shifting of discounts in plate glass combined this week to indicate to architects, builders and prospective operators that material prices are moving upward.

Advices from the mills, however, do not indicate actual increase in demand. The upward movement is due to low mill supplies and a prospective building movement that promises to rival that of the last part of 1912. In that year, it is pointed out, plan filings began to show a country-wide gain in February, March and April, thus throwing the demand for building materials into the late autumn and winter. This time, the plan filing is developing in the autumn and will mean a sharp impetus in building material prices this winter.

National plan filings for July August and September indicate a gain of 6.3 per cent. over that for the same period last year. For the entire nine months there is a decrease in national building plan filings of 5 per cent. Plan filings for the ten months of this year, as indicated by those closing Thursday, the 14th, promise to eclipse this deficiency and show a gain of at least 1 per cent. Approximately $35,000,000 in building plans had been reported up to that time for October, which, if maintained, will make the October plan filings $70,000,00 as against $67,000,000 for September, and $64,000,000 for August.

Building material manufacturers are beginning to show some concern regarding the supply next spring, when these fall plan filings may be expected fully to develop. Should builders throughout the country realize that supply is low and prices will be high in March, April and May, and push construction now when dealers' stocks are at lowest reserves, a serious situation might develop should the car shortage and scarcity of coastwise boats continue to hamper movement of raw materials. Conditions at the most important mills supplying building materials and equipment are as follows:

Hudson River brick manufacturers will close the last of their plants next week. The latest count, including brick now burning in that district, brings the total up to 725,000,000. Normal is 1,200,000,000.

Lehigh and Hudson River cement manufacturers, reporting 25 mills, show an autumn winter reserve stock 22.5 per cent. below normal, with cement moving out of the Lehigh district at the rate of between 30,000 and 33,000 barrels a day. Kiln capacity is about 92 per cent. employed in the two districts, and practically the last of the price-cutting war cement is being shipped to dealers, who are, in turn, using it up fast.

Structural steel is under heavy war order requirements, and yet the district fabricating shops, according to a report of the Bridge Builders' and Structural Society, 67 per cent. of the capacity of the fabricating shops of the country is contracted for.

Plate and window glass factories are operating at about 88 per cent. of capacity and cannot supply the domestic and foreign demand comfortably, hence the lowering of discount.

The higher price of cement and the continued scarcity of cheap labor is said to be responsible for the hasty consummation of construction deals requiring concrete work. This is making an unusual call upon reinforcing materials such as bars, expanded metal and wire mesh. In consequence, prices are very stiff in all these lines. For the same reason continued stiffening in the price of sand, lime and plaster is also noted at the mills, although here in the distributing market, some shading is reported.

All lumber is higher and this week hardwoods were reported to be holding firmer on first quarter deliveries to this district. Hardware is exceedingly stiff, on heavy metal material and tools. Butts, hinges and nails are steadily firming, and further advances are looked for. Linseed oil, which affects the paint and varnish market, advanced two cents this week in this market, reflecting the pressure upon the supply at Duluth.

Building equipment, such as pipe, tubing, radiators, plumbing fixtures, sanitary ware, mullions, flashing, cornices and structural slate likely to be listed higher on n alogs now in the press for the 1 ason. Some manufacturers hav erred printing their catalogs in ation of further stiffening in the es.

SEVEN BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Plans for Work Underway Call For An Expenditure of $75,650.

SEASON ON THE WANE

Church, Storage Warehouse, Dwelling and Two Garages Included Among Structures That Are Now in Course of Construction.

Calling for the expenditure of $75,650, seven building permits were issued this week by Inspector T. O. Doane. The documents call for the erection of one church, one storage warehouse, one dwelling, two garages, one tool-house, and one alteration job. The work on the church and the warehouse are already underway.

The local construction season is now on the wane, and there is, at present, little prospective work in sight. The effects of the "off season" is also being felt in the real estate field.

The permits as issued during the course of the past week are as noted below:

First Ward.

The Plainfield Storage Warehouse Company has been granted a permit for a four-story concrete building on East Third street, just east of Watchung avenue, at a cost of $43,000. The Netherwood Reformed church has been granted a permit for the erection of a new edifice at Leland and Midway avenues. The structur will be of hollow terra cotta block, and will be 56x73. The estimated cost has been placed at $13,000. B. F. Tallamy & Brother are the general contractors. Charles W. Bolton & Sons, of Philadelphia, are the architects.

HODCARRIERS GET CUT IN WAGES

Fight is Now on Between the Laborers and Master Masons' Union.

STRIKE IS THREATENED

B. F. Tallamy & Bro., It is Reported, Paid Their Men 30 Cents an Hour Instead of 37½ Cents the Union Scale.

The fight between the Master Mason's Association and the Hodcarriers and Building Laborer's Union on the wage question is now on in full force, the break having come last night, when it was reported at the session of the Building Trades Council that B. F. Tallamy & Brother, mason contractors on the storage warehouse on East Third street, paid union hodcarriers thirty cents an hour instead of thirty-seven and a half cents an hour, as provided for in the present working agreement between the two interested organizations.

As a result of the charges being made against the contractors by one of their employes, the matter is being taken up today by Business Agent William H. Lunger, and should the contractors fail to make up the difference in wages before the first of the week, the concern will automatically become unfair to organized labor, the warehouse become an unfair job, as will the new edifice for the Netherwood Reformed church, for which Tallamy & Brother has the contract for the masonry work.

It is the contention of one or two of the master masons that $3.00 a day was too much to pay hodcarriers on concrete work. That those holding to this idea on the subject should arbitrarily cut the wages in spite of the working agreement is in no way a surprise, as the hodcarriers' committee, which has been working on a new agreement with a similar committee from the masters, received a communication dated September 2 informing them that the latter committee had decided that the wages for concrete work had been cut from $3 to $2 a day. The tone of this letter indicated that this was the decision of the organization, but there appears to be a difference of opinion on this point among the contractors themselves, some claiming that such is the case, while others claim that the committee had no authority to write such a communication until such times as the new agreement has been completed and adopted by both organizations. This action has not been taken as yet by the Hodcarriers Union.

The present trouble has been brewing for some little time, as early in the summer one or two of the mason contractors threatened to start "open shop" as far as the hodcarriers were concerned, unless the wages were cut. B. F. Tallamy & Brother have been considered union contractors up to this time, and on all sides, it is expected that the present crisis will call for a show of hands by both the hodcarriers and the master masons.

Should the contractors involved fail to make good the difference in the wages, it is highly probable that the work on the storage warehouse will be hindered considerably, as George D. Wilson, carpenter contractor on this job, is a union contractor, and in all probability, would not hesitate in taking his men off the job, or take a chance on being declared unfair along with the masons. The same conditions would exist on the Netherwood church building, where Tallamy Brothers are the mason contractors.

"ADMIT ONE."

In my hand I hold a ticket bearing the familiar words written above. It matters not to what the ticket admits, it will admit but one. It is true I can give it to another and he may attend in my place but I cannot enter with him if I give him the use of my admission; the ticket is as exclusive as it is inclusive.

In my hand years ago was placed another ticket bearing this same legend, though in invisible characters, but unlike the one I am now holding it was utterly non-transferable. It would admit one, but that one myself only. No one else could use my ticket. And such a card of admission is placed in the hand of every newcomer into this old world of ours. He holds this ticket long before he understands its purport or can make conscious use of it, though he begins to enjoy its benefits ere he is at all aware of its value. The reader has caught my meaning no doubt—every human soul at birth has given it, as it were, by the Custodian of life, a card of admission bearing the words of my title, "Admit One." Into life's marvel and mystery he must enter alone; he cannot take nearest and dearest friend with him on his ticket, nor can he exchange tickets with another though others may measurably share with him many of his experiences, but only by virtue of their own tickets similarly and simultaneously given. As one of our American poets has sung:

"We are spirits clad in veils;
Man by man was never seen;
All our deep communing fails
To remove the shadowy screen.
Heart to heart was never known;
Mind with mind did never meet;
We are columns left alone
Of a temple once complete."

There is something pathetic even tragic about this isolation, this individualism, this separateness, this loneliness, something at times perchance depressing; and yet the great truth has like all truth its double aspect. As into life's toil and turmoil, its sorrows and sufferings, each soul must enter individually, so into its powers and possibilities, its bliss and its boon, the individual soul has individual admission. As its transferable tangible counterpart was as exclusive as it was inclusive so this non-transferable intangible passport is as inclusive as it is exclusive. It will indeed admit but one and that the original holder only but it will surely admit him. He is thus dowered with rights of which none can rob him, of privileges granted himself alone. Herein lies the scepter as well as the secret of individuality. Through us singly may come some supreme gift or good to others—the world's music be enriched by some strain we alone can sing; its forces augmented by some power we severally exert; its welfare enhanced by some part we individually take. More and more to the thoughtful soul this truth becomes manifest and increasingly he appropriates and triumphs through it.

Eccentricity is indeed a poor counterfeit of individuality, but better eccentricity than suppressed individualism. Not till the young man realizes that to him has been committed a particular work, a peculiar function, a personal responsibility, a non-transferable mission will he begin to develop along the lines of his special tastes and talents with courage and confidence. He will cease to be a plagiarist, a copyist, an imitator; he will become a discoverer, an originator, a leader; yet will he also learn that originality is not priority but rather superiority of act and utterance. He will take of the things of others and weld them in the forge of his own thought and enterprise. The gem that another has partly cut and poorly polished he will take and beautify and perfect; and as he walks through the Gothic corridors of a glorious October forest, or stands beneath a starlit sky of June, or looks out over the broad expanse of the ocean, or climbs the mountainside until he gains its commanding height—wherever he goes, whatever he does, he will realize with a thrill of ecstasy and inspiration that to him has been given a ticket of admission to a world no one else can understand, to experiences no one else can ever share, to attainments no one else can achieve. With strength he can never gain in gymnasium, with alertness he cannot acquire through bodily training, with courage none can compass by physical contest, he will face the future and brave the unknown with an assurance based on intelligent individualism, a faith born of potent personality. He knows his limitations but he also knows he bears a card of admission that will to life truly worth while "admit one."

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Comment heard about this city during the past two days establishes the fact that the bill at the Plainfield Theatre is one for which no apologies need be made. Every one of the six big numbers on the program is equivalent to the headline act of many New York theatres and in addition high-class photo-plays are shown at every performance. This afternoon and tonight will make the close of the bill which includes such well known favorites as Walter Page and Company in the dramatic sketch, "Outwitted;" Joe Fadden & Co., in the sketch displaying back stage life under the title of "Trying Out." The great Pitroff, in marvelous handcuff and straight jacket escapes. Robinson and Nichols, singers and dancers; Frank Carman, hoop roller and baton juggler, and Harry Whitby, musical comedian.

Monday afternoon will mark the beginning of another bill, equally as big, it being the intention of the management to give the Plainfield people the best there is to be had from the vaudeville booking offices. The latest releases from the leading photo-play studios are shown at every performance, rounding out a fine afternoon or evening entertainment. One performance is given each afternoon and two each evening beginning at 7 and 9 o'clock.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Chauffeur Who Often Took Cold

A CERTAIN chauffeur, every few months, after being exposed to severe cold weather or rain while driving the automobile, would suffer a chill, followed by a high fever, which, after a day or two, would disappear.

All our elderly readers will welcome this positive evidence that, in spite of our numerous and emphatic declarations to the contrary, one can take "cold" from mere exposure. The chauffeur himself was convinced that he took "cold." He looked upon his doctor as a wee bit "cracked" when the doctor said "No, we can't be content with any such old fogy diagnosis." The doctor, instead, busied himself trying to find what he insisted upon calling a logical, scientific explanation for the chauffeur's chills and fever, while the chauffeur just kept putting on more and more chest protectors and mufflers and throwing in more and more undenaturized alcohol to keep his cylinders working.

Well, to spoil a good story, the doctor presently found something. A doctor will always turn up something if he is determined. He found that the chauffeur had a focus.

And what's a focus, for the land's sake?

A focus is a very inappropriate name for a centre from which septic poison is distributed to the blood. It should be called a depot, but some one called it a focus years ago, so we must stick to the bad name. In this case the hokus-pocus was comfortably ensconced in the chauffeur's tonsil.

No, he hadn't had anything the matter with his tonsils ever, he asserted. Yet that inquisitive and unconventional doctor discovered he could press upon one very innocent looking tonsil and squeeze out pus.

Enough. Raise the flag. Out came that rotten, yet silent tonsil.

Moral: The chauffeur never again "took cold."

L'envoi: You don't have to be chauffeur to have a focus. A blin dental abscess is just as silent an just as likely to make you "tak cold" or have "rheumatism" or sou other very annoying complaint.

Vest Pocket Essay

FRIENDS

A FRIEND is a man who is willing to share his time, his money and his conversation with you.

There are many kinds of friends. Some friends exist for revenue only and some are protective to a high degree. A true friend is a better defender than a battleship and as a convenience has a national bank beaten all around the compass.

Friends are useful in a multitude of ways. They are a great assistance in smoking cigars, in waiting for ducks and in digesting dinners. A great many men find it impossible to support a large heavy bar in an expensive saloon without the aid of several friends. Friends can be sworn at with comparative safety, and the man who loves to tell disagreeable truths in an offensively frank manner would not live long if he were compelled to practice upon strangers instead of friends.

Friends are blood relatives of procrastination. Both are great thieves of time. As a rule, friends love most dearly to steal the bright and cheerful evening hours which should be spent in reading good books. It is a common thing for two or three friends to hold up a perfectly respectable business man and take four or five hours away from him, including the hour in which the last street car leaves the down-town district.

Friends are responsible for most of the politicians of the country. Almost every man who has run for office has done so at the insistence of his friends. This can be proven by the statements of thousands of candidates. However, most of these friends prove their friendship at elections by steadfastly voting for the other fellow.

A Child Witness

Q. May a child be a witness in a law suit?

A. In some states there are statutes relating to this subject. As a rule, if the child is of the age of fourteen years or over—in some states, ten years or over—he or she will be a competent witness. Under such ages, the child may still be a competent witness if the court, after first examining the child, is of opinion that the child has sufficient intelligence to understand the obligations imposed by an oath.

Not A Sober Deal

Q. Suppose a person should supply an intoxicated man with the necessaries of life. Could he bring suit against this man if the latter should afterward fail to pay?

A. Yes, provided the man received the benefits and provided he retained such necessaries after becoming sober.

Frame Buildings In The Fire Limits

Q. Do the authorities of a city have the right to remove a frame building which is within the fire limits and where there is an ordinance relating to this subject?

A. Where a constitutional ordinance on this subject is passed, giving a city the right to prohibit the erection of frame buildings within a certain territory, the city may remove any building erected in violation of the ordinance.

A Minor's Irresponsibility

Q. In case a lease should be made to a minor, could he refuse to be bound by it?

A. Yes, he may so refuse.

A Corporate Seal

Q. Please inform me whether a county has the right to use a corporate seal.

A. Sometimes the statutes of a state contain a provision giving counties this right.

Joint Executors

Q. Where there are joint executors of a will, do they give a joint bond or does each give a separate bond?

A. This matter is sometimes controlled by legislative enactment. If there is no such enactment making it obligatory to give separate bonds, a joint bond may be given.

A Choice Of Administrators

Q. If several persons are entitled to be appointed administrators of an estate, is the court obliged to appoint all? A. No.

Separate Funds

Q. If a man, in his will, should give a designated sum of money to one trustee and another sum to another trustee, such sums to be kept in trust for two other persons, could such funds be invested as one fund?

A. They should be separately invested, and each fund should be kept separate and distinct from the other.

A Mandamus Suit

Q. Could a mandamus suit be brought against a corporation to compel it to perform its duties?

A. It is generally held that where a duty of a ministerial character is imposed by law upon a corporation, mandamus will lie to compel the corporation to perform such duty.

Current Poetry

The Sparrow

The sparrow has no holiday gear,
Nor whistles a jolly stave;
But in romance no buccaneer
Has ever been so brave.

He scorns your threats and stays to scoff,
He challenges and usurps.
Does blustering Winter scare him off?
He tilts his head and chirps.

He meets the North's artilleries
As cool as Bonaparte;
No hungry siege of frost can freeze
The courage in his heart.

While refugees take gentle cheer
In lands of palm and spice
He drudges in the trenches here
With wings incased in ice.

Then when Spring starts her northern drive
And Winter's long line reels,
The foppish refugees arrive
Fresh from the far Antilles.

The oriole, that gay young spark;
The thrush, swift, robin, wren,
The martin, and the meadow-lark
Come back to us again.

And fawning honors we must do
Unto this dandy rout.
This debonair, soft-fluting crew
Must drive the sparrow out!

The gable-angle, come what will,
Must serve the martin's rest.
The elm-crutch near the window-sill
Must hold the robin's nest.

The drooping maple-bough must sway
For the oriole's silken ease.
Woe to the sparrow that says nay
To our sublime decrees!

I do not like the sparrow's dress,
It is as dull as dirt;
I do not like his quarrelsomeness;
He's impudent and pert.

But as for me, he's free to hold
What's his by gallant fight.
No silver song or coat of gold
Shall blind me to his right.

The Life Line

BY LAURA KIRKMAN

The Wife Who Talks Before Breakfast

Why will she do it? This is the Great Rock that wrecks so many marriage-ships. "I have to laugh when I think of the diamonds Mrs. Crane wore last night," she prattles, wandering into her husband's dressing-room. "They were simply paste!" The man gives an annoyed tug to the collar he is fastening. His thoughts were on an important business engagement he is facing. To him, a new day symbolizes progress; why should he waste time looking back? Nevertheless, he answers her kindly. Kindly! Then he has begun to treat her like a child! Then he sees that she can never enter the inner temple of his real interests! She's eating the grape skin instead of the pulp.

The Unsystematic Employee

He's a good worker, or he wouldn't be employed. Somehow, he gets things done on time. "If I deliver the goods, does it matter how I do it?" is his attitude in defending his methods. Perhaps he is even cleverer than his systematic brother. But wait. When there's an opening higher up, it wont be the unsystematic man that gets it; it will be the man who can be depended on—the man who knows just where each hour of the day will find him. The unsystematic man's cleverness can't make up for his lack of reliability. He thinks his hands are more useful because his nails are polished.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TO GET EARLY START

North Plainfield High School Team Will Open Next Week.

North Plainfield High School will be represented this year by one of the strongest girls' teams in the history of the school. The first practice was held yesterday afternoon and a fine array of material was present.

Although two regulars were lost last season, their places will be easily filled by Rose Cooper at guard, left vacant by Elsie Debele, and the centre position by Theresa McCullough, who played side centre last year. Adelaide Ricketts or Margaret Ewart look like the probable choice for the side centre position.

Captain Lillian Spencer and Marjorie Burtis will form the same combination which has been the mainstay of the team the past two seasons. These two players have already established reputations by their ability to drop the ball through the net.

Bertha Keller will assume the responsibilities at guard. Miss Barnard will again coach the team and the first game will be played with Flemington next Friday at that place.

Those present at the first practice were: Marion Chandler, Bertha Keller, Theresa McCullough, Gladys Sullivan, Hannah Conover, Helen Doughty, Marjorie Martin, Edna Mantz, Helen Spencer, Mary Clarke, Marion Blair, Elsie Van Demburgh, Roxane McDonough, Adelaide Ricketts, Helen Yates and Lillian Spencer.

BIG SQUAD REPORTS FOR N. P. H. S. TRYOUT

Plenty of Material for Basketball Over in North Plainfield.

A large number of candidates responded to the first basketball practice of the North Plainfield High School boys yesterday afternoon in Saengerbund Hall. Over thirty-five were present, all being given an opportunity to show their ability. The first team went through two short periods of fast work, which showed they were in poor condition, although the weather was not suitable for basketball.

The first and second teams lined up as follows: First team: Conroy and Townley, forwards; Lunger, centre; Van Mater and Leidd, guards; Seconds: Dawe and A. McDonough, forwards; Moraller, centre; McDonough and Willett, guards.

Oscar Dilts, who is expected to make a regular guard position, was unable to report, owing to a bad ankle. He will be able to play next week, when practicing will commence regularly.

The first game will be played with a strong team of Y. M. C. A. players, mostly former graduates, in the early part of November. Mr. Jeffries, one of the coaches of last season, will probably have full charge in that department this year.

The following reported: Nathan Clay, Douglas Stewart, Robert Daly, Leslie Daly, LeRoy Force, Kenneth Giddes, Stanley Burner, Robert Parsch, Kenneth Lowrie, William Barry, Harold Mantz, Russell Kenney, Clement Texier, Harold Willett, Almond Doty, LeRoy Adams, Vincent LaPorte, Harry Kirch, Victor Levitz, Clarence Roddy, Brooks Carson, John Doughty, John Dawe, Martin McDonough, Edward Moraller, Andrew McDonough, Alfred Willett, William Seidel, Appleton VanMater, Harold Lunger, Ronald Conroy and Warren Townley.

JACK MARTIN IS SIGNED TO PLAY AT ELIZABETH

Jack Martin, of this city, will be an unexpected starter in the line-up of Frank Bruggy's All Leaguers against the T. A. B. S. nine, tomorrow afternoon in Elizabeth.

Martin, who may be justly termed the pride of Plainfield, has seen service with the Yankees, Braves and Philadelphia Quakers and played a great game in the American Association during the past season. He will play second base.

GOOD AND PEACOCK WILL PLAY AGAINST THE ARMY

Monroe Good, better known to Plainfielders as "Rube" Good, a member of the Colgate College football team, left yesterday morning with that squad for West Point, where the former will face the Army team today. Coach Bankart has been handicapped this week by an unusually large hospital list and has been working hard all week to develop a new combination to use against the Army. Captain Abell and Good will play left tackle and right guard, respectively.

Good is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, class of 1913, winner of the Yale cup that year and one of the best all round athletes that institution has ever had. Bill Peacock, winner of the Yale cup in last year's Plainfield High School class, is also a member of the Colgate squad.

HOLD FINAL RACE MEET.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—What is carded as the final race meeting of the year will open today at the Mount Royal race course. The meet will be a seven-day affair, and some of the best horses in the Dominion are entered. Many of these horses have been rested up and groomed for the final meet. From Toronto has come The General, the champion of the Queen City courses.

HIGH SCHOOL TENNIS TOURNEY ARRANGED

Many Entries Received for Events to Start Monday Afternoon.

The annual Plainfield High School singles and doubles tennis tournament will be begun at the Country Club Monday and will be continued on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. The tournament this year is being managed by Rodman Parvin and Wright McAneny, with whom over thirty entries have already been filed. In the singles section of the tournament Rodman Parvin, who recently captured the Princeton Cup, looks like the best contender for honors while the runner up in the Princeton Cup competition, Eustace Eggie, is sure to be in the thick of the fray. Others entered in the singles are David Fitch, Robert McDowell, Walter Place, Everett Case, Phil Mills, Horace Bunker, Wright McAneny, Burnham Carter, Monroe O'Donnell and a host of minor scholastic court celebrities.

In the doubles' end of the bill Rodman Parvin and Burnham Carter have teamed up, while Eustace Eggie and Bob McDowell have entered as a team. It is generally thought that either of these two outfits is sure to land the doubles championship inasmuch as the head pin member of each of the two combinations is one who was in the running in the recent Princeton cup contest. In this Parvin took the honors after a hard fight with Eggie and for this reason it is believed that these two fellows are about evenly matched. Of the other two racquet wielders, McDowell, if he puts his mind down to business, is considered a shade better than Carter.

MAY YET BE A CHANCE FOR BATTIN BASKETBALLERS

The Battin girls interested in a girls' basketball team are trying their hardest to have the "ban" lifted from that sport which was prohibited by the Board of Education. A letter was read last night at the meeting of the Board of Education asking for a reconsideration of the board's decision. The letter was sent in the name of the girls of the school and explained that Principal Little always saw to it that the sport was properly conducted. The letter also stated that basketball for the girls was an incentive to work, as no one was allowed to play unless an average of seventy-five was obtained in lessons.

The girls' basketball team always was a success at the school and credit is due to Captain Edith Otto and Manager Dorothy Schlotterer for their efforts to raise the barrier.

Battin has always been an opponent of Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools.

SOME OF THE CHANGES IN BASKETBALL RULES

A. A. U. basketball will be more strenuous this season. The rules have been changed and the A. A. U. Intercollegiate and Y. M. C. A. associations will play under them. One of the rules states that any player may dribble the ball with one hand before shooting.

Both pivot men must put one hand behind their backs. In case the ball goes out of bounds, the opposing player must stand three feet in front of the line in attempting to block the player behind the line. Players putting their foot against the wall while shooting will not be given credit for the basket if it is made.

WALDORF TO CAPTAIN B. P. O. E. BOWLERS

Elected With Power to Pick His Own Seven Rollers.

At a meeting of the bowling committee of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks held Thursday night, Jacob E. Waldorf, who last year rolled several contests with the senior team, was elected to captain that outfit in the State Elks' League this year. In the election of Mr. Waldorf the bowling committee has established somewhat of a precedent in Elks' bowling, having invested in him the power to select a team of seven men to represent the local order this winter.

Heretofore it has been customary for the committee to name the players and the captains have merely been alley leaders. V. W. Nash, Jr., who led last year's team in a thoroughly competent manner and who was considered one of the best of the veterans remaining for duty this year, will probably not participate in team pinning again. The time required in discharging his duties as captain was such that he was put to considerable inconvenience on various occasions last winter and it is rumored in club circles that he will drop out. Several other of last year's players will also be missing from the lineup.

It would not be a great surprise to those interested in B. P. O. E. bowling to see an entirely new lineup in the field this winter, thus giving an array of talent that has been clamoring for a chance an opportunity to "make good."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Lovers and The Fountain Of Trevi.

"THIS is a travel story," said daddy. "You must remember that Italy hasn't plenty of good water. Every pope or emperor who wanted Italians to like him always built underground tubes to bring water from the hills down to Rome so his people could have water to drink and bathe in. One of the biggest of these fountains is Trevi, whose waters are said to be very pure. The legend is that over 2,000 years ago a beautiful young girl pointed out a clear spring to thirty thirsty soldiers. Then fourteen years before Christ was born Emperor Agrippa ordered an underground tube fourteen miles long built to bring this spring water into Rome. Then fifty years before Columbus discovered America Pope Nicholas made Trevi bigger, and 150 years ago another pope made it still bigger, so that every day it now pours millions of gallons of good water into thirsty Rome."

"How does Trevi look, daddy?" asked Jack.

"It is built up against an old palace, with a huge statue of the old sea god Neptune in the center. Pure water pours out of other statues into its great basin, and lots of naked little Italian boys play and bathe in it, so that it always looks as full of kiddies as Uncle Ben's brook is of minnows.

"Another legend about Trevi is that any traveler who throws a penny into it will surely come back to Rome before he dies. This wonderful fountain would surely be clogged with pennies if the beautiful naked boys did not fish them out as soon as travelers go. Once two lovers drove to Trevi. They were very sad at leaving the city of their happiness, and to make sure they would return some time they each threw a lira, an Italian quarter, into the fountain. The little Italians hardly waited for them to get out of sight when they all pounced on the money, fighting, shoving, so that the littlest shouted he was drowning.

"The lover came running back, dived into the water and brought the little fellow out. He thought he was saving a life, and when he saw that they were fighting over his lira he was so cross that he spanked one. An Italian policeman tried to arrest him, he had to pay a lot of money to go free, his suit was all spoiled, and his ladylove stood giggling at him. So ends the newest legend of Trevi."

"Tell us who got the lira?" cried the children.

"The biggest boy, of course."

"Did the lover catch cold?" asked Jack, who had once been ducked in Uncle Ben's beautiful pond.

"No. The sunshine in Rome is hot and the air warm. The lover went to his hotel, changed his clothes and took his sweetheart to drive."

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Molly Finds a Girl's Handkerchief in John's Pocket and Wants to Know the Explanation.

"What's this?" Molly Sutner picked up a dainty handkerchief from the floor by her husband's chair. Her husband looked up from the column of figures he was adding, with a frown on his face.

"It looks like a handkerchief to me," he snapped.

"So it does to me. Who is this Julia?" Her lips were pressed to a firm line.

"Julia?" He looked at the name in the bit of linen. "Oh, Julia Asgood, the stenographer at the office." His finger was again traveling rapidly up the column of figures.

"How do you come to be carrying her handkerchief around. I should like to know?"

"Lord! Molly, is there anything specially criminal in my having her handkerchief in my pocket? I had a headache, and she wet it with some smelling salts she had there. I forgot to give it back to her." He turned again to his column of figures.

"How lovely and thoughtful of her," remarked Molly in a sarcastic tone, smelling of the handkerchief for corroboration of his explanation. John did not answer. She took his silence for the confusion of guilt and eyed him with rising anger.

"Has this sympathetic maiden been your office companion long?" she inquired at last in tones of asperity.

John waved a frantic hand for silence, but Molly's anger would not let her understand.

"Naturally you don't want to talk about her, but I insist on knowing." She seated herself near the table and glared at her husband.

"Lord of Heaven!" ejaculated John, rising and casting his pencil on the table. "I've added that column three times now. If ever there was a woman who was a dog in the manger you are the one. Here I've got a chance to earn $5 and you sit there prating about your silly jealousies and hindering me so I can't do the work."

"It wouldn't have taken a minute to answer, not half as long as it has taken to rave at me," replied Molly, slightly cowed by the violence of her husband's rage. "My question was a perfectly natural one."

"Well, go on with your perfectly natural questions," he mimicked scornfully. "Let's get them over with so I can go back to my work."

"I only wanted to know how long she'd been there." Molly's voice was subdued.

"Over a year," he snapped. "What else?"

"Oh, it's no use asking you anything about her. I'd never know any more when I got through." Her lips trembled.

"Oh, yes, put the very worst construction on everything; that's like you. You care nothing for me, never think of my comfort or my welfare in any way, but if another woman tries to relieve my headache it's a terrible thing."

"Oh, John, it isn't that." She burst into tears. "I know you don't love me and it's natural that you should learn to care for any woman you are with so constantly, under the circumstances."

"Humph!" snorted her husband. "Women are queer creatures. I suppose you think a furious scene over a handkerchief would warm my heart with love for you; to be interrupted in a job of work that will take till midnight anyway, is such an incentive to devotion. Our lovering days are over, but if we could come to some sensible understanding we might patch up a life that would be more tolerable for both of us. By all means let us face facts.

"Now let me finish this work. You can take your crying into another room, can't you."

Molly rose and went out.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

FULLER SKIRTS MAKE WAISTS APPEAR SMALLER.

No. 9108.

Although there has been a tendency to make the hip and waist measurements slightly fuller, the unusual fullness of the up-to-date skirt makes them appear smaller. This is gratifying because it permits of exceptional comeliness without jeopardizing health or comfort. The above Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9108 shows this principle to good advantage. The dress may be developed in brown and white flowered stripes or in flowered blue. It consists of a waist closing in the back, with either high or low neck, standing or gathered collar. A two-piece gathered skirt is attached to a two-piece yoke. Cuts in sizes 34 to 48 inches bust measure, size 36 requiring 5¼ yards 36-inch material, with 1⅞ yards 36-inch material for trimming.

WHAT PLAINFIELD WANTS TO KNOW.

The Answer Is Found In the Statement of a Plainfield Resident.

From week to week, from year to year, there have been appearing in these columns statements made by neighbors, which we have all read with great interest, and many of us with great profit. But what we want to know is, do they stand the greatest test of all—the test of time? Here is conclusive evidence on this point from a Plainfield woman:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued until cured."

OVER FIVE YEARS LATER Mrs. Dorflinger said: "I hold just as high an opinion of them now as when I gave my former endorsement recommending them. The cure they made has been permanent."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Dorflinger had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Pat McGee,
A sportsman he,
With Bill Dugan made a bet.
That suit there?
Most anywhere,
For twenty he could get.
Says Pat, "'Tis a go,"
And staked his dough,
He knew it was easy money;
He'd teach that "simp"
By making a "crimp"
In his roll not to get funny.
From door to door,
To every store,
In town he went to shop;
And every store
Asked more and more,
At last HE gave it UP.
And when they had Poor Patty's wad
Pretty well blowed in,
Bill took one "hop" to

STADLER'S SHOP

And there 'twas marked fifteen.

TROOPERS ENJOY CAMPING TRIP

Members of First Squadron Cavalry Spend Day and Night at "Village."

REGULAR ARMY STYLE

Company is Divided Into Two Sections for Patrol Duty—Camp-fire One of the Enjoyable Features of the Outing.

Members of the Second Platoon, Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry, N. G. N. J., enjoyed a two days' camping trip Saturday and yesterday in the mountains in back of Scotch Plains. There were twenty-five mounted men in the party and everything was done in regular army style. The tents were pitched on the side of the mountain near Glenside Park.

The company was late in getting started from headquarters Saturday afternoon, which necessitated most of the work being done in the dark upon arrival at the grounds. The route taken follows: Kensington avenue to Watchung avenue to Woodland avenue to Seventh street to Leland avenue and Mountain avenue to Park avenue, Scotch Plains, and then over the mountain road. Riding by twos through the city streets, the company presented an attractive sight. Second Lieutenant Daniel Markle was in command of the troop assisted by First Sergeant Brown Rolston.

Upon arrival at camp work was immediately started and shelter tents, in which the soldiers slept, and the cook's tent were pitched in short order. The horses were also given the best of attention. System was the keynote of the work and rapid progress was made, everybody working with a will. Mess was served at 7 o'clock and the evening was spent around the campfire. Taps were sounded at eleven o'clock by Trumpeter L. A. Williams. Picket guards were on duty throughout the night and at revielle, sounded at 5:45 Sunday morning, all hands were up and ready for the hard day's work. After grooming and caring for the horses, mess was had and the company started out for a morning of patrol duty.

The company was divided in two sections, the Red and Blues, and each represented the advance detachment of cavalry of hostile armies which were known by each other to be in that section. The parties, under the command of First Sergeant J. M. Charles, were started in opposite directions in the valley and after crossing the hills, met in the valley of the second mountain. Blank ammunition was used and a patrol problem, such as the cavalries have in war times, was worked out. The troops were recalled at 11 o'clock and the return home was made late yesterday afternoon.

Several of those present have been at the Plattsburg camp and related some of their experiences. The total absence of stimulants was one of the noted features of the trip. Troop D is financed on an independent basis and since its organization last spring has had no financial assistance either from the people of this city or the government. The membership dues is fifty dollars a year, payable quarterly. The troop meets every Thursday night for practice. The camping party was a complete success in every way and those in charge were highly pleased with the manner in which the entire program was worked out.

MRS. LOUIS K. HYDE DIES IN 46TH YEAR

Passes Away at Her Home "Oakmont" After Long Illness.

Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, aged 46 years, died about midnight last night at her home, "Oakmont," Hydewood Park, North Plainfield, following a long illness with heart trouble. Her condition had been serious during the past six months, being aggravated with complications. Her death is a great shock to a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Mrs. Hyde, prior to her marriage, was Miss Verna Emery, being the daughter of Mrs. David Emery, of Titusville, Pa., where she lived before coming to this city. Mr. Hyde formerly resided at Titusville, and for nineteen years was president and cashier of the Second National Bank, that place. It was there that he met his wife, and they were married on June 30, 1891. A few years later they removed to this city. The home, "Oakmont," completed about a year ago, is one of the most attractive residences in this section.

Mrs. Hyde was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and although ill health prevented very much activity, she was greatly interested in local charities, to which she was a generous contributor. Her benefactions will be greatly missed.

Beside a husband there is left three children, Miss Helen Hyde, Louis K. Hyde, Jr., and William Hyde; also her mother, Mrs. David Emery, and a sister, Mrs. Louis A. Brenneman, of Pittsburgh. The funeral will be held at "Oakmont," at 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, and the burial will be in the Hyde mausoleum in Hillside cemetery at the convenience of the family.

RESPECTED TEACHER SUDDENLY STRICKEN

Frederick H. Beals, Formerly of P. H. S., dies at Family Home in Newark.

News of the death of Frederick H. Beals, formerly a teacher in the Plainfield High School, which ocurred early yesterday morning in his home in Newark, came as a sudden shock to his many intimate friends and school associates in this city today. Word was received by Principal Lindsey Best, of the Plainfield High School, and he conveyed it to other members of the faculty and student body, over whom a shadow of gloom has been raised.

Mr. Beals conducted his classes in Barringer High School, Newark, as usual Friday, and attended a meeting of the executive committee of the State Science Teachers' Association Saturday morning. In the evening he suffered a severe attack of asthma, which early Sunday morning resulted in heart failure and death. The funeral services will take place at the family residence, 284 Clifton avenue, Newark, tomorrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

During his two years' connection with the local scholastic institution Mr. Beals earned many staunch friends, and was honored and respected by everyone with whom he came in contact.

In commenting on the death of the teacher this morning, Principal Best said, in part: "He was a thorough and conscientious instructor and a man who would go far out of his way to do a good turn for a fellow being. His zealous application to his profession probably had something to do with his failing health, and it is with deep regret that we learn of his death."

Similar testimonies were volunteered by numerous other of his former associates here. He had charge of the science department of the High School, coming to Plainfield from Los Angeles, Cal. He is survived by his wife and two small children, who lived with him in Plainfield.

THOMAS HANNA WORKING FOR THE FRENCH GOV'T

From letters received by friends in this city the fact has been gleaned that Thomas Hanna, one of Plainfield's former widely known residents is now in the employ of the French government. In just what capacity or department his duties are has not been made known but it is believed to be in the contract department. Mr. Hanna was in Europe at the outbreak of the present war and made a brief trip to this country last May, at which time he spent a few days in Plainfield. He was non-committal at the time as to what line of business he was in.

Local friends of Mr. Hanna entertain the opinion that he has been placing some of the big contracts for the French government with American factories. He is thoroughly versed in mechanics, having been with several factories in this vicinity and also has keen business judgment, two facts which probably united in securing his present responsible position.

PILLAR OF FIRE WOMEN JAILED

Three Martyrs to "Holy Jumper" Cause Committed by Judge DeMeza.

DEFIED THE CITY LAW

Levina Leach, the Leader, Said She Had a Message From God Which Had to Be Delivered—Asked for No Mercy in Court.

Throwing themselves upon the mercy of the court as martyrs to the Pillar of Fire cause, three women workers of the cult who were arrested last night by Chief of Police Kiely, Sergeant Charles Flynn and Patrolman John Kelley for conducting a street revival without the necessary permit, were this morning sentenced to serve seven days in the county jail and pay fines of $20 each by Judge DeMeza. The committment of the three, who were Levina Leach, Laura Wilson and Grace E. Tomlin, came as a climax to a long period of surveillance by the local police on the sect, and the women took their punishment philosophically when the court made the ruling that will probably deprive them of twenty-seven days' liberty, inasmuch as the Pilars have not heretofore made a practice of paying fines, preferring to work out the prison sentence at the rate of one day for each dollar. Members of the cult were committed to the Somerville jail some time ago for a similar offense.

INDISCRETION COST DEDOOD $20 FINE

Refused to Apologize to Michael Higgins Whom He Attacked.

His disrespect of counsel's advise and his refusal to apologize to Michael Higgins whom he had forcibly ejected from the Keller Cleaning Company's establishment on Park avenue on Friday, cost Ysbrand DeDood $20 when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning on a charge of assault preferred by Higgins. Following a hearing on the charge in which his culpability was fully brought out, DeDood was instructed by Judge DeMeza to make amends to his victim. He replied that he would do no such thing despite the advise of Martin Stutsman, his attorney, and the fine, with the option of spending forty days in the county jail, was accordingly administered.

Higgins had accompanied George York, sergeant-at-arms of the District Court, to DeDood's place of business Friday morning to act as a witness when York served a bill for rent and a foreclosure of a chattel mortgage on the proprietor. The sum, which amounted to $2,300, was satisfied in cash by DeDood later in the morning and he went back to his store only to find Higgins, who had been left in charge by York, still sitting there. DeDood ordered Higgins out but the latter refused to budge until his employer returned. He was thrown out bodily, according to his own statement, landing in a heap in the middle of the street. DeDood thought differently of his manner of ejection, however, and told the court that he "led Higgins to the door by the arm and pushed him out." City Judge DeMeza came to the rescue of the complainant at this juncture by stating that he had personally witnessed the scuffle from his office window and that Higgins came through the screen doors with sufficient force to set him in the middle of the street.

When asked by the court if he knew he had not taken the right course, DeDood declared he didn't know much about law but had been learning considerable of late.

FINDS HUSBAND WITH LOVER—THEY WHIP HER

When the wife of Charles Brighton, colored, of North Plainfield, missed him Sunday morning, and suspected him of going somewhere beside church, she started a search and found him at the home of Lucy Cameron, who lived next door. The Brighton woman demanded her husband and accused her neighbor of using undue influence in the shape of liquor to entice him away, and a fight followed. Neighbors who were attracted to the scene of the disorder said that the husband was helping the other woman whip the wife, and they called Chief Weiss in to stop the one-sided Sunday argument. The chief arrested Brighton and the Cameron woman, and each was tried in court yesterday morning. Recorder Hand fined the woman $10 and the man $5.

William Hickey, aged 26, paid $5 in Recorder Hand's court for his ignorance of the authority invested in a police officer. Hickey, according to Patrolman Swody, was acting disorderly on Somerset street, in the borough, when he was told to move on. He crossed the brook which marks the corporation limits of the borough, and once in Plainfield proper, began to curse and abuse the officer, believing he was immune from arrest. The patrolman went after him anyway, and he was locked up on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

OTHER JERSEYMEN OF BRAINS WHO SUPPORT SUFFRAGE

They Tell Why Women Need and Should Have the Ballot.

To the Voters of the State of New Jersey.

On the 19th of October the legally qualified voters of New Jersey will be called upon to vote for or against a proposed amendment to the constitution granting the ballot to women. At the request of the four leading suffrage organizations of the state the undersigned have agreed to set forth what they believe to be the real principles involved in the issue, to recite briefly the controlling factors that lead them to support this change in the organic law and to separate the material from the immaterial evidence that has been presented during the campaign both by those who favor and those who oppose the adoption of the amendment.

The amendment is submitted under the provisions of article 9 of the constitution, which provides that any specific amendment may be proposed in the general assembly and if approved by a majority of both houses of two consecutive legislatures it shall be submitted to the people at a special election.

With these and with all the other constitutional provisions and requirements the legislature has complied.

In 1914 the amendment was adopted in the legislature by a vote of 64 to 8 and in 1915 by a vote of 75 to 4.

The question is therefore now before the people and will appear on the ballot at the special election to be held on the 19th of October in the following form:

"Shall this amendment, extending the right to vote to women citizens, be adopted?"

The Reasons For Support.

In answer to the above question it is the intention of the undersigned to vote "Yes," and in the hope that it may be of some assistance to those who have not as yet been able to reach a conclusion as to the merits of the controversy we set forth our reasons for so doing:

First.—We believe it to be in violation of the principle of democracy that one-half of the citizens of the state should be deprived of a voice in the government under which they live.

There are two underlying principles of democracy—one, that no group of men has a moral right to govern any other group of men without its consent unless the group so governed, because of some infirmity, is unable to comprehend the standards of organized society; another, that all those who have a stake or hazard in the government organized for their own protection shall have a share in the management of its affairs. These principles are either sound or unsound. If sound, and we believe them so to be, they must apply to women as well as to men, because their stake and hazard in the government is as great, deep and vital as that of men and because no infirmity, moral, mental or physical, can be shown to support the assumption that women do not comprehend the standards of organized society.

Second.—We believe it to be unjust that half of the citizens of the state should be deprived of a voice in the government, the burdens of which they are compelled by law to share. We do not refer alone to the injustice of taxing those who have no say as to the method by which the tax shall be imposed, but also to the obvious injustice of a social order that forces women into all the activities of the state in competition with men and then refuses to place them on an equal footing with their competitors.

Supported by Justice.

Third.—We believe that not only justice, but expediency, dictates that the amendment should be adopted. During the past thirty-five or forty years a marked change has taken place in the attitude of the people as to the true functions of government. Formerly it was the general belief that the government was fulfilling its purpose if it protected the life and property of its citizens. Now we expect it to do much more. Without becoming paternalistic or infringing upon our liberties, we expect the government to protect the interests of the people in their personal and domestic affairs as well. It is called upon to supervise the working conditions in factories and the living conditions in tenements. It is called upon to regulate in some measure the cost of living, to guarantee a pure supply of food and by both constructive and preventive methods to guard the health and morals of the young.

While this radical change in the recognized functions of government was in progress another movement of equal importance was pressing forward, and that was the gradual emancipation of women from much of the drudgery of the home. When steam came to be utilized for weaving and spinning and when much of the household food came to be prepared in factories millions of women were released from some of their immemorial and traditional duties.

The effect was twofold. Among the poor it drove the women out of the home into the workshops and factories. Among the well to do it gave the women more time to participate in civic affairs and community interests. In both cases it produced a demand for the ballot. The women driven into the wage earning class demanded it as a weapon of self defense. The women released from some portion of their home duties demanded it to secure more power in dealing with those functions of government that had invaded the sphere peculiarly their own—the home and all that affects the home.

Readjust Basis of Franchise.

It is the conjunction, then, of these reciprocal tendencies, the tendency of the government to deal with matters affecting the government, that makes it necessary, both in the interests of justice and the welfare of the state, for us now to readjust the basis for granting the electoral franchise.

Fourth.—We have examined the arguments and statistics presented by Senator Martine and others who are opposed to the adoption of the amendment to prove that women do not want the ballot, that they do not vote when the privilege is granted, that woman suffrage has done no good in states where it has been tried and that it will tend to break up the home, destroy the finer qualities of womanhood and double the ignorant and criminal vote.

In answer to these statements we can only say that in our opinion they are not supported by the facts. The truth would seem to be that the number of women demanding the ballot in the United States today is greater than the number of men who have ever asked for anything in the history of the country and that in states where women have been given the ballot the women vote in quite the same proportion as men. What is more, we find no evidence to prove that it has done harm in any state where it has been tried. On the contrary, we find much conclusive evidence that in many of the equal suffrage states it has resulted in broadening the outlook and vision of the women, in quickening their intelligence, in increasing their self reliance and in raising the whole tone and standard of political life. Furthermore the evidence is cumulative that legislation dealing with matters of special interest to women is secured more promptly in states where women have the ballot than in states where that privilege is denied them.

Two Slanders Refuted.

The fact that in our churches 75 per cent of the members are women and that in our prisons 75 per cent of the inmates are men would seem to dispose of the argument that it will double the criminal vote, while the fact that in our high schools two-thirds of the pupils are girls is a complete answer to the charge that it will double the ignorant vote.

We do not claim if women are enfranchised in New Jersey that all the beneficent results above mentioned will at once be apparent. The laws of evolution work with irresistible momentum and power, but not in haste. We do believe, however, that woman suffrage is the next great forward reach in the eternal onward march of the human race and that as time goes on the granting of the ballot to women will be justified in the gradual appearance of a higher standard of citizenship and a broader and nobler national life.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The junior class has decided on the purchase of a class ring.

Both sections of the junior English class, after a few days rehearsing, dramatized Shakespeare's "As You Like It," in class Friday morning.

The members of the sophomore class are planning to hold a class party in the near future, probably on Hallowe'en night, in the Harrison Avenue School, if permission can be secured from the Board of Education.

Clarence Roddy has been secured to fill the vacancy left by Charles Roll in the A. A. cast. Roddy will impersonate "Mr. Brewer." Two rehearsals have already been held. November 19 has been set for the evening of the performance, in the Park Club.

Miss Mohring is giving elementary drills in chemistry in the laboratory to a few ambitious pupils relative to the work in general science.

The double laboratory period has been a big asset in accomplishing work in the physic classes. Miss Mohring expects each pupil will complete one hundred experiments or more in that department this year.

Both Theresa McCullough and John Dawe, managers of the girls' and boys' teams, respectively, will have to revise their schedule in order to bring the games within March 1. Both managers thought that the lease on the hall would continue into March, as it has in the past, and therefore scheduled games in that month. As the lease on the hall expires March 1, these contests will have to be shifted, or else cancelled. The time limit has also been changed in the afternoons. Last year the hours were from two until five, while this season they will be from three until six. This is a big advantage, as last season the first hour was practically wasted on account of the afternoon session.

All the pupils who pledged themselves to contribute a dollar toward the Recreation Hall Fund, before January 1, are urged to give their money to Mrs. W. O. Taylor, 25 Fairview avenue, as soon as possible.

The basketball shoes, which were expected to be here Friday afternoon so they could be used by the basketball players, have not arrived yet.

Plans are being formulated among the classes to form a class basketball league. Meetings will be held next week and the captains and managers elected. The present senior class, which has won the championship the past three years, will once more be represented.

The Sigma Gamma Kappa held a meeting in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. Friday afternoon and elected the following officers: President, Catharine Buttings, vice-president, Margaret Smith; secretary, Agnes Griffiths; treasurer, May Hoagland.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"The Dust of Egypt," the splendid new Vitagraph production, will be shown for the first time in Plainfield today at the U. S. Astor Theator with charming Edythe Storey and Antonio Moreno. "The Dust of Egypt" is an elaborate spectacle wonderfully staged, cleverly directed and marvelously acted.

In part the engrossing story is: Geoffrey Lascelle arrives home in the seventh heaven of delight. He has just attended a dinner given in honor of his engagement to Violet Manning. An Englishman named Simpson, who delves into things occult and is a student of archeology, has a wonderful mummy from the tomb of Ptolemy entrusted to his keeping. Simpson arrives at Lascelle's residence with a casement containing the embalmed body. Lascelle at first offers objections to his residence being used as a crypt, but remonstrances are of no avail, and Simpson leaves after having placed the mysterious mummy case in Lascelle's keeping. From this juncture the story heightens and becomes most amusing. "The Dust of Egypt" is original in the extreme. It opens up a new phase and presents a new series of climaxes never before attempted on the screen.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Although every bill shown at the Plainfield Theatre since the vaudeville policy was introduced two weeks ago has been one that would do credit to a Broadway house, Manager Shannon believes that the program for the first half of this week is the Barnum of them all. Every one of the six big acts is a winner. It will give patrons a dollar show for one-tenth of the amount. Bristol's Equine Wonders, comprising fourteen perfectly trained ponies and the most intelligent comedy mule ever seen on the stage, will be the big feature and will be closely followed by the Great Ali Rajah & Co., in a demonstration of wonderful telepathy, telling the past, present and future. This act is absolutely in a class by itself and although it has many imitators it has never been equaled.

Besides these two attractions other numbers on the bill will be the Boldens, the colored entertainers; Beltrah & Beltrah, in the "Musical Dairy"; The Bijou Comedy Four, a knockabout harmony singing quartet, and Orren and Drew, in songs, talk and mimicry.

Every program at the Plainfield Theatre includes photoplays, both comedies and dramas from the leading studios of the country. The Pathe semi-weekly is one motion picture feature while every day produces something new and exactly what the people want. Remember that popular prices prevail both matinee and night.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The new policy at Proctor's Theatre of continuous high-class vaudeville and feature photoplays goes into effect this afternoon with one of the finest programs ever given the local public. The vaudeville portion of the bill is headed by the musical comedy, "The Earl and the Girl," almost a show in itself. It is presented by a company of specially selected singers, dancers and comedians, all of whom possess exceptional talent and have the faculty of being able to get their numbers over the footlights. In addition to this tabloid comedy there are five other headline acts selected especially for the initial program.

The first of the big feature photoplays is given in today's show and is the screen production of "Trilby," the drama which created a world-wide sensation a few years ago and in which Wilton Lackaye made the greatest success of his career. The play is given with even more elaborate detail than when first shown on the stage and by theatrical folk and critics is declared to be the last word in the motion picture world. For the last half of the week, the management feels that it has been especially fortunate in securing "Vanity Fair" with Mrs. Fiske playing the part of "Becky Sharp." Numerous other features of this kind have been booked and will be announced from time to time.

Keep in mind that under the new policy the Proctor performances will run continuously from two until eleven p. m. Special low prices will prevail at both matinee and night performances and every attention will be accorded women and children.

In defiance of the new ordinance, which provides for a permit for all street meetings of this nature, the "Holy Jumpers" started a revival at Park avenue and East Second street Saturday night, but were dispersed. Again last night three women members of the order started similar ceremonies at Front street and Madison avenue, and ignored Chief Kiely when he warned them three successive times that they were disobeying the law. He accordingly ordered his men to place them under arrest.

Appearing before the court this morning, Levina Leach, who is sixty-one years of age, acted as spokesman for the group, declaring that she was the leader of last night's meeting, and individually responsible for what transpired. Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed prosecuted the case for the city, but the defendants were unrepresented.

Explaining her action in violating the law Levina Leach said: "I had a message from God to give to the people, and as I have not much longer to live, I thought I had better give it."

Under cross-examination by Mr. Reed the woman admitted that her order had practically decided that its opinion was superior to that of the law, and intended to hold meetings in direct disregard of any ordinance.

At a meeting of the Police Board held last week Mayor Calkins announced his decision, under the new ordinance which was passed by the Council early in the month, and goes into effect this week, to refuse permits to the Pillars of Fire for street meetings. The Mayor presented a written statement of the reasons for his decision, embodying an analysis of the guaranteed right of free speech and his position with regard to same, stating that if it had the approval of the members of the Board, he would send it as a special message to the Common Council at its November meeting.

The Board unanimously approved he Mayor's decision and views, but requested that in this case he release the message immediately to the newspapers, in order that the fact with respect to his refusal of street concessions to the Pillars of Fire, and his position concerning free speech, may be made public currently with the announcement of his decision.

Following is the Mayor's message on the subject:

To the Honorable the Members of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

I have found it necessary to the maintenance of the peace and good order of the city, to refuse permission to a sect known as the Pillars of Fire to hold street meetings in Plainfield. As this action is taken pursuant to a recent grant of authority from your honorable body, I deem it important for your information to state in full the reasons for my decision, and the underlying principles involved as I understand them. Everybody believes in "Free Speech;" but, since we find it used as a slogan or catch-phrase to justify an interference with other rights equally guaranteed by the Constitution and laws of the State, it is important for us carefully to define its meaning, not only in the disposition of this particular case, but as a rule of action for our guidance in the future.

The State Constitution guarantees that every person may freely speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right. Of course, the Constitution recognizes that there may be other rights, equally important, which also are not to receive a denial through the exercise of the guaranteed right of free speech.

Now the people have a right to the free and orderly enjoyment of the streets of the city in the pursuit of their lawful affairs. The streets are primarily highways, a means of getting about from place to place, and not places to hold meetings. A street meeting, therefore, is in the nature of a concession, and is permitted only when it does not seriously interfere with the primary use of the street as a highway. It may lawfully be terminated if it reasonably interferes with traffic or tends to create public disorder.

What tends to the incitement of public disorder of course depends a great deal on the character of the community; on its customs, institutions, form of government, and the training and education of the masses of the people. In this country, the people will good naturediy put up with the public expression of sentiments of almost any kind. It comes down to this, that it is really not so much a question of what is said as a question of the effect of what is said, which determines the propriety of a street meeting. Such a meeting ought always to be terminated if public disorder cannot otherwise be prevented. The right to speak on the streets is abused if persisted in at the cost of public peace and good order.

It may be argued that this view makes it possible for a rough crowd to break up any street meeting. So it does, if the police in the faithful discharge of their duties are unable to curb the crowd. Since speaking itself, although it may be the proximate cause, is not, when permitted, in itself a breach of the peace, the police are bound in the first instance to prevent disorder by arresting the direct disturbers of the peace in the crowd. But if these means fail, since they are bound to maintain peace and good order in any event, they are justified in terminating a meeting at which little or nothing may have been said which ought to have created disorder, thus requiring those desiring to exercise their right of free speech to do so at another place or time.

The Pillars of Fire frankly proclaim a mission which we know, and they know, is calculated to cause disturbances. Members of the sect have told me that it is their belief that the Roman Catholic church as an institution is insincere, fraudulent and immoral; and that they are called by God to attack it publicly. They have told me that they are not only willing, but eager, to die in the cause; and that perhaps the best way for the people of this country to be brought to their senses with respect to the menace of Romanism would be for the members of their sect to attack it with sufficient violence to incite their enemies to strike them down to their death on the streets of our city.

Now the Constitution protects the free exercise of religious belief. But liberty of conscience cannot be construed to justify acts inconsistent with the peace and safety of the community. While the religion of no sect or organization, Catholic, Protestant or otherwise, is above proper criticism, nevertheless, when one sect violently assails another whose exercise of religious profession is equally safeguarded by the organic law, and does this upon crowded streets, it is clear that free speech is not the only right involved. Citizens of one religious class have a right to use the public thoroughfares without having their religious beliefs assailed in offensive language by citizens of another persuasion.

Political freedom is as much protected by the Constitution as religious freedom or free speech; yet political street meetings are held subject to the paramount considerations of traffic and public order, and their speakers conform to that degree of restraint which recognizes the rights of others.

The Pillars of Fire may have a right to attack Catholics and other denominations, as well as churches and ministers of the gospel generally, if they wish, and as in fact they have already done in our city, but they have no right to do this promiscuously on our narrow and crowded streets. The Constitution gives them no right whatever to hold meetings either on Front street or Park avenue. Let them either give expression to their sentiments in books and newspapers, which people will not read unless they wish; or else let them hire a hall where nobody needs go unless he wants to listen. If such meetings which nobody needs attend are attended and disturbed by their enemies, they have a right to call upon the police for protection; and they will receive protection to the limit of our resources.

I may say that I have offered to issue permits to them to speak at other places in the city, such as the park opposite the High School, where people will not be obliged either to listen or abandon the regular thoroughfares. But they say the people will not come to them, so they must go to the people; that the scripture commands them to go out into the highways and hedges. It might be noted that this particular scriptural injunction which they cite as authority was one enjoining persons to go out and induce people to come in to an indoor meeting. At any rate, I have decided that Front street on Saturday night is not in the scriptural class; or if it is, that the prevention of bloodshed, of which we have advance notice, must take precedence over the highway license claimed by the people in question.

There has been no discrimination against this sect, which has been treated with more consideration than any other organization which has ever made use of our streets for public meetings. They twice refused last summer at my request to cease holding meetings for a short period while I investigated a disturbance occurring at one of them. It has been necessary to detail an unusual number of officers to prevent possible trouble, and I have been present myself at practically all of their meetings for the same purpose. On several occasions they openly defied the police when directed to move, from a corner where on account of the traffic it was unwise to permit any street meeting to be held, to other locations in the near neighborhood. They proclaimed that they would take orders only from their own leaders. They have been arrested, tried and found guilty of violating the city ordinances. The city authorities have exercised great patience with them. I do not question in any way their sincerity. But it is evident that they place their teachings above the law of the land, liberal and just as that is to them. It would be as unwise to give them unrestricted street privileges as it would be to grant pistol permits to children.

It does not seem to me to be so much a question of freedom as one of balance, of trustworthiness, of responsibility. Freedom of speech does not mean the right to say anything you choose, anywhere you wish, regardless of consequences; and the Pillars of Fire who claim such a right will not be permitted to exercise it in defiance of the properly constituted authorities and of the peace and good order of the community. As I am unable to obtain satisfactory assurance from them that they will conform to the reasonable requirements of law I have, pursuant to the authority vested in me by the ordinance approved October 4, 1915, unanimously adopted by the Common Council at my request, refused permission to hold any meetings on the streets or public places of the city. I have done this not in denial of the right of free speech, but because of its abuse. I assume full responsibility for my action, but, as stated at the outset, I request your approval or other expression of opinion with respect to my statement of the principles involved as herein set forth.

LEIGHTON CALKINS

BOY SCOUTS RAISE FLAG OVER NEW HOME

Three Hundred People Attend Ceremonies at Plainfield Camp.

With an impressive flag raising, the Boy Scout Camp of the Plainfield division was thrown open to public inspection yesterday afternoon when about 300 visited the new building erected through the generosity of Plainfield and Fanwood people.

Additional contributions were received from Joseph C. Allen, $5; Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Lewis, $10; and A. C. Estes, $10. The American flag, which was presented to the scouts by Leggren & Greene, was furled while the Troop flag of Troop 14 and the championship pennant won by Troop 5, with an American flag loaned by Councilman Edward Harding, surmounting it were made ready. At a call on the bugle by Eagle Scout Thomas P. Fitch the scouts gathered around the flag pole and the new flag was hoisted to the top of the pole by First Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., and the other flags hauled to the top of the staff by Scoutmaster Cedric Ostrom.

It was announced that on Hallowe'en, which will be observed this year on Monday night, Nov. 1, all the boy scout in the city will be present at the Scout camp en masque, and, by the light of the hearth fire, will have an old fashioned "Spirits Party" with the bewildering "Ik-Mik-Diks" as special guests of honor.

It was announced that a meeting of the boys of Warren chapel would be held at that church this evening to form the first boy scout troop in North Plainfield.

Contributions of a gallon of red paint, a quart of gray floor paint, brushes, a rug, some fire place fixtures, some curtains for the windows and an oil lamp are still needed to furnish the camp.

REVIVAL SERVICES BROUGHT TO A CLOSE

"Al" Saunders Concludes His Three Weeks' Work at Temple Baptist Church.

"Al" Saunders, the evangelist, closed his work last night at Temple Baptist church, where he has been assisting the pastor, Rev. E. C. Conover, in a two weeks' campaign. Beginning with the morning prayer service and continuing through the day every meeting was one of interest. In the Bible school more than 80 per cent. of the enrollment was present. The evangelist brought to the minds of the boys and girls the need of having clean lives, then showed that the enthroning of Christ was the only way for the making of such a life. A full house greeted him at the preaching service. Here he spoke mainly to the Christians, pleading for fuller consecration and greater service.

At night a crowd that completely filled the edifice heard him tell the story of his life. For more than an hour he held the audience interested, at times convulsing them with laughter, then moving them to tears, concluding with an appeal to which several responded.

The work of the evangelist during his stay here has been very satisfactory. He has stirred the hearts of his hearers and left a splendid spiritual atmosphere. He goes back to his home in Scranton, but only for a short time, as he is in constant demand, already having engagements until next spring.

SUFFRAGISTS HOLD ROUSING MEETING

Miss Lou Rogers, Cartoonist, Presents Convincing Arguments at Gathering.

A crowd that filled Columbus Hall to overflowing attended the final rally and mass meeting of local suffrage workers Saturday evening. It was estimated that there were five hundred people present and not all of them were female enthusiasts. There were more than two hundred in the house who will be able to cast a vote in the election of tomorrow.

Dr. W. L. Saunders and Miss Lou Rogers were the speakers, and both were received with such frequent applause as to prove that the audience was in entire sympathy with their utterances. Miss Rogers, who is a cartoonist, doing work for Puck, Judge and other periodicals, proved an entertainer of rare ability. Her suffrage arguments were logical and vivid, and were strengthened by her crayon drawings made as she talked.

Mayor Calkins and George Hughes, city editor of the New York Globe, also made short talks, in which they told briefly their reasons for advocating the cause of woman suffrage.

Among those who sat on the platform during the meeting were Mrs. E. F. Feickert, Mrs. Alan Cowperthwait, Mrs. Isaac Schwed, Mrs. Stephen Haff, Dr. Clara Krans, Mrs. C. L. Riley, Mrs. Paul Burns, Councilman Thomas F. Hylan, A. R. Pankhurst, Jr., James J. McCann, Rev. Edward S. Ralston, Rev. Mr. Gillespie and E. V. Cox.

Dr. Saunders told of his trip to western States a few weeks ago when he visited all of those where women have the right to vote, and found that they were a great influence for good. He said that women voted in the west against graft, official viciousness and wickedness and for good government and that many of the progressive ideas that have come to the east lately from that territory were to be credited to women in politics. His interest in the cause of suffrage, he said, was an impartial one. He was not influenced by love of wife, because he is alone in the world, and he had investigated the effect of ballots cast by woman's hands with a mind open to both good and bad. He admitted that he had found one or two cases where women had erred in putting a man in office, but these were where they had been offered a choice between a bad politician and a good man without experience in public affairs, and they had voted for the good man, whose inexperience later proved disastrous.

Dr. Saunders told of the many States and countries that had tried woman suffrage and pointed out that it must be good that no serious harm has resulted from it, because it had never lost one inch of ground since it first came into civilization.

Miss Rogers brought her easel paper and crayon when she came onto the stage, and she mounted a high platform so that all might view her drawings.

Man was first pictured by her as a ballot trust, pig-fat and bestial, sitting on the helpless form of good government. She said that until the women were given their just privilege of sharing in the management of affairs that concerned every moment of their life, the government of this country would fall short of the boasted American liberty.

Woman is still forced to fight her way forward with a handicap, said Miss Rogers, and she illustrated this by drawing a picture of a woman in a baby walker. Man, she said, has outgrown this when he was twenty-one years of age, but he denied to women, thieves, and imbeciles the freedom that he enjoys.

Miss Rogers captivated her audience by her humor and apparent earnestness, and she won applause for all of her arguments for the cause through her original presentations.

Not everyone in the audience was in sympathy with woman suffrage. One or two antis came in to hear the thunder of the opposition, but most of them stood in the rear of the hall for a few moments and left when they saw the enthusiasm displayed by the crowd that occupied all available seats in the auditorium and filled the aisles and even stood in the hallway.

WILLIAM J. TOBIN DIES IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

William J. Tobin, of 524 West Sixth street, died yesterday morning in St. Rose's Hospital, New York city, following a long illness. Mr Tobin was well-known in this city, where he was a carpenter by trade.

He is survived by a son, Joseph Tobin, of this city, and four sisters and two brothers. The latter are: Miss Jennie Tobin, Miss Nora Tobin, of Plainfield; Mrs. Ellen Minchen, of Newark; Miss Mary Tobin, of Roselle, and Richard Tobin, of Orange, and George J. Tobin, of Plainfield. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning from the home of his sister, Miss Jennie Tobin, 524 West Sixth street, and later from St. Mary's church. Interment will take place in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Stella Force, of West Front street, who has been ill with appendicitis, is now able to be about the house.

HICKEY REPUDIATED BY N. J. SUFFRAGISTS

Statement That Organized Labor in Colorado is Against Suffrage Refuted.

Jersey City, Oct. 18. Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey State Association for Woman Suffrage, has received a whole sheaf of telegrams ridiculing a statement made public by the Anti-Suffragists quoting W. F. Hickey, a former Colorado labor leader. She says that judging from the tone of these telegrams, Hickey's views are not shared in the Colorado Federation of Labor. John McLennan, president of the Colorado Federation of Labor, emphatically repudiates the views of the man who once held the secretaryship of that organization. His telegram reads as follows:

"William T. Hickey expressed his own personal views and not that of the labor movement of Colorado when he states that woman suffrage is a failure in this State. Organized labor in this State is not opposed to woman suffrage. I strongly favor woman suffrage and believe it to be one of the fundamental principles of true democracy, and entitled to the support of all who are interested in liberty and progress."

John R. Lawson, International Representative for the Western Federation of Miners, also telegraphed: "When William T. Hickey states that suffrage in Colorado was a failure, he was not authorized to speak for me, the State Federation, nor the miners' organization. The eight-hour law could not have been defeated by 'factional fights' of women in this State for there were but two women in the Legislature when the law failed of passage. Equal suffrage has always had my hearty endorsement and I intend to remain steadfastly in the ranks of its advocates. I look upon it as one of the means of solving many of the trying political, social, industrial and economic problems confronting the American people today."

Joe D. Cannon, organizer of the Western Federation of Miners, says: "The antis lie when they speak of William T. Hickey as the secretary-treasurer of the Colorado Federation of Labor. He is not. He held that position for several years, and has used it to strengthen his affiliations with the rottenest olitical machine from which Colorado has ever suffered. Hickey had no support from the women of Colorado. He never deserved any.

DR. HERRING URGES "VOTES FOR WOMEN"

Pastor of First Presbyterian Church Tells Why He is in Favor of Suffrage.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, at the morning service yesterday preached a sermon on "Woman Suffrage" in which he strongly advocated "votes for women." In part he said:

"In Colonial days New Jersey granted suffrage to women on the same terms as to men. They had this right when the Federal Constitution was adopted, and therefore were among those referred to in the preamble, 'We the people of the United States.'

"In the Declaration of Independence we read 'all governments among men derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.'

"No group of men has the right to govern another group of men without its consent unless the group so governed, because of some infirmity is unable to comprehend the standards of organized society.

"Why not apply this also to women? Shall we continue to class them with children, aliens, criminals and imbceiles in refusing them this right? They are compelled to share the burdens of government in other ways, why not a voice in the government?

"It has been said that women suffrage will increase the ignorant vote. A sufficient answer to this statement is the fact that on the whole women are better educated than men. The great majority of the graduates of our high schools are girls. The following estimate is illuminating:

"There may be 50,000 illiterate women voters added to the 50,000 illiterate men who are already entrusted with the right of suffrage. If there are 700,000 literate women added they will certainly greatly overbalance both the illiterate votes of the 50,000 men as well as the 50,000 women.

"Another argument against women suffrage is that it will add to the criminal vote. Are not women more moral than men? Who are prominent in attendance upon the churches, women or men? Who on Saturday nights and at other times line up against the saloon counter, women or men?

"The reports from the New Jersey State Prison for 1914 show that that there were imprisoned 35 women and 1377 men. The same ratio prevails for the preceeding years.

A Lady Said to Us the Other Day

"I came all the way from Bound Brook just to get some of your ribbons. Your styles and assortments are splendid, and I can get suited better at your store than in New York or Newark, and I find your prices most reasonable."

That's most people's experience—have you found it so?

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS TO HOLD BIG RALLY

Lantern Slides and Speeches Will Feature Gathering at Park and North Aves.

The vigorous campaign which has been waged by the local anti-suffragists will culminate tonight in a big street rally at the corner of North and Park avenues. In addition to lantern slides being displayed on a curtain swung in front of the Frost building, speeches will be delivered by a number of Plainfield men who do not believe in giving the ballot to women. Among those who have already announced that they will gladly address the gathering are former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who has the reputation of being able to tell more good reasons in ten minutes why equal suffrage is not desirable than any other man in the city can in twice that time; former Judge William A. Coddington, admittedly as well posted on the subject as any barrister in the State; Howard Lapsley and a number of others equally as prominent. The speaking will begin at 7 o'clock and will continue through the evening until possibly eleven. Music will be provided by a band.

Former Judge William A. Coddington stated this morning that he would consider it a pleasure to speak to the people from the anti viewpoint, at the same time partially expressing his reasons for opposing woman suffrage:

"My principal reason for being an anti," said the genial judge, "is the fact that I do not believe in cheapening womanhood by projecting our wives, sisters and daughters into politics. With me that comes first, but afterard I could cipher a score or more of absolute objections to the enfranchisement of women, any one of which to me is reason enough for my voting 'no' at the polls tomorrow."

CHARLES TAYLOR, THE BOY EVANGELIST, AT Y. M. C. A.

A large congregation of men gathered yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. rooms to hear Charles Taylor, the "Boy Evangelist," who was introduced by his father, who told how he began preaching the gospel at such an early age.

The young speaker took for his text, "I Am Not Ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for It is a Power for Good Unto Salvation to Everyone Who Believes." He said that Christianity was not, as often supposed, a social reform movement, although it is true that social reform always follows acceptance of the gospel.

A worker whose salary you will voluntarily raise in a short time!

"Getting along" with half-competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

The quest for the Competent Worker is important enough to justify a real campaign of classified advertising in the Plainfield Daily Press—although it does not often require a very long campaign.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Why should not women vote? They are human. Has one human being, just because of the accident of birth, a better right than another? It seems to us unthinkable that the right of suffrage can in any fair or just way be based upon sex. Why not on the color of a man's hair or a deformity of his body? The question is squarely before the men of New Jersey. What are you going to do tomorrow? Suppose the question was reversed, and the woman now had the ballot and the issue next Tuesday was whether they should let you vote; what would you want them to do?

The way to look at the question is not, why should a woman vote? but rather ask yourself why should she not vote? What better right have you to vote than she? Is she not as honest and honorable as you? Is she not as well educated? Are not her impulses as good as yours? Has she not an equal right with you to the protection of the laws? Should she not have an equal voice with you in making them? If not, why not? Do you doubt that she will strive harder to get good men in the office than you do?

The moral force of the quiet, conscientious vote of the women of the State will work for righteousness in public affairs. Will she vote for a bad man just because he happens to be on a party ticket? We do not think so? If there is one force needed above another in the political and public life of today it is that of independence. The boss cannot control her—in fact, he cannot get a line on the home vote of the women if they are given the ballot. Is not the reason that all the leading political bosses of the State are against giving her the vote, because they know they cannot rely on her following a leadership that her integrity does not approve. She is a natural foe of vice and crime and corruption. Everybody knows that.

The Constitution of the United States makes all persons citizens. Is not a woman a person? In a Republican form of government like ours, universal suffrage is the keystone. And if suffrage is based upon one being a human being, of a certain age, and a certain residence in one place, how can it be said that a woman, with the same qualifications as a man, should not have the same right as he to vote. She cannot help being a woman. She can inherit property. She must pay taxes on her property. She can engage in business. She can travel anywhere. She can support the church, the hospital, the orphan asylum and all charities. She can give money to build or endow a Y. W. C. A. or a Y. M. C. A. Is there anything she cannot do in economic or governmental affairs, except vote? Why, pray, withhold from her the vote? She has just as much right to the ballot to protect herself and her property as a man. It is absolutely unjust to deny her the vote.

A sense of propriety and of even-handed justice demands of man that he give her equal right at the ballot box with him. Let New Jersey be the first State in the East to grant her this long, unjustly-withheld, right of suffrage and participation in government. It is bound to come. Why not now? She is ready for it. It will benefit the State. Vote Yes tomorrow. You will be a better and a prouder man if you do.

Harry S. Sanderson's retirement from the management of the local Proctor theatre removes from local business activities a man who has had the respect and love of every person who has ever come in contact with him. He was ever jealous of the reputation of his house, and never did a performer succeed in getting a suggestive or vulgar act or statement over the footlights more than once, when Mr. Sanderson was there. In view of the present tendency in many theatres to encourage "off color" acts and indecency, it was a pleasure to hear his outspoken criticism of others in his line of business who permitted it. That the much needed rest which he will take will result in a full restoration of his health is the earnest wish of his hundreds of friends, both in and out of the profession which he has done much to elevate.

The many friends of Ralph L. Morrow, for ten years editor of the Daily Press, will be interest to know that last week he assumed the editorship and management of the Greenwich, Connecticut, Press, a lively weekly, with which he has been identified for about a year. The paper has been brought from a secondary position to one of leadership in the town, and is being backed by some of the wealthy residents whose sole aim is to give Greenwich a weekly newspaper in keeping with the splendid community in which it is published. They have selected Mr. Morrow for the work, and there are few better newspaper men, who could be chosen for the work.

A Plainfield anti-suffragist takes exception to the publication last Friday night in the Daily Press of a cartoon, in which four characters representing vice, graft, corruption and ring rule, are represented as being opposed to the women of New Jersey having a vote. Does anyone dispute that such is the case? It is true that there are a large number of sincere men and women in the State who are also opposed to it, but that does not prove that most of the vicious element is not also doing everything they can to defeat votes for women.

A communication signed "Observer" has been received at the Daily Press office. If the writer will make himself known, so that his name can be placed at the end, we will gladly publish it.

There's more than one newspaper editor who will breathe a sigh of relief when he has completed his days work tomorrow. This suffrage business is beginning to get on the nerves.

MISS WARFEL, FAMOUS HARPIST, WILL APPEAR

Owing to the fact that Clarence Bird, the pianist, who was to appear here on November 1 at the concert to be given at the Plainfield Theatre by the Plainfield Musical Club, was unable to secure passage from Italy on any ship that would reach here before October 31, his place on the program will be taken by Miss Mary Warfel, a young American harpist. She is considered one of the three best harpists in the country.

The appearance of Miss Warfel will give the audience an interesting number in which Mme. Rappold will be accompanied by harp and 'cello in a charming ensemble piece. This will probably be Gounod's "Ave Maria," one of the most popular and pleasing numbers among music lovers.

The sale of tickets for subscribers will open at the Plainfield Theatre on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

A Pup

Head cocked wisely to one side;
Nervous-lipped and steady-eyed,
Crowded belly, busy tail,
Stumbly feet and midnight wail,
Useless teeth that chew and chew
Anything you find—that's you!

Some day you will be a dog
And your padded feet will jog
Silently adown life's ways,
Thinking of your puppy days;
Telling other pups less wise
All the worn-out has-been lies
Common to each big grown-up—
That's what YOU'll be, little pup!

Autumn

Autumn is the time of the year that we now have.

Therefore it is unpleasant to many people.

Its good points will not be distinctly visible till next Spring.

Human beings wear their far-away specs when they hunt things to be glad of.

They see them when it's too late to get the full benefit of them.

Some people call Autumn Fall.

That is in recognition of the habits of the leaves of deciduous trees at that time of year.

Trees know when Fall is. They keep their calendar on the loose-leaf system.

When the leaves loosen, winter is coming.

Seeing the approach of cold weather, they kick the covers off and invite the borean zephyrs to zeph their darnedest.

Autumn is the time for burying cabbage in the garden.

Cabbage is better in the winter if it is not embalmed before burial.

Autumn is also the time when the frost is on the punk.

O very well!

Much-Stolen Stuff

Among the stolenest verses we know are the lines of Eddie Guest's, of the Detroit Free Press (which somebody once wrongfully called the D. F Press) entitled, "He Did It." The lines begin, "Somebody said it couldn't be done." At last that chief thief of the universe—London Tit-Bits—has credit for it.

Sad Prospects

"It's mighty discouraging," sighed Mother Flea, wiping a tear from her eye.

"What is?" asked her husband, anxiously.

"To see our children, young as they are, always full of hops."

"Well," said the old man flea, scornfully, "didn't we intend them to go to the dogs?"

The State Of Marryland

The extra "r" in the heading was intended, gentle reader, and was put there after we had found that anybody going to that state can get a marriage license without difficulty, and that the license fee is only a dollar.

Health Talks

When The Children Should Be Abed

THE curfew hour for babes in arms should be five o'clock P.M. Any parent caught abroad with a baby after five o'clock ought to be haled into court to show cause. Take a passing glance at the white, pinched, tired little face of the baby attending the movies at 9 P.M. for example. There is a case of a neurotic or a moron in the making.

Up to the age of four years, six o'clock whistle should find the little tots in their nighties saying their prayers at mother's knee. The sun doesn't like to go down and leave them still up.

Seven o'clock is sandman's time from five years to seven. And no trifling obstacle should be placed in the sandman's path by foolish parents or relations-in-law. The worst possible treatment for a young child's impressionable nervous system is after-supper performances or showing off before visitors. Bad, bold, self-conscious, vain little vixens are created in just that way. Hysteria is a disease which by psychoanalysis may be traced to subconscious impressions made upon the mind in early childhood. There is nothing so good for a child's mental and physical well-being as simplicity. Except, perhaps, for a brief few moments on the stage, how deplorable is the precocious youngster among normal children.

From seven to twelve years of age the child should say good night and creep up to bed without bothering mamma or papa or nurse, by nine at the latest.

From one week to twenty years, the child should go to sleep without any monkey business or rocking or coaxing or nursing or slumber songs. All of these old-fashioned performances predispose to insomnia and nervousness in later life. The normal child requires no helps of the kind, any more than the young animals do.

If we had our obstinate way it would be illegal for any child under eighteen to study after school hours. We know that good teaching and normal mental culture make night study unnecessary for common and high school students. If the young people wish to read, play games, have music or visitors in the evening, well and good; but the place for their school-books, in our experience, is in school. It is a sorry thing to send a healthy child off to bed with a head full of long division, rex-regis-regem or the square of the hypotenuse. You couldn't blame such a child for being peevish next day.

Early to bed and—well, we'll take up the rising question another time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Elastic Or Non-Elastic?

Is a silk elastic stocking or a non-elastic, fitted, laced stocking preferable for one with varicose or swollen veins?

Answer—A well-fitted, non-elastic laced stocking, or rather a pair for each leg, we think better.

Belt For Whooping-Cough

Please tell me whether a belt worn about the abdomen is helpful for a child with whooping-cough. How should it be made?

Answer—Yes. Make it of linen, five inches wide and two or three inches short of reaching around the abdomen at navel; eyelets and lace behind, over the undershirt; on each side a two-inch wide elastic insertion.

Vest Pocket Essays

BY GEORGE FITCH

POLITICS

THE world has long been in doubt, but there should be no question, as to whether politics is or are singular. Every one will admit that politics is singular—extremely so.

Politics is the art of carrying a large number of votes in the vest pocket and of straddling fences, hunting holes, turning back somersaults and jumping onto band-wagons without spilling any of them. There are politicians so expert that they can be caught robbing hen roosts and can be elected states attorney on the strength of it; there are men who are such poor politicians that they would be defeated for dog catcher for rescuing a young lady from a burning house without the formality of an introduction.

Politicians are born, not made. If politicians were made, the act would have become a penitentiary offense long ago. The politician believes that the people should rule, but that it is a shame to pester them with the job. He believes that the office should seek the men, and he lies down in front of it and trips it up so as to make its job easier. He believes that the majority is supreme and he has 189 formulas for making majorities that are just as good as the kind you get in the ballot box.

The world had politicians long before it had chicken pox, influenza, grass-hoppers, poets, trusts, book agents, wars, legislatures or other afflictions. Noah was the first great politician. He got all his family in out of the rain. Joseph worked the stock scare on the Egyptians. Samson slew ten thousand Philistines with the jawbone of an ass, while the best that can be done with it to-day is tie up a legislature at the last minute with a nine-hour speech.

There are all kinds of politicians. Some are so honest that their right hands would be shocked to death if they knew what their left hands were doing. Others are so crooked that they could wear a brass horn for a vest. Statesmen are politicians who love their country in words of six syllables. Grafters are politicians with steely fingers. Reformers are people who would like to play politics without catching it.

When a bad politician dies St. Peter puts Plaster of Paris in the keyhole

"The people" are to a politician what circulation is to an editor. He has to have them or go out of business. A political party is a politician's union. Party issues are the patent medicines of politics. They will cure anything. A campaign is something that the politician gives to the voter to keep him busy and happy until election. An election is a frightful display of corruption and unscrupulocity by the other side.

Politicians work twenty-five hours a day and live on hope, campaign cigars and party fervor. When a good politician dies he gets a libelous statute in Washington. When a bad one dies, St. Peter locks his gates and puts Plaster of Paris in the keyhole.

Views Of The Press

The High Cost Of Living

PEOPLE who complain of the high cost of living in this land where they get in return living that's worth something should remember that high cost is not incident to the United States alone. Suppose they lived in the city of Buenos Aires, the great city of South America, where it costs from $6.60 to $17.60 a day for each person at good hotels and from $40 to $110 a month in moderate boarding-houses. A house costs $150 a month and an apartment from $100 to $300. Gas is $2 a thousand. The cook costs $40 a month. Sugar is 12 cents a pound, eggs 53 cents a dozen, butter 62 cents a pound, coal 16 cents for ten pounds, shoes $8 a pair, silk socks $2.50 a pair, collars 35 cents each. The money standard in Argentina is the gold standard and the pesos is worth nearly as much as our American dollar, though the currency is at a discount of something over forty per cent. At that, the prices in the great South American republic are considerably higher than here. Then there are the prices which have gone soaring in the war-torn countries of Europe which ought to be kept in mind.

We sometimes think here in this land of plenty where we haven't yet missed observing a Thanksgiving day, that we are burdened beyond reason, that things cost too much, but we should remember that here there are blessings enjoyed by the people of no other land. It's characteristic of the American people to complain and kick—things are too high or they don't bring enough to pay for producing them, the weather is too hot, or too dry, or too cold, and when the seasons roll around, things come out all right. There is generally a plenty to go around and comparatively few go cold or hungry to bed, and it's the fault of ourselves they do and not of the productive earth. If things aren't just right, aren't just what we think they should be, there is a reason for it all and the correction may be applied if we but get to the bottom and learn the facts. One thing is sure beyond dispute—it's worth more to live in the United States to-day than in any other time or in any other land.—Youngstown Daily Vindicator.

People's Legal Friend

BY E. R. BRANSON

Hard Driving

Q. Where one is driving rapidly on a public street or road, isn't this considered, in law, negligence?

A. It may or may not be negligence. It is not necessarily so. The rate of speed, however, is to be taken into consideration in determining whether there was negligence as a matter of fact.

Which Will He Choose!

Q. If a boy is under age, can he be sued for breach of promise?

A. His contract is one which the law regards as voidable—that is, he may be bound by it or not, as he may elect.

Question Of Legal Residence

Q. If an invalid resides temporarily at a certain place, having gone there for the benefit of his health, is this to be considered his legal residence?

A. Not necessarily. It is a question of intention.

Carte Blanche

Q. A corporation has a printed seal upon blank forms of contracts. These blank forms are filled in, as occasion demands, and used whenever the corporation makes contracts. Is this a legal way of doing?

A. There has been some difference of opinion on this subject by the courts. It is usually held, however, that, unless the corporation is expressly forbidden to do this, it may make use of such printed seals and adopt them.

County Boundaries

Q. By what authority are the boundaries of counties established?

A. By the legislature.

The Name On A Contract

Q. May one sign a contract with his Christian name, or with his initials, so that it will be of legal effect?

A. Yes. This is merely a matter of identification.

Corporation—Shares And Capital

Q. In organizing a corporation, is it necessary for the articles of incorporation to show the amount of the capital stock and the number of shares into which it is divided?

A. In some states this is required.

I Am 20 Years And 7 Minutes Old

Q. Does the law take account of parts or fractions of a day in ascertaining a person's age? A. No.

How

How—to Smile; How—to be Serious; How—to be Content and Even-Souled though having little; How—to be Big and Generous with an abundance; How—to face trial times with fortitude and calmness; How—to taste defeat; and How—to drink from the cup of Victory without singeing your fine spirit. Happiness and one of the greatest secret sources of Character Strength lie in your ability to interpret, to live, to understand—just How.

If you do not know How, learn How.

Back of much failure is the ignorance of How. There is a world of value in knowing How to convert set-backs and repeated failures into big successes later on. For there is a constantly-increasing power back of it that is sure to be yours if you start out by knowing How. You will then enter your work with daring and confidence, feeling full well that what results is sure to be something worth while.

If you don't know How, learn How.

How many a man on looking over a piece of work explains that he doesn't know How to go about it, and How to carry it through. But there is always someone somewhere who DOES know How. And to him who does know How and proves it, multitudes remain ever ready to cheer him on and up.

If you do not know How, learn How.

Always Waking Up

ALWAYS WAKING UP

[This was written by a farmer, a man without literary training, who has spent his life on a hill in West Brattleboro, Vermont.]

One time I was a millionaire,
My "dust" was mountain high,
I spread myself and made a splurge,
Resolved to do or die;
All things were mine which fortune pours
From out her golden cup,
Ah, I had nothing left to lack—
When—something woke me up!

One time I was a Senator
And in the senate halls,
My fervid oratory shook
The plaster from the walls;
The masses all declared me "white,"
Success was mine to sup;
The Presidency loomed in sight—
When—something woke me up!

One time I was a gilded bard,
And every word of mine
Was valued equally with gold
And twenty carats fine;
In Hardy's house—by Kipling's side—
I sat me down to sup;
The bubble water sparkled free—
When—something woke me up.

One time I loved a lovely girl,
And while my bosom burned
With fervid passion, long and late,
I found my love returned.
Her eyes were windows lit by dawn,
Her mouth a coral cup
Was tilted high for me to kiss—
When—something woke me up!

His Chief Teacher Was a Wise Centaur.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How Baby Achilles Was Dipped In The River Styx.

"WHO remembers the Trojan horse?" asked daddy when the children begged for a story.

"I!" "I!" cried Jack and Evelyn.

"This is the story of one of the Greeks who helped to drive the Trojans inside their city and keep them there for ten years. His name was Achilles, and he was the son of a king and a sea goddess. He was a very brave youth, so brave that he preferred to die an early death with fame than to live to be old without glory.

"Achilles was a very beautiful baby. His sea goddess mother, Thetis, knowing that Greece was nearly always at war with some other nation, and loving her son very much, used to pray to the Greek gods that her son might be spared. So the gods advised her, and this is what she did: She took her beautiful baby to the river Styx, which is one of the oldest and most interesting of all rivers"—

"More intgresting that Bibbley Wah's brook?" asked Evelyn.

—"and, holding him tight by one tiny heel, dipped him in the water, all over—eyes, head and body. This water was sacred to the Greeks, and the good dip the royal baby got was supposed to make him safe from arrows and slings in any battle he might ever be in all the rest of his life."

"Like a fairy's charm?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes; that's the idea," daddy explained.

"Achilles grew up to be a brave, fine young man and, as I have told you, fought for his beloved Greece before the walls of Troy. His chief teacher had been an old wise centaur, a strange ancient being by the name of Chiron, who was half horse and half man. I will show you a picture of a centaur, and then you will understand what good training Achilles had to be both a good horseman and a good soldier. After many years of his successful fighting two Trojans learned the secret of Achilles' dip in the river Styx. They were shrewd enough to know that the only place he could be wounded was in his heel, the very place his mother had held him when she dipped him in the Styx. She had forgotten to take him by the other foot and dip him twice, you see.

"These two Trojans stole up behind Achilles and sent an arrow flying right into his heel, so that he died of the wound. The loyal Greeks made a national festival of his funeral and even to this day think him one of their greatest heroes."

"That was a nice story, daddy, thank you!" cried the kiddies, skipping off to bed.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Molly Confesses Her Troubles to Olive, Who Endeavors to Set Her Right.

"Oh, my dear Mrs. Ellson," cried Molly Sutner, "it's absolutely a hopeless case. I tried so hard yesterday; prepared my meals with the greatest care, had the house in perfect order, wore a clean dress; everything was going well and I toppled the whole thing over by making a scene over a handkerchief I found on the floor."

"A handkerchief? I don't understand," said Olive.

"John had a set of books to straighten. You know I told you he often earned extra money by doing outside work like that. Well, he was working away so hard and I came into the room and saw a dainty handkerchief on the floor by his chair. I picked it up and in the corner found a faint 'Julia.' A jealous rage seized me. I interrupted John's work to inquire about it. That made him angry, of course, and he was very short in his answers and said I was a 'dog in the manger.'

"Why should a handkerchief make you feel that way?" asked her friend.

"Oh, don't you see? I know he does not love me any more and there is nothing more natural than for him to find some one else whom he will love. You see, he is thrown with the stenographer all day. I know how it was; what fun we used to have in the office before I was married."

"Well, aren't you glad he can have a little innocent fun mixed in with his day's work?" Her friend smiled.

"If he loved me, and we could talk everything over it would be different, but he never talks to me, and the thought of the good times they have in the office is a great fiery pain. It shows me how utterly out of his life I am."

"My dear girl, jealousy, scenes, hateful remarks—these things are the wall you are building up between yourself and your husband, and the higher you build it the longer will be the rough road back to peace. Men hate scenes, and till you can learn self-control, till you can keep your spiteful thoughts to yourself, you can never hope to regain your husband's love."

"He said scenes were a poor thing to use to kindle love," wailed Molly.

"Love is a tender, delicate plant; it must be protected from rough storms if it is to thrive," continued Olive.

"Oh, I might as well give up; it is a hopeless case." Molly leaned her head on her hands and gazed despairingly out of the window.

"Nothing is hopeless so long as one is teachable. I might sympathize with you, and tell you your husband was treating you cruelly, and make you feel abused. I might say many things that are true enough, but they would get you nowhere. I want to help you, dear, by showing you how you can help yourself. Wouldn't you rather I did that, even if it does hurt?" Olive caressed her hand.

"Oh, yes, help me! I need to be hurt."

"You have been blundering along in the dark, and you have had many falls, but if you get up every time you fall, sometime you will remain standing. You will make many mistakes, will forget many times, but you must get up and go on. Every time you hold your tongue when you feel tempted to say a hateful thing you make the next victory easier. As you gradually gain control, gain poise, your atmosphere will change. Your husband will feel the difference. If I could only make you see that it is your own inner attitude that affects conditions around you," said Olive.

"You mean if I had been what I ought to have been, things would never have reached this pass. I know that, of course, but the conditions are here. I can't change them now. I——"

"Your mistakes have created these conditions; when you have learned your lesson, conditions will change. I feel sure of it. Set yourself courageously to learn your lesson of self-control and everything will work out all right."

"Thank you, dear friend. If I could be near you all the time I could be strong, but my strength oozes out of my fingertips when alone." Molly rose and kissed her friend.

"Get up every time you fall; sometime you will remain standing," was the parting word as she went down the walk.

THREE - QUARTER FLARING COATS WILL BE SMART THIS WINTER.

No. 8783.

A glance in the shop windows in the big fashion centers reveals shaped three-quarter coats, with a decided flare to the lower half. Every indication points to their being popular and smart for winter wear. In fact, a few sharp days have already brought scores of these coats on the street. To say that they are attractive is to express one's self modestly. The above illustration, Ladies' Home Journal Pattern, No. 8783, makes up charmingly in dark fur-trimmed materials, and goes well with skirt No. 9063. The coat cuts in sizes 32 to 44 bust measure, size 36 requiring 3⅞ yards of 36-inch material.

Patterns can be purchased at the store of A. E. Force & Co.

THE TABLE

Baked Pumpkin—Wash pumpkin, cut in half, take out seeds and invert each half over a pie tin with a little water in it. Place in oven and bake slowly until skin is brown. When taken from oven the skin will be loose like that of a baked apple and will lift off in one piece. Mash pumpkin or put through colander.

Baked Carrots—Clean and trim small, even-sized carrots, without scraping very much. Place whole in baking pan in which has been melted one-half tablespoon butter or other fat, and a little hot water. Season with salt and about one-half teaspoon onion salt or one teaspoon onion extract. Bake until tender, basting frequently. When done, place in salad bowl and cover with gravy made by adding to the liquor one-half teaspoon each of cornstarch and flour with a cup of milk. If you have not time to bake in the oven, boil carrots whole and make the gravy in the water. Either way will utilize the rich water in which they are cooked and that is the secret of the delicious dish.

Luncheon Dish—Make plain buttered toast for as many plates as to be served. Drop medium-sized ripe tomatoes in boiling water and let cook fifteen or twenty minutes, according to size of tomatoes. When thoroughly cooked, peel, lay on toast, season with plenty of butter, pepper and salt.

Tomato Cocktail—Select small, smooth and very choice tomatoes. Peel and chill them. When about ready to serve cut them in quarters through the stems and blossom ends, then cut these quarters in halves or thirds, to make pieces of a size suitable for eating. Dispose these on crisp lettuce hearts, set on a plate around a tall stemmed glass. Rub a bowl with a clove of garlic, add two tablespoons tomato catsup, one tablespoon mushroom catsup, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and two or three drops tabasco sauce or one-fourth teaspoonful paprika; mix and turn into a tall glass. The pieces of tomato and lettuce hearts are to be dipped into the sauce and eaten from an oyster fork.

Pumpkin Raisin Pie—One cup cooked pumpkin, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon ginger, two eggs, one cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth cup raisins, one pint milk. Mix well. Have pie tin lined with pastry, fill with pumpkin mixture and bake in moderate oven forty minutes.

Graham Pudding—One and one-half cups graham flour, one cup sweet milk, half cup molasses, one cup chopped raisins, four figs chopped fine, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda. Steam four hours in two-quarts pan and serve with a golden sauce.

Streckel Kuchen—To make kuchen, fix flour and yeast same as for bread, add one tablespoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons lard, three eggs. Set in warm place to raise. After a while knead well and set back again to raise. After sponge is high and light, put in greased pan to raise.

HOLY CROSS DEFEATS COLONIALS, 43 TO 0

Visitors Easy for Local Players in Saturday's Game.

The Colonial A. C's, of Brooklyn were easy for Holy Cross Saturday and the local players ran up a score of 43 to 0 in the one-sided game of football at Cricket Field. A touchdown was made in the first few minutes of play and they followed quick and fast through the entire four periods. At no time was the visitors' line strong enough to withstand the plunges of Holy Cross' backs, and forward passes were worked successfully almost at will.

The lineup:

Colonials.		Holy Cross.
Baylis	left tackle.	Smith
Herbert	left guard.	Fredericks
Birndt	centre.	Carty

B. Norman	right end.	Clark
Stroly (Capt.)	quarterback.	J. Ricketts
Singleton	right halfback.	J. Manning
Kamper	left halfback.	Barto, L. Manning
Stout	fullback.	Wilson (Capt.)

Touchdowns—Wilson, 2; T. Ricketts, 2; J. Ricketts, Barto, J. Manning.

Time of quarters—10 minutes.

Referee—Phillips. Umpire—Cass. Head Linesman—Wilson. Timer—Moran.

HOLY CROSS TO PLAY FICONES OF BROOKLYN

The next game of the Holy Cross football team will be played at Cricket Field here Saturday with the Ficones, of Brooklyn. The opposing team is one of the best that will be seen here this season. It will remain over Saturday night and play at Arlington Sunday. The Midwaut A. C.'s are to be played later in the season, also the Colonial A. C., of Brooklyn.

NEW SCHOOL RECORD.

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—Frank Sloman, a San Francisco high school boy, broke the world's interscholastic 440-yard record in a sanctioned meet here Saturday on the Panama-Pacific Exposition dirt track. His time was 48 1-5 seconds, three-fifths of a second faster than the record held by Ted Meredith.

BILLIARDISTS MATCHED.

ONCE CRICKETER, ALWAYS ONE

George Lyon of Toronto Plays Golf Same as He Did English Game.

George B. Lyon of Toronto plays golf like a cricketer, says an authority. He plays golf like a cricketer because he is one. Once a cricketer always a cricketer. Lyon, so many times champion of Canada that he has lost count, was the oldest man who qualified for the match play of the national amateur championship at the Detroit Country club. He learned golf after he was forty, and he has been playing a long time.

Before that he had played cricket and engaged in other sports with notable success. His cricket shows through his golf game in his long swing on the tee. He uses an extraordinarily long club, and his swing is wider and more flattened than that of most golfers—almost exactly like that used in cricket. It enables him to get unexpectedly good distance without the effort and expenditure of power most of the players use. There is no question but that the saving of effort helps him to remain fresh through some of the long, hard battles on the links.

Georgetown Has Freshman Back Field.

Defeat of Westfield High School Saturday Gives Locals First Leg.

ALPAUGH WINS GAME

Little Red and Blue Halfback Grabbed Forward Pass and Made the Only Touchdown Scored in the Game.

A well-directed but ill-fated forward pass, which, in fact almost resembled a misplaced lateral pass, perched Dame Victory on the Plainfield High School roost at Westfield Saturday, the home gridiron artists being forced to bow down before an eleventh hour 7 to 0 defeat. In fact all through the encounter the unusual size and destructive ability of the home team seemed to point to victory for the Westfield cohorts but the wonderfully aggressive spirit of the locals made victory for the home team an absolute impossibility.

The forward pass that lost the game came almost as a last resort on the part of the Martin contingent. Throughout the first half, Plainfield had been doing very little aggressive work. However, the beginning of the third quarter marked a reversal of form for both teams. Time and again the Red and Blue plungers had very successful outcomes and a series of these "line rippers" caused the Westfield captain to decide that a pass was in order. When the fated pass was shot, the locals were barely thirty yards from the Westfield goal post. Alpaugh was guarding Brower, to whom the pass was directed. For some reason or other the arm drive was not as perfectly delivered as was the intention and Alpaugh had little trouble gathering it in and considerably less trouble racing over the touchdown tape. Noonan kicked the goal.

During the second quarter P. H. S. got near enough to their opponents' goal to make a kick from placement possible. Noonan tried the kick and failed. The Westfield team is a very heavy outfit and has a line that is almost impregnable.

For the locals, Alpaugh was the man of the hour, although he did not play the first half. Apgar held down the left halfback position during the first period but seemed to lack his usual spirit.

The Westfield team will visit this city in a few weeks and the second tilt for the county honors will be staged. Westfield is about out of it now as it has succumbed to the ravages of both Rahway and the local warriors.

The lineups:

P. H. S.		W. H. S.
Fitch	left end.	Welch
Miller	left tackle.	K. Davies
Pennock (Capt.)	left guard.	Martin (Capt.)
Kline	centre.	R. Cairn
Davidson	right end.	McMillan
Somlock	right tackle.	Marenghi
Hooper	right guard.	Sortor
Peacock	quarterback.	Gilmartin
Daniels	right halfback.	Cooper
Noonan	fullback.	A. Cairns

P. H. S.	0	0	0	7—7

WELSH SHOULD MEET C. WHITE

Champion Ought to Give Chicago Boy Crack at Title.

WOULD BE GREAT BATTLE.

Providing, of Course, the Pair Were to Clash in Twenty Round Bout—White in Rare Form—Kid Williams All In, Says Ertle.

Freddy Welsh, alias Fred Hall Thomas, of Pontypridd, Wales, until the recruiting sergeant visited that burg, may be the world's champion technically, but there's a strongly rooted belief that he will never get into the ring with Charles White, alias Anchovitz, the Chicago Yid.

The Chicago boy, with the name like a delicatessen relish, has been accumulating a record for hard hittin' that stamps him as the probable winner of any contest over the derby mile against any scrapper in the world able to do 135 pounds.

This, of course, is presuming that White himself can still scale that low. He is getting big and is probably creeping out of the lightweight division. At that he is no further outside the American pale than is Freddie Welsh, who won his title at the English, not the American, weight.

Recently White added to his other string of knockout victories when he stopped that good trial horse, Matty Baldwin, the first time that hero of 250 battles was ever kayoed.

Baldwin is growing passe, it is true, but he has been a great little scrapper and a genuine lightweight. He is one of those good boys who have battled harder and oftener and accomplished much more than men like Ritchie who have actually held the title.

Since last March White has knocked out eight really good men.

Freddie Welsh has fought White twice. The first time Freddie was not in condition, and White defeated him in a no decision bout. The second time Welsh was in shape and lightning fast. He rather showed up the Chicagoan at boxing.

Welsh will do that with most lightweights in a short fight or as long as he retains his strength. Nobody can hit White a decisive punch while his defense is in good working order.

Welsh, however, is old and no doubt slowing. There is a certain round where he would tire, and in that round over would come the White hook, with the sleep effects that usually follow.

Whether this round is inside the permissible twenty round limit none knows. But against a strong, rugged opponent, like White, few believe Welsh today is good enough to last the distance.

Little Johnny Ertle, with the kewpie face and the near bantamweight championship reputation, expresses the belief that John Gutenko of Copenhagen and Baltimore will never again defend his title in a long bout at the bantamweight limit—116 pounds ringside. Kewpie recently fought said Gutenko, ring name "Kid Williams," and won on a foul—if the disqualification of an opponent in a no decision bout can legally be credited as a "win," Ertle said recently.

"Williams had a fierce time making weight for me. His eyes were glassy when I boxed him. He won't be able to last if he does 116 pounds in a championship contest.

"What do I think of him? Why, I think there are boys coming up all the time who are likely to beat champions as they improve. I'm one of 'em.

"Williams has a trick of bringing his foot forward with his head when coming in, which gives his intentions away. To break up his attack all you have to do is to keep his head up. Seemingly he can't land when in that position.

"I wouldn't be surprised at any time to hear that some of the fairly good fighters of the east stopped him. He can be hit easy enough, and he showed me nothing wonderful. But he'll soon be out of the bantamweight running, I judge, on account of weight."

Why not make it unanimous?

Lincoln said:
"I go for all sharing the privilege of the government who assist in bearing its burdens, by no means excluding woman."

Roosevelt said:
"It is the right of woman to have the ballot; it is the duty of man to give it."

Wilson said:
"I intend to vote for woman suffrage in New Jersey. I think New Jersey will be greatly benefited by the change."

WOMEN say: Men of New Jersey! You have as much confidence in your women as the men of the equal suffrage States have in theirs. Women have the vote in 12 States and use it. In California 90 per cent of the women of voting age cast their ballots at the first election.

MAY BUILD NEW SIX-ROOM SCHOOL

Board of Education Approves $30,000 Bond Issue for Structure in East End.

PLANS ARE PRESENTED

Action Must Be Endorsed by Board of School Estimate—Congestion Would Be Relieved—Dr. Guy H. Hillman Named School Dentist.

It now seems certain that the eastern section of the city is to have a new school building, as the Board of Education, at an adjourned meeting last night, voted unanimously to issue bonds to the amount of $30,000 for the erection of a six-room building in that part of the city.

The action of the Board of Education must be approved by the Board of Estimate, which body, it is expected, will approve of the issue as the subject has been jointly discussed.

According to the plans of Architect White the new building will be only the first half of a new twelve-room building, as the new structure will be built so that it can be added to or the third story added above. By the addition of this school it is thought that the congestion in the east side will be relieved.

It was pointed out that the authorizing of the erection of this additional building at this time would not necessitate any payments on it this year, but by getting plans underway would insure the completion of the structure by next fall, when it will be sorely needed.

The Board of Estimate was present and President Archibald Cox, in opening the meeting, stated that at the outset, at least, the object of the meeting was to informally discuss the school situation in Plainfield. He said that the number of children in the first five grades were rapidly increasing in all parts of the town, but this increase was more pronounced in the eastern section than elsewhere. Here there were four classes which the Lincoln School could not accommodate, two of the four were on half time, while two more were taught in the old Reformed church building. In other parts of the city the lower grades were nearly all filled, but not overcrowded. President Cox stated that the congestion was not due entirely to the increase in the lower grades but that it was partly due to the fact that the pupils remained longer in school, many now completing the High School course, where in former years only a few completed this branch, while the majority left to enter occupations and for other causes.

A formal resolution was adopted to the effect that a bond issue of $30,000 be issued, subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate, which will meet in special session next Monday night.

Dr. Guy H. Hillman was appointed school dentist and examiner at a salary of $400 per year. Scout Commissioner Allan E. Beals was accorded the use of the High School auditorium for a lecture and demonstration of the Boy Scouts. Considerable business of an entirely routine nature was transacted.

BORO REPUBLICANS BOOST HAMMOND

Judge Runyon and Others Tell of His Good Record.

A crowd that comfortably filled Republican headquarters on Somerset street in the borough of North Plainfield attended last night's meeting of the Republican Club there.

The meeting was a get-together affair for leaders of the party in Somerset county, and was primarily for the purpose of boosting the candidacy of Ogden H. Hammond for assemblyman. Judge William N. Runyon, former Sheriff E. E. Cooper, Lemuel B. Woolston, Howard Woolston, William de La R. Anderson and W. L. Smalley were the speakers. After they had been heard from the Republicans were served refreshments in the shape of sandwiches and coffee.

Mr. Anderson, a candidate for the nomination for assemblyman, who was defeated by Mr. Hammond, declared that he was supporting the nominee of his party whole-heartedly and urged all other Republicans in the county to do the same.

Edward E. Cooper, chairman of the Republican county campaign committee, told of plans for the campaign and urged co-operation on the part of each individual member of the party.

Judge Runyon, who served in the Assembly with Mr. Hammond last winter, bore witness to the honesty and efficiency of his colleague, saying that his work as a member of the Assembly had been thorough, and of high order. By request Judge Runyon explained the working of the second and third amendments to the constitution that are to be voted on today. He told why they were put before the people and of the need for their passage. The second amendment provides that the constitution may be amended once each year, with restrictions as to procedure, and the third gives to municipalities, townships and counties the right to share in public improvements made by them.

Max Meschinski, of 154 Floyd street, Brooklyn, was arrested here yesterday afternoon, charged with peddling without a license. DISCUSS RUSSIAN PEOPLE AND CUSTOMS Literary Dep't of Monday Afternoon Club Holds Interesting Session.

The literature department of the Monday Afternoon Club held an interesting meeting in the parish house of the Congregational church yesterday afternoon, a large number of members attending. Following a short business session two papers dealing with Russian customs and people were read.

Mrs. Frank O. Herring took as her subject "Physical Features—Races," while Mrs. Josiah Browne's paper dealt with the mode of government of Russia and the Greek church. Both papers were the subjects for an enthusiastic discussion among the members.

The next meeting of the club will be on Monday, October 25, at which time the Art Department will take charge of the meeting. Papers will be read by Mrs. D. J. Randall and Mrs. G. L. Babcock. The former will read a paper on "Russian Painting and Sculpture" while the latter will treat on "Russian Architecture."

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE GET $5,000

Bequest Comes From the Estate of Mrs. Eugenia L. Babcock.

Announcement was made at the monthly meeting of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, held last night at the rooms of the organization in the Babcock building, that $5,000 would be available before the next meeting for the work of the league from the estate of Mrs. Eugenia L. Babcock. The sum was left by her for the tuberculosis pavilion at Muhlenberg Hospital, and the league having taken over that work, the directors of the hospital will transfer the sum to them, the residuary legatee of the estate, George L. Babcock, having agreed to this arrangement. The officers of the league were authorized to execute a bond to indemnify the hospital, in case any question should come up regarding the matter in the future.

The resignation of F. W. Iredell, as secretary of the organization, was received with much regret by the members, as he has proven a very efficient man for the position, and has given much time to the work. He was compelled to stop because of ill-health and the vacancy will be filled at a later meeting.

The report of the nursing bureau for September showed the total number of cases attended 197, of which 33 were new, 28 were dismissed and 169 are still being cared for. 548 visits were made, of which 224 were to tubercular patients. 7,117 school inspections were completed in the department of school hygiene.

The tuberculosis nurse made 224 visits to patients in their homes, 23 at the open-air school, 3 at the school gardens and 9 at the tuberculosis clinic. Twenty-nine cases were carried from last month, and three new ones developed in September, making 32 on the visiting list, of which one died, four were admitted to sanatariums and two left town, so that at the end of the month there were 25 cases on the visiting list.

Dr. Clara H. Kraus having resigned as chairman of the open-air school committee, President William S. Tyler named Mrs. William C. Kinney to succeed her. Dr. Frederick Hughes has been selected to succeed E. T. Elliott as chairman of the clinic committee, the latter having left town. George M. Holstein has again agreed to take charge of the sale of Red Cross stamps this year, and will place 100,000 on sale in Plainfield. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $194.13.

It was announced that the open-air school is full, with twenty pupils, and that a donation tea will be held there on Thursday, October 28, at which time the children will give a health playlet.

INTENSE INTEREST IN SUFF ELECTION

Balloting Heavier Than Expected in the Morning Hours.

VOTING IS ORDERLY

Women Stationed at Every Booth—Report that Experience is Interesting and That They Are Well Treated by Election Officers.

Suffrage workers, more than one hundred strong, are today leading a final desperate charge in the battle of ballots.

"We will win," was the expression of confidence that came from headquarters on Depot avenue at noon today.

Indications are that there will be a heavy vote. Despite reports of a lack of interest over Union county, men and women both were in evidence at the polls early, and the morning vote was much larger than had been expected. Polls in all parts of the city presented a lively scene, although only a small percentage of the registered population was out in the early hours.

Election officers who reported for duty at 6 a. m. were confronted with the strange condition of working through the day with one or two women watching them. There was one woman inside of every polling place and more on the outside working. All reported to suffrage headquarters after they had experienced a few hours of work as watchers, and they declared that they were being treated

CROWD HEARS TALKS OF ANTIS ON STREET

Final Meeting of Campaign Against Suffrage Well Attended.

A crowd that filled the sidewalks and streets and blocked the corner for some distance congregated at the corner of Park and North avenues, last night, to hear speeches from those opposed to the suffrage cause. Howard G. Lapsley was the principal speaker. Many men and women were present and took an interest in the meeting. Some of them sat in automobiles and gave out buttons asking all to vote "no" on the suffrage amendment, while others worked a stereopticon machine that threw anti-suffrage argument on a curtain hung over the Frost building.

Mrs. E. Yard Breese, State president of the organization that is opposed to votes for women, was in Plainfield last night and assisted in arrangements for the meeting. Mrs. Breese will be at anti-suffrage headquarters in Newark tonight to receive returns from the election.

STATE VOTE TODAY IS SUFFRAGE TEST

Strenuous Campaign Ends up With a Battle of the Ballots at the Polls.

Trenton, Oct. 19.—Will New Jersey figure as the first of the Original Thirteen to give its women the vote? This is the question of the hour in political circles along the Atlantic seaboard. After a great campaign from one end to the other of the State, the suffragists are beaming with confidence today, while the voters are registering their decision as to whether women will be given equal franchise.

President Wilson is, of course, the leading figure in their contest. Just how far his personal influence will be felt is problematical, for, although as its former Governor and as its former college president, the Chief Executive is strong with the people of New Jersey, it is believed he has done no more than make the simple announcement of his intention to favor the ladies when he casts his ballot today. On the other hand, the political organizations of all parties are none too strong for the suffrage measure, and it is realized that if they are out in strength to defeat the measure, the chances are very poor for the amendment.

According to the estimates of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw the women will carry the State today by virtue of the rural vote, the labor vote and a good-sized section of the commuters' vote.

Inasmuch as the New Jersey result will influence the coming elections in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, where the suffrage issue is up this fall, the suffragists have put their best foot forward in New Jersey. Those in touch with the situation in the other three Atlantic States, declare that if New Jersey gives the vote to the women, the equal suffrage movement will sweep through the East like wildfire. But that is the suffrage view of the case, and the wiseacres of Jersey are doubtful of the outcome of today's test in New Jersey.

Today's election is a special election, at which three constitutional amendments are submitted to the voters. The first is a proposal to give municipal bodies the right of "excess condemnation," the second proposes to permit one amendment to be voted on each year, and the third is the suffrage question.

TWO ARE FINED IN BORO COURT FOR DRUNKENNESS

John Lewd, who is 64, and old enough to know better, according to the court, was fined $5 by Recorder Hand in police court in the borough of North Plainfield, yesterday morning, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Elisha Macready, aged 47, who lives at 402 East Third street, was arraigned on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and panhandling, and was given a fine of $5 or a sentence of 20 days in jail.

ROBBERY IN WESTFIELD.

The police department of Westfield enlisted the aid of the local authorities in a burglar hunt at 12:15 this morning. During last night a cigar store at that place was looted and $20 in cash stolen.

HIS WHEEL MISSING.

A. H. Clawson, of 672 West Seventh street, reported to the local police yesterday afternoon that his bicycle had been stolen from the wheel stand in the rear of the Plainfield High School.

ELKS' FAIR OPENS IN BLAZE OF GLORY

Countless Features Attract Hundreds of People to Handsome Clubhouse.

Kaleidoscopic with its myriad of variously colored incandescent bulbs and attractively gowned women and pretty misses, the Elks' bazaar opened last night in the Watchung avenue clubhouse to several hundred pleasure-seeking guests. If first night results are to be taken as a criterion of what is to follow the affair will be the greatest of its kind ever held under the auspices of a local fraternal organization and will probably cater to several thousand guests before it concludes Saturday night.

Illumination provided by hundreds of small lights shone on a veritable bower of autumnal foliage, the decorations throughout the entire clubhouse being elaborate, and unusually appropriate to the event and the season of the year. Tastefully decorated booths were presided over by winsome matrons and each one of the numerous departments reaped a first night's harvest that exceeded by far the anticipations of those in charge.

Members of Plainfield Lodge and a delegation of women supervised the reception of guests and it was the unanimous opinion voiced on every side that the bazaar is the biggest and finest function ever promoted by the B. P. O. E. locally.

Dancing, as usual, proved one of the leading features on last night's program, excellent terpsichorean music being rendered by Harry Wetton's orchestra which will be in attendance throughout the week. Many couples enjoyed this art and all expressed general approval of the facilities offered for it.

Vocal solos sung by Frank Hennings proved another outstanding feature last night, his renditions including "When I Leave the World Behind," and "Along the Rocky Road to Dublin." Tonight B. P. O. E. members from the following lodges will be present: Jersey City, New York, Hoboken, Irvington, Orange and East Orange.

'ACQUAINTANCE PARTY' AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

First Fall Gathering of Parents and Teachers Proves Profitable.

More than one hundred parents and friends of pupils of the High School gathered in the auditorium, last night, for an "Acquaintance" meeting. Beside the musical program and informal talks, an interesting address was delivered by the president, Mrs. F. St. John Fitch.

Mrs. Fitch told of the relation of the home to the school; the parents to the teachers, and home training to school work. She laid particular stress on the advantages to be obtained through the parents and teachers becoming acquainted and understanding more intimately the ideas and aims of one another relative to the children. She said that much could be accomplished by a spirit of co-operation.

The principal, Lindsley Best, told of the good work accomplished during the past year, with the excellent corps of teachers and thorough equipment of the schools. He also told of the good work that can be accomplished through a spirit of co-operation between the parents and teachers.

The members of the Parent-Teacher Association voted to take charge of furnishing lunches to the pupils, which has heretofore been cared for by the Mothers' Association. Refreshments were served following the program.

NIGHT SCHOOL OPENS.

The night school opened last night in the Plainfield High School building with a good sized attendance, the majority of which was composed of foreign born pupils. There was a full corps of teachers and considerable work was gotten underway. The pupils seemed to be entuhsiastic in the work and declared that they would secure a large number to enroll. The school will be open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights of each week.

CONGREGATIONALISTS TO MEET.

About one hundred delegates from the various churches are expected. They will be entertained by members of the local church.

GREECE PROVOKES ANGER OF ALLIES

Her Interpretation of Treaty With Serbia is Rejected.

WANT HER TO WAR

England and Russia Promise to Send Reinforcements to Balkans at Once—Austro-Germans Capture Important City in Serbia.

Athens, Oct. 19.—The Allies have rejected the Greek government's interpretation of the treaty between Serbia and Greece, it became known today. Ministers of England and Russia notified the Greek Foreign Office on Sunday. The two envoys gave notice that the entente powers would considerably reinforce the Allied troops in the Balkans.

Several important announcements will be made in a few days regarding the presentation of some photo-play features direct from the New York leading theatres. There will also be special vaudeville acts similar to those presented at the Palace Theatre, New York. The toy matinee so popular last week will be repeated this week, when every child present will get a toy.

Out of a registry of 630 at Dunellen, 140 votes had been cast at the various polling places in that borough up to noon. This is considered quite heavy for that time of the day.

DUTCH ARMS ENJOY "MEMBERS NIGHT"

Varied Program of Interest Presented by Men's Ass'n of Trinity Church.

"Members' night" was observed by the Dutch Arms, Men's Association, of Trinity Reformed church, last night, when various kinds of games were played until a late hour. Nine new members were enrolled, making a total of thirty-two new members for the first two months of the present year. President Arthur B. Cole was in charge of last night's meeting.

An orchestra of sixteen pieces, composed of members of the Dutch Arms Band, played during the entire evening, and the affair was considered one of the best social gatherings held by the association. A special feature was a buffet lunch of Dutch dainties prepared by the good and welfare committee. There were over one hundred men present.

Among the coming events planned by the Dutch Arms is a "ladies night," when a high class musical program will be given by the association, assisted by local talent. In December there will be a "club night." In January an illustrated lecture, two hundred lantern slides, will be given by Rev. Dr. Henry M. Rose of Newark, on the subject of "America and the Great European War." This will be a "ladies' night" affair Dr. Rose is a lecturer of national fame and a treat is assured those who hear him. Another winter feature will be announced later.

INTEREST IN SUFF ELECTION

very nicely. Not a single complaint came in.

"They are as nice as can be," reported one of the fair watchers, and she was stationed inside a booth with four election officers who all wore "anti" buttons. "They help me all they can, seem to be ashamed of their 'anti' buttons, and one of them actually went out and bought a box of candy. He tried to act like it was not done for my benefit but he overdid it. I think I will have a most interesting day."

The suffrage campaign is being handled in a manner that would cause a pang of envy from the most experienced politician. Mrs. G. O. Stevens, in charge at headquarters, has more than one hundred of the leading young women and matrons of the city at her disposal, and she knows where every one of them is at all times. One is stationed in each of the polling places, and if she leaves for even a minute, an alternate, officially named and armed with a permit, takes her place. These watchers are checking registration lists, and the suffrage workers know which of these voters is for them and which is against. This afternoon they will see that their friends get out to vote.

At noon many of the workers met at headquarters where lunch was served. While partaking of fruit sandwiches and tea they told of their strange experiences, and most of them admitted that their taste of political life was good, and brought a craving for more.

Fifteen automobiles have been volunteered for "runner" service and a number of young women will assist in the work aside from those who own machines. They will spend all of the afternoon persuading friends of the cause to sacrifice personal matters and put in a vote for women.

It will probably be midnight before accurate returns can be received from enough counties to justify an expression on the outcome of the election. There are three amendments to be counted on the ballot, and the work will be long in precincts where many voters are registered.

In some of the polling places the judges will begin counting at 7 p. m., despite an opinion that they should wait until after the registration books are closed at 9 p. m. This may be a violation of the election law, and there is a possibility that it will result in complications if generally done, so most of the election officers will not begin to count the ballots until after 9 p. m.

Suffrage watchers will remain in the polls until the count is finished, and will report to headquarters at frequent intervals, because leaders in the movement will be there to hear the result of the counting.

At noon today not a single irregularity of conduct either in or around a polling place had been reported and the day promised to pass quietly despite the intense interest in the question involved.

HOME FROM LONG TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillaire Blatz, of Mountain avenue, returned home Sunday after a five weeks' trip through New York State. They spent a portion of the time visiting relatives at Gloversville, and afterward went sight seeing in Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other places.

FREDERICK H. BEALS MOURNED BY MANY

Funeral Services for Former Local Teacher Held at Newark Home.

The funeral of Frederick H. Beals, a former teacher in the science department of the Plainfield High School, was held this afternoon at his late residence, 284 Clinton avenue, Newark, the Rev. Dr. Riley D. Vose, of the Clinton Avenue Baptist church, officiating. The body will be taken to the home of Mrs. Beals' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Everett, of Grafton, Mass., and will be buried at West Roylston, Mass., tomorrow.

Mr. Beals died early Sunday morning after an illness of but a few hours of asthma. He had attended a meeting of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Science Teachers' Association at the Robert Treat School, Newark, on Saturday and to all appearances was in good health. In the evening of the same day he was stricken with the attack of asthma from which he died. He was a member of the faculty of Barringer High School, Newark.

Frederick Hall Beals was born November 26, 1873, at Mount Vision, Otsego county, N. Y. He was the son of the late Edward E. and Mary Hall Beals and grew up on his father's farm at Mount Vision. He prepared for normal school under the instruction of his father, who taught in rural schools of Otsego county for many years. He graduated from the Oneonta Normal School in 1895 and began teaching in the school at St. James, Long Island.

In 1903 he became a teacher in the Harvard School, of Los Angeles, Cal., and remained until he was called to the Los Angeles State Normal School to become a teacher of science. In 1906 he was called in the chair of physics in Occidental College, Los Angeles, which position he filled with marked success for three years. He then accepted a position in the Plainfield High School in 1909 and remained there until elected to the position in Newark, which he held at the time of his death. Upon his removal from Plainfield, Mr. Beals was the recipient of many substantial marks of esteem from the members of the faculty and the students of the High School.

In June, 1902, Mr. Beals married Miss Frances Isabelle Everett, of Worcester, Mass., who survives, as do their two children, Frances Elizabeth, a little daughter of ten, and Edward Everett, a son of six. His mother and a brother, Dr. E. Lynn Beals, of Buffalo, also survive him.

As a teacher Mr. Beals had won for himself an enviable distinction in his special line of science, and as a man he had endeared himself to a large circle of friends made up of his associates in the Plainfield and Newark schools and in the societies to which he belonged. His generous qualities as a man had endeared him to the students of his classes and to his friends and neighbors outside the teaching profession.

He was a teacher of high ideals and of wide interests. For several years he had been chairman of the physics committee of the New Jersey State Science Teachers' Association, and unselfishly gave freely of his time and energy to advance its interests. He had also been honored in being appointed one of the nine members of the physics committee of the National Educational Association. He was a member of the American Physical Society, the Physics Club, of New York, and numerous societies of Newark.

LOCAL YOUNG MEN ENTER THEATRICALS

Reports received from the west indicate that Charles Lee, Jr., of Grove street, and Clement Bechtel, of Carlton avenue, are meeting with great success as Thespians. The two young men left two weeks ago as members of William A. Brady's new big production of "Life," which opened at St. Paul, Minn., on October 4. After remaining in that city for a week the company moved to Minneapolis for another week's stand and for the next few weeks will play the large cities near Chicago.

Mr. Lee, who has had considerable theatrical experience, has an important speaking part in the production and is also understudy for one of the principals. Mr. Bechtel, although a novice in professional stagedom, appears prominently in several portions of the play and in the big ballroom scene does a dancing specialty. He is also a member of the "Life" quartet, which never fails to get four or five encores in the beautiful cathedral scene. The play is booked for the entire winter in three and six night stands in cities from Chicago to the Pacific coast.

Another Plainfielder who recently entered the field of professional stage ranks is Walter F. Hamilton, Jr., of Verdon street, known to his friends as "Doc." Mr. Hamilton started from New York two weeks ago with a musical comedy which will tour the northwestern states and Canada. He portrays a comedy character part and also sings and dances. Mr. Hamilton made a big hit in the Plainfield El show in 1914 when he gave a demonstration of the latest society dances Miss Gertrude Bowlby, of Dunellen acting as his partner.

PRODUCE AS FACTOR IN EXPORT TRADE

Washington, October 19.—Cheese butter, and other butter fats are again becoming important factors in our export trade after a long period of comparative inactivity. Fifteen or twenty years ago the United States was selling abroad between 20 million and 30 million pounds of butter from 50 to 80 million pounds of cheese, and from 5 million to 10 million pounds of imitation butter annually. In later years, however, exports of this class decreased in a marked degree and in the fiscal year 1914 had fallen far below the quantities named. In the year just ended there was a distinct revival in all these lines, with totals closely approximating the high levels touched in the decade from 1890 to 1900.

The large gains made by domestic dairy products and butter substitutes are well illustrated by figures published by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, in the June "Summary of Foreign Commerce." Butter, usually averaging about 3½ million pounds annually in our export trade in 1915 went to nearly 10 million pounds. During this period imports of butter were reduced by more than one-half, falling from a little less than 8 million pounds in 1914 to less than 4 million pounds last year.

American cheese, running at about 2½ million pounds a year, went to 54 million pounds in the fiscal year 1915. Here also, as in the case of butter, the trade balance was transferred to the export side, for the year's imports of cheese last year only totaled 50 million pounds, a decrease of 13¾ million pounds from the total for 1914.

Exports of condensed milk, usually exported in sums valued at between 1 million and 2 million dollars annually, in 1915 rose to 3 million dollars in value, the quantity (37 million pounds) being double that of 1914.

Imitation butter contains in addition to oleomargarine oil some butter fat. The exports of this article also doubled, rising from 2½ million pounds in 1914 to 9¼ million pounds last year.

England has become our largest foreign market for butter, cheese and condensed milk, having taken 3 1-3 million pounds of butter, out of a total of 10 million pounds; 48½ million pounds of cheese, out of a total export of 54 million pounds; and 4 million pounds of condensed milk out of a total export of 37 million pounds. Canada, Cuba, Panama, Australia, and Venezuela also take considerable quantities of American butter; Panama and the West Indies are important markets for our cheese; while Cuba, Belgium, the Netherlands, China, Japan, Hongkong, Russia, Chosen, Panama, and Brazil take large amounts of American condensed milk.

REV. DR. JUDSON LEFT NET ESTATE OF $25,587

Rev. Edward Judson, who was pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church of New York, when he died Oct. 4, 1914, and who was well-known here, left a net estate of $25,587, according to the appraisal of his estate, filed yesterday by Transfer Tax Appraiser Berwin in the office of the State Controller.

The total estate amounted to $45,494, but there were debts, the largest of which was $10,500 due the Bank of the Metropolis. The two daughters, the Misses Sarah Elizabeth and Margaret Judson, were the beneficiaries.

The assets included land and building at Hamilton, N. Y., appraised at $2,400; bank deposits of $394; personalty and jewelry, $617; stocks and bonds, $21,160; and notes and mortgages amounting to $20,014.

UNITED CIGAR STORES EXTENDS ITS SYSTEM

C. A. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company, announced yesterday that thirty cigar stores in Northern and Western New York had been bought from C. A. Whelan & Co. and Whelan Brothers. These include the original stores started by George J. Whelan, of this city, which served as a model for the United system. The new stores have a gross business of about $600,000 yearly, and their addition to the United Cigar chain brings the total under the one management well above 1,000 stores.

The stores taken over are in Syracuse, Troy, Elmira and other cities. A prominent stockholder in the two smaller Whelan companies is A. E. Nettleton, the shoe manufacturer of Syracuse, who backed George J. Whelan in his first venture into the retail tobacco industry.

RIGID EMBARGO.

Washington, Oct. 19.—It became known today that as a result of the Latin American conferences' action this government will order a rigid embargo on shipments of arms and ammunition across the border. This embargo, however, will be rigid in name largely for it is understood that aid will not be withheld from Carranza in his fight to put down the revolution. While the State Department declined to affirm or deny the report it is understood the recognition of the United States is to extend to the financing of the Carranza cause.

NEW BIG COPPER MINE.

PLAINFIELD MAN ON PACIFIC COAST

Wilbert Pennington is Enthusiastic Over Wonders of West.

Wilbert Pennington, of Liberty street, who left this city on August 28 for the Pacific coast, has written to local friends to the effect that he is now at Portland, Oregon, where he will spend a month at the home of his sister, Mrs. D. M. Taylor, formerly Miss Lora Pennington, of this city. Another sister, Miss Edith Pennington, who has been at Portland since last spring, will return to Plainfield with him at the expiration of his stay.

Mr. Pennington made the trip west on the steamer Kroonland by way of the Panama canal and it was one of the vessels held up by the recent bad slide. The Kroonland was tied up at the Gatun lock for eight days before it was able to proceed. The Plainfielder visited Los Angeles, San Diego and other California cities before arriving at San Francisco. He declares in letters that the Panama-Pacific exposition is well worth seeing, but the city of San Francisco is far more interesting to easterners. He spent several weeks touring every district and states that a year is necessary before strangers really know the extent of all its wonders.

Mr. Pennington is also enthusiastic over Portland and its environs, and intimates that when he returns he will give a course of stereopticon lectures for the benefit of his fellow members in the West End Reminiscent Club, to which he has belonged for several years. Mr. Pennington is a carpenter by trade and is well-known throughout both the city and borough, scores of his friends being remembered with souvenir postal cards from various points on his trip.

CITIZENS COMPLAIN ABOUT RIDING IN THE CITY PARK

Numerous complaints filed recently by local citizens with Mayor Leighton Calkins complaining of children riding bicycles through the city park have prompted the city executive to instruct the police department to keep strict watch for offenders and to make arrests for violations. It is against the law to ride bicycles or similar vehicles through the park paths and several citizens claim that they have had narrow escapes from being struck by small boys and girls.

Heads of the schools in that section of the city will be asked to instruct their pupils not to make a practice of taking these shortcuts and it is possible that examples will be made of offenders.

MUSIC CLASS FORMED BY RECREATION COMMITTEE

The Public Recreation Committee announces the first meeting of the music class in reading music at sight, in the Plainfield High School, Monday night, October 25. The added feature will be under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, supervisor of music in the North Plainfield schools.

Embracing the fundamental principles of music as taught in the summer school courses, the work will be especially for teachers, supervisors of music, and vocal pupils, as well as for others interested in singing. The class, which is limited to forty members, will comence work at 8 o'clock, the first half hour being elementary and the second half hour being advanced.

BUSINESS AUTOMOBILE SUFFERS $100 DAMAGE

A business automobile belonging to Howard Huff, of West Fourth street, was damaged to the extent of more than $100 when the owner cranked it up on Mercer avenue this morning with the reverse gear in. The machine swung backward in a circle, side swiped a marble hitching post, smashing it to pieces, and then fetched up with a crash against a tree. Mr. Huff made a desperate attempt to stop it, but without success, no one being in the vicinity to help him.

The automobile is a converted five passenger Chalmers, and was equipped with a body arrangement for carrying building supplies, Mr. Huff being a mason contractor. He has been working on a Mercer avenue house and on reaching the place this morning threw the reverse in to back away from a vehicle ahead of him. After coming back to the car he cranked up before remembering how the mechanism was set.

YOUNG WOMEN INDIGNANT OVER RECENT TESTIMONY

The young women who are employed as clerks and stenographers in the Court House, Elizabeth, are indignant because the hearing before the Civil Service Commission last week, in which Miss Ruth McElroy sought reinstatement to her position in the county registrar's office, did not divulge the names of those who, according to the testimony, drank wine, smoked cigarettes and engaged in "sponge throwing contests." They fear the exposures will reflect on every woman employed at the Court House.

Those who were implicated in the affair were employed installing a new indexing system under Ozial A. Howe and they worked in the basement of the Court House, having nothing whatever to do with the work in the registrar's office on the main floor of the building. It is said that all of the frivolity occurred in the basement and that there were never any such happenings in the registrar's office.

HUGH ALLAN HAS POETICAL GIFT OF INTERPRETATION

Hugh Allan, baritone, who was heard in concert here during last season, is to be one of the artists at the Musical Club's concert on November 1. Mr. Allan is another American who has gained reputation abroad and has appeared here with leaders such as Gadski, Alda, Rappold and others. His manager hints that he will probably tour with one of the big symphony orchestras next season. He has already sung in Canada with the Montreal Opera Company.

While singing in this company Mr. Allan received the following encomium in the Daily Star of that city: "He sang like an Italian but conducted himself like an American." That describes this splendid young artist. His fine features, dark and flashing eyes, his voice, velvety, lyric-dramatic and sensuous are all Italian. His bearing, in spite of temperament and poetical gifts of interpretation is always dignified and manly.

The prologue from "Pagliacci" with its dramatic pathos would be a very welcome selection should Mr. Allan choose it.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The first meeting of the Current Events classes will be held at the association headquarters Thursday afternoon at 4:15. Samuel B. Howe, who conducted the classes last year, will resume his position and will appear here on alternate Thursdays. A complete list of his talks will be announced later.

Although there are a number of registrations already in the German and French classes, several more are needed before the two courses can be started. Any member who is interested in the languages is requested to register her name at the office of the association. Professor Hauck, who taught the two classes last year, will no doubt resume teaching again this year.

An adult physical class will be started this afternoon under the direction of Miss Winifred Mann. The gymnasium class is opened primarily to accommodate teachers and professional women who would not be able to join the evening gymnasium classes.

Miss Anna Rice, national secretary for religious work, of the National Association, will be a week-end guest of the local association on October 31. She will be a speaker at the vesper services on that day and will address the Bible class on Monday night, November 1.

—If there's a new owner in charge of the little store down the street, the chances are that a "Business Opportunity" advertisement has been "at work."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Coach Hanson is putting the swimming team through some stiff practice in anticipation of several coming meets, the first one being against Westfield in about ten days. Brower and Snyder, of last year's team, are depended upon to bring home most of the points.

The Oracle contest, arranged by the editor-in-chief, Gerald Linke, in order to get some new heads for the various departments of the paper, will close tomorrow and the winners will be announced on Thursday. Linke plans to put some new life in the paper this year and to do it will need the support of everyone in the school.

In announcing the results of the freshmen election the tellers find that it will be necessary to poll another ballot for the election of vice president and treasurer. The date of the second election has not yet been set, but will probably be the first of next week. On the first ballot Henry Pole was elected president and Acie McAfee, secretary.

The G. A. A. elections at the Plainfield High School yesterday resulted in Miss Irma Goode being chosen president for another year. Another ballot for secretary and treasurer will be necessary. It will be polled during this afternoon and the resulting officers will be announced tomorrow.

Principal Lindsey Best, of the High School, has called a meeting of the mothers of all of the girls who will go out for basketball or other athletics this year to be held in the High School tomorrow afternoon. It will be with the view of thoroughly talking over the question and ascertaining the parent's views on it.

The High School Glee Club will meet tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of organization. Mr. Lewis, singing teacher of the school, will be the director this year.

Murray, superintendent of the primary department of the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school, will talk on the "Elementary Department." Miss J. Gertrude Hutton, of East Orange, will speak on "Missionary Education."

At 6:15 the superintendents of the local Sunday-schools will entertain the visiting superintendents at a supper in the Seventh Day Baptist church, and at the evening session the speakers will be Frank L. Brown, general secretary of the World's Sunday-school Association, and Rev. George P. Howard, missionary of the World's Sunday-school Association in South America.

By request the primary department of the Crescent Avenue church will give an exhibition of work at 4 o'clock to enable the visitors to see the children in session.

LIFMAN AND SONS ARE GUILTY OF INTERFERENCE

Somerville, October 19.—Harry Lifman and sons, Charles and Jack, were found guilty in the criminal court here yesterday, when tried on a charge of interfering with Edgar Farley, sergeant-at-arms of the county district court. Farley went to the Lifman farm in August to serve a civil paper and was made to leave the place. The jury recommended mercy in the case of Jack Lifman.

FANATICS OR CROOKS.

There can be little sympathy for the three women "martyrs" of the Pillar of Fire who have gone to jail for a defiance of our laws.

In the first place they are martyrs to the cowardice of their men, and not to their cause. The men were the ones originally arrested. They had been warned and they knew what to expect. Instead of carrying out their heroic promises they sent their women to laugh at the law and now they permit their women to serve sentences in jail that are really theirs. It must be a strange religion that makes such contemptible curs of men.

When Jesus Christ walked the world, spreading the glorious news of his faith, He did not ask special privileges of man and his laws. He was content to preach where He might, and asked only that He be accorded the rights of every man of His time. How can these people, who profess to be followers of Christ, ask that in His name which He did not ask for Himself?

The answer in their case is that they are either religious fanatics or crooks of the worst sort. There are probably some of each class in their ranks. Religious fanaticism is a form of insanity and sometimes becomes a violent one. The favorite pose of the fanatic is that of a martyr, but we have never before heard of a man or woman, let alone a band of men and women, who started out to spread a new religious theory with the announcement that they hoped to become martyrs. Their principal excuse for existence as a sect is to attack the Catholic church, which is adequate evidence of their ignorance of the true Christian faith. The Catholics have grown and prospered and done good in all the world for centuries. No organization that was not good could have lived so long. But they have an individual right to criticize the Catholic church, to criticise the Christian religion, to even denounce God, if they will cease to interfere with the rights of others in their activities, and will obey the laws of the land.

Unless they do respect and obey the law, Judge DeMeza cannot but jail them, and if the sentences imposed yesterday do not prove a lesson he should treat them as crooks when next they are before him and give them the limit, or treat them as imbeciles and confine them away from their fellowmen. If they refuse to see that they have erred they are either foolish or wicked, and the law has provided a separate place for each class of our people.

In this coming year, the golden age of a presidential election, when all the States are grooming their favorite sons, it must be hard for Georgians to worship in silence, fearing to put out their hero for fear he be arrested.

Bryan's latest is a war referendum. Sort of a national count-ten-before-you-strike policy, which sounds well in theory but is disastrous when the other fellow is already hitting you.

The U. S. has recognized Carranza and lifted the embargo on arms into Mexico. Which is the hardest luck Villa has had since he was born in the country of romance and revolution

General Villa has assured Washington that he will protect American lives and property in Northern Mexico. He seems to have a twenty-four hour job taking care of himself just now.

We do not want to intimidate the fair crusaders into making a pre-election promise, but if we give them a vote, will they quit worrying about where we spend election nights?

Clothes may not make the man, but after seeing some of the fall fashions for women, we are of the opinion that they would help a lot if we were bankruptcy experts.

If you want to know just how much you are worth to the firm, quit and see how many men it takes to fill your place.

Greece took one good look at poor Serbia and then called her dogs of war in.

The Pillars of Fire are now burning with righteous indignation.

RECREATION NOTES

Th Plainfield Choral Society will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the Franklin School auditorium. New members will be welcomed in the chorus and the members of the orchestra are notified to resume rehearsing with the society. New choruses from Handel's "Messiah" will be taken up and studied, and a large attendance is urged. Members having copies are requested to bring them.

The P. E. G. S. basketball team will meet in the High School gymnasium tomorrow night. All members are urged to be out as election of a captain for the coming season will take place.

The Boys' Recreation Club will hold their initial basketball practice in the High School gymnasium tonight.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Crowded houses at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night voted Manager Shannon's new show the greatest vaudeville show he has ever brought to the city. Six fine acts were on the bill in addition to the photo-plays and every one secured round after round of applause. An absolute sensation was created by Ali Rajah, who gave a wonderful demonstration of mental telepathy, leaving the spectators in a hopeless quandary as to how he read people's minds, telling of their past, present, and future. The engagement of Ali Rajah and Company is a special one and should pack the theatre for the remainder of their stay.

Bristol's ponies, fourteen in number, delighted old and young with their display of intelligence and the antics of a trick mule were a positive scream. In addition to these two headline numbers, other acts on the bill were Beltrah and Beltrah, musical comedians of more than ordinary ability, who presented an original sketch entitled "Down on the Farm"; the Boldens, the far-famed colored entertainers, presenting new songs and clever dances, and the Bijou Comedy Four, knockabout comedy singers and dancers.

Every bill at the Plainfield Theatre includes high-class photo-plays, both comedies and dramas, with the Pathe semi-weekly an added attraction. Popular prices prevail at both matinee and night performances and every effort is made to cater especially to the women and children at the afternoon shows. A complete change of vaudeville takes place Mondays and Thursdays.

Rummagitis

'Bout once a year, or oftener, our wife gets started rummagin'
Among her many closets and sorto'
"Mrs. Gummidge-in' "
About the way the rest of us don't help keep things in order—
It drives her nearly crazy, or just keeps her on the border—
That's what she says, half to herself, while she goes diggin' on An' throwin' this and that away an' sayin', "There! THAT'S gone!"

She finds a lot of things that she was sure the help had stole,
But which some careless person had stuffed in some cubby-hole—
Then afterwards finds out that she had put it there herself
One time when she just hadn't time to put it on its shelf—
She runs a sorto' monologue an'
mutters as she trots
From closet unto closet, cleanin' up the littered spots.
She seems to think at last that she has got things right, but then
We know it won't be long until she does it all again!

"What's on your mind?"

A Patriot Dog

Blood will tell. We have a dachshund who is always looking for a place in the sun. We also have a tame monkey who insists upon sitting with us at table and upon being allowed to eat with a knife and fork. Any day, we expect him to make that familiar remark about the gyrating capacity of peas.

Not Alarmed

"Why are you offering such a thundering big reward for the return of that half-starved-looking animal?"

"Simply to please the wife."

"Goodness, but such a reward will surely bring it back, and then you went half look sick."

"But, you see, I know it won't drowned him myself."

Now You Know

The following letter was sent in to our extremely legal friend, and co-conspirator, Mr. Branson. However, as his stenographer could not tell him the answer, he turned it over to us. You see he has only been married once. This is the letter:

"I have only been married a short time, but have already been confronted with the most appalling problem of that blissful state—how should I address my mother-in-law?"

As we have had the good fortune to marry a girl whose mother is stone deaf, we must confess to not having any personal experience to offer. But we cheerfully give the advice of one of our most married friends. He writes this:

"During the first year I was married, I addressed my mother-in-law as 'Say!' My problem was solved for me soon after that. During the second year I always called her 'Grandma.'"

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Needs Of The Scalp

SOME people take an annual bath after the weather becomes sufficiently settled to warrant the risk. Others bathe several times a year, seizing opportunities when they do not have to go out too soon after the adventure. Still others bathe part of the body as often as once or twice a week, but hardly dare to make it complete oftener than once a month.

A clean scalp is as rare as an ideal husband and as easily attainable.

The undying catching cold delusion keeps a lot of people from being clean even in these enlightened days. It is no longer considered dangerous to bathe and put on fresh raiment, or to change the bed linen day by day, but somehow the old bogy still hangs over our heads and we are afraid to take a shampoo when we like. It is a queer feeling, but some of us had rather stay dirty than take the imaginary chance of catching cold.

A thorough shampoo of the scalp every day is not too frequent for persons who have dandruff. Certainly the scalp should be washed at least twice a week, dandruff or no dandruff, if one lives in a city. In the country, the skin does not get so smutty and soiled and less frequent bathing is necessary.

As for the best kind of soap, the ordinary household soaps universally employed are quite satisfactory—preferable to the cheap medicated and scented toilet soaps made of goodness only knows what.

The important thing is to rub the soap into the scalp—it is the scalp, not the hair, that needs cleaning—and then to rinse it out completely, so that no soap will be left on the scalp or hair. Dry the hair reasonably well and go about your ordinary business. Even if the hair is still a little wet there is nothing to fear.

Few scalps receive enough brushing. The scalp should be brushed vigorously with a good, long-bristled hair brush every night and morning, so that it glows with warmth. About a hundred strokes of the brush will do. Of course the hair should not be wet or oiled. Thorough brushing and thorough cleanliness keep it in the best condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sore Mouth In Babies

I would be grateful for any information you can give me about the prevention and treatment of inflammation of the mouth in babies. What causes this trouble? The mouth becomes sore, red and tender; the baby gets feverish and peevish; white spots surrounded by narrow reddish spots appear. It lasts a week or more.

Answer—Unclean nipples, fingers, milk or other things which may enter the mouth. Use full strength boric acid solution (all the boiled water will dissolve) to wash the mouth before and after feeding. Feed only cool or tepid foods. Lots of water to drink. Boil dishes, spoons, nipples, etc., to sterilize them. Keep nipples in a cupful of fresh boric acid solution between feedings. Touch each white spot with a little iodine (one part tincture of iodine in ten parts water or alcohol) twice a day, by means of a wisp of cotton on toothpick.

Scarlet Fever Under Any Name

Please explain the difference between scarlet fever, scarlet rash and scarlatina.

Answer—It is the difference between a twenty-five cent piece, a quarter dollar and two bits. All three are scarlet fever.

GRAND OPERA

GRAND OPERA is music in a gold setting. It consists of art, salaries and society in equal parts. Each part is essential. You may have salaries without grand opera, but you can't have grand opera without salaries. Art is also necessary. If grand opera was not art, people would laugh when the 250-pound hero embraces the beautiful young 220-pound heroine. And lastly, grand opera without society isn't grand opera at all. It is popular concerts.

Grand opera is any musical play in which the leading character dies in the last act. This is necessary. To be grand opera, it must be fatal to someone. Grand opera heroes and heroines are shot, burned, strangled, drowned, walled up alive, thrown down wells and fed to the lions. It is true that because the supply of horrible deaths in history had run out, "The Girl of the Golden West" has only an attempted lynching in it and doesn't give the coroner any job at all. But then a good many people claim that this production wasn't really grand opera, but only grand press agent work. It is sometimes hard to tell the difference.

The most noticeable thing about grand opera is the music, which never stops. A carefully selected regiment of singers oppose a large orchestra for three or four acts. Sometimes the orchestra wins, but generally the singer comes out ahead by a couple of whoops. This necessitates great lung capacity on the part of the soloists, which accounts for the unfortunate width of great artists. In order to hold their own against forty violins and three kettle drums, prima donnas must be so powerful that in most cases they have to sing the part of Juliet from a reinforced concrete balcony. To become a grand opera singer requires great skill and tenacity of purpose. One must learn to aviate through the upper register with bird-like clearness and perfect accuracy while climbing ladders, embracing lovers, taking poison, being hanged from a barrel and dying in heaps on the cold ground. The singer must also be able to accompany herself with her arms. The prima donna who cannot wigwag with her arms messages readily translatable as delight, despair, hate, envy, indifference, suspicion, triumph, a pain in the chest, disgust with the administration and an invitation to come around the corner and get kicked, would not draw half a salary.

All grand opera is made in Europe for American consumption. It is also generally sung in foreign languages. This is largely because "Have a drink," "Get off my foot!" "You horrid thing, how dare you!" and "Gosh, but I feel sick," would mar the solemn beauty of the works if sung in plain English. Grand opera salaries in America have been growing larger every year, until now Caruso receives one touring car for each performance and wouldn't warble for less than a runabout.

Views Of The Press

The Best Of It

THE average city man likes the country well enough in the warm days of summer. He will tolerate it if he has to, just because it is cooler in summer under the shade of trees along a river that winds through a country side than between the high walls that line a city street and through which a roaring river of perspiring men and dust-covered vehicles rushes.

But when the first breath of autumn floats through the country side it sends a chill through the average city man that makes him hurry back to the sun-baked pavements of the city.

He feels depressed by the sight of the country in autumn. The waning days, the frigid hints in the winds that whistle shrilly through the thinning foliage of the trees, all seem to be a part of a doleful life from which he hastens.

The average man living in the country knows, however, that the anaemic condition of the city man has given him the wrong impression of life in the country in autumn and winter. For it is in autumn that the country lavishes its wealth of golden weather and golden products on those able to enjoy them. And they are the men who have not been so refined by city living as to have lost the savor of the soil, the taste for the rough but healing caresses of nature.

The man who follows that most ancient of manly callings which was first plied by Adam, the gardener, has the best of the city man, especially in the autumn. His barns are bursting with the products of the soil. His cellar is packed with winter vegetables. His cattle are fat and sleek.

He has done with the wearing work of the spring and the summer. He has ample leisure in which to sit down and consider joyfully his many blessings. He has even time to pity the poor city dwellers who are moiling and toiling in dim and dusty offices all day long in efforts to win enough money to buy some milk that is pure, some butter that is fresh, some potatoes that are mealy, some apples that are ambrosial and some air that is not surcharged with microbes.

All these the farmer gets in bounteous quantities. And the panorama of gorgeous pictures that is unfolded for his benefit all day long in field, wood and sky, as autumn advances is framed at even fall with the glittering spectacle of the night sky when the advance heralds of the coming cold have picked out in the most brilliant fashion those far-distant worlds strewn like jewels across the canopy of heaven.

And a conceited city man fancies he has the best of the contented and thrifty farmer by going to movies.

The fact is that the farmer who knows his calling and has had fair luck has the city man beaten in every way. Besides the city man couldn't live without the farmer, whereas the farmer could make a pretty fair shift to live without the city man.—Lawrence Telegram.

The Terms Of The Contrtct

Q. I submitted a business proposition to an acquaintance, with the understanding that the offer was to be withdrawn if not accepted within ten days. The ten days elapsed and, as he said nothing about the matter and did not indicate in any way that he was willing to accept my offer, I notified him of its withdrawal. Some time later he informed me that he had made up his mind, during the ten-day period, to accept the proposition and that he considered it binding on me. Is he correct in saying that I am legally bound by the transaction?

A. No, you are not legally bound.

Two In One

Q. I have heard it said that in leap year, the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth of February are legally considered one day. Is this true?

A. They are sometimes so considered. The British Parliament passed a statute of this character many centuries ago, and in some of the states of the American Union there are state laws modeled upon this enactment.

Deaf And Dumb

Q. Is there any reason why a deaf and dumb person should be legally incapacitated to manage property interests?

A. The mere fact that he is deaf and dumb will not of itself be sufficient to incapacitate him.

The School Trustee Resigns

Q. When a school trustee or director wants to resign, are any particular steps or formalities necessary?

A. In some states there are legislative enactments bearing on this question. If the statute prescribes a method, it should be followed. In some jurisdictions, the resignation must be in writing.

Keep Off!

Q. Suppose a hunter, in the course of a chase, should go upon the grounds of another person. Would he be liable for trespass?

A. Yes, unless he had the owner's permission.

Generous!

Q. Does the owner of a building have the right to construct gutters in such a way that they throw rainwater upon the land of a neighbor?

A. No.

Separate Property Rights

Q. In states recognizing separate property rights of married women, may the creditors of the husband have recourse to such property, by way of garnishment? A. No.

Taxes Due

Q. In the event that taxes on a person's land are due and unpaid, isn't there some way to prevent damage to the property on the part of the owner?

A. In some states there are statutes framed for the purpose of preventing the commission of waste in such cases.

Oral Wills

Q. Kindly inform me whether there is such a thing as an oral will.

A. Oral or noncupative wills are recognized in some of the states. They are confined to certain classes and peculiar circumstances and must be reduced to writing within the period prescribed by the statutes of the state.

The Life Line

BY LAURA KIRKMAN

The Tyrannical Husband

His wife reminds one of a frightened rabbit jumping hither and thither at the sound of shots. Anything—anything will she do rather than call forth his bellows of unreasoning anger. A thousand, thousand times will she sacrifice her own will, rather than see once the ominous scowl always so near the surface of his face. And he knows this. Indeed, he wishes this state of affairs to continue. He wants a weak wife! He wants to spend his life with the kind of person he wouldn't choose for a casual friend. He cares not that the community is whispering that he's got a wife that's not much of a woman! He likes to go around out at the elbows.

The Bore

Who hasn't tried to dodge him? He lies in wait for us at every turn. He buttonholes us on our way to business. He calls us up on the telephone at mealtime. He even invades our house. "He said to me," is the badge by which we know him. Though we break away from him a thousand times, he will continue in detail at our next merry meeting. So extremely blind and deaf is he, that there's no danger of his ever becoming dumb. Woe unto him in his hour of loneliness! He needs a rest.

Current Poetry

The Exuberant "Owner"

He always goes up hill on "high,"
And never has to stop;
He's going twenty when he starts
And fifty o'er the top.

He doesn't use much gasolene,
He makes a gallon do
To carry him for twenty miles
And may be twenty-two.

He is an expert driver and
Just cannot lose his poise.
He never worries when he hears
An unaccustomed noise.

In all the years he's owned his car
He's never bought a tire,
But he's no genius, is this man—
He's just a common liar.

Snap Shots

While the jury very seldom convicts the lady who kills her husband, the court proceedings and the attendant publicity always are a little annoying to those of refined minds and sensitive souls.

Every man should be boessd by a woman to the extent of changing his linen regularly.

The man who says a smart thing nearly always insists on repeating it in a louder tone of voice.

A good many people continue to labor under the hallucination that the spending of money constitutes a good time.

Every man follows a bellwether. Who is your bellwether?

"He is the sort of man," said Eph Wiley yesterday, referring to one of his aversions, "who stands in line in front of the box-office of a moving-picture show."

What is your favorite family argument? The favorite argument in the Gaston family is as to where the dog would sleep, if they had a dog.

Eph Wiley says Doc Quigley never received the meed of praise to which he was entitled. "Doc. Quigley," Mr. Wiley says, "was a fine trombone player who steadfastly refrained from giving exhibitions of his skill."

We are always a little suspicious of the reformer who attempts to capitalize a hectic past.

Occasionally a lecturer loses his notes and is unable to proceed, but unfortunately, a singer never loses his music.

Household Hints..

CANDIES.

"Fudgy Fudge"—Four cups powdered sugar, one cup sweet milk, one tablespoon cocoa, one teaspoon butter, flavoring.

Stir sugar and milk until dissolved. Mix in the cocoa, put on to cook; when hot, stir in the butter. Boil until a little bit hardens in cold water, remove from stove, flavor with vanilla or anything you like, then beat it all up until thick. Pour it on buttered plates to get cold.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

To Prepare Clingstone Peaches—Everyone knows clingstones are the best flavored and excellent for canning. Wash and dry them. Take a sharp knife and cut crosswise through to the stone. Then, with hands, twist; one side comes off clean. Then, with small gas pliers, pull stone out. When they are ready for paring and canning, boil up the stones with enough water for juice, which gives a good flavor to fruit.

Peach Marmalade—Eighteen peaches pared and cut in small pieces; one-half lemon, grate and use juice, one orange ground fine and use one cup of sugar for every cup of peaches (equal). Cook slowly until a golden color. Put in glasses and when cold cover with paraffin.

THE TABLE.

Italian Bainco Mangai—Take one pint of milk, sweeten to taste, add a teaspoon of cocoa or melted chocolate (more if desired); to this add one-half teacup of blanched and chopped almonds. Set on stove and let come to a boil; soon as it comes to a boil add three tablespoons cornstarch dissolved in a little cold water. Keep stirring till it thickens (to prevent burning). Pour on a platter while hot and let cool. When cold and firm serve as you would gelatin.

Egg Plant Stuffed with Nuts—Boil egg plant till tender, then cut into halves, scoop out inside, chop it fine, and add following mixture. A cup of chopped English walnuts or hickory-nuts, a tablespoon of bread crumbs, two well beaten eggs, salt and pepper, mix well, fill shell, bake until brown.

Yellow Cake—One and one-half cups sugar (scant), two-thirds cup butter, three eggs, one cup cold water, three teaspoons baking powder, three cups sifted flour, cream sugar and butter together, then add yellows of eggs, now one cup cold water, but baking powder in flour and add. Last add well beaten whites.

Icing—Two cups brown sugar, one cup water, boil until forms soft ball in water, stir slowly into well beaten whites of two eggs.

Green Tomato Pie—Take medium sized tomatoes, pare and cut out the stem end, having your pie pan lined with paste made as biscuit dough, slice tomatoes very thin, filling pan somewhat heaping. Then grate over it a nutmeg, put in half a cup of butter and a cup of sugar. Sprinkle a small handful of flour over all, pouring in half a cup of vinegar before adding top crust. Bake half an hour in moderately hot oven.

Stuffed Tomatoes a la Carolina—Select a dozen round tomatoes of the same size. Remove a piece about an inch in diameter from the blossom end of each and take out the seeds. Cook a cup of rice in a quart of well-seasoned broth, with half a green pepper cut fine. When the rice is nearly tender add four tablespoons of butter and mix thoroughly, but carefully, to avoid breaking the grains of rice; put back the covers, set in a baking dish, stem end down, brush over the outside with melted butter and bake half an hour in moderate oven. Remove carefully to a serving dish and pour around the tomatoes a cup of highly seasoned tomato sauce.

Meringue—Beat the whites very stiff and add two teaspoons powdered sugar. A little lemon juice improves it.

NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by
THE W. C. T. U.

On September 14, by a majority of more than 20,000, South Carolina voted to become the nineteenth dry State, and the law will become effective January 1, 1916. Fourteen counties will close up their dispensaries on that day, and the legal sale of whisky will be forever banished from the Palmetto State. The governor stands for law enforcement; the majority of the legislators in both Senate and House are for prohibition, and every county, wet as well as dry, has given a majority for prohibition except Charleston, which went ten to one for whisky, and Dorchester, which gave a majority of 13 for the dispensary. The Charleston News and Courier and The Columbia State are calling upon the people for the enforcement of the law, and while both these papers stood for local option they will now stand by the prohibition law. The vote cast was about 60,000, a smaller vote than usual, but every man who cast his ballot was required to show his tax receipt, a requirement which had never been exacted before, and many were kept from voting because they had lost or destroyed their tax receipts.

Letter (in part) From a Young Man In Chicago to His White Ribbon Mother.

Election Day was surely a red letter day for Chicago. There was a great prosperity parade, many thousands being in the line of march, and in autos. Clara (his wife) and I both voted for the new mayor, William Hale Thompson. I could relate many interesting stories about the women voters. I am sure Chicago and the State will never regret that women were granted the right of suffrage; they have more than demonstrated their intelligence in the matter of political issues, and if you do not believe they know something about politics and how to conduct a campaign you should see them in action—making speeches, working at the polls, serving as election officials, etc. There must have been a million women who voted; it was the women who elected Thompson.

They Know Too Much.

The brewers should be reminded of the wise saying of Josh Billings, "It is better not to know so much than to know so many things that ain't so." They have been quoting in display type Dr. Harvey W. Wiley as an advocate of their products, making him say, "Beer is a veritable food product. It can truly be termed liquid food."

Unfortunately for the brewers, Dr. Wiley does not seem to recognize the statement as having been made by him, and, in fact, repudiates it in the last issue of Good Housekeeping, and makes the following emphatic statement of his opinion as a food expert:

"Furthermore, in the last few years I have been irresistibly driven to the conclusion that the best thing for the mental and physical health of our people would be the complete abolition of commerce in alcoholic beverages. This conviction makes it doubly irksome for me to see my name continually used to promote the sale of beer as a food."

The new anti-treating regulation in connection with the use and sale of alcoholic drinks goes into effect in London and the surrounding district this week.

It is the most radical and far-reaching effort for the curtailment of drinking yet tried, for it affects nearly 10,000,000 persons, and violations of the regulation are punishable by a fine of $500 and six months in prison. The authorities have given notice that these penalties will be inflicted without mercy on offenders.

The law will curtail the consumption of alcoholic liquors by 50 per cent., and unless it is effective it will be followed by an order shortening the hours of sale. The report of a few days ago that an order had already been drafted for a curtailment of hours, was "premature," according to officials, and there will be no such curtailment until the Board of Control has time to observe the effects of anti-treating.

All cafes, hotels, clubs, and liquor dealers are required to exhibit prominently in their places a copy of the anti-treating ordinance, which says plainly that "each person must give his order and pay for his own drink." The only exception to the rule is that drinks ordered with a full meal may be paid for by a host.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— How the Baby Firefly Got Lost.

He Carried Her Back to Mother Firefly.

"ONCE upon a time," daddy began, "a family of fireflies lived in a big swamp in the brown head of a cattail, where the baby firefly had its home."

"How did the swamp look, daddy?" asked Jack.

"It was flat and wet and full of huge weeds and tall grasses. It had holes in it where men could vanish if they ever strayed into the swamp after dark. For, besides moonbeams, the only light the swamp had was a troupe of lightning bugs that hung their lanterns over the swamps' thick mists. It looked rather wild and unlovely, but underneath its rank weeds grew many kinds of beautiful life, little bugs and strange swamp flowers, while birds raised their babies in the nodding tops of scrubby swamp trees."

"What was the baby firefly's name?" asked Evelyn.

"Flicker. She was a very gauzy, dainty, bright child, and her mother loved her very dearly. Every time she went out to fly among the moonbeams Mrs. Firefly always worried lest a big kingfisher should gobble her up in one mouthful. Being an only child—her brothers and sisters had all been carried away in a big windstorm—Flicker used to play with a young will-o'-the-wisp that lived next door to the firefly's cattail on the underside of a broad leafed meadow rue. Then there were many young glimmers and dragon flies to play with, who, aside from their name, are quite gentle. So that the swamp children used to have the jolliest fun in spite of the young birds, crows and chipmunks that were always hanging around for a full meal."

"It was just like little white children back in colonial times when Indians used to hang around!" cried Jack, who was fond of history.

"Very much like that," said daddy.

"Then one night Baby Flicker vanished. Mother Firefly hunted high and low for her through the swamp, flying here and there in great distress. All the swamp people joined her and ransacked the leaves, mists and grasses till at last they were sure some fat thrush had swallowed her. Then came Mr. Lightning Bug to the rescue. 'Give me my lantern!' he called to his wife. 'These dull swamp bugs don't know how to look for a baby!' So round the swamp he flew with his lantern hung on his left wing, buzzing into flowers and small places with his light. And at last he found Baby Flicker curled up fast asleep on a moonbeam, safe from all swamp dangers. So he took her under his right wing and carried her back to Mother Firefly."

"Was Mother Firefly glad?" asked Evelyn.

"Well, rather," said daddy, giving her a big hug.

Julia Is Worried When She Hears That John's Wife Was Made Jealous by Finding Her Handkerchief.

"Here's your handkerchief, Miss Osgood," said John Sutner, holding out the bit of cambric. "I forgot to give it to you last night after Old Scroggy, the bookkeeper, went out."

"Why don't you call me Julia?" asked the stenographer, holding out her hand for the handkerchief. "We have been working together so long it sounds snippy to hear you say Miss Osgood."

"All right, it suits us." He smiled at the girl standing by the table.

"You must not forget to ask for it next time you doctor my headache. I got into a row about it with Molly."

"A row? Why?" asked the girl in surprise.

"Oh, the blamed thing fell out of my pocket and she found it on the floor. I was in for it all right." John made a grimace.

"Do you mean——" began the girl, then stopped.

"Yes, good old-fashioned jealousy." John shrugged his shoulders and spread out his hands to express how completely he had been misunderstood.

"Is she that kind?" The tone was commiserating in the extreme.

John was silent, but his look spoke volumes. The girl turned slowly toward her desk, and the rattle of her typewriter alone broke the silence.

"I don't like to have your wife jealous of me," finally broke the pause.

"Forget it," counseled John Sutner easily. "She must fuss about something. A handkerchief is a harmless thing to row about."

The girl was again silent and sat with her hands in her lap, looking out of the window.

"Don't misunderstand," said John after a pause. "My wife and I get along as well as the average, I suppose. I can read her like a book, but she doesn't understand me. That's nothing unusual, however. Believe me, the instances where marriage is unending bliss are few and far between."

"I'm not the kind of girl to make trouble between married people. I want her to know that." Julia was disturbed.

John laughed. "All right, I'll tell her that. It will set her mind at rest."

The girl's face flushed. "You are laughing at me," she blazed.

"Indeed I am not. I prize your good opinion too highly, but you can see for yourself how hopeless it is to try to change a woman's opinion about any such thing. Anything I could say would only make matters worse." As the girl did not reply he continued: "I must live down the shame of having used your handkerchief, wet with smelling salts to cure my headache, and then, worst of all, of having forgotten to return it."

The girl smiled. "Do you think you will be able to do that?" she asked.

"In time. It's a help to know that you understand me, and believe in my good intentions." He looked earnestly at her.

"I wish I could help, really, you know." She smiled across the table and fell to work.

"It's a big help to have some one believe in you. Maybe you don't believe it, but it's so." As her eyes met his he thought: "What honest eyes the girl has."

Julia felt uneasy, and worked steadily without looking up for a long time. She was conscious of Sutner's eyes upon her very often, and the knowledge helped to keep her disturbed.

As she was about to leave for home that night, he extended his hand, saying, "I am sorry I said anything about that handkerchief. It has worried you. Really, there is nothing to worry about. I wouldn't have distressed you for the world."

"We'll say nothing more about it," she said and smiled.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every one should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

WHITE HOPES TO PULL OFF ONE REAL FIGHT

Coffey and Moran to Contend for Chance at Jess Willard.

At last credulous fight fans are to gaze on a battle between "white hopes" that will be something more than an exhibition of the art which Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle have made famous.

When Jim Coffey and Frank Moran enter the ring tonight at Madison Square Garden in New York they will go to fight, for the winner will be in line for a punch at Jess Willard and a chance to share in the splitting of more than one big purse. The match is for the purpose of picking a contender for Willard's crown as heavyweight champion, and to prove a drawing card one of the men who fight tonight must win by a clear margin.

A battle that will put Kipling's famous row in Silver's Theayter in the shade is almost certain to be waged. Coffey boxes with all the fury of the Irish that has been told in song and story since Red Handed Hugh first landed on the shores of the Emerald Isle. Moran, with the experience of years of hard fighting, is less impetuous but none the less determined and courageous. He has never disappointed in any of his matches, and with a chance to gain a fight with Willard should he emerge victorious he will give one of his best. And that same prize will urge Coffey on to perform prodigies in pugilism.

Coffey will undoubtedly enter the ring a pronounced favorite, but this is due to the fact that his admirers are a bit prone to allow their sentiment to swamp their cold judgment. It is true that the Roscommon lad has swept along in famous style during the last year, but he is young in the game, and the men he defeated were mostly of minor importance. Moran has met many of the topnotchers, and always made a bitter resistance.

LEGORE AND OTHERS SUSPENDED AT YALE

University's Athletic Hopes Given a Crushing Blow by Decision.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—Yale's football and baseball hopes for this season received a crushing blow yesterday when Harry LeGore, the football and baseball star; Captain Milburn, of the baseball team, and Phelps, Easton and Rhett, of the varsity nine, were declared ineligible because of playing summer baseball the past season at Quogue, L. I., and disqualified from all future competition in Yale athletics.

The Yale Eligibility Committee took this action after long deliberation. The five athletes violated the intercollegiate agreement by accepting their board without charge for a part of the summer.

The matter has been given serious consideration by the Yale authorities for several weeks, and the fact that LeGore's eligibility might be questioned has been one reason that he has been kept on the second team. It was thought that because the violation was plainly technical, it might be waived by the authorities of Princeton and Harvard, but in the case of the former this was not done, and LeGore and the other baseball men are definitely barred from all college athletics.

LeGore is a junior and the greatest football back since Ted Coy. With two more years it was expected he would be one of the greatest stars that ever played. He went to Lafayette for a year before coming to Yale in 1913.

Last year, as a sophomore, he was the star of the varsity. He has done the varsity punting, drop kicking and most of the carrying of the ball. He is a hard and fearless player and world doubtless have been elected captain of the varsity football team next year had it not been for today's action by the Yale authorities. LeGore is socially prominent and chairman of the Junior "Prom" committee, the chief undergraduate honor.

The action of the committee means that Yale will have to find an entirely new baseball team and a new captain, Milburn having been one of the offenders.

GOLF COURSE TO BE CLOSED.

The officers of the Park Golf Club announced today that the clubhouse and golf course will be closed all day tomorrow out of respect for the memory of Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, whose death occurred at "Oakmont," Hydewood Park, yesterday. The club grounds adjoin the estate of Mr. Hyde.

COLORED FOOTBALL TEAM FOR THE CITY

Strong Forces to Have Fine Schedule of Games This Year.

The 1915 football season has brought out some good material, a fact that is exhibited by the announcement that the Apollo football team, which is made up of colored pigskin artists of this city and vicinity, will open its season in New York city Saturday afternoon, taking on the colored Y. M. C. A. of the metropolis. The Apollo club is not an entirely new organization, having played last year under the name of the Orioles.

The coach of this year's outfit has expressed himself as being well pleased with the work of his new charges. On the other hand the boys feel that they have been unusually successful in obtaining the services of Coach "Doc" Durrah, who is a graduate of Howard University. The manager of the team is C. G. Hobson, and, he, through the newspapers, has issued a chalenge to any gridiron team in this section.

Up to date Manager Hobson has scheduled some strong attractions, but unfortunately, most of the hard games will be played away from home. One game, that with the Princeton Y. M. C. A., will be played on Parker Field Election Day. Last year the Apollos played the Princeton outfit and defeated it 6 to 0. Bruce Williams, a former Royal Giant baseball player and a football artists of note, is now a member of the Princeton squad.

Games have already been arranged with the Lincoln University of Lincoln, Pa., Princeton Y. M. C. A., Somerville, New Brunswick, New York Y. M. C. A. and the Cheyney School, of Cheyney, Pa. The local team will travel to Pennsylvania to tackle both the Lincolns and the Cheyney School artists.

Of late a large number of candidates have been reporting to Coach Durrah and from this band an unusually strong eleven can surely be picked. However, just at present, the following will be the lineup when the opening tilt begins: Roberts, le; Coleman, rg; Saunders, lg; Barnes, rt; Somerville, c; Pollard, lg; Gibbs, lt; Moore, rt; Maiden, qb; Kline, lhb; Johnson, rhb; Robertson, fb. The following are "subs:" "Wes" Saunders, "Nate" Clay and "Mills" Barnes.

EXPECT LITTLE TROUBLE WITH NEW BRUNSWICK

New Brunswick High School football warriors will be the attraction at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, when they line up against Coach Patch's charges. The locals do not expect much trouble in returning a winner, but will start their game with the strongest lineup.

Alpaugh and Daniels have about recovered from minor injuries received in the Westfield game and will be back at the two halfs.

DINNER TO ABE YAGER.

Friends of Abe Yager, who has just finished his thirtieth year of continual service with The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, during most of which time he has been sporting editor, gave him a testimonial dinner at the Imperial in Brooklyn last night, more than 300 people being seated in the banquet hall.

In addition to the representatives of the baseball world, there were more than 400 diners, representing practically every branch of sport, as well as a large delegation from the sporting staffs of the various metropolitan papers. The toastmaster was Arthur M. Howe, managing editor of The Eagle.

FEDS LOSE BACKER IN ROBERT B. WARD

Lover of Sport, and One of Good Men in Baseball.

While the Federal League has lost, because of the death of Robert B. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Federal League club, one of its most ardent supporters and financial backers, it was said by P. T. Powers, of the Newark Federal League club, last night, that there would probably be no change in the baseball situation in Brooklyn, and that George S. Ward, brother of the late president of the Brooklyn club, would probably carry on the baseball enterprise.

Mr. Powers expressed his deep sorrow at the death of Mr. Ward. He stated that the latter had been one of the most ardent lovers of baseball that he ever knew, and that all the Federal League folks had learned to admire and love him. The news of Mr. Ward's death came to Mr. Powers not entirely as a surprise, for the Brooklyn man has been known to be seriously ill and his demise was regarded as inevitable. Mr. Powers says that Mr. Ward has been in ill health for some time.

When the Wards, backers of their famous bread enterprise, decided to go into baseball, the Federal League received its first big boost. The Brooklyn baseball plant is constructed on generous lines, and all the plans that have been carried out by the Wards have been along the same "big league" policies.

SOUTH AMBOY GIRLS TO STAR AT BASKETBALL

South Amboy fans are looking this year towards the students of the gentler sex to uphold the South Amboy High School's honor in athletics, and judging by reports that emanate from the Knights of Pythias' Hall after the various practices, the girls are going to "make good" on the basketball court this season. Tempting offers from the Du Pont Company have sadly depleted the ranks of the boy students of the school, and although the masculine exponents of the court game will be represented by a quintet, the girls are liable to make the best record on the court—at least that's what Miss Marion Thom, manager of the team, says.

Mr. Gordon E. James, formerly star forward of the Pratt Institute five, is acting as coach, and he is being assisted by Newell James, captain of the boys' team. Under such able tuition the tossers are making rapid progress, and it is even said that the girls are now able to make a basket without getting excited and clapping their hands about it—the last mark of proficiency to be attained by a female team.

The following list of aspirants shows that there is plenty of fine basketball material from which to mould the quintet this year: Misses Ruth Newton, Marion Thom, Geneva McIver, Vera French, Helen Parker, Mildred Magee, Marion Greene, Mabel Lott and Elsie Applegate.

DUNNING AND CHANDLER IN TENNIS FINALS TODAY

Playing true to form, Sydney Dunning defeated LeRoy Force in the semi-final round of the N. P. H. S. tennis tournament and will meet Sherman Chandler in the finals this afternoon. Although it required three sets to vanquish his opponent, the winner, after dropping the first set at 3-6, hit his stride and won the last two in a decisive fashion, the scores being 6-2, 6-3.

Force, although defeated, played a creditable game and made his conquerer work for every point. Dunning's terrific service, aided by admirable net work, staved off the attack of his opponent, who was unable to pass him up at net.

The match this afternoon will decide the champion of the school, who will receive a cup for his efforts.

BASEBALL TOUR BEGINS.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Baseball stars of the American and National Leagues began arriving here Sunday preparatory to departure tonight on a tour of the northwest and west as the All-American and All-National teams. Frank Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati Reds, will be in charge of the players. The teams will line up as follows:

Americans.

Klepfer, Ayres, James and Harper, pitchers; Henry and Cady, catchers; Hoblitzel, first base; Mullen, second base; W. Schang, third base; Shanks, shortstop; Walker, Roth and Strunk, outfielders; Pipp, utility.

Nationals.

Coombs, Alexander, Pfeffer and Vaughn, pitchers; Miller and McCarty, catchers; Daubert, first base; Evers, second base; Groh, third base; Fisher, shortstop; Carey, Wade Killefer and Magee, outfielders.

The players will be entertained at the California Exposition. The tour is due to end on November 23.

12 TEAMS EXPECTED IN K. C. LEAGUE

Bowlers Are Showing Unusual Interest Over Columbus Circuit.

It is anticipated that twelve teams will roll in the Knights of Columbus Bowling League. At a meeting in the Columbus Club, Newark, it was said that several aggregations, other than those expected, now desire to be enrolled. The teams whose entries have been filed are as follows: Plainfield, New Brunswick, Hoboken, Bayley, three from Jersey City, namely, Paulus Hook, Conception and Ascension Councils, and Bayonne. If more than twelve councils wish to roll they will find a rule preventing their entry from being accepted. The delegates yesterday thought that a dozen teams will be sufficient. Westfield Council may have a team in the competition, while two Newark Councils are expected. At Sunday's meeting William Leary, of Newark, was elected president. The other officials were not picked. John Hastings, of Bayley Council, will be elected secretary at the next meeting, Sunday, October 24.

DON'TS FOR THOSE WHO GO HUNTING

How to Keep From Killing Fellow Hunters in the Field.

The fall gunning season is about on, and every year the hunting brings with it its spoils in the form of human sacrifices. For the benefit of gunners who are planning to go after game this fall, the following list of don'ts is given:

Don't take any chances. The function of a shotgun is to scatter shot, but be very careful where you scatter it.

Don't blaze away in haste and don't get excited. Many a shooter has filled his favorite dog full of lead just because he was over-anxious.

Don't point a gun at anyone even in jest. It is always the gun that "we didn't know was loaded" that goes off and does the damage. The only time to point a gun is when you intend to kill.

Don't take every rustle of a bush or a bough to be a sure indication of game. Remember sometimes an inquisitive person has a penchant for being in strange places.

Don't carry a loaded gun through the streets or on cars, trains, automobiles, or any other kind of vehicle or leave it around farm-houses to have some child playfully blow a head off.

Don't get excited and shoot without making sure that your object is game.

Don't shoot until you see the rabbit, and then be sure that he is clear of both man and dog.

Don't drag a gun under a fence with the muzzle pointed toward you.

Don't climb over fences with your gun or lean it against a tree until you get over. Put it through the fence and on the ground business end before.

Don't hunt with any one that you know to be careless. Carelessness with three and a quarter drams of powder behind and one and one-eighth ounces of shot is inviting "sure death."

Don't load your gun until you are actually ready for business. At all other times it should be empty. Keep your finger off the trigger until you are looking down the barrel at your game.

Don't use a cheap gun, as it is apt to explode when a heavy charge is used.

Don't borrow a dog or gun or loan either.

Don't rest on the muzzle of your gun.

Don't violate the game laws. It is not only criminal but sometimes very costly.

Don't "hog" all the game. Leave a little behind for the next fellow.

Don't rest the muzzle of your gun on the ground. A gun muzzle clogged with dirt or mud is a dangerous proposition.

SOMERVILLE HIGH TEAM IS DISBANDED

The football team of the Somerville High School has disbanded for the season, hence the game which the Plainfield High School had scheduled for Saturday, October 30, is off. The Plainfield eleven will probably play at Asbury Park on October 30.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

An interesting program, including motion pictures, has been prepared for the men of the Presbyterian, Reformed and Congregational churches, who will be the guests of the association this evening at 8 o'clock. All the privileges, including game rooms, gymnasium and pool, will also be available and it is hoped a large number will be present.

Reports submitted at the meeting of the executive committee of the coming membership campaign shows considerable progress has been made during the past week. Most of the captains have been selected and these in turn have signed up many of the team workers. It is again urged that the postal cards still in the hands of the members will be sent in without delay.

Details are about complete for the Bible Study Rally to be held on October 25th. W. D. Murray, leader of the "Teacher Training" class for men, will outline his course, which is to include not only those who are teaching at the present time but all who might be looking forward to such service. J. T. Sproul, president of the Coal and Iron National Bank of New York, will make a short address and the men of the different Bible schools are earnestly requested to be present.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF BAYONNE CATHOLIC CHURCH

Bishop John J. O'Connor, of the Newark diocese and many prominent priests assisted Sunday in the fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of St. Mary's church, Bayonne, the first Catholic church in that city. A solemn mass was celebrated in the morning by Mgr. Isaac P. Whelan, pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, a former pastor of the Bayonne church. The sermon was delivered by Mgr. James Mooney, president of Seton Hall College. In the evening vespers were celebrated by the Rev. Charles Doyle, of Bayonne, and Mgr. Charles Mackel, of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Elizabeth, delivered the sermon. The celebration will continue today and tomorrow.

St. Mary's church, of which the Rev. Andrew M. Egan, is pastor, numbers 6,500 members and is one of the largest in the diocese. Father Egan, prior to this transfer to the Bayonne congregation was the pastor of St. Mary's church, in Plainfield.

LARGE COLLECTION OF LINCOLN RELICS SOLD

New York, Oct. 19.—The largest collection of printed material about Abraham Lincoln ever offered for sale was put on exhibition today at the Anderson Galleries. It is Part 1 of the library of John E. Burton, of Milwaukee, and will be sold on the afternoons of October 25 to 29. There are in the collection nearly all the biographies of Lincoln, several in foreign languages; hundreds of sermons, eulogies, and memorial addresses, some of which are unknown to bibliographers; many portraits, relics and medals, and a great quantity of miscellaneous matter. The only known copy of the pamphlet entitled "Reasons Against the Renomination of Abraham Lincoln" is among them. Lincoln's last order for a pardon and a copy of the Emancipation Proclamation, signed by Lincoln and Seward, are other destrable items. In a letter by Mrs. Lincoln she denies a report that she was to marry again. Other relics are a lock of his hair, a gold watch key and cane and umbrella handles owned by him; an inkstand used in his Springfield office; part of the coat he was wearing when shot; a gold ring of his with a secret compartment containing a lock of hair. There is also in the collection the Lincoln-Brooner rifle owned jointly by Lincoln and Henry Brooner, and used by them in their hunting excursions until 1830.

SOME NEW "SAFETY FIRST" IDEAS ARE SUGGESTED

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—The convention of the "Safety First Federation of America," which meets here today, will consider an interesting report of the transportation committee, outlining its ideas of the policies and activities for the year. Here are some of the suggestions:

The near-side stop for street cars, with the recommendation that the committee encourage municipal ordinances to effect same.

Suitable regulations for the operation of jitney busses, under municipal and State laws.

Designation of safety zones and crosswalks for the use of pedestrians.

Educating the public to cross the street at the regular crossings, and urging the centralization of authority with the police departments for directing pedestrian travel.

The exclusive use of siren whistles on police and fire vehicles.

A standard form for reporting accidents by municipalities.

The elimination of glaring head and side lights upon motor vehicles, in populated districts.

Steps on all horse-drawn vehicles and on motor trucks to be eliminated.

The standardization of hand signals by traffic officers.

A nation-wide educational campaign relative to the dangers at grade crossings and trespassing on railroad property.

25TH ANNIVERSARY.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Ten thousand Baraca-Philathea classes in the United States will begin tomorrow the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first Baraca class in the United States. The first class was organized in this city on October 29, 1890, by Marshall A. Hudson, who now heads the entire organization. The Baraca class, with its sister organization, the Philatheas, is said to be the largest Sunday-school organization in the United States, having over a million members. The anniversary exercises will come to an end on Sunday next, when special devotional exercises will take place in the various churches throughout the country.

BUFFALO BILL HITS TRAIL.

Cody, Wyo., Oct. 19.—A unique hunting party, headed by Buffalo Bill, the famous old scout and showman, will leave here tomorrow for a great hunt in the wilds of this State. Col. Cody will be accompanied by many famous hunters, and the party will be three weeks on the trails. It is said that this trip marks the last trip of the veteran hunter and scout into his beloved mountains. He will be seventy years old in February next, and has led an interesting and active life for over a half century.

CLENDENING TO FIGHT.

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—Former Attorney-General Hogan has been retained to defend Byron L. Clendening, Democratic member of the State Liquor Licensing Board, to fight the charges filed by Governor Frank B. Willis, which will come up for hearing tomorrow. Clendening will fight any attempt to remove him, and says he will carry the fight into the courts if necessary.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.—Adv.

IMPROVED POSTAL SERVICE WANTED

East End Civic Ass'n at Annual Meeting Seek Additional Mail Deliveries.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Question of Better Police Protection is Discussed and Progress is Reported in Matter of Securing New School Building.

The East End Civic Association held a well attended and most enthusiastic meeting last evening in the Netherwood Reformed church. It was the first annual meeting of the organization, and the election of officers was one of the important matters of business. The following were chosen unanimously:

President, Rev. Edward S. Ralston; first vice president, L. V. F. Randolph; second vice president, Charles S. Sminck; secretary, Arthur R. Humble; treasurer, George D. Merkle; executive commitee, the officers, and Messrs. Horace J. Martin, Captain Charles A. Peterson, Edward W. Hughes, Avery A. Newman and William B. Marchand.

The report of the treasurer together with contributions made at this meeting showed a substantial sum in the treasury for the beginning of the year's work. The president reviewed the work of the past year, showing the substantial work done by the association, its large and growing membership making it a power that must be heard regarding the needs and growth of the East End of the city, and its united and enthusiastic spirit giving great promise for the coming year.

L. V. F. Randolph spoke earnestly concerning the work to be done in that section of the city, and especially regarding better police protection. Charles S. Sminck spoke of the possibilities of the association, and of the needs of the East End that can be met by the united and hearty co-operation of all the residents.

Edward W. Hughes brought a cheering report concerning the progress of the efforts of the association to secure a new school, showing that this had now received the unanimous endorsement of the Board of Education, and seemed practically assured for next year. This success he attributed to the existence and work of the East End Civic Association. The president followed Mr. Hughes' report with the statement that the success in the matter was largely due to the patient and persistent work of Mr. Hughes.

The question of better postal facilities was brought before the meeting by Mrs. William Sharpe. It was shown that where until recently a large part of this section had two mail deliveries a day, now it was getting but one and that not until late in the morning. A resolution was adopted that the association take up the matter with the postmaster, and if necessary with the Postmaster General in Washington.

REV. DR. B. M. TIPPLE DISCUSSES EUROPEAN WAR

A large audience gathered last night in the First Methodist church to listen to an illustrated lecture on "Italy in the Great War," by Rev. Dr. B. M. Tipple, superintendent of Methodist work in Italy and president of the Methodist College, Italia Collegio.

Dr. Tipple accompanied his remarks with lantern slides and said that while people often asked why Italy entered the war, the surprising part was how she managed to keep out of the struggle for ten long months. He described conditions in Italy, the Italian soldier and Italian architecture. He also told of the work which his college is accomplishing for the Italian people and for Italy.

Dr. Tipple is an able speaker and the large audience scarcely missed a remark while each picture was carefully studied as it was thrown on the canvas.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES TO HOLD STREET MEETING

Patrick J. Reville, William A. Leonard and Robert Meek, Democratic candidates for the Union County Assembly offices, and Charles P. Senger, Theodore Martin and Seymour Perkins, Democratic candidates for the Common Council, will be the speakers tonight at a mass meeting to be held at the juncture of Park and Park avenues at 8 o'clock, and later at Madison avenue and West Front street.

The Jefferson Democratic Club has charge of the arrangements for the event and the meeting will be the first of its kind prior to the general election.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY EVENT OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Duchesne Celebrate Anniversary at Home in the Borough.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Duchesne, on Watchung avenue, the borough, was the scene of a merry gathering of young people last night, the affair being in the nature of a double celebration. It marked the birthday anniversary of the host and hostess's daughter, Miss Bernadette Duschene, and also a welcome to the Misses Salze, of Gloversville, New York, who are spending a short time in Plainfield as the guests of their cousins, the Misses Mary and Leontine Texier. One of the visitors, Miss Adele Salze, has just returned from France, where she has been visiting an uncle for the past three years, and her two sisters came to New York on the arrival of the steamer.

There were about twenty-five young people in last night's party and a general good time was had with an informal program of cards, dancing and refreshments. The home was appropriately decorated for the occasion.

Miss Adele Salze was the center of attraction throughout the evening and because of her familiarity with scenes in the European war zone was plied with numerous questions. She gave a most interesting account of her experiences while abroad, stating that on numerous occasions they were very exciting.

Several times she was mistaken for a girl of German descent and was almost mobbed before relatives and friends fully satisfied the excited throngs to her identity and nativity and she saw much of the maneuvers of troops both to and from the front and in a vivid manner portrayed the sights and scenes incident to her departure from the French port for America. Miss Salze went abroad in company with the Misses Texier. But the latter returned before the outbreak of the present hostilities.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. L. K. HYDE

Many Relatives and Friends Attend Obsequies at "Oakmont," Hydewood Park.

The funeral service of Mrs. Louis K. Hyde was held at the late home, "Oakmont," Hydewood Park, at noon today and was largely attended by relatives and friends, many coming from Titusville, Pa., the former home of Mrs. Hyde, as well as Trenton, New York, the Oranges and other places in the State.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Hyde was a member, was in charge of the service. He read the opening sentences, gave the invocation and repeated the Lord's Prayer. Rev. Dr. Stevenson, of Yonkers, N. Y., a former pastor of Mrs. Hyde at Titusville, read Psalm 90-23, after which Carl Dufft, of New York, sang impressively "Crossing the Bar."

Dr. Zelie read the Scripture, Psalm 14, after which Rev. Samuel Semple, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Titusville, of which Mrs. Hyde was a former member, read the Scripture and also made a few remarks. A prayer by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton preceded the singing of "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," by Mr. Dufft. The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Zelie.

There was a beautiful collection of floral tributes, including those from the City National Bank, of which Mr. Hyde is president, and the many relatives and friends of Mrs. Hyde. The bier was completely covered with a blanket of sunset roses. The burial which was in the family mausoleum in Hillside cemetery, was private at the convenience of the relatives. There was a short service at the cemetery.

MARGIN OF 841 IN CITY'S VOTE

All Three Amendments Turned Down in Plainfield by Good Majorities.

MANY VOTES ARE CAST

Suffragettes Received Returns at Depot Avenue Headquarters—Tabulated Resume—2939 Votes Are Polled.

Plainfield voters cast a majority of 841 in favor of the anti-suffrage workers in yesterday's special election and also returned majortities against the constitutional amendment and the excess condemnation proposition. The constitutional amendment was defeated by a majority of 245 votes and the excess condemnation issue was snowed under by 669 ballots.

Everyone of the city's four wards went overwhelmingly against the suffrage amendment, the closest contest being in the Second ward, where the majority amounted to but 135 votes. The biggest majority was given by the Fourth ward, the difference in the vote being 299.

In only one instance was one of the three issues carried in a ward, the Second ward polling 373 votes to 356 votes in favor of the constitutional amendment.

If the little squad of workers that received returns at suffrage headquarters last night had been caught by a movie camera, captions in the picture when shown might read as follows: "Elation-Consternation-Indignation-Resignation."

The watchers, runners and others who labored during the entire day at the polls reported to their chairmen early in the evening, elated with the day's work.

All of the workers had become resigned to defeat before 10 o'clock, and they waited merely to see what the final majority would be.

Official reports filed at various county headquarters throughout the State today show that the majority of votes cast against the suffrage amendment at yesterday's election totaled 48,711. But one county returned a vote in favor of the amendment and this was so insignificant that suffragettes today think it hardly worth mentioning. COURT UPHOLDS RUNKLE WILL Chancellor Walker Sustains Decision of Judge William P. Martin.

EXECUTOR IS NAMED

Randolph Rodman Will Take Charge of Estate—Caveat Filed by H. G. Runkle, of This City, is Set Aside by the Court.

Chancellor Walker, as ordinary of the Prerogative Court, in Trenton, yesterday handed down a decision sustaining the Essex County Orphan's Court in admitting to probate a will and codicil of the late William Runkle, of Orange, brother of Harry G. Runkle, of this city.

It was also ordered that letters testimentary be issued to Randolph Rodman, of South Orange, who will serve as executor. The name of William E. R. Smith was in the will as executor, but it was found to have been written over a chemical erasure of Mr. Rodman's name.

On October 8, 1914, Judge William P. Martin held there was no evidence to show whether or not the substitution of names of the executor was made before or after the execution of a codicil by Mr. Runkle April 29, 1913, the will having been executed May 11, 1912. Judge Martin concluded that the inference in absence of proof to the contrary, was that the substitution was made afterward and that Mr. Rodman, therefore, must be named as executor.

The estate of William Runkle amounts to about $2,000,000.

A caveat was filed against admitting the will to probate by Harry G. Runkle. The respondents were William E. R. Smith, Elizabeth Haines, Edith J. Adams, George McM. Godley, Carrie R. Scholfield, Charles P. Scholfield, the college board of the Presbyterian church of the United States, William H. Hulick and Randolph Rodman.

It was shown at the hearing that the first sheet of the will was not only separated from the remainder of the testament, the discovery being made after Mr. Runkle's death, January 31, 1914, but it was also established that the testator had written the new page after originally executing the will. The court held, however, that the separate sheet, having been written prior to the execution of the codicil, that the consummation of the latter act on the part of the testator constituted a republication or re-execution of the entire testament.

Under the ruling the court is also sustained in its cancellation of a bequest of $25,000 to Charles I. Scholfield, of New York.

DEGREES CONFERRED AT CLASS INITIATION

Freedom Castle, K. G. E. Add Twenty-two New Members to the Roll.

Twenty-one members were added last night to Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at a class initiation, which was planned in a small way, but developed into a large and important lodge event. Members of the Grand Castle were present, also visitors from Whitehouse, Farmingdale, Trenton and from other places.

The opening ceremonies were in charge of members of Freedom Commandery, uniformed rank, who made an impressive appearance in their new uniforms, which they used for the first time. Twenty-two candidates in all were initiated, twenty-one being from Plainfield and one from Whitehouse.

Among the visitors were: Grand Chief Cook, of Point Pleasant; Keeper of Records Clark and Past Grand Chief Farrell, of Trenton. The Farmingdale delegation made the forty-five mile trip to Plainfield by auto.

After the lodge work was completed the meeting adjourned to Ritz's dining rooms, where a banquet was served. Covers were laid for 150, but the number at the table was 120, as some of the visitors had to leave for home at the close of the lodge work.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by the visiting grand officers and visiting members. Freedom Castle is now in its fourteenth year and from a small beginning it has grown to a membership of 271, while its finances are in a prosperous condition.

MAYOR BELIEVES TIME IS NOT RIPE

Says New Jersey Women Do Not Yet Seek Political Activity.

Asked for his views on the result of yesterday's election by a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mayor Leighton Calkins, an ardent suffrage worker, said:

"I have not had time yet to study the returns; but one's first impression from the overwhelming defeat of the suffrage amendment, is that it tends to show that there is not yet in New Jersey a preponderance of sentiment among women themselves for political activity. I say this because I believe that when men are satisfied that, to some substantial degree, more women favor suffrage than are opposed to it, they will not obstruct the reform.

"I think most men have not decided the question in their minds according to logic or abstract justice. They have looked at it in a very general sort of way—and have been guided by certain practical considerations. First, they have satisfied themselves that women, as a whole, are not keen for the vote. Then they have figured out that suffrage would cost the State perhaps $150,000 more a year, in the expense of conducting elections. Next, they were influenced by the fact that the immediate effect would be to complicate all our problems on public questions by adding thousands of untrained voters to the body electorate. And finally, they felt that it would be safer to defeat the amendment, because it can later be adopted if time proves it advisable to do so, wheras there would be a burning of bridges behind us if the step were taken now."

MANY ENTERTAINED BY B. P. O. E. LODGE

Visiting Elks Gathered in Plainfield Clubhouse Last Night for Bazaar.

Another throng of pleasure seekers flocked to the home of the Plainfield Elks on Watchung avenue last night to partake of the second night's program of the week's bazaar. Many visiting delegations were on hand to assist the local antlered tribe in the festivities and last night's success eclipsed that of the opening night. A larger patronage helped to liven up the varied program of novelties and the heads of the different departments had excellent reports to make at the conclusion of the evening.

Dancing was again a leading attraction, excellent terpsichorean music being furnished by Harry Wetton's orchestra. Another large gathering of State Elks is expected at tonight's festivities and several added attractions have been promised by the general committee.

The guests included Drs. T. H. Tomlinson, Ellis W. and B. VanD. Hedges, A. F. VanHorn, F. J. Hughes, J. H. Carman, W. H. Anthony, W. H. Murray, Marcus L. Clawson and Dr. Gray, of Muhlenberg Hospital.

NON-SUPPORT COMPLAINT DISMISSED BY THE COURT

Because the wife, who was appearing in the role of complainant, refused to take William Groves, her husband, back to live with her when he offered his support, City Judge DeMeza dismissed the non-support charge against Groves when he was arraigned in the police court this morning. Mrs. Groves, who has one small girl and another daughter, twenty-two years of age, left her husband some time ago and went to live in Westfield, where she owns a house.

Several days ago she filed a complaint with Overseer of the Poor Garret T. Dunham, alleging that her husband had failed to support her. In police court this morning Groves said that he had made several attempts to go back to his wife but in each instance she had repulsed him. Asked by the court if she would take him back the woman flatly refused. Groves, who is employed by the New Jersey Central as a baggage man at the local station, bears an excellent reputation here and the court referred to him as an honest and conscientious person who was striving to make good.

HIGH EXPLOSIVES.

Making Them Is a Very Delicate and Complex Process.

Almost all the high explosives have cotton as their base. It is true that very good sporting powder can be made from wood pulp; but, as the editor of Nature remarks, "the artillerist would be in great difficulty if he were provided with such a propellant, because in order to obtain any sort of regularity the nitration of the wood pulp has to be kept at a low point, and the ballistics, on which the artillerist depends, would be quite thrown out."

High explosives are cellulose highly nitrated—that is, highly charged with nitrogen. This process consists of immersing cotton waste (that has been repeatedly teasled, picked and dried) in a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids, in the proportion of 71 per cent sulphuric acid, 21 per cent nitric acid and 8 per cent water. After the acids have acted for the required time they are removed. The cotton is washed repeatedly and boiled several times in water. It is then pulped, partly dried and pressed into molds.

The manufacturer does his best to regulate his output, so that it shall contain approximately eleven molecules of nitrate to the quadruple molecule of cellulose, as shown in the formula, or a content of nitrogen that ranges between 12.93 and 13.05 per cent.

The process is delicate and complex, for the proportions of acids and water must be exact and all must be chemically pure. Besides this, the cellulose must be of uniform grade, which is a most difficult thing to obtain.

INDIA'S QUEER BELIEFS.

Buddhists Would Die Rather Than Lose a Limb or Eat Meat.

India's population is 325,000,000. Practically all the races and religions of the world are represented. Ninety-eight and six-tenths per cent of the people cannot read or write. Four per cent of the inhabitants eat regular meals. The remainder eat when they can and where they can. The average native in India lives on less food per diem than any other human being in the world. Religious prejudices are intense. Men willingly die rather than submit to some dismembering surgical operation, for did not Allah command them to appear before him as they left him to come into the world?

The Buddhists will not eat meat or take even a medicine derived from an animal. They died by millions during the bubonic plague rather than take a prophylactic serum made from pepsin and beef broth—because the pig from which pepsin was obtained was unclean to the Mohammedan and Hindu, and the killing of this animal and the bull from which the broth was made was against the tenets of the Buddhistic faith. I knew an editor in Poona, India, to absolutely refuse a $3,000 yearly advertisement of a patent medicine because it contained pepsin.

Indians are fond of sweets and last year imported over $40,000,000 worth of sugar. Clothing is made chiefly from cotton, which is largely grown in the country.—W. E. Aughinbaugh in Leslie's.

When You "See Stars."

The man who when struck violently on the head says he "saw stars" is not far from telling the truth. The fact is that there is a phosphorescent power in the eye which does not attract a person's attention under ordinary conditions, but which is distributed and reveals itself whenever the head gets a sudden shock and sometimes even in the act of sneezing. A blow on the head results in a pressure of the blood vessels upon the retina, causing either total darkness or a faint blue light which floats before the eyes, and it is in this faint blue light the imagination discerns the thousands of fantastic forms and figures that by general acceptance are termed stars; hence, while the astronomical display so frequently mentioned may be said to be entirely a creature of the imagination, there is at least some foundation for the idea.

Tibetan Penal Code.

The Tibetan penal code is curious. Murder is punished with a fine varying according to the importance of the slain, theft by a fine of seven to one hundred times the value of the article stolen. Here, again, the fine depends on the social importance of the person from whom the theft has been committed. The harborer of a thief is looked upon as a worse criminal than the thief himself. Ordeals by fire and by boiling water are still used as proofs of innocence or guilt, exactly as was the custom in Europe in the middle ages. And if the lamas never inflict death they are adepts at torture.

Literary.

"Oh, I simply adore Meredith and Browning and Henry James," said the gushing young person.

"So do I," said Little Binks. "They are perfectly delightful. It's like sending your mind to a gymnasium. Er—do you read them in the original?"—New York Times.

CABINET CRISIS CAUSED BY SHARP DIFFERENCES

London, Oct. 20.—England's present cabinet crisis was caused by sharp differences of opinion over the Dardanelles campaign and the government's Balkan policy. This was revealed by Sir Edward Carson when he made known his reasons for resigning the post of attorney general. Mr. Carson stated that he resigned because of his inability to agree with the other members of the cabinet on questions arising as to the operations on Gallipoli Peninsula and in the Balkans.

Mr. Carson stated his position in the House of Commons. He made it clear that the cause of his resignation was not the aim of defeating Germany, but the manner in which it should be done most quickly and most successfully. There is not and never has been in the cabinet, in parliament or in the country, he said, any disagreement as to the necessity of carrying on the war with all sacrifices to a final and conclusive issue.

LEADERS' DISTRICT FIRST WITH NEWS

North Plainfield Township Threw Bomb in Suffrage Camp With Big Vote.

Suffrage enthusiasts received their first shock of the evening shortly after 7 o'clock last night when the Daily Press announced the downfall of the amendment in North Plainfield township, the home district of Mrs. Lillian F. Fleckert, State president of the New Jersey Suffrage Association, and Champlain L. Riley, president of the New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage. In that district the vote was 71 to 41 against the proposition.

The first returns, received so soon after 7 o'clock, were taken incredulously by many of the suffrage supporters but when the official endorsement of the early bulletin was received the suffragettes for the first time abandoned their optimism. Counting was started at 7 o'clock by the election board and little time was consumed in compiling the figures.

ANTIS TO CONTINUE VIGOROUS CRUSADE

Mrs. E. Yarde Breese Says Effect of Vote Will Be Felt in Other States.

Mrs. Edward Yarde Breese, formerly Miss Georgiana Smith, of this city, and head of the anti-suffrage forces, made the following comment upon being assured that the amendment had met defeat:

"The election in every way justifies our position. We hope that the result will put an end to the activities of the suffragists. Perhaps now they will turn their energies and their executive ability to a nonpartisan effort toward solving some of the great social, civic and economic problems of the day. The defeat of the suffragists is due to the fact that the men of New Jersey of all political parties decree that woman suffrage must not be permitted. In the Eastern States the conditions are so different from what they are in the west that I doubt if there will ever come a time when the women will have a vote or that the majority will want it. The population of the Eastern States is so much greater than that of the western and there are so many points of difference that it hardly seems possible that there will be any change on the suffrage question."

"What," Mrs. Breese was asked, "will the anti-suffrage forces do, now that the fate of suffrage has been decided?"

"We shall certainly keep up our organization," was the reply. "Although we believe that we have been successful in our endeavors.

"The vote is more than pleasing to us, for we believe it was an honest opinion of the voting populace of this State. The effect of yesterday's election will tend to swing Pennsylvania, New York and Massachusetts against the proposed changing of their Constitution to give women the right of suffrage. All eyes in this nation have been turned toward New Jersey, and the vindication given us will, I hope, help to defeat the cause in other States.

"Although we have beaten the fight for equal ballots, we will not stop here. We intend, as in times gone by, to wage a silent campaign for the betterment of the State and womanhood. As the aftermath to the overwhelming defeat, we hope that the suffragists will link their strength with ours and promote better feeling between the women of this great State."

"DELAYED BUT NOT BEATEN," MRS. C. L. RILEY'S WORDS

"We are delayed but not defeated," was the comment of Mrs. C. L. Riley, vice-president of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League, who has been actively in charge of the campaign for the past few days in the absence of Mrs. A. B. Jones, president.

"New Jersey will march in the big parade in New York Saturday, and we will be just as strong and just as gay as though we had won. The work of the suffrage league will continue. We worked four years to secure all the favorable votes of yesterday and we will work five more, or fifty more, if necessary, to get what we are after.

"Suffrage is right and the men of New Jersey can be depended upon to see that justice is done, although it may take some time to imbue them with the correct idea of justice to their womanhood. They have done wrong, but the American people do no wrong that they do not right. We can but wait, and work and hope."

LARGE AUDIENCE GREETS EVANGELIST

Charles Taylor Stirs the People as He Talks on "World Wide Peace."

Missionary work in Cuba and Mexico were the topics for two interesting talks before the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon, by Miss Anna M. Barclay and Mr. and Mrs. William Conwell. Miss Barclay told of conditions in Cuba as they were about ten years ago when she commenced her work in the southeastern section of the island. There were no schools to speak of, but few roads and public improvements of any kind were conspicuous by their absence. Church work was practically at a standstill, while there was no systematic effort to educate the masses.

Miss Barclay immediately started her mission along lines of practical aid to the people, rather than confining her efforts strictly to church work. In addition to carrying on her religious services among the people she taught the younger people the English language and assisted all in gaining knowledge that would improve their condition materially as well as spiritually. Her work bore abundant fruit. Her mission grew rapidly, the people are clamoring for education, while efforts are now being made to improve the manner of living. She stated that while the mission with which she was connected was self-sustaining, funds were greatly needed to extend the work in the entire region around Santiago, where she is located.

Mrs. Helen W. Conwell told how when but a girl she went from her home at Syracuse, N. Y., to Mexico City. There she met Dr. Conwell and was married. She assisted him in his hospital work, which he carried on in the medical dispensary.

She told of the deplorable conditions under which the people live in the Mexican capital; how there were no hospitals, but little in the way of sanitation, and housing conditions were horrible. She told of the great work to be done by the church people of America.

Dr. Conwell told of his efforts in the medical field in Mexico City and in nearby towns, where he combined practice with his religious work and in that way got in touch with a large class of people that he could not have reached in any other way. He said that when he first went to the Mexican capital he quickly recognized the great need of a hospital to care for the numerous cases of disease caused by an utter lack of sanitation and the many accidents due largely to the negligence of the people in general. Many of these cases were treated in Dr. Conwell's medical dispensary, but it was under a severe handicap that the work was carried on. He said that his ambition was to establish a hospital in the capital city and this ambition he was now about to realize, as funds had been provided through contributions for the establishing of an institution near the city.

He emphasized the fact to his hearers that funds were required to maintain the hospital and extend the work throughout our distracted sister republic.

Dr. and Mrs. Conwell expect to return to Mexico next week and will at once commence his hospital work.

"ONLY WHAT WE EXPECTED" MRS. SHERMAN B. JOOST

"The result was simply wonderful and I am proud of Plainfield men and the men of New Jersey," said Mrs. Sherman B. Joost this morning. "It was only what we expected.

"We believe that after November 2 suffrage will be absolutely dead in New Jersey and that it will never be heard from again. Because of the heavy vote cast, which eliminates doubt as to the number of people interested, and the clearly expressed sentiment against votes for women, we do not believe that it will be revived even five years from now. New Jersey has spoken on the question and her answer was positive."

When asked if the organization opposed to suffrage would be allowed to die now that the amendment had been defeated, Mrs. Joost stated emphatically that it would not.

"We are growing stronger every day," she said, "and we will continue our work. We hope to show what woman can do for our State without the ballot.

"I would like to express my thanks to the men of Plainfield for their impressive vote of yesterday."

DISCUSS FINANCES.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The postponed hearing on the fiscal relations between the United States government and the District of Columbia will open today, when the committee of residents will present the mass of facts they have gathered regarding the financing of the city since it was founded 125 years ago. The hearing is before the Joint Select Committee of Congress appointed to inquire into the relations between the federal government and the District. The question at issue is the relative proportions of the expense of running the District, between the taxpayers and the government. The financing of other national capitals will figure in the proceedings.

FIGHT NOT TO END, SAYS MRS. FEICKERT

Plainfield Women Charges State Leaders With "Colonizing" to Beat Suffrage.

Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert, of this city, president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association, in commenting on the overwhelming defeat of the suffrage amendment, said:

"Although we have failed to carry the election we have polled a tremendous vote and our opponents were obliged to resort to the worst conceivable tactics in order to defeat us. There has been considerable colonizing in many of the larger cities and it was plainly evident to us months ago that it was not the intention of political rings to give us a square deal.

"Governor Fielder told us he considered the many defects in the special election law were planned to bring about defeat for us.

"While we have been defeated we are in a stronger position than ever before, for in the future in all our legislative work we will be the representatives of many thousands of voters and not merely some workers.

"We will start in today upon a new suffrage campaign. It is not our intention to wait for the next five years to take our cause again to the voters, but to get Presidential suffrage at the next session of the State Legislature.

"The United States constitution provides that the Legislature of each State shall vote for Presidential and Vice Presidential electors, and it is within the State's power to give us that degree of suffrage.

"With the strong organization which we have and the many thousands of voters who have taken a stand on our side there is no question but what such a bill will pass next spring.

"Our next demand will be for full enfranchisement by federal amendment.

"Though we have not won, we have the satisfaction of losing in the very best of company, as practically all the men of high standing and fine reputation in the State have been on our side."

Asked if she had any positive proof of colonizing, Mrs. Feickert said:

"We know of considerable colonizing in several of the cities, notably Newark."

The rest, while enthusiastic, interrupted by saying:

"Give Nugent a dig."

"No, Nugent is not alone to blame," said Mrs. Feickert. "We were defeated by the general weak mindedeness of citizens who followed Nugent's instructions."

RAISES $55,000 FOR SEWER WORK

Dunellen Council Authorizes Issuance of Certificates of Indebtedness.

HEALTH CONDITIONS

Bonegut Brook, Keeping of Pigs, Sidewalks and Streets Are Considered at the October Meeting of Council.

Resolutions authorizing the issuance of certificates of indebtedness for an amount not to exceed $55,000 were passed at a meeting of the Dunellen Council, last night. The money will be used to cover the remaining cost of the collecting sewage system. The certificates will be in denominations from $100 and $500, and will bear interest at 5 per cent. and will run a period of five years. They will be taken by the First National Bank of Dunellen.

The Board of Health called the Council's attention to the condition of Bonegut brook, between Washington and Prospect avenues, and the fact that numerous drains are emptying into the stream. The matter was thoroughly discussed and the Council will take steps at once to correct the trouble complained of by the health authorities.

The Equator Building and Developing Company complained that several families living in that section were keeping pigs, in violation of the borough ordinance, and asked that it be stopped. The company was informed that the ordinance permitted the keeping of pigs, but it must be done in a sanitary manner. The matter was referred to the Board of Health.

The realty company also complained about the condition of the sidewalk in front of the Rosinlinsky residence and after a report was made by Engineer Lewis Churchill the matter was referred to the street committee. The complaint of the company regarding the streets in its tract being torn up by sewer work was received and Mayor Latham stated that the streets would be put in good condition before winter. The request of the company for an additional fire hydrant will be given prompt attention. A deed conveying a lot in Equator Park to the borough was executed and in return a right of way for the force main to the trunk line of the joint disposal system is given by the company. The borough paid $100 in cash for the lot, but it will receive $794.37 from the Joint Sewage Commission for negotiating for the right of way.

The street committee reported that the work of repairing the streets following sewer work is progressing. The Mayor and clerk were authorized to negotiate a note of $300 to meet current bills. Harry Williams, chairman of the park committee, reported that nothing had been done as yet by the suffrage league toward erecting the proposed stand in Washington Park.

Assessor John Peters submitted a proposition for the Board of Freeholders, in which it offered to pay $1 weekly towards the support of Oscar Harrison, of Front street, at Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, and asked the Council to make up the balance, $3 as the lowest minimum fee is $1. Judge Von Minden in reply to a question said that he did not think the Council could make such an appropriation and it was suggested that the additional money be paid by the overseer of the poor. There was a question raised about this and the Mayor finally said that he would see if Mr. Harrison could not be admitted for $12 a week.

DEDICATE CHAPEL TO BISHOP.

New York city, Oct. 20.—A chapel in memory of the late Bishop Henry Codman Potter will be dedicated today, on the thirty-second anniversary of the bishop's consecration as bishop of New York. The chapel is completed as part of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. It is erected by the stepsons of the late bishop, at a cost of $250,000. It is one of seven that now surround the sanctuary of the Cathedral. It is a church in itself, seating 300, with organ, choir stalls and every appointment of a parish church. In the chapel is a cenotaph which will also be dedicated today. The remains of the bishop will rest in this cenotaph.

CONGREGATIONALISTS MEET.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20.—The big event of the year in Congregational church circles is the National Council meeting, which opened here today. The Council will be in session for a full week. Some 2,500 delegates are in attendance, representing 763,000 members of the church. National missionary organizations, laymen conferences, the commission on missions, women's national auxiliaries and other bodies are holding simultaneous meetings here, and the two years' history of the church since the meeting in Kansas City will be covered by a large array of national leaders and speakers.

STIRRING MISSION TALKS ARE HEARD

Religious Workers From Mexico and Cuba Address Women of First Baptist.

A large audience greeted the young evangelist, Charles Taylor, at the Park Avenue Baptist church last evening, and listened with marked attention to his stirring sermon on "World Wide Peace." "This peace," the speaker said, "will not come to pass until the Millennium—that is, when the devil has been bound and Christ begins his reign upon the earth. Although war is all about us, nearly the whole world in tumult, men striving for power and killing one another, still we as Christians may truly say—in this dark world of sin, the blood of Jesus whispers peace within.

"We often hear the question," he continued, "have you made your peace with God? Let me ask, why need He have suffered on the cross if not to make this peace? Many people have the idea that they must work their way to heaven, whereas they need only take the peace which Christ has offered. The story is told of a boy in the highlands of Scotland, who became a Christian. He wanted to show his gratitude to the Master for His gift of Eternal Life, so he used to climb to the very top of the hills and shout—'Man that died, Matt thanks you.'

"Jesus made peace by His death on the cross, sacrificing His life, and shedding His blood for your salvation and mine; each individual soul is an evangelist preaching peace, not alone from the pulpit, for the greatest preaching in all the world is living the Christ whose peace we have accepted. We don't have to wait until we stand in the very presence of God in heaven; we do these deeds because we possess this peace now. You can never improve upon the finished work of Christ—just reach out the hand of faith and take it. Acquaint now thyself with Him and be at peace."

The young preacher closed his sermon with an earnest appeal for everyone to take this "perfect peace" which Christ so freely offers, after which he and his father sang the duet, "Peace, Sweet Peace."

One must see and hear this youthful evangelist to appreciate the gift with which he is endowed. He put his audience at ease at the very outset by his perfect self possession, his utter lack of self-consciousness; and one feels in listening to his sermons and earnest appeals to the unconverted, that he is wholly unmindful of everything save the fact that he is bringing the message of salvation to those out of Christ.

Music is made a prominent feature of these services, and the choir, under the leadership of C. H. Winter, are singing the songs that are so much in favor in the meetings conducted by "Billy" Sunday.

The boy evangelist will preach and sing every evening this week with the exception of Saturday, with a service of song beginning at 7:45. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, from 3 to 4 o'clock, his father, Rev. Charles Forbes Taylor, will relate experiences taken from his own life, including many striking answers to prayer.

SUFFRAGE MERELY DELAYED.

Any story of fraud in bringing about yesterday's result against woman suffrage is silly. The majority against the amendment was so great that even the most ardent suffragist cannot dispute that the voters, as represented by an honest majority, do not want the women of New Jersey to have the franchise at the present time. That the matter is merely delayed for another five years, is the only interpretation to be placed on the result. Those who have labored long and hard for the cause need not feel that their work has gone for naught. It has made too great a headway in the nation to permit anyone to say that it has been permanently defeated in this one State.

There are many remarkable features which were brought out by the campaign which preceeded the election, but none so remarkable as the fact that the editorial power of newspapers is evidently on the wane. Here in New Jersey only one daily newspaper of any prominence was against suffrage. Several, such as the Newark News, Paterson Call and Camden Post Telegram either professed neutrality or took no part editorially in the fight. The Trenton Times, second only to the Newark News as the most influential newspaper in New Jersey, the Elizabeth Journal, Perth Amboy News, New Brunswick Home News, Asbury Park Press, and other leading papers of the State were outspoken advocates of the cause. All sorts of editorial argument by such able journals failed to bring about the desired result, and the outcome hoped for by every political boss in the State was triumphant. The Trenton Times is authority for the statement that the pressure brought to bear by the Republican politicians on Newton A. K. Bugbee, Republican State chairman, made him flop at the last minute, and declare against votes for women.

On the other hand, the newspapers regardless of their editorial policy, gave liberal space in their columns to both sides. Many, like the Daily Press, have published regular weekly articles for both organizations, and during the last few weeks of the campaign no request for space by either side was refused by any newspaper in the State. They wanted to do their share to keep the people informed.

But one thing is surely decided by the contest, and all those who are opposed to women voting cannot deny the truth of the assertion. The women are in public life to stay, and the vote is coming to them within the lifetime of most of us. The mere fact that they did not get the ballot yesterday will not prevent them from continuing their agitation, which they will do in the same conscientious manner until their goal is reached. As the Perth Amboy News said in its issue of last night, "much of the work which has been done during the past few weeks will never have to be done over again."

SCHOOLS AND TAXATION.

The Board of Education of Plainfield, like similar bodies everywhere, is wrestling with the problem of how to provide adequate school facilities for a rapidly increasing number of children of school age, without increasing taxation to a burdensome point. The extension and maintenance of schools is fast becoming a serious question in nearly all municipalities.

Our school system must be maintained and improved; every child is entitled to and must have the opportunity for an education, and every municipality should provide the best schools that can be obtained. But, municipalities, like individuals, can not with safety incur expenses beyond what their incomes will enable them to pay. Yet the fact remains that the schools must be provided and their cost paid by public taxation. Just how to do this without a tax rate bordering on confiscation is the problem that is vexing the souls of many school economists and troubling the minds of members of school boards.

Statistics show that in a majority of municipalities the increase of the juvenile population far outstrips the increase in the value of taxable property, so that with each school building erected and each additional school expense added the tax bill is made more burdensome, especially to the family with a little home and a big mortgage. In Plainfield the annual increase in the number of school children is approximately 175, or equal to five full classes of thirty-five, to be provided for every year. Of course, this increased number is distributed among classes already formed and does not require five new classes each year, but as fully ninety per cent. of the newcomers enter the six lower grades there is a continual congestion in these grades that does not facilitate the cause of efficient education.

It is undoubtedly true that there are many expensive fads and fancies in the public school curriculum and in the requirements for school buildings, the elimination of which would lessen school expenses, but that would not obviate the necessity for school buildings and the increasing cost of schools must go on.

To use the words of a member of the local Board: "Where is it going to end; how can the future expense be met, and how will increased taxation affect the development of the city? Here we have not yet finished the Evergreen avenue school and already the need of another school building in the east end of the city is fast becoming acute. We can not afford to allow the efficiency of our schools to deteriorate and how can the city afford a much higher tax rate?"

As our school board realizes, it is a hard problem to solve, but solved it must be. It would seem that the school question is a broad and promising field in which some school economist could achieve undying fame and earn universal gratitude by devising a school system combining all the elements of progressive efficiency without driving municipalities to their bonding limits.

Mrs. Galt, it is announced, is an anti-suffragist. If she adds as much to that cause as the President did to the suffrage side by declaring in favor of votes for women, there is hope for passage of the amendment in the states which vote next month.

Whatever may have been the feelings of the men prior to yesterday, there is no disputing the fact that they are breathing a sigh of relief that it is all over.

That straw vote taken by a New York newspaper certainly was no indication of the direction of the wind.

Now for a short sharp campaign to elect the Republican Assembly ticket in Union county.

Dear Bill—I am not writing you because
Last night I violated nature's laws
By eating Cardiff rabbit and what

Down town at some Dutch-labelled

'Twould be bum stuff, that I right now would say—
That's why I am not writing you

One ought to wait until it bubbles out
From facile pen—most letters, past

Are punk affairs. They don't tell anything,
And usually use the bummest Eng-

I had to do to make this fool thing

So, Bill, don't you expect a word from me,
This sample shows how bad the

Soon as I have forgot the "royal

I'll write you. Till that time, yours

A New Poetess Of Passion

Eliabelle Mae Doolittle, passion poetess of Puckhuddle, was inspired one night when she awoke and heard strange creakings from the doors, furniture, etc. The result of her inspiration is called "Noises of the Night, So Gray and Bleak." Here it is:

When I awake at midnight,
And hear the clock ticking,
Everything seems so weird-like
And little noises are so tricky.
You think you hear a burglar, perhaps,
Just because the door did creak,
But nothing is to be found behind it,
Noises of the night so gray and bleak!

My sister's child, Teeny Ricketts,
Tried to take a bath in the wash boiler.
She got stuck in it, of course,
And really we had to oil her.
But, getting back to noises of the night,
Never let them frighten you;
There's Rover's leg pounding on the floor,
Dear old dog! What can be biting you?

Who will dare to say now that the laurels which Lowell and Longfellow wore must lie unclaimed in the dust!

He Looked It

Health Talks

The City Hospital

IF MY home should take fire, the fire department would hasten to the rescue, not as a matter of charity, but as a duty. I am entitled to the service if I pay my taxes.

And there is no stigma of charity connected with the service of the fire department. The firemen are all paid salaries for rendering service when needed.

But if I am taken sick when I have no money, and I am forced to enter the free ward in the city hospital, I become an involuntary beneficiary of charity. I have contributed my share toward the expenses of the hospital. I have done as much to support the hospital as I have done to support the fire department, yet I must receive charity. Even when I pay a few dollars a week for my board in the hospital, I am still there by the grace of charity, because the physicians on the staff render their service without pay. Perhaps my illness comes upon me suddenly in the middle of the night. No matter. I am rushed to the hospital in the ambulance, and the attending physician or surgeon is hastily summoned from his home to care for me—although he receives nothing for his service.

The city hospital should be conducted on the same plan as the fire department. Charity should have no place in its management; either the city should run the hospital in a businesslike way or it should keep hands off. They do this thing better abroad. In Europe, the hospital is under government auspices and the citizen may enter and receive treatment without becoming a beneficiary of charity.

Lay management of public hospitals is a crying evil in this country. The layman on the board of managers is often a handicap to the doctor on the staff. If the doctors are capable of doing their work in the hospital they ought to be able to manage the hospital too. The best hospitals in America are controlled by doctors. The worst are controlled by lay boards—business men, at that. Business men with personal ends to be met, with political preferences to be fulfilled, with "pull" guiding their hands.

Think of a layman running the fire department or the police department!

A sick man should enter his city hospital for treatment as a right, not as a privilege. The necessity to go there should concern his pride no more than the necessity for police or fire protection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Gall Stones

C. A. S. inquires: (1) What causes gall stones? (2) Is the operation for their removal dangerous? I have had attacks of gall stone colic for seven years, although I have taken tremendous doses of olive oil. Doctors say I must have the operation done, but my brother, a physician, thinks he should accompany me to the hospital. (3) Do the stones sometimes form again after the operation?

Answer—Bacterial infection of the lining of the gal sac—years, perhaps, before the first symptoms of gall stones appear. The bacteria, plus mucus, form a nidus upon which cholesterin and lime salts from the bile are deposited, until the stones reach a size varying from small shot to a pigeon's egg. Olive oil is useless, so far as any hope of removing gall stones is concerned. (2) The operation is not so dangerous as the disease. There is no reason why your brother should not be present at the operation. (3) Occasionally more gall stones form, but nowadays this is a rare eventuality.

GOOD NATURE

GOOD nature is a combined strength and weakness of mind which enables a man to endure placidly a scolding wife, an aching tooth, a late train, a thievish office holder, a chronic hope and insulting ticket agent, a small boy who has just asked his 1,111th question, an automobile suffering from mulishness and the telephone in all its phases and conditions.

Good nature is the breeding ground of laughter, the guardian of friendship, the lubricant of smooth-running families, the solace of fat men, the anæsthetic of misfortune and the curse of republics. With good nature a man can endure hard work, enjoy a large family, forget an insurgent corn and enjoy the jokes of Moses. Without good nature a man can possess twenty million dollars and get apoplexy because he has been short-changed five cents by a street car conductor. With good nature a man can run four blocks for a train that proves to be two hours late and can enjoy telling the incident for a week. Without good nature, a man will reach a station fifteen minutes early and try to sue the railroad company because he had to wait for the gates to open. Trying to endure the complications of modern life without good nature is like trying to run an automobile without lubricating oil. The result is heat, noise, sorrow and disaster.

Good-natured men are more valuable than statesmen to the world. A good-natured man can go through a mob of ten thousand people and make less trouble about it than an ill-humored man can make all by himself in a church. If it were not for the good-natured men who lose there would be no fun in winning baseball games, billiard tournaments, track meets, golf matches and political bets. If it were not for good-natured men, there would be no amateur theatricals, concerts or art exhibitions, and half the babies in the world would meet violent deaths while exercising their lungs.

Good nature is a precious boon to humanity, but it is much abused. There is too much of it for one thing. It should be rarer and used with less extravagance. Good nature is responsible for bad street car service, long sermons, thieving politicians, taxicabs that run a mile and a half in the same spot, short-weight coal dealers, trust magnates, pre-Adamite humor on the stage, hobble skirts, waste basket hats, detachable hair and man-eating automobiles. Having learned how to be good natured under all circumstances, mankind must now learn how to forget to be good natured when he is imposed upon. Good-natured men are forever going about on their merry ways, being imposed upon by villains, and meekly enduring it, thus encouraging said villains to continue in crime. One good ill-natured man can reform more ticket agents than a million good-natured travelers, and the man who can't stay mad from the disclosure until the election is a peril to the republic.

One example of good nature

Views Of The Press

A Tribute To Preparedness

LLOYD GEORGE'S latest arraignment of German "militarism" has the effect of arguing for preparedness rather than against it. He only emphasizes how the entente allies have suffered through lacking the preparedness of the central allies and points out that the only hope of victory for the former lies in bringing their equipment up to the standard of the latter. In other words, the entente allies must now recognize what Germany recognized first.

This view, of course, discards the dream of disarmament, at least for the moment. It is easy enough for the British minister of munitions to talk of crushing German "militarism" forever, but to do this, we find, calls for more "militarism." The situation at this stage also is unaffected by the question of which of the belligerents is responsible for the war. Now it is only emphasized that the spirit of war is as strong in the human race to-day as ever, and that the only way to guarantee security is to be prepared at all times to fight for it. There is no opportunity here for an academic discussion of theories for doing away with war. The voice of Lloyd George is that of unpreparedness speaking from experience.

Had the entente allies only been prepared, says Lloyd George, they should now be witnessing "the triumphant spectacle of their guns pouring out a stream of shot and shell which would deluge the German trenches with fire and scorch the German legions back across the frontier." But in the absence of this preparedness, "the iron heel of Germany has sunk deeper than ever into Belgian and French soil, Poland is entirely German, and Lithuania is rapidly following. Russian fortresses deemed impregnable are falling like sand castles before the ruthless tide of Teutonic invasion."

The appeal of the British statesman to his countrymen is remarkably plain. He points out that Russia has done more than her share, that France cannot be expected to sustain any heavier burdens, and that Italy is putting her strength into the fight. It remains for Britain to fill the gap or see her liberties pass. She has the raw material, but she must mobilize and utilize it.

After this what American will stand in the way of bringing the defenses of this country up to a reasonable standard?—Pittsburg Post.

BY CATHERINE COOK

THE GIRL FROM NUMBER 13, by Reginald Heber Paterson. Macaulay Company, New York. $1.25 net.

In this story of Madame McCoy and her establishment at Number 13 Tarragon Street some very pointed truths are driven home to reformers, who think they are engaged in a righteous crusade when they drive the wretched women of the underworld from pillar to post. Because these truths are presented in the form of a melodramatic novel, they are none the less important and worthy of study.

The lesson to be learned from a book of this character is that society is no better than its victim and that the necessary evil is a financial and economic one rather than a moral or physical one.

Until society gives a square deal to women in the matter of industrial training, there will always be a girl from Number 13.

THE LOVABLE MEDDLER, by Leona Dalrymple. Reilly & Britton, Chicago. $1.35 net.

The pictures of home life in "The Lovable Meddler" belong to a past generation. We seldom nowadays see daughters and wives devoting every thought to the encouragement and comfort of the father and husband. But it is exactly this feature of the book that makes it so quaint and charming a love story.

The lover who seeks to win "Leddy Rose" finds a powerful rival in the indolent, vain, good-looking artist-father who accepts the devotion and self-sacrifice of his family as an almost divine right. The natural humility of a decent man in love with a beautiful girl of high ideals makes the lover sometimes too timid and easily discouraged, but he has a strong ally in "The Lovable Meddler," an old Scotch physician who is too full of Scotch aggressiveness to be content with merely minding his own business.

The contrast between the old doctor, who is on the job every minute taking care of the whole neighborhood, and Rose's father, who thinks his artistic temperament entitles him to a large leisure, is the best feature of the story. It is the touch of literary genius in the author whose earlier book, "Diane of the Green Van," was the winner of the $10,000 prize novel contest.

ON TRIAL, by Elmer L. Reizenstein. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. $1.25 net.

"Should a woman confess her past experiences to the man who wants to marry her? Has a husband the right to kill the destroyer of his home?"

The woman's answer to the first question is no. The jury's answer to the second is yes. Both answers have their roots in that law of nature which puts a penalty on impurity in the Mother of the race.

"On Trial" was first presented as a play which had extraordinary successes last season in New York and Chicago. The story opens with a murder mystery. A prominent financier is killed by a friend and business associate. The same night $10,000 disappear from a safe in the room where the crime was committed. The murderer was caught red-handed but the money was not recovered. The question was, "Who and where was the accomplice?"

When the case comes up for trial the accused man pleads guilty to the charge of murder and refuses to make any defence to the charge of burglary. The court declines to accept the prisoner's plea and appoints a clever criminal lawyer to defend him.

The disclosures that finally lead to the acquittal of the prisoner are a reproduction of the famous Harry Thaw case with its vicious triangle of the husband, the wronged wife and the scoundrel.

The climax of the plot is well worked out. The motive for the murder is concealed until the critical moment of the trial. The wife refuses to accept the sacrifice of her husband's life as the price of her reputation and she tells the jury the story of her betrayal.

The jury renders a verdict of justifiable homicide and acquits the prisoner, the real thief is caught, and the husband forgives his wife. Whether they regained happiness and peace of mind the author does not attempt to say.

LIVING UP TO BILLY, by Elizabeth Cooper. Frederick Stokes Company. New York. $1.00 net.

Billy's mother is a pickpocket and his aunt is a cabaret dancer. The less said about Billy's father the better. Out of this human mud, a baby lifts the souls of two women into a new life.

The story makes a strong appeal to the eternal motherhood in all women. It gives glimpses of the underworld whose peculiar code of honor puts many a self-righteous judge to shame.

We need not be surprised at Billy's all-powerful influence for good, for the strength in baby fingers is the strength of eternal love.

The Keystone

What of the Keystone in the arch of your Success? Are your eyes centered toward its position as you begin every day, and during the succeeding days as you review with pride what you have done? Remember that the Keystone represents the highest ideals of the builder.

There is a Keystone to every day that you live. There is a Keystone to every job you do. There is a Keystone to the ideals that cluster in your brain and that formulate the one big ideal of your life—the ideal to win worthily or lose.

As the building dates from the Keystone, so must your success.

Just as people formulate their ideas of the builder from the Keystone in his building, so do people as they catch glimpses of the Keystone ideal back of a man's work begin to understand the man.

Let people gather the best ideas of the builder of your life work from the Keystone you select.

Current Poetry

Most Time For 'Em Now

A canvas barn, a painted tree,
A slow New England drawl;
A large, square room with two or three
Worked mottoes on the wall;
A hint of wicked city life
By someone in the cast,
Who plays an honest farmer's wife
With something of a past.
A man from town whose shirt is clean
And has at least two suits,
To brighten up the rural scene
Of overalls and boots.
A cow, if one can be secured,
A soft nosed mare, named Bess;
A dog or two and you're assured
Unqualified success.
Just take these few ingredients
And mix them as you may,
And keep them free from common sense,
You'll have a rural play.

Snap Shots

By Jay E. House

Laura Jean Libbey holds that when a woman loves a man the fact that he wears a glass eye is unimportant. Once in a great while expert opinion and fact coincide.

Every newspaper has its points. As an instance, the DeSoto Eagle Eye prints no report of the doings of the Gridiron club.

Most of the noble Indians we have met were looking for something to drink, and not for revenge on the white man.

You have to hire a white man to march in a procession. A colored man not only is willing to do it for nothing, but will often pay for the privilege.

Generally speaking, it is the man with the dyspeptic stomach who wants to regulate your diet.

As we understand it, the Black Hand society includes a number of Italians and all boys under fifteen.

When the name of the woman concerned is unknown, that strips the scandal of about all of its interest.

In addition to trying to sing, a drunken man nearly always has his picture taken.

When a man makes more than $10 a week his relatives wonder what he does with all his money.

Senator Lorimer's fate was tempered by nature. It hurts a thin man to be kicked, but a fat man stands it fairly well.

By merely looking at a woman you can decide whether you should praise her cooking or compliment her

BUREAU COVER OF SWISS

An attractive bureau cover may be made of dotted swiss, with dots as large as a dime, two or three inches apart. On the under side make petals of shadow embroidery for each dot and on the right side work the dot over in yellow. The result will be a scarf of field daisies.

WHEN EGGS ARE HIGH

Here is an excellent dessert, good any time, but particularly valuable just now when the price of eggs is soaring: Have one quart of water boiling in a wide two-quart pan. Add a small stick of cinnamon, a pinch of salt and one cup of sugar. While this is boiling stir in rapidly three tablespoonfuls of tapioca. When this is cooked fifteen minutes until it looks clear or transparent, add as many cored and peeled apples as will fit easily in the bottom of the pan and then either bake or steam about one-half hour. Serve when cold one apple to each portion with a few spoonfuls of the tapioca. Cream or milk can be served with it. Do not forget the stick cinnamon—it is a necessary ingredient.

THE TABLE.

Roast Lentil Loaf—Soak two cups of lentils over night. Next morning boil them three hours in the water in which they were soaked. Mash them, add a large cup of soft bread crumbs, an onion minced, two rounded teaspoons butter, pepper and salt to taste, a cup of crushed walnut meats and one egg. Mix and bake one hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

The Sauce That Works Wonders—Melt two tablespoons butter; stir in two tablespoons flour; dissolve with a cup of milk to a smooth paste. To this add half cup vinegar, four tablespoons sugar, paprika and salt to taste. Cook together until thick and creamy and use in the following ways: Cook lima beans until tender, then add enough sauce to make a creamy mixture. Turn into pudding dish and bake till slightly browned. Mash contents of one can tuna fish, add two hard-boiled eggs chopped fine and two cold-boiled potatoes cut in small pieces. Add to this a sufficient amount of above sauce; a delicious salad. To make sweet and sour fish. Cut up several onions and bail till tender in a little water. Put in the fish cut in good-sized pieces. Boil thirty minutes, add sauce enough to make water thick, cook fifteen minutes more; serve cold. A good vegetable dish can be had by mixing some of this dressing with cold boiled beets. Delicious sandwich fillings are made by mixing enough dressing with cottage cheese; or hard-boiled eggs chopped fine; or a mixture of olives and hard-boiled eggs; or olives and cheese. It is not necessary to butter the bread for these sandwiches, as the dressing supplies enough moistening and fattening qualities. If a quantity of this dressing is kept on hand it will come in handy in the preparation of a meal made in a hurry. It can be kept in a jar without spoiling for weeks at a time.

Baked Ham—A thick slice of ham covered with a paste made of three tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, pinch of mustard and a little vinegar. Bake three-fourths of an hour in covered dish.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

In opening a dress pattern, write the number of pattern on each separate piece of tissue paper; will save time and trouble in identifying stray pieces when replacing them in the proper envelope.

To quickly mend stockings when they are past darning, trim ragged part of hole in them, then crochet doubles around and fill it up. You can also form heels and toes with the crocheted doubles; lots easier than patching and will wear much longer. Use Saxony yarn for the doolen and darning cotton for the cotton stockings.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Philadelphia—That Christmas is not far off in the minds of boys and girls of this and other cities of the United States is evidenced by the flood of petitions that are daily pouring into the home of Miss Olive May Wilson, the "Santa Claus Girl." The work of cheering up neglected children at a time when other more fortunate children are enjoying the Christmas season was begun three years ago by Miss Wilson, and has increased in proportions she little dreamed of at the outset. From a distribution of a few hundred toys at first, the work has grown to such an extent that last year 17,250 gifts were sent out. Miss Wilson's work has attracted attention throughout the United States, and has the approval and commendation of Vice-President Marshall and other national figures.

New Rochelle, N. Y.—With the object of cutting down the cost of living, improving the schools and providing clean amusement for the citizens, two leading women of this city are campaigning for office. Miss Anna L. Bruel, a Vassar graduate, is candidate for the City Council on the Socialist ticket. The second woman candidate is Mrs. Helen Metcalfe Kobbe, who seeks to become supervisor in the Second ward. She is the daughter of Dr. Francis Metcalfe, of New York, was educated in Paris and in Italy, and is a painter of note. Her husband is running for mayor on the Socialist ticket. Both the women candidates are hustlers, and are putting up strong campaigns on a platform of municipal ownership of water works, railways and gas plants.

Washington—The lagging gayety of the capital city is the reason assigned for the new fads and fancies of the diplomatic set. When so many of the government men and the diplomats are worried over the important developments of the times, their women folks have turned to the domestic arts, long neglected and ignored. Miss Henrietta R. Morales, daughter of the minister from Panama, is taking a course with a view to establishing a domestic science college in her home city. Mme. Pezet, wife of the minister of Peru, is enrolled in a salad course at a local cooking school, and she finds there is much to be learned about this delicacy of the modern table. Mrs. Oscar Underwood is also studying the domestic arts, and Miss Margaret Draper, god-daughter of the dowager queen of Italy, and who has a fortune of six millions, is being complimented on her pies. Indeed it is a domestic Washington, the ballroom being neglected during these eventful days.

Raleigh, N. C.—To head a hospital out in the thinly-settled section of this State, where the only means of transportation is the saddle-horse, is the appointment recently given to a woman doctor. She is Dr. Eileen Giles, a graduate of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. Her hospital is the Alto Pass Hospital, where she has charge of a 20-bed hospital, newly equipped, and a modern operating room. On many of her calls she has to travel a distance of 20 miles each way up and down precipitous trails.

Washington, D. C.—"Sister Beatrice," the Florence Nightingale of the French battle front, was a recent visitor in Washington. She came to see M. Jules Jusserand, the French ambassador, and is now in Canada to confer with General Hughes about the medical requirements at the war front during the coming winter. "Sister Beatrice" is Mrs. Beatrice Bartlett, of the Medico-Militaire Francaise. She is the only woman connected with the service. She has the absolute entree to every quarter of the fighting zone of the entente allies. She wears a distinctive military habit that assures her instant recognition anywhere in the fighting lines. This habit is composed of a purple and white head-dress, a white gown and an enormous purple military cape. Since a year ago she has become a national figure with the fighting armies, as a rapid and effective organizer of hospitals, and manager of supplies.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The most envied woman in America, in point of health, is Mrs. Louise K. Theirs, of this city, who has completed 101 years of an active, useful life, without ever being sick a single day. Her only illness in over a century is one headache, which she suffered for a few hours when she was 8 years old.

LITERARY

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

"Driven from their contention that America is too big to be conquered, the anti-preparationists, disregarding the fact that preparedness is not a temporary issue, maintain that when the present was is over the nations of Europe will be exhausted and therefore of necessity harmless. But this is not true. The precedents of history prove the exact reverse to be true. Nations are never so strong morally and politically, and their armies are never so effective, as immediately following a long conflict. 'Practice makes perfect.' Greece was never stronger than after Plataea and Salamis, nor Rome than after the Second Carthaginian War. The Netherlands were politically most powerful at the termination of forty years of combat with Spain, during which they were on the receiving end of nearly every blow. In 1862 France dared to disregard the Monroe Doctrine and invade Mexico to protect her citizens from persecution by the irresponsible savages who inhabit that territory. In 1865 she meekly agreed to abandon Mexico and Maximilian, for even Napoleon III had no wish to try conclusions with the veteran army that marched down Pennsylvania avenue in May, 1865. A nation may begin a war with five million men, and a year later may have lost one million of them, but any two million of the survivors could probably defeat the entire unseasoned five millions of the year previous."—Eric Fisher Wood, in the November Century.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor's Theatre this week offers a pleasing and diversified program. After receiving congratulations from their patrons and film fans the management comes right back and excels the first half of the week's program by offering another bigger variety and better show. Tonight's photo-play will be "Trilby," and a surprise special feature and a big vaudeville show. Tomorrow Mrs. Fiske will appear as the famous "Becky" in "Vanity Fair," one of the latest and biggest successes. Among the several vaudeville acts to be offered will be "The Song Doctors," a musical comedy treat, which has topped bills in the Keith and Proctor New York vaudeville houses. Among the film stars to be presented here will be Mary Pickford, Blanche Sweet, Hobart Bosworth, Theda Bara, Betty Nansen, Emily Stevens, Tom Wise, Raymond Hitchcock, Douglas Fairbanks, Max Figman, Burr McIntosh, Lolita Robertson and Robert Edeson. A special effort will be made to offer the cleanest and best show in town each week. The show will run continuously from 2 until 11 o'clock. Since Harry Sanderson's retirement as former partner and manager, the theatre is now under the sole management of F. F. Proctor.

Fashions and preferences vary from season to season with startling regularity. Negligees, underneaths and what-not are subject to the same vascilations in popularity as outer garments. Now and then something particularly delightful becomes prominent, and we pause to admire it. Such a "something" is the Japanese Kimono—illustrated above by Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9125. This garment is most graceful and comely in appearance, easy to make, and quite suitable for a charming Christmas gift. It may be made of plain China silk embroidered in floral design or of Japanese flowered crepe as illustrated. Cut in sizes 32, 36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure, size 36 requiring 6¾ yards 36-inch material with 2½ yards of 21-inch contrasting material.

Yermak's Men Drove Them Back.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Story Of Yermak, the Brigand Conqueror.

"DO children like history stories?" asked daddy.

Jack and Evelyn clapped their hands.

"This is a true story of Russia," daddy began. "About 300 years ago there was a tall, brave, rather wicked chief of the Don Cossacks, who are some of the bravest Russian soldiers. Yermak did so many wild deeds that the emperor of Russia, Ivan the Terrible, exiled him. But the country was in a very upset state, and all the peasants who lived in the rich valleys of the Ural mountains were always being robbed by the people of China, whose emperor was the khan of Sibir, a relative of the very khan that Marco Polo worked for.

"These rough neighbors would sneak over the Urals and kill the sheep and horses of the Russians and sometimes burn their homes, so that at last they begged Yermak to defend them."

"Had Yermak many soldiers?" asked Jack.

"He had a big army of men as rough and terrible as himself. He hid them in the mountain caves, and when the khan's thieves sneaked into the Urals Yermak's men fell on them, drove them back, back into Sibir, until at last they were so beaten that Yermak found himself the conqueror of Sibir."

"Could he make himself king?" asked the children.

"Yes; with his army behind him.

"Now this young brigand did a generous thing. Exiled from Russia by his emperor, he went back to court and gave the huge strip of China he had conquered to Ivan. It was a royal gift, a great strip of land that even now helps make Russia rich and powerful. If you will look on your map, Jack, you will see it, all the land that lies east of the Urals as far as the Irtysh river."

"Did Ivan forgive him?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes, and took the land. But Yermak no longer cared for court life and went back to live beside the Irtysh river in the land he had conquered. Here he enjoyed his free outdoor life for many years.

"Then one day some peasants were washing their clothes in the Irtysh river and saw something glistening in the water. It proved to be the armor of a warrior, and by some gold trimming on it they knew it to be the armor of Yermak. So this brave, generous brigand met his death in the river he had won for his country, in the land he had loved so well," daddy finished, with a good night kiss.

"Did he drown when he was in swimming?" asked Jack.

"No one will ever know," said daddy.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. E. A. LEONARD

Venturing Out in the Evening to Find Her Husband, Molly Sees Him Walking With the Stenographer.

It was a dismal, rainy autumn night. Molly Sutner sat alone with her mending basket listening to the soft drip of the rain. It was a night that called for a blazing fire and cheerful company to counteract the gloom of the weather, but Molly had neither. She was very tired, for she had done a washing that day because there had been no money to pay the laundress with. She had resolutely held to her decision to run up no more bills, a resolve made necessary by the desperate state of their finances.

"All the thanks I get for my hard work is to be left to spend the evening with the mending basket for company." She wiped away the tears of self-pity. "It wouldn't be so hard if I wasn't so utterly alone. I suppose he is out with that stenographer whose handkerchief I found in his pocket." She drew her hand out of the stocking, and dropping her head on her arm, resigned herself to her tears.

As she leaned against the table with the droop of utter exhaustion, the desolation of her position was borne on her with poignant anguish. The dismal drip of the water from the eave trough, the squeaking of a rickety shed door accented the stillness till it was past endurance. She rose, and pushing her hair from her flushed face, went to the window, and placing her hands beside her face looked out into the darkness. The rain had nearly stopped and a black hush brooded over everything.

She turned from the window, a look of resolve on her face. "Occasionally John has to work in the evening; I am going to see if he is at the office. It will be something to know that he is there, and if he is not there——" She did not finish her sentence, but went to the bedroom and in the half light bent over the crib where little Jack lay sleeping.

"He will be all right; I shall be gone but a few minutes." She slipped on her rubbers, and throwing a shawl over her head went out into the night.

As she hurried down the street she nearly ran into a man. Fearing it might be her husband, she stood still beside the road and watched to see if he turned into her gate. No, he disappeared in the darkness beyond and she turned her face toward the office.

Only the principal streets of Fairport were lighted, and she had fairly to feel her way along the side streets. Her heart beat with suffocating rapidity.

"What a fool I am," she thought scornfully. "What does it prove either way? There is only one thing I am sure of, and that is that John cares nothing for me, and I did not have to go prowling around in the night to learn that."

She saw a couple coming and shrank close to a building to pass them unobserved. Just than a laugh rang out. It was John's laugh; it had been long since she had heard it, but there was no mistaking it. She watched them as they passed under the street lamp on the corner. The girl was looking up in his face; the happy, jolly face she remembered as belonging to a past that seemed very remote. When they had turned a corner she hurried home, and prepared for bed in frantic haste. She could not trust herself to see John that night; she must have time to think. She would feign to be asleep, that she might plan what she could do.

HOLY CROSS MAY PLAY THE NEW YORK

Wyoming Team in Hot Fight For Championship of the Navy.

John Doyle, manager of the Holy Cross football team, went to Brooklyn Monday to arrange a game with the football team of the battleship Wyoming, if possible. He saw Lieut. (formerly Ensign) King, who is a favorite in Plainfield. Lieut. King and his men are in a hot fight for the championship of the navy and will not be able to meet outside teams until the middle of November, after which they will come to Plainfield, if it is possible to arrange a date. Doyle was introduced to the manager of the New York football team and tentatively arranged a game for Saturday week.

WILL DEATH OF WARD MEAN END OF FEDS?

Brooklyn Leader and Financier to Be Greatly Missed.

That the death of Robert B. Ward, vice president of the Federal League, president of the Brooklyn club, and one of the chief financial backers of the organization, may be fatal to the new major baseball league, is believed by those who were familiar with Mr. Ward's part in building up the Feds.

It is generally admitted that the Federal League will be seriously handicapped by the loss, and almost as generally believed that his death puts an end to the Feds planned invasion of New York. P. T. Powers tells of the loss to the league in the following statement:

"His death is a blow to the league and to baseball, but I really think it was baseball that prolonged his life, and his sons and brother did, too. It gave him relaxation, something to stir his enthusiasm in his closing days, and he and his family felt the money he sank in the enterprise well spent. It is quite probable that his brother, George S. Ward, who has direct charge of the baking business, will continue his interest in the ball club."

SPORTING NOTES

The World Champion Red Sox have the unique distinction of never losing a World Champion series. The hottest fight was against Pittsburgh, in 1903, when they took four straight after losing three.

The stage is set at Boston for the World's Championship at 14.1 balkline, with Willie Hoppe defending the billiard title against Koji Yamada, the Jap expert. Play begins tonight, and the odds favor Hoppe.

There are 44 entries for the Autumn Stakes at Latonia, which will be run off on Saturday. This is the semi-final stake event in the Blue Grass region, the final being the Latonia Cup, to be run the last day of the meet, a week from today.

Our statistician tells us that baseball has just passed its seventieth birthday. It is claimed that the national pastime was first organized in New York city on September 23, 1845. There are other claims made, and many claimants for the first honors.

The first of two big hunt meets at Chestnut Hill, Pa., takes place this afternoon, at the White Marsh Valley Hunt Club. Several classy events are scheduled, and the hunters will remain over until Saturday for their second meet.

The big elevens are having their troubles rounding into form this year. The development of football in the smaller colleges is lessening the margin between the "preliminary" matches, and upsets are more frequent than ever.

TOURNEY AT WESTFIELD.

Westfield Golf Club is to give a one day tournament for the members of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association tomorrow. The date of the Hackensack tournament, which was to have been October 27, has been changed to Monday, October 25.

HOLY CROSS TO PRACTICE.

The Holy Cross football squad will hold a practice tomorrow night at 7:30. Coach Stallings expects the entire squad to be out to prepare for Saturday's game with the Fiecone A. C., of Brooklyn.

MRS. ROGERS WINS IN FOX HILLS TOURNEY

Returns Low Score After All Other Players Have Left the Links.

Mrs. J. Mager, of Deal Golf and Country Club, upset all calculations yesterday on the Fox Hills links, in an eighteen-hole medal play golf tournament for women, by bringing in a winning score of 99, 12-87, late in the day, after the majority of the contestants had left for home, firm in the belief that all the prizes had found owners.

Mrs. A. L. Cahn, of the Century Country Club, won the women's record prize with a low gross score of 95. This would also have taken the low gross score prize, but under the rules of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association a player is eligible for only one prize in a tournament of this kind. This left three players tied for the low gross score with 97 each, Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of the Plainfield Country Club; Mrs. A. S. Rossin, Century Country Club, and Mrs. L. Wimpfheimer, Century Country Club. R. R. Mamlok, the Fox Hills golfer, decided this by giving Mrs. Wimpfheimer the third net prize with a card of 97, 4-92, and then gave the gross prize to Mrs. Stockton because she was the only nine down to bogey against Mrs. Rossin's 10 down.

Early in the day, Mrs. A. McDonald turned in a card of 103, 15-88, and looked like a probable winner until Mrs. Mager, the last player to finish, beat her by a stroke. Mrs. W. J. Faith, of Wykagyl, who was expected to finish well up, played poorly and did not turn her card in, and many other lesser luminaries did the same.

The scores of the Plainfielders were: Mrs. A. McDonald, 103, 15-88; Mrs. C. B. Lawrence, Jr., 109, 14-95; Mrs. H. R. Stockton, 97, 1-96.

DUNNING IS TENNIS CHAMPION OF P. H. S.

By winning three out of four sets yesterday afternoon, Sidney Dunning won the tennis championship of North Plainfield High School by defeating Sherman Chandler, 6-2, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2. The champion played in a masterful fashion, being supreme in every set with the exception of the second in which Chandler, by playing at the height of his ability, won the match on the sixteenth game.

The third set started most favorably for Chandler, who had a commanding lead of four games to one, but by a terrific spurt Dunning ran out five straight games for the set at 6-4.

Both players were playing to the best advantage, every stroke being smooth and hard. Dunning's height proved a big asset to him at net, where his opponent had difficulty in passing him up lobbing over his head.

The winner of the match is a brother to Frank Dunning, who during his course in N. P. H. S. also captured the title in two successive games.

BATTIN HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS MAY PLAY BASKETBALL

Whether or not the Battin High School girls will again be allowed to play in basketball competition with other High School sextets will be known in a few weeks when the committee in charge of the course of instructions makes its report to the Board of Education.

A special meeting has been held and the parents of some of the girls who played on the Battin team expressed their views on the matter. All were in favor of their daughters playing the game. John E. Schmidlin, physical director in the Elizabeth schools, also expressed himself as favoring basketball for the girls.

The members of the committee declared the general opinion of the leading directors of girls' athletics was against basketball. Miss Harriet Townsend, a member of the committee which decided against further basketball competition for the High School girls, stated that the action of the committee was based upon decisions handed down by numerous instructors throughout the country. It is probable that the committee will make a report at a meeting of the Board of Education to be held November 11.

CHRISTY MAY COACH HARVARD.

Christy Mathewson, Giant pitcher, and still entitled to be known as the "Grand Old Master" of the hurling mound, will probably coach the Harvard baseball team next season. It is announced from the college that Mathewson is wanted and will be secured if terms can be agreed upon. Mathewson was coach of the students five years ago and turned out one of the best teams in the history of the school.

STRENGTHENS ELIS FOR THE BIG GAMES

Captain Wilson.

Captain Wilson of Yale has come to the conclusion that a big shake-up on the team is necessary if Yale is to beat Harvard this year. A lot of hard work with more drill in the fundamentals of the game and plenty of signal drill to improve the work in the backfield is planned.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS READY FOR CONTEST

Graduates Also Practice for Big Game on Thanksgiving Eve.

Following the custom established two years ago, the annual double-header basketball game between the Plainfield High School teams and the alumni will be played in the Plainfield High School gymnasium Thanksgiving Eve, November 24. Two years ago the graduates came back to their Alma Mater and defeated the High School maidens while last year the Ninth street team scored an overwhelming victory over the alumni. Miss Helen Bryniarski, of the class of 1913, is managing the Alumni team and she will probably have the following girls pitted against the school team: Miss Jessie Stewart, forward; Miss Alice Mehl, forward; Miss Helen Bryniarski, centre; Miss Sadie Rothberg, side center; Miss Margaret Eaton, guard, and Miss Bessie Morris, guard.

Miss Ruth Wean, who has been coaching the girls for the past few weeks feels quite sure that the P. H. S. girls will give a good account of themselves in the contest.

Daniel McNamee, captain of the 1914 team, will have charge of the boys' team which will line up against the Red and Blue. He is still gathering his material together and promises a strong aggregation of former High School stars.

RED SOX MADE BUT LITTLE MONEY IN 1915

Boston, Oct. 20.—The Red Sox season of 1915 has been a financial success, but the profits were not large. President J. J. Lannin said today that the receipts this year would be sufficient to cover expenses for this year, wipe out the deficit of 1914, and yet have a mite left on the right side of the ledger. Until the start of the last series with Detroit here things looked dull from the financial standpoint. Until then the balance was on the wrong side of the ledger. But the big attendances of that series—about 114,000 fans paid to see those four games between the Sox and the Tigers—tacked onto the big attendance at the two world's series games played here, brought in just enough money to put the team on velvet.

PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCE.

A conference between the parents and the teachers on "Athletics For High School Girls" will be held in the Plainfield High School, room 302, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. An invitation is extended the parents to attend this meeting.

RECREATION CLUB HAS STRONG LINEUP

Basketball Stars Show up Well in Initial Practice.

The first basketball scrimmage of the Plainfield Recreation Club was held in the Plainfield High School gymnasium last night, a score of players turning out for the first practice. Judging from the initial performances of the representatives, the Recreation Club will be a formidable opponent in the New City League Circuit. Included in their aggregation are such well known players as Jack Ricketts, Bergen Naylor, and "Rube" Marston. The team also has at least a dozen court stars who have won high honors on other teams.

The squad places its faith in Don Adams and Paul Pesce, two newcomers into the Plainfield basketball limelight. The former has been a valuable member of the Pleasantville five of New York State, as well as a player on the Cedarcroft, Pa., quintet. Pesce, who will occupy the pivot position, and who is fully a head taller than the majority of centers in the city, hails from Sheepshead Bay, and has played with the city league of that borough, Newburgh, and the Central Y. M. C. A., of Brooklyn.

Among the other members of the squad are the following: Frank Allegarr, Kenneth Mair, Ed Bremble, James Nolan, Joe Carty and Clyde Doane. The last named is an alumnus of the Plainfield High School and Williams College.

The team will probably open their season the first week in November.

MORAN KNOCKS OUT COFFEY IN 2ND ROUND

Aspirations of 'Dublin Giant' to Be World's Champ, End Quickly.

Frank Moran, the sorrel-topped heavyweight from Pittsburgh, put a sudden end to the aspirations of Jim Coffey, "the Dublin Giant," to world's championship honors when he knocked him out in three rounds at Madison Square Garden, last evening. It took Moran a couple of rounds to get warmed up, but when once he got to going he went strong and keeled Coffey over in a heap with a right-hand blow on the jaw. Coffey pitched head first to the mat, sprawled flat, while Referee "Bill" Brown counted five got to his knees while two more counts were made, and then sprawled helplessly and completely dazed against the ropes at the Fourth avenue end of the ring. Coffey's arms were limp, his hands lifeless, and his glassy eyes gazed helplessly and aimlessly over toward Fourth avenue, where the sound of the trolley car gongs played a familiar tune to his ears. He seemed like a man who regretted that he had ever left the tranquil life of a motorman for the jars and jabs of the "squared circle," and would dearly like to be back twisting the brake handle. He had hardly recovered consciousness when he was led off the stage to go to his dressing room, a picture of complete dejection.

Moran's victory was won in the presence of the largest crowd ever assembled at the Garden for a boxing bout, every seat in the house and all the standing room being occupied by approximately 10,000 men, with a sparse sprinkling of women. The receipts aggregated from $25,000 to $32,000, according to various estimates. The sale of tickets was suspended shortly after 8 o'clock, and several thousand would-be witnesses of the fight, went away disappointed, the police refusing to permit thousands to enter the Garden.

TAFT MAY PLAY IN YALE-HARVARD GAME

Charlie Taft.

Charlie Taft is making good, not because he is the son of his famous father, the former president, but by reason of his own merits. As an all around athlete he has few equals in Yale. He has almost cinched a position as back on the Yale football team, and it is considered likely that he will play in the Yale-Harvard game.

POP GEERS EARNS MILLION.

Recently compiled records show that Pop Geers, the veteran grand circuit driver, has won more than $1,000,000 in purses since he began to handle the reins back in 1890. His best season was in 1902, when he totaled $116,370. Ty Cobb, Packey McFarland and other financial stars of sport will have to keep going at top speed if they hope to equal the record made by the wizard of the reins.

GUY NICKALLS BACK AT YALE.

Crew Coach, Back From England, Settles Down to Hard Work.

Coach Guy Nickalls of the Yale varsity crew is back from England and is now working trying to develop an eight to meet Harvard on the Thames next June. He said recently:

"The prospects for the coming season are bright. Five of last year's university men are with us and the whole of last year's second and freshman crews. Recognizing that a good football team is of paramount importance, every encouragement has been given likely candidates to join the football squad. We shall in consequence be without the services of J. Sheldon of last year's four. A new boat has been presented to the university by Louis Stoddard, which will, however, be kept for the spring race. New oars have arrived from England, and the coaching launches and all the craft are in first class order."

MAY BAR "MUD BALL."

Coast Interested In Controversy as to Whether It Should Be Used.

Pacific Coast league players and fans have recently been interested in the controversy as to whether the use of the "mud ball" should be allowed in the hurling repertoire of the coast twirlers. According to those familiar with this form of delivery, it is the most dangerous pitch yet discovered to baffle the batsman. It is easier to control than either the emery or spit ball and can be thrown with much greater velocity.

Owing to the speed and break of the ball it is said that this delivery endangers the batter to an extent that makes it imperative that the pitchers be prohibited from using it.

Army Team Weak In Forward Passing.

The Army's forward passing against Holy Cross was poor. Yet the Army excelled in this maneuver last year. Prichards and Merillats aren't dug up every year.

BOTHNER TO BE REFEREE.

George Bothner has been selected to referee the Waldek Zybzsko-Alexander Aberg wrestling match for the Graeco-Roman championship at Madison Square Garden next Monday night.

BURMAN TO TRY FOR 125 MILES AN HOUR

Believes He Can Get That Out of Old Blitzen Benz Racer.

New Yorkers may see 120 miles an hour made on the Sheepshead Bay Speedway this fall. Harry S. Harkness has bought the famous Blitzen Benz racer, the holder of the world's short distance records. "Wild Bob" Burman, its pilot in its record feats on the Florida beach, will drive it on election day as an added speed feature to the 100-mile invitation race. The "speed king" will attempt to set up on New York's two-mile track new world's records for a circular course

Burman is confident that he can show New Yorkers at least two miles a minute that day, basing his confidence on the performances of the car at Ormond Beach on April 23, 1911, when he drove a kilometer in 15 4-5 seconds, a mile in 25 2-5 seconds, and two miles in 51 1-5 seconds, all world's records, and much faster than 120 miles an hour.

President Harkness bought the famous flyer from S. A. Fletcher, of Indianapolis. It will at once be tuned up and put into practice by Burman. With the Blitzen Benz once more in racing shape, Burman thinks that it will be easy to wipe off the slate the present two-mile speedway record of 1:04:40, an average of 111.7 miles per hour, made by Barney Oldfield in the Christie, at Chicago, and does not regard a 125-mile-per-hour performance that day by any means an improbability.

MONUMENT TO THE BLUE AND THE GRAY

Plans Underway to Erect Only Joint Memorial in Fitzgerald, Ga.

Fitzgerald, Ga., Oct. 20.—Plans are under way for the erection here of the only monument jointly commemorating the Blue and the Gray. A design for the "Peace Memorial" has been completed and accepted, and before long it will be unveiled in the presence of the surviving leaders of the Confederate and Union armies.

The memorial will be fifty feet square at the base. Four flights of steps, symbolizing the four years of war, will lead from the street level to a wide plaza extending completely around the monument. At each corner of this plaza will be a large bronze electrolier bearing four electric lights. Each entrance will be guarded by two large seated lions.

Each of the four faces of the memorial will have an entrance, eight feet wide and ten feet in height, leading into the memorial room, which will occupy all of the interior of the monument. This room will be round, with a domed ceiling rising 25 feet above the floor, and supported in the center by an immense polished column.

On two opposite sides of the room, set into the walls, will be bronze and plate glass cases to contain war relics. On the two other sides will be niches to contain life-size marble statues of Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis. The ceiling will be ornamented with art tile showing the emblems of the Grand Army of the Republic, United Confederate Veterans, the Women's Relief Corps and the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

This memorial room will be lighted by the reflected lighting method, and will be very beautiful, especially at night. Over each entrance will be a large window of leaded glass showing the emblems of the armies of the north and the south.

Over the memorial room, 30 feet above the street level, on each corner, will be a huge eagle with wings outstretched over the American shield. These will be carved in granite. Between these carved eagles, on each face of the monument, and resting on the cap, will stand immense groups of bronze statuary.

On the north side will be a group showing Generals Grant and Lee clasping hands, while the spirit of peace, with arms outstretched, brings them together. On the south side will be two soldiers, one a Confederate and one a Federal, supporting the American flag. On the east side will be a female group, representing prosperity, and on the west side a standing figure of a woman pointing out to a kneeling soldier the progress and opportunity awaiting him.

The monument rises in a simple base to a plinth, on which rest four columns, three feet in diameter and 20 feet in height. Each column represents a section of the country—north, south, east and west. Bound together by an upper cap symbolizing the unity of the country in peace, and capped further by a beaded and banded molding, the entire monument is completed by an 18-foot statue of Peace, holding aloft the plan of Victory and extending downward the wreath of Olives.

Fitzgerald is one of the unique towns of the south. It was planned and built by northern war veterans, and the population intermarried and the sectional feelings were obliterated many years ago. This being the spot where Jefferson Davis was captured after the flight from Richmond, Fitzgerald people subscribed heavily to the fund for the monument, and the town and county officials also appropriated money for the memorial. Many contributions have come from the north, as well as the south, and the monument will be a national affair in every way.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSN MEETS HERE

35th Annual Session of Union Co. Workers Being Held at Crescent Ave. Church.

INTERESTING REPORTS

22,965 Members Are Enrolled—County Schools With Average Attendance of 15,017—Receipts for Year $1,122.45.

A large number of delegates in attendance and unusual interest were the encouraging features at the opening session of the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this morning. The convention opened with a devotional service in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

William D. Murray welcomed the visitors in an address in which he outlined some of the advantages to be derived from such gatherings. The president of the association, Rev. M. Luther Stimson, responded in a few well chosen words. These addresses were followed by a flag salute and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

During the business session the treasurer's report showed that the receipts for the year were $1,122.45; expenditures, $1,094.24, which left a balance of $28.21. The secretary's report showed that in the county 22,965 members were enrolled; the average attendance was 15,017; the cradle roll numbered 2,310, while the home department had 3,825.

Committees on nominations, resolutions and for other purposes were named and will report at the afternoon session.

A short but interesting address was delivered by Isaac B. Burgess, general secretary of the New Jersey State Sunday-school Association, who dwelled largely on the necessity for the proper training of teachers for Sunday-school work. He said that the four perfect points of efficiency in Sunday-school education were: Careful study of the pupil, careful study of the Bible, careful study of conditions, and careful study of methods. He told of the great work now being done by some of the Bible study or teachers' training classes throughout this county. At the close of his remarks Mr. Burgess invited questions on Sunday-school work, but when but few were asked he said that he would be glad to give any information privately, if timidity deterred any from asking for information before the audience.

The afternoon session began at 1:45 and the election of officers will take place near the closing hours of this session.

Luncheon was served to the delegates in the parish house of Grace Episcopal church and dinner will be served at the same place at 6 o'clock. A superintendents' dinner will be given and a conference of superintendents held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church at 6:15.

The evening session will open at 7:15 and will be featured by an address by Frank L. Brown, general secretary of the World's Sunday-school Association, who will take for his topic, "Six Gates to the Scholar's Life." Rev. George P. Howard, Sunday-school missionary of the World's Sunday-school Association of South America, will talk on "The Call of a Continent, South America."

DINNER AT KENSINGTON GIVEN BY LOCAL OWLS

Members of committees from the three local clubs of the Order of Owls were guests at a dinner given at the Kensington Hotel last night. The committees were appointed to arrange for a union picnic at Wayside Park on Labor Day, and the event was a success. W. T. Morgan acted as toastmaster at the dinner and many of those present responded and made short addresses. Guests of honor were Judge R. L. Reed and Robert Pizzo, of Bound Brook. There were twenty-one in attendance at the dinner.

FOREMAN OF YOEMEN LEAVES.

RARE OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED FOR STUDY

Classes in Practical Subjects Now Being Conducted in Plainfield.

Interest exhibited to date in the elementary classes being conducted by the Plainfield Board of Education under the personal supervision of Arthur F. Hopper, indicates that their success will be pronounced and that the introduction of the various phases of educational work will be welcomed by a host of students. One of the principal features has been the instruction provided in elementary subjects for foreign-born pupils and a large number have already taken advantage of the opportunities offered for bettering themselves.

Young men and women of all creeds and nationalities, compose the various classes, and much progress has already been made along different lines. The evening dressmaking course is designed for those who wish to perfect themselves in the art of sewing and dressmaking. A study will be made of the various methods of cutting, fitting and finishing dresses and tailored garments.

The purpose of the evening cooking classes is to give the students a working knowledge of the principles of cookery and an opportunity for practical application of these principles in home cooking. The course will include preparation of vegetables, soups, fish and meat; quick breads, as well as raised breads, pastry, salads and desserts.

Classes are being formed in mechanical drawing for both elementary and advanced pupils. The work will be of a very practical nature. It is intended for young men who wish to become draftsmen, and for others to whom a knowledge of drawing would be an advantage in their daily occupations, such as: Apprentices, journeymen, mechanics, moulders, patternmakers, firemen, electricians and others engaged in either mechanical, engineering or building trades. The instruction will be individual and advancement comes just as rapidly as application and ability permit.

WILL CONTRAST EAST WITH GREAT WEST

Miss Janet E. Richards Will Resume Her Series of Lectures Here on Nov. 4.

Miss Janet E. Richards, of Washington, who holds a reputation as being one of the most convincing feminine lecturers in the country, will return to this city Thursday, November 4, at which time she will deliver the first of her series of winter lectures, at the Hartridge auditorium.

Speaking under the head of "The Public Questions of the Day," "Current History Day by Day," or "History in the Making," Miss Richards talks to thousands of women in all the large cities of the east—Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Boston—each year. She declined eighty-five invitations to lecture in various smaller places during the past winter, and Plainfield is therefore doubly fortunate to capture this popular woman, in whom, as the Los Angeles Tribune said, in a late issue, "Modernism brought down to a working basis is literally typified," for a full winter's course of ten talks. In her own way, virile and vivid, she reviews quickly and tersely, the public questions of the day from country to country, omits the worthless and reports the valuable information which she gathers from an endless amount of reading of the best journals and magazines and from constant and intimate association with brilliant men and women of affairs and leaves one with a clear mind as to the important events in the world's current history and their bearing upon each other.

Miss Richards has recently returned from an extensive tour through Canada and the Pacific coast States, and in the first of her talks this winter will have much to say of contrasting conditions existing between our eastern States and the great west. She will also give special attention in this year's course to the new and grave problems—diplomatic, political, economic, ethical and military—which confront our own country at the end of one year of the great European war.

MISSIONARY ALLIANCE.

Services of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be held in the German Reformed church, Duer street and Craig place, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and tomorrow night at 7:30. F. Y. Linninger will take as his topic tomorrow afternoon, "Anti-Christ, His Manifestation, Work and Destiny." Subject for tomorrow night will be "Lost Opportunities." The service starts Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

ORDERS EMBARGO ON ALL FREIGHT

New Jersey Central Sidings Are Congested Because of Heavy War Shipments.

AFFECTS ALLIED LINES

Same Condition Exists on the Reading and B. & O. Railroads—No Relief in Sight—Shortage of Cars Also Another Serious Problem.

With every siding on its main and branch lines from Jersey City to Easton glutted with loaded freight cars and hundreds more stalled along the P. and R. road from Bound Brook to Philadelphia, the New Jersey Central freight officials have ordered an embargo on all shipments to the Communipaw terminal intended for lighterage to the steamship wharves in South Brooklyn. This is the first time in the history of the company that such an order has been issued and it is due to the enormous shipments over the Central and its tributaries of war munitions destined for the belligerent nations of Europe. On one siding in this city alone, back of the Pond Tool Works, there are thirty-eight loaded carloads of locomotive parts billed to the Russian government at Valdivostock from the Baldwin works at Philadelphia, which have been standing in the same place for two weeks and may probably remain for as many more before another start is made for Jersey City.

It was stated at the Jersey Cen-

SUFFS WILL KEEP UP WORK, SAYS LEADER

Headquarters Will Not Be Closed—Some Claims Proven.

Suffrage headquarters on Depot avenue will remain open and the work will continue from today, according to an announcement made by Mrs. C. L. Riley, vice-president of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League, yesterday.

"Headquarters will not be closed for a day," said Mrs. Riley. "We are ready to continue our fight for the ballot, and we do not believe that it will be five years before another vote is secured. By legislative action we hope to get recognition in less time.

"All of us are very happy over the result, now that we have had time to analyze the vote. Of course we were crushed with the agony of defeat Tuesday night, but we now realize that our vote was wonderful, and that all that prevented us from receiving a majority was the limited time in which we had to educate the voters. We want all the men who helped us, who are for suffrage and will continue to be for suffrage, to enroll their names at headquarters, as we need them in an advisory capacity. All that is necessary now is to keep the question before the attention of the people and they will soon come to the opinion of President Wilson.

"One of our claims from the first was that the coming of women into politics would create an interest in public affairs never before known, and have we not proven this? The vote cast Tuesday was one of the largest ever known, and it was due to the activity of women. All of our claims will soon be proven as clearly as this one."

BILLY REDMOND SCORES A HIT AT ELKS' BAZAAR

Billy Redmond, a tenor soloist, was the big attraction at the third night's festivities at the Elks' bazaar last night, his selections being so well received that he was invited to be present again tomorrow night as an entertainer and has accepted. Another large crowd attended the affair last night and all of the various booths were well patronized.

One of the pleasing features of the evening was an exhibition dance given by Miss Edith Bechtel and Harold Woolston. Tonight delegations from the lodges of Somerville, Newark, Elizabeth, Bayonne and Brooklyn will be present and Billy Pierce, of New York, will render a number of vocal solos.

I. C. S. "FRAT" MEETING.

Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. C. S., will hold its regular monthly meeting in the local headquarters in the First National Bank building on East Front street tonight. Matters of importance will come before the members and a full attendance is desired.

TRAIN HITS AUTO BUT DRIVER IS NOT HURT

Charles Gabriel Has Narrow Escape From Death at Dunellen.

Charles Gabriel, a chemist in the employ of the Daryta Manufacturing Company, of New Market, had a narrow escape from death yesterday when the automobile he was driving was struck by a fast passenger train on the Lehigh Valley road at the Prospect street crossing in Dunellen.

The crossing is not equipped with gates, but has a bell to notify those who use the road of oncoming trains. Mr. Gabriel heard the bell, but knew that no trains were due on the regular schedule and attempted to make the crossing. He got onto the tracks to see a special passenger train coming toward him at the rate of sixty miles an hour, and hurriedly attempted to back his machine off the tracks. The locomotive struck his radiator, turning the machine completely around so that it faced west instead of south. Mr. Gabriel was not hurt, but his radiator was smashed and his front wheels were thrown out of alignment.

DISCUSS POULTRY RAISING VIRTUES

Prof. Lewis, of New Brunswick, Gives Illustrated Lecture Before Fanciers.

PURITY IS ESSENTIAL

Local Association Votes to Merge With the Union County Poultry Society and Give a Show in Elizabeth Early in December.

To standardize the breeding of poultry was the topic of an interesting address last night by Professor Lewis, of the State Agricultural College at New Brunswick. The lecture, which was held under the auspices of the New Jersey Association for the Improvement of Poultry of Plainfield and vicinity, was accompanied by stereopticon illustrations and proved to be not only interesting but very instructive to all who were in any way interested in poultry.

Professor Lewis laid particular stress on the five cardinal virtues in poultry from the standpoint of the breeder. The importance of these qualities were in the order named as follows: Vigor, type, color, size and fecundity. He said that the prime essential was vigor, for without vigor no bird, however well marked, regardless of its size or color and no matter what its type might be, was entirely worthless for breeding purposes or for egg production.

He said that every breeder should strive for purity in type. He said that

MISS ROCAP BRIDE OF JAMES A. DILKES

Rev. Alphonsus Coppins, of Baltimore, Performs Ceremony at St. Mary's.

A pretty church wedding took place in St. Mary's church this morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Marion Rocap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rocap, of Myrtle avenue, became the bride of James Alphonsus Dilkes, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dilkes, of Philadelphia. Rev. Alphonsus Coppins, of Baltimore, a relative of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming gown of white crepe meteor trimmed with old duchesse lace, a gift of her grandmother, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She was unattended. Mr. Dilkes had for his best man Chauncey Jordon, of New York city. The ushers were Augustus Dilkes, of Philadelphia, and C. Edward Dilkes, of Baltimore, brothers of the groom.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by the immediate family and a few friends. The home was attractively decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and autumnal foliage. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. After an extended wedding trip through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Dilkes will reside in New York city.

Mrs. Dilkes belongs to one of Plainfield's oldest families and is popular in the younger set of the city and borough. The bridegroom is a graduate of Georgetown University and of the New York Law School. He is also a member of the Seventh Regiment, and is a practicing lawyer in New York city.

Her Equivocal Policy Not to Be Tolerated, They Say.

BULGARIANS ADVANCE

Serbians Have Abandoned Two Important Cities Before Rapid Drive of Invaders—Great Battle in Progress There.

London, Oct. 21.—Greece has perceptibly strengthened her precarious position in the Balkan situation by assuring the allies that she will not give aid to the German cause under any circumstances, but England, France and Russia are still attempting to frighten her into the war on their side.

Great Britain has offered King Constantine the Island of Cyprus in return for immediate participation on the side of the allies and to strengthen this offer the entente ministers have delivered an ultimatum to M. Zamias, the Greek minister, notifying him to give up his equivocal policy, which the allies do not intend to tolerate.

That helpless Greece is about to be forced into the conflict against her wishes is shown in the announcement that she is mobilizing troops on the Bulgarian frontier, although no announcement of the purpose of this mobilization is made.

It is believed King Ferdinand's troops will occupy both cities within a few hours. A great battle between Serbians and Anglo-French allies on one hand and Bulgarians on the other has developed on the heights of Vlassona and Kotchana. The Bulgarians are trying to cut their way through toward Monastir. In the Negotin region west of Strumitza the Bulgarians are attacking fiercely but the Serbs claim that the assaults were repulsed.

German Attacks Repulsed.

Paris, Oct. 21.—French war statement:

"Following the bombardment reported last night to east of Rheims on a front of some eight to nine kilometres, which extends between the Butte of Tij and Prunay, the Germans renewed the attack which had been pitifully checked the night before in the same region, despite the violence of the preparatory artillery fire and the density of the clouds of suffocating gas. The enemy received another check. The enemy tried three times to penetrate our positions. The attacking troops were cut down by the fire of our machine guns and the storms of shells from our artillery. They were finally stopped before our wire entanglements and were not

DEMAND METERS IN DUNELLEN HOMES

Board of Trade to Force Action on Part of the Water Company.

Proceedings are to be instituted through the Public Utilities Commission to force the water company to install meters in Dunellen homes, as a result of a meeting of the Board of Trade of that city held last night.

It was brought out that the Commission had ruled that the company could be forced to install meters whenever asked if it could be proven that one or more meters had been installed, and Frank R. Wynkoop stated that he knew a meter had been installed in the home of Maurice L. Rarick, of New Market road. C. H. Dildine, of Prospect avenue, who was before the Commission a short time ago, at which time he was told that if he could cite an instance of a meter being installed he would receive favorable action on his application, was authorized by the Board of Trade to take the matter up again, and a committee consisting of Messrs. Cockburn, Wilson and Fedderman was named to confer with him.

The executive committee also brought up the matter of the local Health Board not acting upon a nuisance until a written complaint has been filed. Secretary Frederick, of the Health Board, who was present, stated that Chairman Cockburn was misinformed as the Board of Health always took immediate steps to alleviate a nuisance no matter how brought to its attention. Mr. Fredericks asked for the co-operation of the boroughites in making the borough a sanitary place. He said that its members were getting tired of being made the goats by those who in order to spite their neighbors write annonymous letters to the Board.

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

The inauguration of Dr. John Henry McCracken as the ninth president of Lafayette College brings together another gathering of scholars and educators of the east and middle west. Following so soon after the inauguration of Dr. Henry Noble McCracken at Vassar, this induction ceremony is particularly interesting in the educational world, through the fact that the McCracken family is the most famous in America for college presidents. Dr. Henry M. McCracken, the father of the two new college heads, is Chancellor Emeritus of New York University.

"The great problem of America is how to conserve and organize the forces of democracy. The schoolhouse is the one true answer. The common school plant represents the largest single investment of the people's money, yet it is operated only for a scant seven hours a day for an average of 144 days in the year." This is the summary of the public school question as seen by Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Wilson. There have been many previous opinions along this line, but few persons have come forth so practically as Miss Wilson. She has gone out to sing in public, to inaugurate a fund to promote the use of public schools as community centers. She has just completed her tour in Cleveland. "What we need to do is to operate the school house plant at full capacity," she tells her friends, "making each building a headquarters for citizenship, an all-year clubhouse for the whole people."

Washington University, in St. Louis, opens this week a night school to enable the shop girl and the busy man to get a college education. The evening courses are an outgrowth of the Saturday extension courses, which have been very popular. The step taken by Washington University marks a big advance in education in St. Louis.

To honor the first schoolmaster in Pennsylvania, a monument will be unveiled at Skipback, Montgomery county, that State, next Saturday. The first school is credited to Christopher Dock, who began teaching at Skipback in 1714. He was the first American to write on pedagogy, which fact calls for national recognition. Governor Brumbaugh, of Pennsylvania, will make the principal address on Saturday, and Dr. Nathan C. Shaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will also speak.

The annual conference of the Association of Urban Universities will be held in Cincinnati next month. This new association plans to study university problems in municipal communities. Many professional men from all parts of the country have been invited to consult with the educators as to the correct steps to take to make the universities more effective in serving their own communities. Dr. Charles W. Dabney, of the University of Cincinnati, is president of the association.

Egypt has 26 schools of higher education, technical and agricultural, and over 4,000 students are enrolled. They are the most eager students of the near east.

"THY DAY" SUBJECT OF REVIVAL TALK

"Boy Evangelist" Addresses Another Large Crowd at Park Ave. Church.

Before a large audience in the Park Avenue Baptist church, last evening, Charles Taylor, the "boy evangelist," delivered a most impressive sermon on the subject, "Thy Day," which the speaker said applied to three different classes of people:

First—Christians, this is thy day. "We who profess to be saved from the power of sin, what are we saved for? When we stand before God, shall we be able to point to a single soul that we have brought into the kingdom?" The young preacher pleaded most earnestly for more of the spirit of Christ in our lives, that God may give us a yearning for souls. "I believe," said the boy, "that in eternity thousands of Christians will say, would to God I had realized before it was too late that it way may day."

Second—Blacksliders, this is thy day. A backslider is the most miserable man on the face of the earth. He needs to realize that he cannot undo his past, but that God will forgive and accept him just as he is.

Third—"Sinners, this is thy day. "What are we living for?" asked the evangelist, "to eat, work, sleep and enjoy ourselves? Do we realize that our souls are to spend eternity somewhere—either with God or the devil? God's day of grace will not last forever. Today is your day, tomorrow may not be."

The words of the young preacher made a profound impression upon the audience and the entire service was one of great helpfulness.

The "boy evangelist" will preach every evening this week, the meeting opening with a service of song under the leadership of Mr. Winter at 7:45. Rev. Charles Forbes Taylor, his father, will continue his talks today and tomorrow at the Park Avenue church, from 3 to 4 o'clock, when he relates his own experiences in evangelistic work. These talks are exceedingly interesting and inspiring, and the meetings largely attended.

DECLARE EMBARGO ON FREIGHT

tral's main office yesterday that there are now four thousand nine hundred and sixty-six loaded cars held at various points along the three allied roads, the Central, P. and R., and B. and O., which must be moved to the Bush and Baltic terminals at South Brooklyn as soon as possible. Under ordinary conditions the Jersey Central lighterage department at Communipaw can move one hundred and fifty cars per day to the Bush and Baltic docks, but even though more than this number is being handled there is no prospect of relieving the congestion. The car floats are run directly from Communipaw to the sides of the trans-Atlantic steamers at the South Brooklyn terminals, where fifteen large freighters can be loaded at one time. Scores of the big manufacturing plants which are working night and day on European contracts are located on either the P. and R., B. and O. or Central lines, while all three use the same New York trans-Atlantic freight terminals, a fact which accounts for the great pressure on the Central's facilities. Among these plants are the Bethlehem Steel Works, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, The International Motor Truck Company's three factories, the Niles-Bement-Pond Company, which is building several hundred lathes for the British government, and the Ingersoll-Sargent Drill Company.

In connection with the tremendous congestion on the Jersey Central, it has been announced that all the eastern railroads now face a serious car shortage and strict orders have been given to all freight supervisors to push the unloading of shipments, immediately afterward moving the emptied cars to stated points. The B. and O. Railroad is especially handicapped in this respect although its freight service department has a total of 96,000 cars. For the past three weeks the company has been borrowing from other lines, but although a good rate is paid for each one per day its requisitions are now being denied.

DISCUSS POULTRY RAISING

with some breeders the idea had taken root that better results can be obtained by cross-breeding than by raising pure strain fowls. This he declared was a mistake. Records showed that fully as good results from an egg producing standpoint can be obtained from thoroughbreds, while the market values of the latter were far greater than the former.

The speaker said that it was essential in the production of standard birds to secure a uniform color typical of the strain.

Size was also a consideration that should not be lost sight of by the producer. He said that the standard size of any particular strain should be carefully adhered to. The breeding fowls should not be over-size or under-size. The correct size should not vary more than a half pound from the standard weight either way.

Fecundity, or the egg producing qualities in a fowl, was the prime requisite to the man who maintained his flock for profit from eggs. This did not hold good for breeding purposes. He said that the big egg producer was not always the best bird from which to breed. He declared that the big production of eggs was liable to affect the fertility and the sustaining qualities in the egg so that the eggs from the hen which had the highest producing records were liable to have a low record in hatching, for they lacked the food qualities to sustain the chick in the egg before the hatching.

Professor Lewis gave a number of examples of the high records attained by fowls throughout the country and laid particular stress on the advantages of trap nesting. He said that it was just as necessary for the poultryman to know which of his flock were profitable egg producers as it was for the merchant to know what lines of goods he was selling without realizing any net profit. He said that occasionally a cull would be found to be a great egg producer the same as standard bred hens would often be found that were of low value for egg producing.

He said that all records showed that for all purposes, egg production included, the standard bred hen is far ahead of the cull or mongrel.

The members of the local association voted to join with the Union County Poultry Association in holding a large poultry exhibit at Elizabeth early in December. A special committee, consisting of G. H. Whitney, William Eiseman, Joseph Weiner, Frank T. McInerney and Walter Taverner, was named to act jointly with a similar committee from Elizabeth in arranging for the poultry exhibit. This committee was also empowered to arrange for the consolidation of the Plainfield and Elizabeth organizations. In uniting the two organizations it is thought that a stronger and more useful organization could be evolved. The committee is authorized to formulate all plans for such a union and then report back to the local organization for final action.

The members of the local association now number 200, while the Elizabeth association has about the same number and by uniting the strength of the two it is hoped to make Union county the leading poultry producing county in New Jersey.

Previous to the meeting the executive committee of the Plainfield Association entertained a visiting committee from the Elizabeth association, and Professors Lewis and Thompson, of the State Agricultural College, at dinner in the Queen City Hotel.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Owing to the great success achieved by Ali Rajah and Company in their marvelous demonstration of mind reading at the Plainfield Theatre, Manager Shannon has responded to popular demand and retained them for another three days' engagement beginning today. Ali Rajah is the peer of all performers of this kind and her demonstration has created a sensation throughout the city. She tells the names of people in the audiences, describes their wearing apparel, gives the numbers on watches and does many other things while blindfolded many feet away from the questioner. Dozens of requests were received at the box office asking that the company be kept over and Manager Shannon announced last night that he had succeeded in making a second three-day booking.

Other numbers on the new big bill which opens today for the last half of the week are: Billy Clark and his Campaign Girls, a miniature musical comedy; Laird and Thomson, the dainty singing girls; the Clipper Comedy Four, a great quartet; the Williams Brothers, comedy entertainers, and the Two Vagabonds, singers and instrumentalists.

IT ISN'T YOUR TOWN, IT'S YOU.

If you want to live in the kind of a town
Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you've left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new.
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town,
It isn't the town, it's you.
Real towns are not made by men afraid
Lest somebody else gets ahead.
When every one works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.
And if while you make your personal stake
Your neighbors can make one, too;
Your town will be what you want to see.
It isn't the town, it's you.

DEMOCRATS HOLD RALLY ON CORNER

Meek, Ellis, Perkins and Leonard Are Among the Speakers.

In spite of the bad weather the Democrats of Plainfield held a mass meeting last night at the postoffice corner. Because of a bad cold Councilman R. A. Claybrook, who was scheduled to introduce the speakers, did not attend, and Leroy J. Ellis, president of the Democratic Club, acted as chairman.

Speakers included Robert H. Meek, candidate for the Assembly; Seymour Perkins, William A. Leonard and others.

Mr. Meek was the first speaker and dwelt on the evil of passing so many laws and repealers that even lawyers cannot keep up with the laws. He promised to do what he could to correct that evil and pointed to the fact that the Democratic platform promised fewer laws and less confused legislation if given control of the Legislature. He also dwelt on the wrong done the State in not providing sufficient funds for the national guard.

Mr. Leonard spoke as follows:

"We are here tonight seeking your suffrage on a platform adopted at Trenton a few weeks ago and at the same time pointing out the defects of the last Legislature.

"The Republican Legislature of this year failed to make an appropriation so that the National Guard might go to camp; they also failed to make an appropriation so that the Widows' Pension act might continue its wonderful work. They also failed to pass the joint resolution calling for a vote on the Constitutional amendment so that we might elect Assemblymen by districts, the only progressive and fair way of selecting such officials. This resolution was defeated by the Republican House of Assembly at the suggestion of your townsman, Hon. William N. Runyon, who is now seeking re-election. The Republican Assemblymen of this district supported the notorious Morris Canal Abandonment grab, the measure which would deprive the State of millions which rightfully belong to them. This measure was affected through the wonderful efforts of a Democratic Governor, James F. Fielder. I would like to know, as I believe you, the citizens of Union county would, why our representatives voted for this notorious measure.

"The Republican Legislature promised you local school government, but failed to keep this pledge.

"The Republican Legislature promised you to repeal the Inheritance Tax law but failed to keep this pledge.

"The Republican party promised to decrease the cost of living but failed to keep this pledge.

"The Republican party promised to improve the road systems but failed to keep this pledge.

"So you see, gentlemen, the last session of the Legislature accomplished nothing but broken promises and pledges, so I ask you can you trust the same gentlemen, Runyon, Pierson and Morgan, after failing to keep the above pledges.

"We ask your support for Mr. Reville, your fellow townsman, and former official; Mr. Meek, a fellow citizen of mine, a practicing attorney of New York and New Jersey. As for myself, I ask your support on my record of two years' service in the house. I assure you if you give your support the citizens of Plainfield and Union county will have no regret."

Mr. Perkins, candidate for Councilman, dwelt on the importance of people giving more attention to civic affairs and the selection of their officers.

MRS. JOSEPH LUFBURROW DIES AT LOCUST POINT

Amelia J. Lufburrow, wife of Joseph Lufburrow, of 1116 West Front street, this city, died at her summer home, Locust Point, N. J., Tuesday, in the seventy-third year of her age. Death was caused by pneumonia.

Mr. Lufburrow contracted pneumonia several weeks ago and his wife fell a victim to the malady a short time afterwards. The former is now well on the road to recovery.

She was the daughter of Rev. Dr. Bromwell Andrew, a prominent Methodist clergyman of his day. Besides her husband, Joseph Lufburrow, she leaves her daughters, Mrs. William Howard Gibson, Miss Nellie E. Lufburrow, and Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of this city. Four brothers survive her, Dr. Bromwell A. Andrew, of Jersey City; Dr. H. B. Andrew, of Newark; Rev. Dr. Joseph E. Andrew, of Paterson, and William E. Andrew, of Atlantic Highlands.

The funeral will be held from her home in Locust Point today, interment being in Fairview cemetery.

ELECTRIC STRIKE MAY END.

Schenectady, Oct. 21.—Conditions for a settlement of the strike at the General Electric plant were more favorable today than at any time since the men quit work. Mayor Schoolcraft is conferring with the Board of Trade and a committee will wait on the company's officials in the hope of adjusting the trouble by arbitration. The strikers this morning did not interfere with those who returned to work.

FERRY BOAT HITS STEAMER IN FOG

50 Men and Women Severely Injured in Collision in in North River.

New York, Oct. 21.—The Delaware and Lackawanna ferryboat Netherlands, with nearly 1,200 passengers aboard, most of whom were girls en route to Manhattan, became lost in the dense fog early today and crashed into the Barrow street pier. More than 50 men and women were so severely injured as to necessitate their removal to St. Vincent's Hospital.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Glasgow, Scotland—Mrs. Bradley Martin, the best known and most popular American hostess in Scotland, is at Balmacaan, in Invernessshire, where she is spending the autumn. The brilliant house parties are missing, and many of her guests are convalescent military officers. Many of the Americans are missing from Scotland this autumn, including the Duchess of Marlborough, Lord and Lady Decies and the Goulds. The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe (May Goelet) were in Scotland for the annual grouse drive over their moors. Their small son, Lord Bowmont, is now two years old. He is being brought up under his mother's watchful eye. The Duke himself requires her care, for his wounds are healing slowly and the service at the front has forced him to resort to crutches.

Washington—It is doubtful if a President ever received a more cordial invitation than that which the California school children are sending to Washington. Mrs. Gaillard Stoney, of San Francisco, heads the delegation which is taking to the President the signatures of 250,000 Californians, asking the President to come to the Fair. Mrs. Stoney is accompanied by a delegation of High School girls. The prospect of seeing not only the Chief Executive, but the first lady of the land, is the most talked of matter in California just now. It is believed that the President may make the trip.

Baker, Ore.—Two Baker girls, Grace Carmalt and Susie Norwood, coming into possession of a mining claim in Owl Mountain, in Eastern Oregon, have set about to work it themselves, from the digging and crushing of ore to the reclamation of the gold it contains. They have succeeded so far, and are in high hopes that a golden harvest is within their grasp. The girls are no tenderfeet, for their girlhood days were spent watching their fathers, who were partners, at work in their mine on the mountain side. The girls inherited the claim that was never worked and in true prospector spirit, took a chance out on the side of the mountain. When they struck pay dirt and found indications of a vein of gold, they had a mill built, and they hired men to do the hard work. But it is their own mine, and they are the "bosses," and all love-sick men can keep away until less strenuous days.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Oklahoma believes in practical demonstration of the menace of flies, and is anxious for the betterment of rural conditions. Consequently, Mrs. Dixie Bolton Tucker, who is a graduate physician, holds the unique position of supervisor of rural hygiene and sanitation in this State. She travels from town to town, delivering strong, convincing lectures, illustrated by charts and pictures. She goes right into homes and shows the women folks the dangers of fly bites to helpless children.

New York—Miss Anne Morgan has strong opinions in the matter of women's dress. She is planning to get in touch this winter with makers of women's clothes and consult with them. Miss Morgan declares it is not her intention to foist her opinions upon any one, but she thinks that the style of dress now worn by the many self-supporting women misrepresents them and gives a wrong idea of their character. Many of them give a wrong impression, she says, and they subject themselves not only to criticism but to insults. Girls want the frivolous gowns when they see them on others, is her belief, and they innocently doll themselves up with paint and powder. All these girls need, says Miss Morgan, is to see the best there is in dress and let them follow their own tastes.

MELLEN STILL ON STAND.

New York, Oct. 21.—Charles S. Mellen continued his testimony today before Judge Hunt and a jury in the United States District Court as the government's principal witness in its attempt to prove the charge of criminal conspiracy against directors and former directors of the road. Just before Mr. Mellen took the stand R. L. Batts, principal counsel for the prosecution, said it would be several days before Mr. Mellen reaches anything new in his testimony.

ADMINISTRATION LETTERS GRANTED

Mrs. Martin Lowry Will Endeavor to Recover Damages for Husband's Death.

New York, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Mary Lowry, of 218 East 120th street, this city, today made application for letters of administration of the estate left by her husband, Martin Lowry who was the father of Mrs. Mary Allen, of Plainfield, so that she will be able as administratrix to sue David S. Friedenberg, owner of the property at 20 East 121st street, where the widow claims her husband received injuries which caused his death.

Surrogate John P. Cohalan granted the application and court action in the damage suit is expected to follow at once. Beside Mrs. Allen, of Plainfield, Mr. Lowry left seven other children. Aside from the cause of action against Mr. Friedenberg, Mr. Lowry left no other property.

NEWARK CLASSIS TO CONVENE HERE

Netherwood Reformed Church Named as Place for April Gathering in 1916.

Delegates from a majority of the churches in the district attended the meeting of the Newark Classis in the Belleville Reformed church yesterday, Plainfield being represented by the following: Rev. John Y. Broek and T. R. VanZandt, of the Trinity Reformed church; Horace J. Martin and Rev. Edward S. Ralston, of the Netherwood Reformed church, and Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, of the Marcellus Reformed church.

One of the principal points discussed at the meeting was the selection of a place for next year's gathering, it being finally decided to meet in the Netherwood Reformed church this city. The invitation to convene here was extended by the Rev. Edward S. Ralston and unanimously accepted. Routine business occupied the greater portion of the time allotted for meeting purposes and during the afternoon Dr. Broek presented a lengthy report outlining conditions that have existed since last year's meeting.

The session in Plainfield will be held in April, 1916, and it will be the first of its nature to be held in the edifice of the Netherwood Reformed church which is now in the course of construction.

NEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or neck headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

Plainfield, N. J., October 21, 1915.

NOT A NUGENT VICTORY.

James R. Nugent, of Essex county, was quoted in a New York paper yesterday as saying that the suffrage election in New Jersey was a fight between Nugent and Wilson and that he won.

"The fight meant either Wilson or me," Nugent is reported to have said. "It makes you sore when you think of a man that you made a governor and then made a president, and then he hits you right here (pointing to his head). But I beat him."

That is a fearful indictment of the manhood of New Jersey, and should arouse indignation in the breast of every male in the State, whether he voted for the amendment or against it. Are they sheep that they permit a disreputable political boss to openly boast that "he" won an election, and wear victory as a personal crown? Does Nugent mean that he controls the suffrage of this State? If this is true, New Jersey has fallen into ill times, but Jim Nugent is the only man possessed of gall enough to make such a claim.

Tuesday's verdict at the polls was possibly as clear an expression of sentiment as New Jersey has ever known. In their first moments of defeat some of the women who had given their heart to the cause cried fraud, but they have since regretted such outbursts, and it is admitted that the election was free from irregularities, which is ample proof that the victory was not Jim Nugent's work. The issue was not a personal one, and while Wilson influenced some votes for the amendment and Nugent caused a few additions to the "no" majority, it was not an issue between men or factions or parties.

The egoism of Jim Nugent is equalled by that of only one other man we have ever known, and he was a character of fiction. The writer whose brain gave birth to the character—we think it was Charles E. Van Loan—said of him, "payin' that guy a compliment to his face would be like takin' a poor, little faded wildflower into a conservatory of beautiful blossoms."

A WORK WELL DONE.

There is one bright ray for the suffrage workers, even in the dark cloud of temporary defeat. Every one of those who gave his or her time to the campaign should feel that the work was well done—that everything possible was accomplished in the alloted time and with materials at hand.

The band of regular workers in charge of the Plainfield league labored valiantly and business men of the city might learn a beneficial lesson from a study of their loyalty and devotion. Many of the women worked both by day and night, and they are enjoying the consciousness of a fight well fought, at least.

OPPORTUNITY IN MEXICO.

In recognizing Carranza and lifting the embargo on arms to the stronger faction in warring Mexico so that Villa and other hombres of his type can be cleaned out, the United States is preparing to open a country to commerce that offers golden opportunities to American money and brains. Mexico is the richest land in the world in mineral resources and its deposits have not been touched. It is to be hoped that law and order will soon be restored there.

The New York Times suggests William Jennings Bryan as a presidential candidate in 1916 on a platform of "Anything to Injure the United States." Our choice for a running mate would lie between William Randolph Hearst and Jim Nugent.

The second and third amendments were probably defeated because the voters marked a "no" for the first and then, man-like, were stubborn enough to keep it up. No other reason has been advanced.

Luke McLuke says that a girl always has two good reasons for wearing silk stockings. Just partly right, Luke. If those are good, she meets another reason every step or two.

Count Von Bernstorff has presented more affidavits to the U. S. telling of British atrocities at sea, but they have not yet passed through the hands of a New York grand jury.

Wilson is coming back to New Jersey to establish campaign headquarters. Having won two victories from this State he does not see the need of a change.

Anyway, the dear suffragists can march in the big New York parade Saturday and show their pretty clothes just as if they had won.

The U. S. is to let Carranza buy guns in this country and Villa none. The latter has the distinction of being in a class with the Kaiser.

EDISON DAY AT THE PAN-AMERICAN FAIR

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 21.—Thomas Edison, the American inventor, is the guest of honor at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition today. "Edison Day" is being devoted to the veteran of the laboratory. Accompanying the inventor is Mrs. Edison, also their sons, Charles and Theodore. It required the coaxing of his family and friends to induce the "wizard" to leave his workshop in New Jersey for a vacation in the West. But he is enjoying himself like a school-boy, and everything at the big fair is interesting to him. Many leaders in the field of invention are present, and speeches will be made lauding the work of Edison.

Today was selected as "Edison Day" because it was just 36 years ago today that Edison discovered the filament used in incandescent lamps. He is generally accorded the invention of the incandescent lamp, but scientific authorities place the invention back many years before Edison set out to make a filament. European electricians had made incandescent lights, but were thwarted in their efforts to find a filament that would answer. Edison's discovery came just at the time when the manufacture of current was becoming practical, and his find revolutionized the lighting of the homes of the world.

That sort of sob-stuff makes me weary.
"The vine still clings to the moldering wall"—
Why not? D'ye think the thing should fall?
This stuff is sure some tear-y!

"My life is cold and dark and dreary"—
Say, H. Wadsworth, I'm getting leary!
"My thoughts still cling to the moldering past"—
O pip, Longfellow, and avast!
MY days aren't dark and dreary!

"Thy fate is the common fate of all"—
Sure. Then why mention it? Such gall!
Some guys just love to be dreary!

Health Talks

Shortness Of Breath

A NUMBER of correspondents have requested us to suggest something good for shortness of breath. In this execrable column we purpose to state general facts and let the astute reader draw his own conclusions. Let us cite actual cases from practice, in which the chief complaint was shortness of breath.

(1) A carpenter forty-four years old. Shortness of breath on exertion. Poor sleep. Slight cough. Examination disclosed an old valvular defect, probably due to an acute multiple arthritis (inflammatory rheumatism) he had thirteen years ago.

(2) Clerk in hardware store, twenty-five. Shortness of breath on walking to and from store. Occasional clearing of throat. General health a bit poor. Slightly hoarse at times. Examinations (about a dozen of them) finally demonstrated incipient pulmonary tuberculosis.

(3) Insurance agent, thirty-four. For six months had noticed increasing shortness of breath. Had lost fifteen pounds weight. Occasional severe spells of coughing, no expectoration. At beginning had felt much pain in right side under shoulder blade (which his doctor called "liver trouble" without the formality of examination). Recently could not sleep on left side. Examination disclosed, and the needle withdrew, a large quantity of fluid from the right pleural cavity—pleurisy.

(4) Attorney. Hard worker. Hard smoker. Moderate drinker. Aged thirty-eight. Had hit a fast pace. For about a year noticed his "wind" was no good—easily winded when hurrying for a car. Sleep was unrefreshing. Had much dull headache. Looked rather pallid. Blood examination negative. Blood pressure 170 mm. Radial and temporal arteries could be felt when rolled under the fingers. Arterio-sclerosis beginning.

(5) Woman thirty-five, mother of two children. Out of breath when walking or working about house. Sleepy and drowsy most of time. Gained ten or fifteen pounds weight in six months. Now forty pounds overweight. Pulse slow. Temperature too low. Sensitive to cold. Never perspired. General functions scanty and irregular. Inclined to be morose and melancholy, without reason. Diagnosis: Hypo-thyroidism—confirmed by restoration promptly under ductless gland feeding.

(6) Girl, nineteen, employed at machine in knitting-mill. Out of breath all the time—couldn't seem to get enough air in her lungs. Yawned much. Frequent headaches. Palpitation often, and sometimes sharp pain over heart. Out to dances and shows four or five nights a week. Never enough sleep. Normal weight. Flushed cheeks. Mucous membranes looked pale. Blood examination: Hemoglobin 80 per cent.; red cells, 4,000,000; chest examination negative. Simple anemia—due to confinement and too much tango.

These half dozen random cases illustrate that the symptom of shortness of breath is not very significant. In order to relieve it we must determine what causes it.

Antitoxin Dosage

Is not 40,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin too much to give a child of four years in two days?

Answer—Never. It is often essential to give more than that in one day, in one dose.

WALL STREET

WALL STREET was originally a proper name denoting a street in New York City. Now it is an improper name used generally as an epithet.

The real Wall Street is situated in New York City midway between the Club district and the bread line. It is the popular thoroughfare to each of these places and is always thronged with travelers fighting to get to one destination or the other. It is named Wall Street because so many people go to the wall there. It is a short, narrow street, about two blocks long, three blocks high and so narrow that thousands of people are squeezed every year trying to get through it. It is the crookedest street in the world. Sometimes it has as many as half a dozen corners in one block.

Along Wall Street are the stock exchanges and the offices of a great many permanent and temporary rich men, all of whom are engaged in watching the prices of stocks and wondering whether they will buy a new automobile or pawn the old one that evening. Riding up and down the elevator of prosperity is the favorite Wall Street occupation. Here men do not take the time to climb the ladder of success. They use a balloon and the man who carries a parachute is a piker.

Wall Street is the second largest menagerie in New York. It is full of bulls, bears, lambs, wolves, sharks, suckers and octopuses, while more than once the elephant, the donkey and the tiger have been caught fooling around here. Contrary to popular belief, it is also one of the greatest manufacturing districts in the world. It turns out a corporation every day, a millionaire complete, every hour, and a job hunter every few minutes. It has made one or two presidents and a large number of senators have its name plate on their togas. It is also the most completely equipped crisis factory in existence It can deliver a crisis in full working order on twenty-four hours' notice.

Worship the Lord on Sunday and J. P. Morgan on week days

Wall street has been accused of a great many sins, most of which are sins of commission, but it is not as bad as it is painted. It does not work on Sunday and it saves a great many foolish young men from becoming millionaires and getting the gout. Wall Street is also very religious. The members worship the Lord on Sunday and J. P. Morgan on week days. Moreover, we must not forget, beloved readers, that it was Wall Street which gave us President Roosevelt by interring him in the Vice-Presidency. This alone should make us think very kindly of it and patronize it whenever we are in need of walls.

Views Of The Press

Something New About "Home, Sweet Home"

ALL THE world including most Germans have had their laugh at the expense of the German savants who, loving Shakespeare and hating England, boldly asserted that Shakespeare was not English at all, but really was a German, and so they could and would read him and see him acted as if there were no war.

And now comes an Englishman, Harold Simpson, and writes a serious book on ballads and claims that "Home, Sweet Home," is an English national song, because an Englishman published a book in which the air appeared as of Sicilian origin and notwithstanding the fact that an American, John Howard Payne, wrote the words.

This last starts a correspondent of the Springfield, Mass., Republican to write some interesting things about this most appealing and enduring of songs. Three hundred thousand copies of the song were sold in the first year after its publication. Jenny Lind used to sing it as an encore with amazing and touching effect. Once when told that Payne was in her audience at Washington she turned her face to where he was sitting and so sung his song that the audience was carried away with a whirlwind of enthusiasm. All the great singers have delighted in it.

Once when Antoinette Sterling sang it in Henry Ward Beecher's church an old gentleman of seventy asked to speak with her, saying he thought he had something which would interest her. He then told her that he had been an intimate friend of John Howard Payne and that from his hand he had received two additional verses which had not then been published. He then handed her a copy of the verses, which ran as follows:

How sweet 'tis to sit 'neath a fond father's smile,
And the cares of a mother to soothe and beguile;
Let others delight 'mid new pleasures to roam;
But give me, oh, give me, the pleasures of home.
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!
But give me, ah, give me, the pleasures of home.

To thee I'll return overburdened with care—
The heart's dearest solace will smile on me there;
No more from that cottage again will I roam.
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!
There's no place like home,
There's no place like home!

The writer continues:

The San Francisco Call not long ago, said that "During our Civil War, whenever the opposite hosts lay encamped near each other the Federals and Confederates at nighttime made a practice of vying with each other in tossing back and forth, alternately, their favorite melodies until finally at 'taps' Northerners and Southerners, friend and foe, settled down to a joint rendering of Payne's exquisite air of 'Home, Sweet Home.'"

And after this and much more the correspondent of the Republican most pertinently asks: "How can Mr. Simpson figure out that 'Home, Sweet Home' is one of 'the national songs of England'?"—Youngstown, O., Vindicator.

People's Legal Friend

BY E. R. BRANSON

Adopted Children

Q. Does the word "children," in a will, include adopted children?

A. This depends on the intent of the testator or testatrix—the person making the will. In determining the question of intent, the will is to be considered and construed in its entirety.

A Certified Check

Q. If a check has been certified by a bank, may the maker of the check countermand it? A. No.

Check, Post-Dated

Q. When a check is post-dated, when is it payable?

A. It will be payable on the date specified or subsequently.

The Car Tracks Are Public

Q. Does a street railway company have an exclusive right to the use of its tracks?

A. In a sense, it has the exclusive right. It cannot, however, prevent persons traveling on the streets from making use of the tracks and they are not to be regarded as trespassers for so doing.

Distributees Of An Estate

Q. In speaking of the "distributees of an estate," what persons are meant?

A. The statutes of the various states provide how personal property shall descend, where the owner dies without making a will. Such persons as are entitled, under the statute, to receive the property are the distributees.

Why Not?

Q. Does a property owner have the right to make excavations on his own land?

A. Ordinarily, he has this right, provided he exercises reasonable care to avoid injury to his neighbors.

That Depends

Q. A man was in the habit of executing contracts and bonds in behalf of a firm. The firm claims that he was not authorized to do so. Is the firm liable?

A. If the firm knowingly permitted this man to act as its agent, or its conduct was such that the public and individuals dealing with the agent might reasonably be led to believe that the agent had authority, the firm will be liable; otherwise, it will not.

To "Execute" A Legal Paper

Q. What is meant when it is said that one "executes" a contract or a document or legal paper?

A. Completing it in accordance with the formalities required by law. Sometimes it consists merely in signing. Sometimes, there must be a signing and sealing. In other cases, there must be also an acknowledgment.

Who Should Repair Streets

Q. Isn't it the duty of a municipality to keep its streets in repair?

A. Yes.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

The Life Line

BY LAURA KIRKMAN

The Man Who Was "Neglected In Youth"

He's probably right; probably he could have been a far bigger man if his parents had done their duty toward him. But he's not right in reiterating the fact. Where can such reiteration get him? The runner who finds himself behind his opponents doesn't sit down on the track and cry; he redoubles his efforts. The man who was neglected in youth should thank his stars that he knows he was neglected—knows it so bitterly. This knowledge marks the awakening of ambition in him. Suppose he had never cared! If the man with even a drop of ambition in him takes time to whine, why! He's mildewed!

The Childless Married Woman

She believes in insuring one's life against future poverty, but she doesn't believe in insuring it against future loneliness. She finds the payment—care and anxiety—too heavy. Could children bring her greater joys than she now possesses—beauty—friends—Freedom? But wait. These things will go. How soon, she does not realize. Before she knows it gray hairs will have come; time will have robbed her of friends, perhaps husband; she will be desolate—stunned. "But—life has lied to me!" she will cry out, remembering the radiant picture of life that youth held up to her. It is then that she will look at the woman with children and know what she does not know now, that Her rose is made of paper.

Current Poetry

The Donkey's Head

Oh, Patrick was an Irishman;
For sport they called him "Mick,"
Because he was so handy with
A shovel and a pick.
Pat worked upon the section gang,
As Irishmen will do,
And with him were two Englishmen
A-laboring there, too.
The Britishers—two foxy wights—
They thought they'd play a trick
While Patrick was a-working with
His shovel and his pick.
Not being of a nimble wit,
They thought it quite a joke
To paint a donkey's head upon
The back of Patrick's coat.
Pat noticed it immediately—
The Democratic stamp—
"Shure, Oi'm a shovelin' Oirishman,
But, be jabbers, Oi'm no tramp."
And, turning to the Englishmen,
Who thought they had his goat,
Says: "Which wan of yez wiped his face Upon me Sunday coat?"

Household Hints..

CANDIES

Uncooked Chocolate Fudge—Take confectioner's sugar the kind that is free from lumps—and add cocoa to suit taste; then add either fresh or condensed cream—just enough so that same mixes, making it as stiff as possible. Put in a little vanilla to flavor it. Use any kind of nuts or cocoanut. Put on paraffin paper and lastly dip spoon in cream and smooth the top of candy with the back of same. Let it set for a short time. This can be made in one-quarter of the time that it takes to make other fudge, and it is delicious.

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Grapes to Pickle—Cut grapes off before they are ripe, taking care not to bruise them. Boil one gallon vinegar with one ounce peppercorns, two dozen cloves and two ounces ginger. When cold pour over grapes, cover, let stand for three days, then boil vinegar again. Pour in when cold over the grapes. Put in air-tight cans.

Tomatoes for Soup—Put enough salt in water to float an egg; boil the water and let stand to get cold. Then put as many tomatoes (ripe and solid) in crock as you desire, pour this water over them and put away. Do not salt your soup till after tomatoes are put in, then salt to taste.

MINCEMEATS

With Meat—One pound of raisins, one pound currants, one pound brown sugar, eight apples, one-half pound chopped suet, one-half pound of cooked lean beef chopped, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, one-fourth pound citron, lemon and orange peel. Scald with one quart of boiled cider, cook half an hour. This makes one gallon.

Green Tomato Mincemeat — Half bushel green tomatoes chopped fine and drained well. Make six pounds light brown sugar and two quarts of water into a syrup; cook tomatoes in this syrup until clear (one hour is enough), then add three pounds seeded raisins, two pounds currants, eight spoons cinnamon, two teaspoons cloves, two teaspoons allspice, three tablespoons salt, two and one-fourth cups good cider vinegar, one and one-half pounds beef suet chopped fine. After these ingredients are added boil a full half hour and can just the same as any other fruit. Will keep for years. Delicious.

THE TABLE

Clam Chowder — Twenty clams chopped fine, twelve boiled potatoes, one large onion, one slice fat salt pork; all chopped fine and thoroughly mixed. Strain liquor of clams, pour over all, add four crackers rolled fine. Season to suit taste with salt and pepper. Simmer over slow fire two hours. Serve hot with bread and butter; a very nourishing and appetizing meal.

Quick Company Dessert — Dice sweet apples, sprinkle with sugar and nutmeg. Serve with whipped cream. Delicious.
